JFK Annoyed At Mimicry Of His Voice

WASHINGTON (CP)—Reporters, who had been trying to learn from presidential aides what President Kennedy thinks about the numerous mimics of his voice and mannerisms, went to the top for their story Wednesday.

At the president's press conference, a question was put.

"Mr. President," the questioner said, "it has been a long time since a president and his family have been subjected to such a heavy barrage of teasing and fun-poking and satire. There have been books . . . and cartoons with clever sayings, and photo albums with balloons and the rest, and now there is a smash hit record. Can you tell us whether you read and listen to these things, and whether they produce annoyment or enjoyment?"

The answer:

"Annoyment. Yes, I have read them and listened to them and actually I listened to Mr. Meader's record, but I thought it sounded more like (Kennedy's brother) Teddy than it did me, so he's avenged."

LIKE BROTHER

The president's reference was to Vaughn Meader, a comedian whose record The First Family has sold copies by the hundreds of thousands. He limitates the president on the record.

Earlier it was learned that the use of a Meader recording to promote a Washington radio station caused a flurry in the Kennedy administration last weekend. The voice was taken off the air before the White House could deliver a formal protest.

While House press secretary Pierre Salinger said he considered "use of mimicry of the president's voice for a commercial purpose" not fitting.

It was understood that other radio stations which have been using the Jonathan recording also have received requests to discontinue them.

WORCESTER, England (CP) The Bishop of Worcester says churches should be bright, gay and warm and not "museum pieces." If authorities get rid of any dingyness in their churches they would get bigger congregations.

Sunday School Lesson
'Love' Is Christian Word

By ROY L. SMITH

As little children we learned the shortest text in the Bible — "God is Love" — without knowing much of anything about its significance. But it had three advantages, as far as a child was concerned. (1) It was brief, (2) the words were simple, (3) it could be used on any occasion.

In spite of our familiarity with the little verse, however, most of us have grown up without realizing or recognizing the profound meaning of the text. Yet this is the basic premise upon which all of Christian doctrine and philosophy rests.

THUS WORD LOVE

There is something very tragic about the way the glorious word "love" has been debauched. Some few years ago in Korea, I was told that the missionaries did not dare use the word in their preaching for the reason that the prostitutes had taken it over, and had made it a part of their standard vocabulary. For the Christian preacher to speak of "the love of Christ" conveyed, to the Koreans, the very opposite of what the missionary was trying to teach.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 16: "CHRISTIAN LOVE," Matthew 22: 35-40; John 15: 9-14; 1 Corinthians 13; Galatians 3: 23-28; Ephesians 3: 14-19; Colossians 3: 12-17; 1 John 3: 11-18; 4: 7-21.

In English the word has been reduced to the lowest common denominator by the movie industry so that it, stands, in the minds of many people including our American advertisements for license, triviality, superficiality, and self-expression.

There is a widespread idea that the Church of Jesus Christ should rescue the word "love," and set it again on the pedestal upon which it was enthroned by the death of Christ, who "while we were yet sinners, died for us."

LOVE BY UNLOVELY

It was not until sometime in the third century that any of the early Christian congregations came into possession of buildings wherein they might worship God, and their Lord Jesus. For the most part they worshipped in the kitchens of the big houses where many of them worked as slaves or servants.

Sometime during the second century the Christians were taunted by a famous Roman writer, because they were so poor and inconsequential that they had to meet in the scullieries.

But the unlovely of the world took the word unto her by virtue of the fact that they loved the uttermost. It was said of them by the beginning of the third century, "See how these Christians love one another." And it was said of them by the middle of the fourth century that "They are in love with everybody."

It was the love of the Christians that brought to an end the barbarous and inhuman gladiatorial combats. It was the love of the Christians that unlocked the prisons of the world, struck the shackles from the legs of men long imprisoned, and set them free. It was the love of an inconspicuous English Quakeress—Elizabeth Fry—that laid the conditions of the English jails upon the soul of the nation, and brought about a prison reform that swept the world.

LOVING LOVELESS

It is a common testimony from the agents of the United States government who have gone to the ends of the earth to distribute aid, that "the missionaries were ahead of us."

The first hospitals, schools, infirmaries, clinics, and agencies of relief around the world in all the underdeveloped areas, were built by the Churches as a part of their missions.

Long before the government ever became interested in agricultural reform, better seed, and better farming methods, the Church of God Literally millions of people, strong and well rise up to call it blessed because it came to them in the time of their agony.

The proof of the integrity of any church is not the magnificence of the cathedral in which it worships, but the radius of its love that goes out into all the earth.

Picnic Over For Students Says Magistrate

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The picnic is over for university students charged with drinking while under age, Magistrate J. E. H. Kilpatrick said Wednesday.

Raymond Metcalf, 20, and Raymond Mellikow, 20, both engineering students at the University of Waterloo, were fined $100 each when they pleaded guilty to drinking while minors. Assault charges against the pair were withdrawn.

Crown Attorney Harold Daufman said the youths were too drunk to know what they were doing when they "set out to beat up the next person who came along."

"This type of action has no place in the university life," said the magistrate, adding that he considered imposing a jail term without an optional fine.

WEEKLIES MERGE

LONDON (AP)—Two British political and literary magazines, Time and Tide and John O'Londons, are to merge in a new weekly called Time and Tide, the publishers announced Wednesday night. Time and Tide publisher William J. Britain has bought John O'Londons and will put out the first combined issue Jan. 3.

Astrological Forecast

For December 15

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Those who try to make "deals" should be put off. Accept sincere approach. But reject those who appear to "know all." Be self-reliant, independent, above petty actions. Fine night for romance!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Strength stems through minor obstacles. Means you gain prestige by showing you can overcome roadblocks. Be diplomatic, kind, understanding, especially in dealings with family members.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Especially good for social affairs, surprise party or for sending invitations. Start looking ahead, making plans for holiday season. Not best for travelling great distances.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Keep eye on budget. You may be tempted to "splurge." Better to plan, utilize imagination. Attend to details in connection with shopping. But don't expect quality bargains.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Important that you get proper amount of rest. Irritability over minor matter could erupt into major "explosion." Remember that loved ones also have "nerves." Evening fine for relaxing entertaining.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Being close to familiar surroundings could serve as tonic. Stretch out, relax! Avoid affairs which require formality. Be yourself. Visit friend who will be confined.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Idea offered by Leo individual could spark you into profitable action. Permit Libra sense of justice to function. Express appreciation. But take time to handle complex details.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): More on "your side" than you might at first believe. Tendency is to overlook advantages. Today realize you possess charm, ability. Refuse to feel inferior!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Day for analyzing, perceiving, reading, questioning. Extend influence. Write, communicate, visit. Basically good for realizing potential.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Outlook brightens. You take news steps toward added independence. You feel a bit "lost in the shuffle." But aid is forthcoming in form of, genuine friendship. Express sense of humor.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't shirk responsibilities. Applies to family as well as business commitments. Engage in community activity. Show older person proper respect. Be alert to needs of loved ones.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be true to your own feelings. Ignore gossip. Refuse to be told what you must do or think. Exercise independence of thought. Your ability to charm "grumpy" person helps you.

If today is your birthday . . . you have been aware of greater need for security. Much of this need can be fulfilled in coming months. You are a "gentle" and considerate person.

General Tendencies: "Battle" lines are drawn between those who want to go back to past and those who want to drive ahead.

VETERAN TRANSPORT PILOT — Flt. Lt. D. B. (Doc) O'Connor of Capreol, Ont., runs through a cockpit check of more than 60 items before starting the turbine engines of his CC-106 Yukon long-range transport plane. Since joining the RCAF 11 years ago, Flt. Lt. O'Connor, 29, has logged 7,300 hours of flying time—equivalent to 304 days or nearly a year in the air. (CP from National Defence.)

RCAF's Transport Command Pilots Girdle the Globe in Mighty Yukons

OTTAWA (CP)—Flt. Lt. D. B. (Doc) O'Connor sat for the equivalent of 31 days in 1962 at the controls of a CC-106 Yukon long - range transport, moving men, supplies and equipment to most parts of the world.

This 29-year-old first pilot of 437 "Husky" Squadron at the RCAF's Trenton, Ont., station is one of the hundreds of air crew in the Air Transport Command who contributed to significant achievements in air transportation by the air force in 1962.

Planes of the command chalked up thousands of hours of flying time in Canada, on flights to Canadian military bases in Europe and in service long Canada's military personnel in the Middle East, The Congo and the Far East.

LONGEST FLIGHT

One Yukon transport flew non-stop from Tokyo to Trenton in 17 hours and three minutes, a distance of 6,750 miles—the longest flight in RCAF history.

Doc O'Connor and others like him in Transport Command are among the few members of the air force who are able to see for themselves the world-wide picture of the RCAF in action.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Dinnes O'Connor of Capreol, Ont., Doc joined the RCAF 11 years ago and flew Dakota transports for nine years before joining 437 Squadron a year ago.

During his service he has logged 7,300 hours of flying time, equivalent to 304 days in the air. In other words he has spent nearly one of the 11 years he's served in the air force sitting at the controls of transport planes.

BECOMES ROUTINE

Long-distance flights have become routine to him after flying the largest aircraft built in Canada for 750 hours or some 31 days.

"The first few non-stop trips from Trenton to Marville, France, were novel," he says. "But I've got more than 50 crossings in my log book now and that makes the dormal run routine."

A routine flight in a Yukon consists of cruising at altitudes of 30,000 feet at speeds of more than 400 miles an hour with 100 tons of aircraft and load.

The work of the transport command highlighted RCAF activities in 1962. The year also was featured by deliveries of new supersonic aircraft, reorganization of squadrons to accommodate them and the institution of new training programs for their crews.

VITAL BRANCH

Air Transport Command planes played a major role in international aid in 1962 in addition to their work for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the North American Air Defence Command.

One notable flight was made by a Yukon which flew nine tons of Canadian Red Cross emergency supplies to earthquake - stricken inhabitants of Tehran, Iran, in September.

In Southeast Asia, the command flew supplies to the international Truce Commission in Indochina. Its annual Christmas run to Canadian personnel in Saigon, South Viet Nam, took place late in November.

In support of United Nations Congo operations, Yukons flew at a rate of two a month to Leopoldville with personnel and supplies for the Canadian UN contingent.

Other international aid included the delivery of six Dakota aircraft to the Indian government to help India in her border conflict with Communist China.

Shipowners Present Brief To Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Shipowners Association calls for general curbs against trade unions to ban picketing and boycotts in jurisdictional disputes.

In a brief filed Thursday with the federal marine inquiry, the association said that union harassment of shipping facilities "can only result in increased costs to the economy and damage to the country's reputation for stability."

The association, formed in 1933 by Canadian ocean-going shipowners, is a national organization of 21 Canadian-incorporated companies owning 35 ocean - going ships registered within the Commonwealth.

The brief offered several proposals aimed at effectively eliminating "unwarranted economic activities by labor unions in Canada" and improving the country's maritime labor relations.

ASKS NEW LAWS

Specifically, the association called for:

1. New labor legislation clearly defining and clarifying the responsibility of trade unions for the actions of their members, both those that establish pickets or boycotts and those that honor them.

2. Specific prohibitions against picketing, boycotts and any other form of interference when the object is establishment of bargaining rights, in jurisdictional disputes and when the employer is not a party to the dispute.

3. A ban on secondary boycotts and sympathy strikes when the disputes originate in other countries.

4. Normal recourse to the courts on decisions of labor relation and arbitration boards on jurisdiction or points of law.

Guides Aline Skurat and Laurine Williams carefully read the registration for their newly formed Company, 13, which was presented by Mrs. J. Hunter, District Commissioner for Belleville West, Tuesday evening at the regular Guide meeting held at Christ Church. With this new Company there are now over 1,000 members in the Belleville Division Girl Guide movement; Company 13 presently consists of 13 girls and two leaders.

Girl Guide Company 13 Holds Candlelight Ceremony

Tuesday evening 13 proved to be a lucky number for the 13 Girl Guides in the newly formed Company 13. At their regular meeting held at Christ Church two more Guides were enrolled, the registration for the Company was presented and the two leaders received Division trainer's warrants.

At a special candle-light ceremony Aline Skurat and Laurine Williams were officially enrolled by Mrs. D. Settle Captain of the Company assisted by Mrs. J. Watkin, the Lieutenant. The girls were congratulated by both the Division Commissioner and the District Commissioner.

Mrs. J. Hunter, District Commissioner for Belleville West, took pleasure in presenting the official Company registration, from Guide Headquarters in Toronto, to the leaders. While Mrs. D. Stewart, the Division Commissioner felt honoured to give each of the leaders, Mrs. Settle and Mrs. Watkin, the first trainer's warrants to be earned by a Guider in this city.

Speaking to the Guides, Mrs. Stewart said "You are truly lucky to have qualified Division trainers as leaders," explaining the work of the trainers and how essential they are in the city. Previously, when Belleville had leaders to be trained it was necessary to apply to Provincial Headquarters for instruction.

Brownies from Pack 13 at Queen Mary School will enroll as Guides in this recently registered Company.

The regular meeting resumed after the presentations with the girls receiving a square dance lesson from Mrs. Watkin.

Bailiff Failed To Turn up As Expected

WINNIPEG (CP)—A bailiff failed to turn up as expected Thursday at St. Emile's School in neighboring St. Vital.

He was expected to seize some textbooks, central point in a test case to see whether the Manitoba government will allow free texts to be distributed to parochial school students.

The books were in the possession of seven children of three families who registered at a public school, received the books and took them back to their Roman Catholic separate school for use.

A bailiff turned up at the home of one of the families Wednesday and told Charles Noiseux he was there for the books. But, because the books had been left at school, he said he would go there to pick them up.

Sister Therese, school principal, said Thursday no one had shown up to make the seizure.

In a prepared statement Scott Bateman, deputy minister of education, said his department had no part in "or direct knowledge of the action of any bailiff or solicitor acting for or on behalf of any party in St. Vital desiring to secure repossession of textbooks."

"As it is now before the courts it would be improper for me to say more."

ROBLIN RETAINS POWER IN MANITOBA

WHIZZES CLOSE TO VENUS—This is a drawing of Mariner II released by National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Yesterday Mariner II whizzed close to Venus, about 36 million miles away from earth. Radio contact between Marine II and earth was established about 3:59 p.m. EST. Through the space probe's heat and radio-sensitive eyes, scientists hoped to learn the weather, temperature and something about the atmosphere of the cloud-veiled planet. (AP Wirephoto.)

White Rhodesians Claim Clear Election Majority

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The white supremacist Rhodesian Front today was expected to have won a sweeping victory in Friday's general election in Southern Rhodesia.

Final official results were not yet known, but observers here said the Rhodesian Front had won a clear majority over Premier Sir Edgar Whitehead's United Federal Party which campaigned on promises of a "non-racial" society and preservation of the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The federation, made up of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, appears to be doomed.

Friday night, the two major Negro nationalist parties in Northern Rhodesia announced they had agreed to form a coalition and give the self-governing colony its first Negro government. Nyasaland's Negro leader, Dr. Hastings Banda, has vowed to take his country out of the white-dominated federation.

With 53 of the 65 seats in the Southern Rhodesian legislature decided the standing was: Rhodesian Front 33; United Federal party 19; Independent 1.

The Rhodesian Front, led by Ian Smith Field, is pledged to retain "white control" in Southern Rhodesia and has rejected what it calls "forced integration."

The election was the first under a new constitution giving a limited number of Negroes the right to vote, but few of them exercised it.

Whitehead had banned the Negro nationalist party in the colony, the Zimbawbe African People's Union, and the nationalists' resulting call to Negroes to boycott the election appeared to have been a complete success.

Only 13,000 of the total Negro population of 2,600,000 were eligible to vote. About 90,000 of the 225,000 whites were on the electoral roll.

CHINESE CLAIM MOSCOW SPLIT IS WORSENING

Charge K. With "Capitulationism"

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China said today its split with Moscow is worsening and accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev of the new Marxist crime of "capitulationism" — that is, giving in to the United States.

The Chinese leadership, in a 6,500-word policy statement in the official Peking People's Daily, raked the Soviet Union for an "utterly outrageous" anti-Chinese campaign and revealed that it had proposed a meeting of all the world's Communist parties to try to heal the breach.

Khrushchev's sharp criticism of China before the Soviet parliament Wednesday, however, seemed to indicate that the door to reconciliation would be hard to open.

The Chinese statement heaped scorn on Khrushchev's newfound friendship for "that renegade to communism," President Tito of Yugoslavia, and it defended China's border war with India.

ARE THE SAME

Tito, visiting Moscow as Khrushchev's invitation, told the Soviet parliament Wednesday that Soviet and Yugoslav points of view "on all major international questions coincide or are close to each other."

The Chinese struck back at attacks levelled in the recently

Liberals Make Slight Gains From PCs, NDP

Socreds Win One Seat; NDP Vote Is Slashed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin led his Progressive Conservative government back to power in Manitoba-general election but the Liberals made slight gains in both seats and the popular vote.

The New Democratic Party lost strength, dropping in a seat Friday in its North Winnipeg stronghold, and the only Social Credit member of the last legislature retained his seat.

Party standings:

Prog. Con.	33	36
Liberal	13	11
NDP-CCF	10	10
Social Credit	1	—
Tie	1	—
Deferred	2	—
Total	57	57

The tie is in Kildonan.

LIBERALS IMPROVE

One of the most notable results of the election was that the Liberals improved their lustous grip in the Winnipeg metropolitan area, gaining a seat from each of the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Parties to add to the St. Boniface seat they held before.

Steve Patrick, middle guard for Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the Canadian football champions, made a successful political debut by winning the Winnipeg suburban seat of Assiniboia for the Liberals from the former member, Progressive Conservative George Johnson. Mark Smerchanski won for the Liberals in the North Winnipeg seat of Burrows, where he defeated veteran socialist John Hawryluk.

Liberal Gordon Johnston won in La Prairie over Welfare Minister John Christianson, the only cabinet minister defeated. The main issue in that campaign was a controversial proposed diversion of the Assiniboine River into Lake Manitoba.

The Progressive Conservatives regained the traditionally Conservative southern Manitoba rural seat of Turtle Mountain from the Liberals, who won it in a byelection in 1960. They also took the rural constituency of Fisher from the NDP.

TWO ARE TIED

When counting was completed in the suburban Winnipeg riding of Fort Garry, Progressive Conservative James T. Mills and A. J. Reid, the NDP candidate seeking re-election, were tied with 3,156 votes each. The tie could be broken in several ways, including a recount by official Dec. 20. But if the tie persisted it would be up to the returning officer to break the deciding vote.

One factor in deciding the contest may be ballots cast by occupants of hospitals, nursing homes and patients in the homeridings of the voters.

Will Inspect All Ontario Meat, Poultry

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new Meat inspection Act will provide for the inspection of all meat and poultry sold in the province beyond the present 20 per cent inspected under federal law, says Agriculture Minister William A. Stewart.

Mr. Stewart told the legislature Friday at second reading of the proposed Act that the federal government is responsible only for inspection of plants which slaughter meat for interprovincial or export trade.

The provincial act would provide for inspection work within the province to be done by federal inspectors, with Ontario compensating the federal government for the service.

After several months of study, the minister said, "it is quite apparent the public generally feels that a co-ordinated policy for meat inspection is most desirable."

"To introduce a provincial inspection policy, which would be administered solely by the province, would not only result in high per-unit cost to individuals, but as well, two grade standards—one provincial and the other federal."

He said he believes the Ontario people will support a provincial plan "is a completely new approach to meat inspection in Canada."

The minister indicated that plants not now inspected would be given a period of time in which to meet federal inspection standards.

"The federal officials recommended this period would have to be at least two years," he said.

He said the bill provides for inspection from the Meat Inspection Act, at the discretion of the provincial government, "to any person or class of persons, animals or class of animals."

Big Price Increase Is Foreseen In Imported Vegetables, Fruits

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 25- to 30-per-cent increase in the retail price of imported vegetables and an even higher increase in citrus fruit prices was forecast Friday in the wake of the freeze in Florida.

(In Toronto, one supermarket chain buyer said fresh vegetable prices may rise as much as 50 per cent next week.)

Charles Taylor, produce manager for National Grocers Company Limited, said his company may have to turn to markets in Texas, Arizona and California early in the new year to obtain supplies of fruit and vegetables, and may have to turn to the British Honduras for grapefruit.

Wholesalers are already feeling the increase in price of imported fruit and vegetables.

John Sansone, treasurer of the Sansone Fruit Company, said cases of Florida oranges were wholesaling at $3.50 in December this year but the price jumped to $6 Friday.

"We will be lucky if we get any oranges at grapefruit out of Florida now," said Mr. Sansone.

He expected prices of citrus fruit to the consumer will be up at least 10 cents a dozen "if we can get any at all."

Extra transportation costs and less competitive market will boost prices of the same commodities from Texas, Arizona and California, he said.

Something New Under the Sun

Mariner Looks At Venus, Flees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mariner II, a miracle of science, has given man his first close look at another planet.

For 42 minutes Friday it scanned Venus, flashing back 36,000,000 miles the information which may unravel the secrets of the "veiled lady of the universe."

Today, as the spacecraft explored deeper into space, scientists dug into the mass of data —more information about the earth's closest planetary neighbor than has been recorded in all the history of star-gazing.

It was an incredible feat and excited scientists rejoiced.

The historic fly-by came at 3 p.m. EST after a 109-day, 182,-000,000-mile over - all journey that began at a Cape Canaveral, Fla., launching pad.

At its nearest approach to Venus, the space laboratory was 21,100 miles from the planet.

PROBES THROUGH CLOUD

Special monitoring devices began to probe the cloud-covered surface at 1:55 p.m. and were switched off at 2:37 p.m.

Then the craft was speeding toward the sun, after having come closer to a planet than any other space vehicle.

Mariner is expected to send periodic information about inter-planetary space out to as far as 72,000,000 miles from the earth. That's twice the distance it was from earth Friday after-

MANITOBA VOTE TO BE STUDIED BY ALL PARTIES

Many Features Attract Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Election results in Manitoba, the fourth province to hold a provincial contest in five weeks, will be the subject of close scrutiny by all federal parties for weeks to come.

Features of the voting Friday which attracted Ottawa interest are: 1. The personal future of Premier Roblin. He has been mentioned in some quarters as a possible successor to Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the federal leadership of the Conservative party, if it falls open.

2. The future of the Liberal party in Western Canada. It gained strength in the Manitoba legislature mainly at the expense of the New Democratic Party.

3. The future of the NDP itself. It lost strength in one of the provinces it regards along with Saskatchewan as its birthplace.

WON'T COMMENT

Prime Minister Diefenbaker makes a practice of not commenting publicly on provincial election results, as did his predecessors in office. However, it is expected that he will send a personal message of congratulation to Mr. Roblin, one of his close friends and leadership supporters.

The 62-year-old premier has said he has no intention of making the jump from provincial to federal politics and that continued leadership of the Conservatives in his province is sufficient challenge for him.

However, his re-election to a third term is bound to renew speculation on Mr. Roblin's federal leadership potential. Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated no thought of retiring, and Conservative MPs here are rallying behind him in preparation for next month's national general meeting of the party after a spate of rumors that his leadership

9 Die When Plane Crashes Into Business-Housing Area

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A ninth victim was found in the ash-scorched, wreckage-littered scenes where a jet liner missed a runway and plunged into a block of suburban homes Friday night.

The Civil, Aeronautics Board launched an investigation of the flaming crash. Witnesses said the plane dropped out of the foggy sky as if it were zooming in for a landing—and smashed instead into residences hundreds of yards short of a nearby airfield.

Killed were five men and four women. Two were children, girls.

Eight homes were set afire. Pieces of wreckage the size of automobiles smashed through roofs of frame houses, igniting gasoline spewed across a block-long area.

The plane crashed in a San Fernando valley section west of Lockheed Air Terminal in Burbank, destination of the Flying Tiger Airlines Constellation.

Firemen said four of the victims were aboard the plane and the others a woman and a girl died in shattered homes.

There may be more victims, firemen said. The victims were terribly mutilated by the force of the impact and the flames which followed.

A witness said the plane appeared to be coming in for a perfect landing—except it was on top of homes and businesses near Laurel Canyon Boulevard instead of at the field.

"The plane was lowering in the sky," the witness said Mike Fowers. He said he looked up, horrified at the apparition of a jet airliner roaring in out of the mist.

"It didn't look like it could come down there. Then the left wing dipped and the plane smashed in, nose first."

NATO Council Calls for "Effectiveness of Forces"

PARIS (Reuters)—A communique issued at the end of a three - day NATO ministerial council winter session today called for an increase in the "effectiveness of conventional forces" in the Atlantic alliance.

The ministers said they found the alliance "sound and vigorous" but agreed that there was a balanced forces, both nuclear and conventional, were necessary to enable the alliance to use the widest possible range of response to whatever threats it might face.

The "aim of the Atlantic alliance remains what it has always been — peace, freedom, and security based on the rule of law," the communique said.

"However, the alliance is determined to respond appropriately to any hostile action affecting the security and freedom of countries of the alliance subjected to threats and pressure."

The ministers reaffirmed their determination to "defend and maintain the freedom of West Berlin and its people."

They condemned again the recent attempt by the Soviet Union to tilt the balance of power against the West by secretly stationing nuclear missiles in Cuba brought the world to the verge of war.

"The peril was averted by the firmness and restraint of the United States, supported by the alliance and other free nations."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Canada hopes to introduce a resolution in the UN before long to condemn Russian imperialism.

Justice Minister Fleming denied giving any instructions to the RCMP before investigations into political activity at universities.

Edmund Bonsont (SC—Bellechasse), urged that the government send out a $5 Christmas bonus to pensioners.

Unemployment insurance benefit checks applied to people in academic life as well as others.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas asked whether Mr. Fleming's statement meant there have been RCMP interviews of students and faculty members taking part in meetings to state their opposition, for instance, to the acquirement of nuclear weapons."

Mr. Fleming said he did not use that expression. He repeated that there are no special

Builds Plane, Real One, in Living Room

ROCKFORD, Tenn. (AP)— In the comfort of his living room, Tom Roddy is building an airplane. A real one you ride in.

Roddy, a photographer and a flying enthusiast, got an idea from an aviation magazine four years ago.

Figuring it would require 1,700 hours to build, he decided he would have to live with his new project.

He rented a house with plenty of living space plus a 20 - by - 40 foot front room for an ideal workshop.

There are two double doors in the living room through which the plane—minus wings —can be rolled.

So far, Roddy has invested $2,600 in his two-seater and anticipates spending about $400 more. The finished, all-metal aircraft will compare with factory-made models costing $8,-000.

Rabbi Seeks Two RCAF Officers Who Gave Rations to Prison Camp

MONTREAL (CP)—A British rabbi who arrived Friday to start a North American tour said he is looking for two RCAF officers who engineered a supply-giving spree for the survivors of Belsen when the Allies liberated the Nazi concentration camp in 1945.

Rabbi Leslie Hardman of London's Hendon Congregation said he doesn't remember their names, but he can recall their faces and he wants to meet them again.

"I would just like to shake their hands," he said.

One of the men was the commanding officer of an RCAF base near Belsen, the other his adjutant.

Rabbi Hardman said he entered the camp with a British liberation force and found there were no supplies available immediately for the survivors.

He went to the RCAF camp and spoke to the officers.

"I told them of the horrible details of my find and their response was magnificent. I don't know if it was in the rules. But they pledged the rations of their men for two days for our camp."

Synopsis: A weak storm centre moving southeast from Lake Superior this morning will cause widespread but light falls of snow today across southern and central sections of the province. Snow will taper off to a few flurries early tonight and partly cloudy skies with cooler weather may be expected Saturday.

Mounties 'Not Interested' In College Political Groups

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fleming said in the Commons Friday that the RCMP are "not interested in political activity" among university students and faculty members.

He said he has given no instructions for the RCMP to investigate university students or teachers and added that he has been told that the Mounties have not been approaching people on campuses in an effort to develop sources of information.

Mr. Fleming was replying to New Democratic Party members who said they have information from "a number of sources" that the federal police force has been interviewing people at universities on the political activities of themselves and their colleagues.

From time to time, the minister said, the RCMP is asked to check on whether prospective job applicants are "good security risks" before they are hired for some government job or for industrial defence production, where secrecy is required.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

SISTERS KILLED

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Twin sisters riding in one car and playfully trying to pass their father in another car Friday were killed in a head-on collision, officers reported. The victims were Hazel and Helen Worthington, 21-year-olds. The driver of the other car was badly hurt.

Car Stolen and Wrecked in City May Be Job of Escaped Convict

No Poultry Is Offered On Market

One week before Christmas, no poultry of any description, was seen on the local farmers' market this morning.

The snow which fell in the Bay of Quinte area this morning, could possibly have been the reason why there was no poultry. Vendors apparently felt that, due to the snow, business would not be worthwhile.

However, a few vendors did brave the weather and came to the market square with their trucks loaded with assorted Christmas trees. Scotch Pine, spruce and balsam were sold this morning from $1.50 to $4 a tree according to size and kind.

Crash Sends Ottawa Man To Hospital

A 21-year-old Ottawa man is in satisfactory condition in the Belleville General Hospital today after receiving scalp cuts in a two-car crash on Highway 37 at Cannifton yesterday.

Police say Walter Grichen was a passenger in a car driven by Melvin Schecter, also of Ottawa, struck broadside by another car driven by a Toronto man, Jack White.

White, say officers, lost control of his vehicle on a curve near the old Highway 37 cut-off.

Police today are checking possibilities a stolen car wrecked in Belleville last night may have been taken by escaped convict Neil D. Morrison.

Morrison escaped yesterday from the Kingston penitentiary rehabilitation centre.

This morning police believe there's a sound possibility he was the driver of a car stolen on the Market Square and abandoned on West Bridge Street after it veered out of control and struck two houses. The driver fled the scene.

"From the descriptions furnished us by eye-witnesses we have good reason to believe it may have been the escaped convict," police inspector J. Hayes said this morning.

The car was parked on the square at 7:30 p.m. by Mrs. Edith Cook of Brighton. It was taken about 11 p.m. The accident occurred about midnight as the stolen vehicle pulled out to pass another car on West Bridge Street. It struck the rear of an oncoming automobile driven by Wellington Reynolds, 162 Catherine Street. Veering out of control, the stolen car crossed across the road, mounted the pavement, struck house 37, slid across a lawn striking house 41-43.

Police officers, checking properties in the vicinity, heard the crash and rushed to the scene. When they arrived witnesses told them of seeing the driver flee from the wrecks. A search of the area turned up no traces of the wanted man.

Mrs. Cook, sister-in-law of city police sergeant Sam Cook, was unaware her car had been stolen until she returned to the square at 11.30. At first, believing the vehicle had been towed away, she checked with police and learned of the incident.

vote showed the Progressive Conservatives with 44 per cent of the total. In 1959 they had 47 per cent.

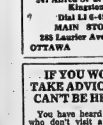
The Liberals had 38 per cent compared with 30 per cent in 1959. The NDP dropped drastically to 15 per cent from 22 per cent.

Social Credit ran no candidates in 1959, but their 12 candidates collected three per cent of the total vote this time.

Premier Robilin, who said he was "gratified" at the election result, easily won personal re-election in the Winnipeg city riding of Wolseley he has represented since 1949.

Liberal Leader Gil Molgat, re-elected in the rural riding of Ste. Rose, commented particularly on his party's gains in the popular vote and in the Winnipeg urban area.

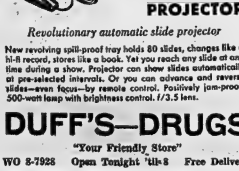
A. R. Paulley, leader of the NDP, was re-elected in the Winnipeg suburban riding of Radisson, but was disappointed by his party's showing. It had hoped to replace the Liberals as the official opposition.



The only other Credit candidate elected was J. H. Froese, in the rural Rhineland riding. He won the seat in a byelection in 1959.

The Progressive Conservatives and Liberals had full slates of candidates in all 55 seats at stake—voting in the northern seats of Churchill and Rupertsland will not take place until Jan. 4. The NDP ran 38 candidates.

Standing at dissolution Nov. 9 was: Progressive Conservative 34, Liberal 10, NDP 9, Social Credit 1, vacant 3, total 57.



The two northern seats were held by Progressive Conservatives.

STEWART ALBERT EMPEY
Belleville

Resident of Belleville for the past 20 years, but formerly of Saskatchewan where he farmed until his retirement, Mr. Stewart Albert Empey, died in Belleville General Hospital yesterday. He was in his 86th year, and had been ailing for sometime.

Born in Madoc Township, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip E. Empey and lived in Rawdon, Saskatchewan, and Madoc, before moving to Belleville. He was a member of the Anglican Church. He attended school at Madoc and at Albert College.

Never married, his is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. (Annie L.) (Fox and Mrs. D. (Josephine) Ketchesou both of Belleville, and Mrs. W. (Nellie) Irwin of Eldorado, and one brother Fred, of Eldorado.

Rev. Canon Whitehouse Funeral Home, Madoc; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

CARMAN W. SINE

The funeral of Carman W. Sine of R. R. 1, Harold, Ontario, was held on Thursday, December 13th, in Springbrook United Church and was largely attended. A former pastor Rev. Howard Bean of Roseneath officiated.

The bearers were Messrs. Clayton Burkitt, Kenneth Thompson, Gordon Bailey, Wesley Bailey, Glenn Heath and William Heath.

The interment was made in Bethel cemetery. The funeral was under the direction of the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling

CLARENCE BURLEY

Funeral services for Clarence Burley were held at the Thompson Funeral Chapel yesterday afternoon, with Rev. C. W. Silverman of Holloway Street United Church officiating. Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

Honorary bearers were Garn Coons and Orval Cooper. Active bearers were William Dawson, Harold Wannamaker, Edward Pollwell, Eugene Gilmor, Oswell Newton and Monty Barlow.

On Thursday evening a memorial service was held by Eureka Lodge, A. F. and A. M. Number 283, and sister lodges. The service was conducted by W. F. Pottell, assisted by D. Hancock, B. Smith, H. T Adams, E. C. Wood, F. Rowe and H. H. Graham.

British Seize Last Rebel Strongholds

LABUAN, North Borneo (Reuters) — British troops were reported today to have captured the last two rebel strongholds of Sebuk and Niah in North Sarawak, army sources said yesterday.

The sources said the British took the towns late Friday after a hilltop night battle during the area on a march through dense, mountainous jungle.

The rebels collided and British encountered little resistance from the rebel Northern Borneo Liberation Army.

The rebel movement was launched in opposition to the proposed federation of Malaysia which is planned to include Brunei, Sarawak, North Borneo, Malaya and Singapore.

The remaining rebels have fled south into rugged hills, the sources said.

Madoc Roads Cause Rash Of Accidents

A sudden rash of accidents erupted in the Madoc area last night.

"We had them all over the place," a provincial police said.

There were no personal injuries and property damage was recorded on a minor in all incidents.

The bulk of mishaps occurred on township roads in the area—still slippery after recent snowfalls. Other accidents were reported on Highways 7 and 62.

Prisoner Flees Kingston 'Pen'

KINGSTON (CP) — A car stolen shortly after a prisoner escaped from Kingston Penitentiary Friday was discovered later parked within 100 yards of the police station.

Neil D. Morrison, 24, of Toronto, described by penitentiary officials as "potentially dangerous," was still at large today.

He escaped from the penitentiary's rehabilitation centre, where he was receiving treatment for a leg injury.

He was serving seven in the penitentiary in October last year. was serving eight years for armed robbery, theft and possession of offensive weapons.

Search Yields No Trace of Airliner

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP-AP)—Searchers renewed their efforts today to find a Brazilian airliner with 50 persons aboard that vanished in dense Amazon jungle six minutes before its scheduled landing at the busy river port of Manaus.

An all - day search Friday yielded no trace of the four-engined Constellation that disappeared at 6:30 p.m. on the last leg of a 2,500 mile 35-hour trip from Rio de Janeiro. The passenger list indicated that all aboard were Brazilians.

There were all kinds of conflicting reports Friday coming from all were dead to all were safe. The reports all were erroneous.

Both The Associated Press and Reuters news agency carried the flig report that the wreckage had been sighted early Friday and that no survivors were spotted.

The AP said this was based on a report from the newspaper Jornal do Brasil that quoted military sources as saying no sign of life could be detected around the plane.

Then came a report by the Brazilian Air Force that the airliner had been found on a lake shore and that all aboard were safe. But it was dismissed by the air force as also erroneous.

The disappearance of the liner potentially was the third air disaster in Brazil in four weeks. Nov. 27, a Brazilian Boeing 707 jet crashed and burned on a hilltop near Lima, Peru, killing all 97 persons aboard. The day before, two Brazilian planes collided and crashed near São Paulo, killing 27 persons.

Skybolt Test Casts Doubt On Red Claim

OTTAWA (CP)—The controversy between British and the United States over the bomber-borne Skybolt missile casts doubt on Russian claims that it could knock out Canada's two Bomarc bases with air-launched weapons, defence officials here say.

The U.S. has admitted five straight failures in tests of the Skybolt, designed to have a range of 1,000 miles, and has not been given up development of the air-to-ground missile.

In the diplomatic tug-of-war here between Russian and United States emissaries over Canadian nuclear policy, the Soviet representatives have asserted that the Bomarc bases could be destroyed by missiles launched from Soviet bombers while still outside the Bomarc's range of some 400 miles.

Defence authorities said Russia must be having at least the difficulties experienced by the U.S. in development of a long-range bomber-borne missile and that they seriously doubt the Soviet claim.

Canada's two Bomarc bases are at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que.

Hubby Puffs, Wife Tosses Money Away

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — Every time Terry Mellor lit a cigarette, wife Josephine tossed a 2s coin — worth 25 cents — down the nearest sewer or into the drain.

If he took out a cigar, she tossed away double the amount.

Friday, after six months of financial warfare, 27-year-old Terry said he was quitting smoking. Josephine, 21, had plopped a total of £17 17s 6d down the drains.

"It was worth every penny," she said. "Smoking is unhealthy and a waste of money. The money we'll save now will go into buying furniture for our new home."

Tug Rescues Four Stranded Light Keepers

WHEATLEY, Ont. (CP) — The fishing tug Alex B out of Wheatley Friday took on board four stranded lighthouse keepers, two of whom had to climb hand over hand along 70 feet of rope to reach safety.

The boat, skippered by Ray Geitz of Leamington, left Erie Fisheries, attempted to reach the men early Thursday, but was forced to turn back by rough water and ice.

Kenneth Wilson of Wheatley and Jack McLeod of Essex, operators of the lighthouse on the southeast shoal, seven miles off the tip of Point Pelee, had to climb along the rope when the ice prevented the boat from getting them.

Andy Telfer and Ronald Woodridge, both of Riverside, were able to get right into the boat from the lighthouse in Pelee passage, 16 miles off Leamington.

3 Men Died While Safety Officers Talked

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP)—Three men died last month in a nitrogen filled refinery tower while plant safety officials were discussing "no smoking" rules at a safety meeting, an inquest jury was told Friday. The inquest resumes Wednesday.

The inquest was investigating the Nov. 8 deaths of Gary Wilson, 21, Allen Thomas, 40, and Archie Corson, 38, at Texaco's Regent refinery in this community 10 miles west of Toronto.

Assistant Safety Inspector Hatton testified he had asked Safety Inspector Joseph Chandler whether he should safety meeting. Mr. Hatton said.

Both inspectors said they entered the tower before the men went in.

Mr. Hatton said he signed permit, describing the tower as safe on Nov. 7, and on the day the men died in the tower.

He said as far as he knew the men had no experience working in the tower and were at the plant had ever worked under similar conditions, he said.

Testimony revealed that it was the first time men had actually gone into the tank at the top of a polyreactor tower. They went without the knowledge of the plant manager or the safety director.

A safety bolt — a worn rope bolt — is strict requirement under plant safety rules.

DISCLOSE SIZE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians Friday disclosed the size of their Mars probes—81 by 12 feet. The weight is 1,968 pounds. The probe, or station as the Russians call it, was launched Nov. 1 and is expected to reach the vicinity of Mars in May. It is expected to pass the planet at a distance of about 120,000 miles. The figures were published by Tass news agency.

Magazine Tax Ruled Legal by Quebec Court

MONTREAL (CP)—Chief Justice W. B. Scott of Quebec Superior Court ruled Friday that Parliament had the authority in 1958 to enact an excise tax on gross advertising revenue of Canadian editions of foreign magazines.

The ruling resulted from a test case launched by Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Limited, held liable for payment of the tax on its Canadian advertising. This amount is about $850,000.

The tax was introduced in 1958 under the former Liberal administration and came into effect Jan. 1, 1957. It was repealed 18 months later—June 30, 1958—by the Progressive Conservative government.

The federal revenue department claimed that Reader's Digest was liable for the tax in the period it was in force.

Lawyers for the company argued that the tax contravened the sections of British North America Act dealing with the tax powers of provincial legislatures.

But revenue department's counsel argued the excise tax was constitutional because the BNA Act reserved to Parliament the right of raising money by any mode or system of taxation."

The action against the federal government was launched by Reader's Digest in 1959.

The tax affected foreign publications sold in Canada. Canadian editions in which editorial content is little changed, but which carry considerable advertising sold in Canada.

Propose Year Time Limit For New Stations

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors proposed a time limit Friday on getting new private commercial radio and TV stations, or changes in existing stations, under way and into operation.

A proposed new regulation, subject to public hearing at the BBG's sitting starting Jan. 15 in Ottawa, would provide that work under private licences must begin within three months and that the new station or alteration must be in use within a year.

The time would be measured from the date that the transport minister writes the applicant to say that his application has been approved.

Also proposed by the governors Friday was a new regulation dealing with foreign-language broadcasting.

It provides that unless a radio station gets special permission from the BBG, it cannot broadcast in a language other than French and English for more than 15 per cent of the station's total weekly broadcasting time.

This would not apply to Eskimo and Canadian Indian broadcasting.

25 Children Escape Bomb

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Twenty-five children practising for a Christmas play in a Negro church basement escaped injury when a bomb explosion damaged the church and wrecked two nearby homes.

The early Sunday blast Friday was blamed on racial troubles by a trustee of the church who is active in the interdenominational group.

The basement of the Bethel Baptist Church was showered with broken glass and plaster. The main floor of the church was littered with broken stained glass windows and shattered paintings. The walls were cracked.

Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, Negro, leader of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights, formerly was a pastor of the church.

Only one person was reported hurt, a seven-months-old granddaughter of a Negro active in Shuttlesworth's pro - integration organization.

IN MEMORIAM

COOK — In loving memory of my dear dad who was called away December 14th, 1952.
Deep in my heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one gone to rest.
In memory's frame I shall keep it,
Because he was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by Dorothy and family.

CUMMINS — In loving memory of my dear husband, Cecil Cushi who passed away Dec. 19th, 1961.
Tonight the stars are dimmed,
On a lonely, silent grave,
Where lies a priceless stumbler.
The one I loved, but could not save.
I wept as you sinking,
I watched you grow weaker,
My heart was almost broken,
You fought so hard to stay,
But when I saw you sleeping,
Dear husband, I knew you'd gone,
I could not wish you back,
To suffer like you,
Sadly missed by his wife Alice.

KEED — In loving memory of my dear husband, Malcolm, who passed away December 16th, 1956.
Sweet thoughts of happy days,
When we were all together,
The family circle is broken now,
But memories live forever,
To me he has not gone away,
Nor has he travelled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,
—Sadly missed and sadly missed by wife Lena and family.

CUMMINS — In loving memory of John E. Cummins, who passed away December 14th, 1952.
Always a smile, instead of a frown,
Always a kind word to cheer you down.
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories you left behind.
—Always remembered by Sylvia and Jack.

REID — In loving memory of a dear father, Willie Reid, who passed away December 16th, 1956.
His memory is as dear today.
As in the hour he passed away.
—Remembered always by daughter Mary and family.

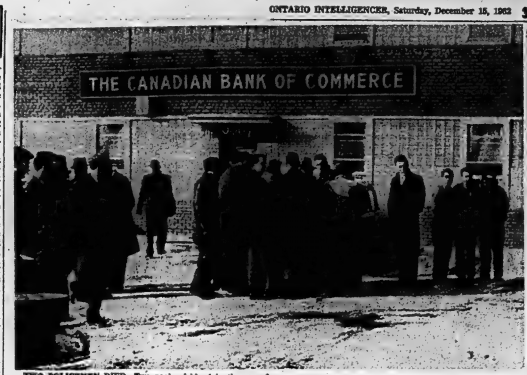
Department - foreman Larry Gerow of Belleville (left), with Nellie Draaistra and Loreen MacDonald hold shield and cheques as reward for their excellent showing. Prize money distributed totalled $4,700.



Around The Tee

In the Christmas week a mixed bonspiel will be held at the curling club. Harold Mott will chair the committee in charge with Mrs. Agnes Benn, Mrs. Agnes Walker and Al McCollam as members and anyone wishing to compete should get in touch with any of the above members.

This spiel will be different from any so far run at the club. First of all you can pick your own team, enter as pairs, two men or two women, or individuals. Rinks of all men or all women will be accepted.

The entrance fee will be two bucks and rinks will be handicapped with 50% of total teams entered getting a prize, but only one prize for a rink. This may be the surprise of the spiel. The competition is being run to get everyone in the club as an entry. If you have no wife or girl friend curling, you will be placed on a team and will be able to enjoy yourself with a good game of curling .The entries close on Sunday, December 23rd, and the draw will be published. The games will start on Friday evening of Christmas week with all-day curling on Saturday to declare a winner. Get in the swing by calling the committee members or putting your name on the bulletin board.

All preparations are concluded for what will prove the social event of the season at the curling rink tonight. First of all there will be mixed curling to start the party. After curling everything goes. There will be draws for turkeys while bingo will be played for hams and groceries. Just what is needed for the Christmas season. The committee of Dan Cooley, Fred Taunt and Bill Meagher have the boys and girls nearly crazy with invitations to take part in draws. Some beautiful birds will be the prize for winning ticket holders. The whole evening will be closed with a dance, till the midnight hours. Every member is invited, the admission is free and this is one night the members can bring guests. Make up a party and join the fun.

TWO POLICEMEN DIED—Two pools of blood in the snow show where two policemen of the Montreal suburb of St-Laurent died in an exchange of gunfire with bandits who got away with $10,000 from a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. (CP Wirephoto).

'Shoot on Sight' Is Order After Santa Claus Bandit Kills 2 Montreal Policemen

MONTREAL (CP) — A fake Santa Claus and three hooded helpers, armed with deadly automatic weapons, killed two policemen Friday in a frenzied bank holdup in suburban St. Laurent that netted them about $2,000 in cash.

The bandits, led by one wearing a Santa Claus suit, burst from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch on Cote de Liesse Road, just as a police cruiser pulled up carrying Constables Denis Brabant, 31, and Claude Marineau, 40.

Santa Claus, shouting profanities, opened fire, followed by his helpers. The constables did not have a chance to get out of the car although one of them managed to fire a few shots before slumping over dead.

"I couln't believe it," one girl eyewitness said. "There was this Santa, with glasses, and sa'istic looking. I just couldn't believe it."

J. Adrien Robert, Montreal police director, obviously upset by the deaths, ordered his men to shoot on sight rather than take chances.

"These men are arch-enemies of society and we shall treat them as such," he said.

FIND THE CAR

The bandits' getaway car, a white 1960 hardtop convertible carrying stolen license plates, was found just before midnight abandoned on a street in Town of Mount Royal, adjacent to St. Laurent. It contained the Santa Claus suit.

The bandits actually escaped with $10,000 but most of it—except for $2,000—was in non-negotiable bonds.

Police said the bandits appeared to have been armed with two .45 calibre STEN automatic rifles, the type reported stolen several months ago from Canadian Army stores in Quebec City.

Police said there was a possibility a fifth bandit may have been with the gang as driver of the getaway car. Blood in snow on a field through which the bandit car fled wildly indicated that one of them may have been wounded.

The holdup was the third involving killings this year in and near Montreal. Two bandits were killed last May in an attempted bank robbery at St. Scholastique, 30 miles north of Montreal.

Including the two deaths Friday, 23 policemen have been killed while on duty on Montreal Island in the last 17 years.

GREET CARDINAL

WARSAW (Reuters) — Five thousand Poles struggled, wept and sang at Warsaw main station Friday in a tumultous greeting for Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, who returned here after three months in Rome at the Vatican ecumenical council. ship was being questioned.

In Liberal party ranks, the Manitoba results were seen as a marked improvement of party fortunes, particularly over the NDP. The Liberals here recognize the NDP as political cousins on the left in Commons strategy but quite obvious opponents in any election.

NDP sources saw the Manitoba result as a lesbian that Canadian socialists must continue to be patient in striving for office elsewhere than in Saskatchewan. The two Democrats have been concerned in recent weeks with the mark they are making in federal politics.

Social Credit sources said their participation in the Manitoba contest was less than all out.

A steady chatter came to earth, too, from other instruments designed to measure magnetic fields and other phenomena.

The radio took readings on both the darkened and sunlit side of the planet. Out of these may come such other findings as whether one side of Venus always faces the sun.

POLICE INTERVENE

PALERMO, Sicily (AP)—National police intervened Friday in warfare between two Mafia-like gangs and indicted 35 persons for homicide and attempted homicide. Police said the 35 were responsible for eight murders and four attempted murders in the last five years. Most of the killings were in gang warfare.

Snow Removal Presented No Problems

TRENTON—Snow removal in Trenton presented no real problems, on Thursday, says town engineer Eric Aldersey. And that's in spite of the fact that the town grader hit a manhole cover buried in the snow, a.ong the first of the removal operations and was out of commission all day. Operator Doug Moriarity wasn't injured.

All Thursday afternoon, the town plow and one hired plow shoved the snow to the side of the streets and from one a.n. on, Friday, four trucks hauled it away to the government dock. Eventually, it was pushed off into the river.

Early Friday, store owners arrived at work to find their sidewalks full of the night's snow. They proceeded to shovel it off onto the roads. (That's life," commented the engineer). But the sun, and the sand and salt scattered by the public works department operators, melted the snow and by noon yesterday, at least the downtown streets were bare.

The odd call to unplug sewers was received by the engineer yesterday, but other than that, the town was back to normal.

Stores Set "Open" Hours

TRENTON — Last week Trenton merchants were asked by the Chamber of Commerce to decide holiday store hours by ballot — their decision: stores will remain open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. from Dec. 17 to Dec. 21. On Saturday, Dec. 22 and Monday, Dec. 24, stores will close at 6 p.m. Stores will remain closed on Christmas Day, of course; Boxing Day and on Jan. 1 and 2.

Lions Hold Children's Yule Party

TRENTON — Trenton Lions entertained close to 200 town children at their annual party Thursday night. The party, held by tradition in Canterbury Hall, was the biggest and best to date ... and certainly from the small fry's viewpoint.

This year, it seemed that there were more goodies to eat, more entertainment, more presents from Old Saint Nick, and more all round fun. Chairman of the boys' and girls' committee, and in charge of the Yuletide gathering was Howard Orr.

On Dec. 27, Trenton Lions will demonstrate their interest in youth by making a formal presentation of a cheque for $1,000 to district retarded children's association heads. This donation will pay up the mortgage on the recently opened district school for retarded children and present plans call for the burning of the mortgage at the Lions' meeting.

'Sno Good

There is no question but that a careful driver, expert in snow-belt travel and at the wheel of a mechanically-perfect car equipped with snow tires could have driven any place in the city Thursday afternoon with the greatest of ease—if other traffic had been moved off the streets.

Any person who believes that this absolves the works department of blame for Thursday's temper-rousing traffic snarl just has no clear conception of the department's responsibilities.

Not all our drivers are expert, not all the cars they drive are in good mechanical condition and many of them do not have snow tires. These defects, in skills and equipment, added immeasurably to the chaotic conditions prevailing on the city's streets Thursday and car drivers and car owners must shoulder their share of the blame.

This said, it still remains the duty of the works department to attempt to keep the streets in a condition so that they can be travelled in safety and at a reasonable speed by drivers with less than perfect driving skill, in cars which fall short of the top standards in equipment and performance.

The works department will not always succeed in achieving this objective, but it should try its best. If Thursday's effort was its best, its best is not good enough.

The department has a rule of thumb that snow-clearing will not start until two or three inches of snow have fallen. Anybody who knows anything at all about the city clearing knows that rules of thumb just lead to fumbling. What the weather is likely to be in the immediate future is as important, or moreso, than what the weather is at any given moment. We can conceive of circumstances under which it would be a sheer waste of time and effort—and the taxpayers' money—to undertake a general snow-clearing job when the streets are all buried beneath three inches or even more of snow. There are other occasions when even a skift of snow should send the department into action, sanding and cruising the streets looking for drifts.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says that snow control work started Thursday at 3 p.m. He would appear to have ignored the rule of thumb. More power to him. But the City Council should formally free him of this nonsensical control. Once he has a completely free hand throughout snow clearing and sanding operations just as he sees fit—and once the Council supplies him with all the equipment he says he needs to do the job efficiently—he can be held responsible for the results. Then, and not before. As long as the "rule of thumb" endorsed by a previous City Council hangs over him, council members must share the responsibility. And what is everybody's responsibility is nobody's responsibility.

Austerity Suggestion

A report from Pravda, Moscow's main newspaper, reports that "The Obelisk of Freedom in Honor of the Soviet Constitution" will be rebuilt in downtown Moscow this year. The monument was unveiled originally in 1918, and demolished by Stalin during the 1930's.

One is tempted to suggest that the Russians investigate the benefits of long-range planning in the field of statues. An efficient commissar of statues might have persuaded Stalin to put the monument in storage rather than demolish it, and he might have convinced Khrushchev that Stalin's statues would be as effectively disposed of in storage as by demolition. The savings of public funds offered by such a system are obvious.

Truth or Consequences

In Regan, Germany, the head of one high school has forbidden the use of lipstick and nail polish among girls under his control, according to the Toronto Globe and Mail. The principal explained that he wants the girls to grow up to be "real mothers, not fashion puppets." One is encouraged by this attitude, and is inclined to agree with the principal. In practice, however, it might be argued that both are separate stages in the development of each and every girl. In fact, it has been said that the one is a consequence of the other.

This is the most extraordinary collection of talent, of human knowledge that has ever been gathered together at the White House—with the possible exception of when Thomas Jefferson dined alone.—President Kennedy, as host to Nobel Prize winners.

Will Grievances and Gripes Of M.P.s. Get Gordon at Last?

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Alright, what did CNR President Donald Gordon say that has brought the French-Canadian half of the Commons down on his neck?

Not much, really, except that he was not going to hire talent for the CNR Executive Suite simply because it was a French-Canadian.

But the Quebec, New Brunswick and the few scattered French-speaking MPs from the other provinces—Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit, regardless of party — are all howling for his head.

Fire-eating Social Credit Co-leader Real Caouette is even pushing a bill, really, to cut Gordon's salary from the annual $75,000 -- the C.N.R. boss is high man on the Federal pay totem pole -- to a token $1-a-year.

Big Donald worked once for that mystical $1-a-year — it was something of a wartime status symbol in Ottawa, the trade-mark of one of C. D. Howe's men - as chairman of the Prices Board.

But that was going on 20 years ago.

Even so, the $1-a-year that Real Caouette proposes for him is $1 more than most other Quebec MPs would give him. They simply want him fired out of hand.

INDISCREET

They charge that he told the Common Railway Committee that "there are no French-Canadians qualified to hold high administrative posts with the railway."

That is a pretty free translation of what he actually said, as word-by-worded in Hansard — "Let me say this, and perhaps I am speaking indiscreetly.

"I manage to talk myself into a indiscretion once again — but as far as I am personally concerned, and I am president of the CNR, I am not going to be an appointment or a promotion made just because a man is a French-Canadian.

"He has got to be a French-Canadian plus other things, and he has to be as able as the other fellow who has a claim on the job. There is going to be fair practice in the CNR as long as I am there. What you (the Quebec, New Brunswick MPs) are arguing for is discrimination."

That seems reasonable, doesn't it, and fair enough.

Well, the catch is that the MPs are not stalking Donald Gordon on his scalp just because of this.

For this was only, as it were, the straw that broke the camel's back — the camel's back, of course, being the patience of parliament and the tolerance of the MPs.

MEEK AND MILD

Over the years, the MPs have displayed an astounding capacity for punishment, meekly submitting to more-than-willing Donald Gordon kicked them around like a bunch of deflated footballs.

Perhaps it was fear — for Donald Gordon once waved a huge fist under Davie Fulton's nose and spoke of their fat, astounded Commons Railway Committee, to be on the point of resolving itself into a "who is to become Justice and Public Works Minister, and now B.C. Conservative Leader.

And perhaps it was just resignation, or more accurately, recognition that they are, after all that few, if any of them — except, more recently, Port Arthur's Dalton Camp — could thrash brawn or even the brains to match him in verbal whip-lashing or rough-housing.

The Quebec MPs probably never forgave him for brushing them off when they wanted to name the then-new CNR hotel at Montreal the Maisonneuve and he insisted on calling it the Queen Elizabeth.

Then there have been all those gutsy appearances before the Commons Committee when he had grown irritated at them, snapped and snarled and stubbornly refused to answer their questions when he considered them "unfair" or "hostile."

No other witness ever to appear before a Parliamentary Committee, and certainly never a Railway Committee, has dared to take on so many Honorable Members in verbal combat.

But Donald Gordon has, year after year, and what's more, got away with it.

CATCHING UP?

So this latest and most determined drive to nail Donald Gordon's hide to Parliament's wall is simply the accumulated bitterness of 12 tumultuous years coming to a head.

For more than a decade he has roasted the MPs and now, after all this time, is an all-party, nonpolitical body they have turned on him.

Can they "get" him?

Not likely.

Although, because it is a Quebec-New Brunswick-Conservative-Liberal-Social Credit team effort, it could come close.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is among the majority who don't like Donald Gordon.

"I could go down to Sparks Street," he has been heard to say, "and knocking on first man I saw on the shoulder, get somebody who could run the railroad better than Donald Gordon.

The all-party Quebec MP-bloc could make it uncomfortable for the Prime Minister not to do something about the man.

But then, it would be equally difficult for the PM to take any positive action — for Donald Gordon has powerful friends — and there is the ghost of former Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne to remind the Government that it is not easy to knock off "a big businessman" even a sitting duck like a Federal banker.

Then, too, like it or not, Donald Gordon does run a good railroad, enjoys a gold-plated reputation in the business world and commands a certain respect in almost every level of the Canadian community except, possibly, in Parliament. But Parliament, as he is now discovering, perhaps too late, can be pushed around only so long and so far.

Unsanctified Lip-Dyers

Sarnia Observer

Somewhere in Michigan is someone who looks with disfavor upon women who gild the lily in the matter of personal appearance.

So irked was the person when patrons of libraries were restricted to interest parents in getting their children to Sunday School, which task was proving far more successful with the unpainted nurse in charge he or she wrote a letter to the editor.

It went like this: "A church in our neighborhood has started a calling campaign, inviting people to come to Sunday School. These women wear lipstick.

"Lipstick is worldly. It puts a damper on their testimony for God. Women dye their hair and wear spoked heels and knee-length dresses don't belong in the 'sanctified' group.

"Only sanctified women should teach Sunday School, sing in the choir and do personal work."

Perhaps the writer is right. It is possible that there is something evil in lipstick, spiked heels and knee-length dresses. It could be that only sanctified women should teach Sunday School, sing in the choir and do personal work.

What the writer appears to be suggesting is that in the world he or she would bring about only the already saved would be saved, and only those who passed the rigid rules of unadorned faces, flat heels and dust-gathering skirts would be eligible to go into the world to attract today's youth.

If we understand the high spirited and questioning youth of today, they are more likely to be attracted by the lipstick than by dull unadorned. Young people are going to be hard to convince that there is more sanctity in a woman because she wears her skirts around her ankles rather than her knees.

Bureau of Bureaus

Milwaukee Journal

Italy, like many a nation, is worried about its growing bureaucracy, and it recently appointed a minister for bureaucratic reform. What was his first act? He created a 22-man commission to look into the matter. Another bureau seems to be the world-wide answer to any problem — even the problem of too many bureaus.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dandelions are scarce at this late season but that did not prevent Mr. J. McGowan of Bridge St. East, from plucking one this morning from the lawn near the stone wall about Bridge Street United Church. It was a small sample and just beginning to open.

Reports that a small boy had fallen into the Bay of Quinte off the Government Dock took Belleville Police and fire department to the scene at noon Tuesday. The boy had been seen by "Mac" McCreary who shouted to him to return to shore as the lad was near open water. At first the boy refused to heed the advice and Mr. McCreary immediately notified police authorities. Later firemen found small footprints leading back to shore, indicating that the lad had arrived safely on land.

Approximately thirty-five members of the local Civilian Defence Committee, wrote examinations at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening, on the basic principles of air raid precaution work. All the subjects on the examination had been thoroughly covered in the basic training course given in eight lectures since the inception of the Defence Committee in this city in October. While the organization of the local Defence Committee is now approaching the point where practice tests may soon be made, air raid precaution equipment furnished by the provincial organization still continues to arrive in the city. It was stated by vice-chairman Harold Seldon this morning.

Mayor Charles Hanna has decided not to seek re-election at the coming municipal elections. He has served two terms and steps out of public life with the entire confidence of the people. He is perhaps the most tireless mayor this city ever had. The healthy interest in life which Mayor Hanna possesses has endeared him to many phases of activity. He is blessed with an abundance of humour by which he has made him friends and produced in him a Chief Magistrate who is in a class by himself.

Mr. R. J. Wray, well known and popular curler of this city, has been elected as one of the six skips from various parts of Ontario, to play against the Scottish curlers at the Granite Rink in Toronto on January 23rd, next.

Asks UN Meet In Wineshed

Welland Tribune

Recently at Dijon, France, Charles E. Bohlen, the United States Ambassador was solemnly tapped on each shoulder with the twisted branch of an oak tree and thus became a member of the Burgundy wine order known as the Confrerie du Tastevin.

The order dates back to the depression period in the thirties when the Burgundian couldn't sell their wine. At that time they hit upon the idea of consuming it themselves at huge banquets that served as the business meetings of the association. The wines have long since been restored to a welcome place in the markets, but the happy custom of gathering in the vineyard wineshed for conferrie sessions has continued.

At a dinner preceding the ambassador's initiation, he was served an eight course meal, with seven wines. The ambassador was told there are five reasons to drink wine — past thirst, present thirst, future thirst, the arrival of a friend, and any other reason that comes to mind.

Then when the members of the order got down to their meal at their meeting one fellow suggested that the next United Nations session be held in the vast wineshed. He argued that there could only be international agreement where good red wine was consumed and that in any case "no one would bang a shoe on the table, for fear of hurting the wine."

This order has gotten hold of something. Why even France and Russia might be persuaded to pay their share of the cost of UN Middle East and Congo operations if Secretary-General U Thant can transfer the deliberations to the Burgundy vineyards.

Down to Earth

Windsor Star

One advantage to space travel is that, as yet, there are no speed limits or traffic cops there. Nor are there any parking meters.

Astronaut Virgil Grissom had none of these earthly troubles when he was in circuit far out from earth. But, back on earth, he must obey manmade laws, and has been fined $20 for going 70 miles an hour through a Florida town where the speed limit is 55. He might be in the mood to have that traffic cop shot up into space — with no return apparatus.

To Your Good Health

Portion of the Cornea Supplied by Eye Bank

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you please give me some information about an "eye bank"? Or is there any such thing?

I think blood banks are wonderful so people can have transfusions at once when they need them. I have heard that surgeons can transplant the human eye and prevent blindness.

I told our family physician that if I knew for certain that "willing my eyes" would help someone from going blind, I believe I would be willing to do so. — Mrs. L.C.

Yes, there are such things as eye banks. They aren't exactly like blood banks, bone banks or other such banks, but they do, indeed, prevent a great deal of blindness. Or, more correctly, they restore lost sight to people with a certain type of defect.

If you visited an "eye bank" you would probably be disappointed. There there isn't much to see. We can't store eyes in large quantities as we do blood and some other items.

However, you most certainly would not be disappointed to see a patient who has had sight restored because of an eye bank.

The eye is not "transplanted" in the sense of exchanging the entire organ. That is not yet possible. Rather, a portion of the cornea, or outer covering of the eyeball, the window, is used.

Many a person has become blind because the cornea either is cloudy or because it has been burned or badly scarred. Although nearly all the parts of the eye behind it intact.

It is possible to remove the old cornea and apply a new one. But the only source of a cornea is from another eye.

Unlike cases requiring blood transfusions, these eye operations need not be done on an emergency basis immediately. They can be done next week or next month, or even next year. The patient can wait — and often has to wait until another eye is available.

Thus an "eye bank" really consists mainly of a list of people who need corneas, and a list of people who are willing that their eyes be used for this purpose after death.

The more quickly a cornea can be used, the better. Therefore eyes that are given to the "bank" are removed promptly, and carefully kept refrigerated until actually used. The eyes don't stay in the "bank" more than a day or two. Sometimes it is a matter only of hours.

But in this way people regain the precious gift of sight.

Arrangements to have eyes for this purpose must be made beforehand. An eye surgeon or the eye department of a hospital will be glad to tell you how to fill out a simple form that is required. (There may be minor differences in some states.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl of 14 and don't have a mother to ask about this. I notice a white, sticky substance on my underwear. This has me really scared. — E.J.

First of all I'd stop being scared. Second, I'd go to the doctor, because this sort of trouble, most assuredly, is not a danger, doesn't tend to cure itself. It may need some help. There are several possibilities, but the most common (and it is far more frequent than you realize) is leucorrhea, a discharge often caused by minor irritation, Trichomonas vaginalis is the commonest cause.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, who has very fine hair, shakes baby powder through it every night. I admit that the following day her hair looks full and lovely. But is this daily practice harmful in any way? — Mrs. C.T.

Baby powder is inert and non-irritating, and I doubt that it would be harmful.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Facts About Shingles," write Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dunellen, N.J., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 15c in coin to cover handling.

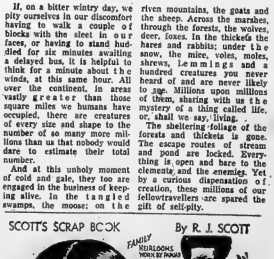
New Blue Law Is Advocated

The Victoria Times

One of the more bizarre temperance proposals emerging from an Edmonton seminar on alcoholism the other day advocated the addition of a chemical to liquor sold in taverns so the drinker blue after the third drink.

This is a novel switch. The celebrant would not paint the town red. He'd just be painted himself.

The suggestion is probably quite as good as the invitation thrown out at the bibulous party, to "stick around and get a load of this." It would be what would do to traditional music. Farewell 'Sweet Adeline.' Bring on 'The Birth of the Blues.'



THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If, on a bitter wintry day, we pity ourselves in our discomfort and shelter, on a couple of blocks with the sleet in our faces, or having to stand huddled for 20 minutes awaiting a delayed bus, it is helpful to think for a minute about the wives, at this same hour, all over the continent, in areas vastly greater than those square miles we are personally occupied, there are creatures of every size and shape to the number of as many as half millions than us that nobody would dare to estimate their total number.

And at this unholy moment of cold and gale, they too are engaged in the business of keeping alive. In the tangled swamps, the moose; on the riven mountains, the goats and the sheep. Across the marshes, through the forests, the wolves, whose cry is the chickens the hares and rabbits; under the snow, the mice, voles, moles, shrews, lie and wings and a hundred creatures you never thought of and are never likely to see. Millions upon millions of them, sharing with us the territory of a tiny united life, or, shall we say, living.

The sheltering foliage of the forests and thickets is gone. The escape routes of stream and pond are locked. Everything is open, bare to the elements and the enemies. Yet by a curious dispensation of creation, these millions of our fellowtravellers are spared the gift of self-pity.

Your Car

Choke Meant For Cold Engines Only

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Whether your car has a manual or automatic choke, you should know why and how it's supposed to operate.

The choke is actually meant for cold engines only . . . to provide an extra rich fuel mixture for starting and until the engine warms up. That's how choke accomplishes this by cutting the flow of air into the carburetor, thereby causing more suction at the carburetor jets to draw extra fuel from the float chamber.

With a warm or hot engine, no assistance is needed from the choke. In fact, it will promote missing and stalling.

The manually operated choke is, of course, opened and closed by a hand control. The automatic choke is controlled by a thermostatic spiral spring. When cold, this spring is contracted and the choke valve is in closed position. As the engine warms up, heat directed to the spring expands it, causing the choke valve to open gradually.

M.N. writes: "Our car has automatic transmission. Occasionally, absolutely nothing happens — no noise, no movement — when I try to start. But after jiggling the shift lever back and forth, it works OK. What's wrong?"

(A) The neutral safety switch may be going haywire.

From F.T.: "What kind of trouble is a more commap cause of 'no start': spark plugs, points, choke or carburetor?"

(A) Let's pinpoint it this way. The ignition system, rather than the fuel system, is generally at fault when the engine can't be started, and a weak or failing battery is the most common cause of all.

H. McM. asks: "My engine misses only in extremely damp weather or during rain or snow. Can you figure this out? Spark plugs never get wet."

(A) Check for faulty cable insulation. In damp weather, especially, a cracked, frayed or nearly bare section of cable will cause trouble, allowing current to follow a short-to-ground path.

S.B. writes: "Here's an automatic transmission puzzler. When I shift to low, the car starts creeping backward before I can accelerate; and when I shift into reverse, it tends to creep forward until I accelerate."

(A) This would seem to indicate a maladjustment in the transmission control valve assembly.

S.V. asks: "Even though lead deposits form on a spark plug, it can continue firing, can't it?"

(A) It can, but these deposits set up a resistance which retards current flow and may badly weaken the spark.

P.R. asks: "Which battery post cable is the ground connection — the one hooked to negative or positive?"

(A) There are both negative and positive ground wiring systems. On the former, the cable running to the car frame is connected to the negative battery post. If the connection is from positive post to frame, it's positive ground wiring.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Tips on Knowing How to Give

DORIS CLARK

Hearts open at Christmas-time. In the warmth and friendliness of the season, folks want to play Santa. They may phone the welfare office they know best. If they do, they are often surprised at what they learn. The mail brings some reactions from would-be givers; such as:

"The social worker just wants a cheque. This seems cold. We have always shopped for and wrapped gifts and delivered them along with a basket of groceries."

"We get so much for Christmas. I worry about people who don't, but I'm not sure what to do about it and I won't be doing nothing."

True, if a person is all set to shop and deliver "Christmas" to a family in need, she may be set back on her heels when she's advised to give cash instead. When she's not even told who's to receive her bounty, it does seem mighty cold. How can she lend herself to a human need when she's so remote from it?

But look at it from the receiver's point of view:

Here's a father who has been laid up for months because of an accident. His sickness benefits have been used up. Help from private sources has been keeping the wolf from the door. There's no extra cash for Christmas.

How does he explain to Davey and Susie that Santa won't be around this year? On the other hand, how can he conjure up the spirit of nothing the army truck and the doll's bed they've asked for?

If you were in this father's boots, what would you like best: Cash or a basket? An anonymous cheque or parcels aplenty (but alas! no truck or doll's bed)? And these delivered right into your home, by donors who can't help seeing the unhappy state you are in.

From the social worker's vantage point the choice is clear. All year long, he (or she) strives to rebuild in a client the self-respect which circumstance may have almost destroyed. The ideal is a family needs to feel self-reliant. The financial help he gets in a time of stress is a temporary stopgap for a temporary situation. The worker encourages the man in such a spot to work and think towards standing on his feet.

With this help, step by step the provider becomes independent of his prop and does stand alone. Would a would-be client want to reduce him once more to a "charity case?" Not! If he simply can't manage by himself at holiday-time, the most helpful thing is to give him something to manage with.

To deliver a basket of groceries and a present for everybody—doll, mitten, tie—may delight a generous giver's heart. Indeed, there are times when the work of shopping, the task of choosing wisely (sometimes even of being trusted with cash!), is beyond the family in need.

But where such confidence is practical, the warmest gratitude goes to the person of the understanding heart who supplies wherewithal for a man to provide, in his own way, for his own.

So, my suggestion to you who want to share is this: Consider giving a cheque through your nearest family welfare agency with the understanding that it is to be used where it will do the most good.—DORIS.

Wants Sinclair To Apologize For Remarks

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—T. A. McRae, chairman of the Kootenay and Boundary citizens' committee on Doukhobor-Canadian affairs, said Friday he is ready to carry to the House of Commons his demand for an apology for remarks made on a CBC television program.

Mr. McRae said he has not received an answer to a telegram sent to the CBC protesting remarks made by Toronto Star columnist Gordon Sinclair on the panel show Front Page Challenge earlier this week.

Mr. Sinclair said B.C. should be ashamed of its treatment of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors and likened the situation to the wartime relocation of Japanese - Canadians from coastal homes to interior camps.

Mr. Sinclair has said "no condition or combination of conditions" would lead him to apologize.

Mr. McRae said Friday he has sent telegrams to the CBC and for the television program's two sponsors asking them to get in touch with him or the CBC "in the interest of your client."

"I would prefer to work with the CBC first," Mr. McRae said. However, if there was no possibility of this, he would "take it to the House of Commons."

Real Caouette Says Writer Is Hare-Brain

OTTAWA (CP) — Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit Party, said Thursday in the Commons that Jean Charpentier, parliamentary correspondent for Montreal La Presse "is a first-rate hare-brain among Canadian newspaper men."

Mr. Caouette made the charge when he raised a question of privilege to criticize an article by Mr. Charpentier. The article said Speaker Marcel Lambert "has only bowed to the tacit or expressed wish of the government to cajole the Social Crediters."

The article dealt with efforts by Gilles Gregoire (SC — Lapointe) to debate in the House a decision of the Speaker.

Mr. Caouette said "I do not believe that Social Crediter enjoy special privileges in this chamber."

Mr. Lambert took note of the question of privilege, but made no comment.

Another article by Mr. Charpentier, critical with the behavior of Canadian MPs at a NATO parliamentarians meeting in Paris last month, began referred by the Commons to committee on privileges and elections for study.

DESERONTO Library Board Reports 10,905 Books Read

DESERONTO — It was reported at a meeting of the Deseronto Public Library Board that a total of 10,905 books had been circulated this year to date which is an increase from the 1961 statistics. Of these books that were borrowed there were 3,297 adults and 5,318 juvenile volumes circulated. A total of 1,908 readers borrowed magazines.

During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. Rosa Sexsmith it was announced that the Popular Science books and the 1961 edition of Lands and Peoples which deal with social studies of the world from the elementary grades through high school had been purchased. In 1963 the magazine section will also include the magazine section of the New York Sunday Times, Ideals and an additional science monthly.

The children's section is being developed with the purchase of eight 14" chairs and a reading table scaled to suitable proportions for the young readers.

Roads Take 64 Per Cent County Taxes

PICTON — About 64 per cent of county taxes go toward construction and maintenance of roads, County Clerk Thomas Walker reminded the county council members at their December session.

Reviewing progress during the year road committee chairman paid tribute to members of the committee "without whose help and co-operation, my job would have been next to impossible."

Other members were county Warden John Fox, Reeve Kenneth Hicks of North Marysburg, Reeve Lorne Young of Sophiasburg.

Council Will Erect Signs At Crossing

PICTON — Prince Edward County council is not satisfied with the action of the Ontario Department of Highways in marking the Scharie Road-Highway 14 intersection at Hall's Corners and plans to do something about it themselves.

Several members expressed alarm that the department had done what they believed inadequate marking of the area where two people were fatally injured this year.

Council decided to purchase and erect two 6 x 6 feet "Stop Ahead" signs, one for each side of Highway 14.

Reeve Harmon Montgomery of Ameliasburg township, declared "this is a most dangerous intersection. It may be what needs only one claim—an optical illusion. But there have been two people killed there this summer and I think that we as a council should do something about it."

Other members agreed that warning signs additional to those erected by the department might serve a good purpose.

Prince Pays Tribute to Canadians

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany (Reuters)—Prince Philip said Friday in Canada that Canadian troops and their families living in Europe.

He told a luncheon of officers at the RCAF base at Baden Soellingen near here:

"Just as Canada showed we are hexing a lot about alliances, deterrents, freedom of the Western world, but we are inclined to forget what all that means in human terms.

"All of you here — men, women and children on this base—are living for peace, home in a strange land with strange languages and customs and representing the price we have to pay in terms of people to maintain this alliance and be ready for any eventuality."

He praised "the willing and understanding co-operation of all Canadian servicemen and their families stationed in Europe."

Philip interrupted his remarks to congratulate McIntyre Hood, a prominent Canadian journalist and chief of the London bureau of the Thomson Newspapers, on his 60th birthday.

Tram, Car Crash Kills Two Persons

SIMCOE (CP)—Two persons died and another was injured following a collision Friday between a car and a Canadian National - Wabash Railways train at a CNR level crossing two miles northwest of here.

Joseph Grec, 59, of RR 4, Simcoe died in hospital here an hour later.

Mrs. Grec was in hospital suffering from multiple cuts.

Comty Still Digging Out of Snow

PICTON — Prince Edward County is digging itself out after three days during which snow fell. After a heavy fall Thursday the town had a blanket of some 12 inches while many rural areas had up to 18 inches.

While visibility was very poor during the storm, police report no serious accidents.

P.E. Council Endorses Lottery Motion

PICTON — A motion endorsing a resolution which would legalize sweepstakes and lotteries for hospital and charitable purpose in Canada was passed by Prince Edward County council.

The original resolution, which asked for endorsement, was by the County council of Prescott-Russell.

Among comments on the subject was that of Deputy Reeve Randolph Clapp of Picton, who declared, "We are hiding our head in the sand on this subject. Everyone I know buys at least one ticket on the Irish Sweepstakes, and I would like to see some of these millions of dollars stay in Canada. I think we should endorse the resolution." The motion passed unanimously; other councillors expressed similar views.

Not Insured So Gunman Walks Away

VANCOUVER (CP)—The best insurance was no insurance for Thomas Fallowfield, an east-end druggist.

Fallowfield was about to hand over his money to a gunman Thursday when the bandit asked whether the store was insured.

When Fallowfield said it was not, the gunman turned and walked away.

CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — The staff of a local firm hired a train for its Christmas party. About 500 persons dined and danced from Nottingham to London. The total cost was $1,200.

Legion Names Don Demille New President

PICTON — Branch 78 of the Royal Canadian Legion has a new president, with Donald Demille succeeding Ronald Stone. The election of officers featured the December meeting.

First vice-president is Lionel Hicks, with Walter Bailey as second vice-president. Directors are Herbert Vincent, Douglas Hannah, Lance Nethery, Roy Knight, Ron Durward and Sgt. Rene Gravelle.

The new executive will be sworn in at the January meeting.

Plans were completed for a gathering Saturday night when a cheque for $1,000 will be presented to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Board. This is the final payment of a $10,000 pledge toward the hospital and represents considerable effort on the part of the Legion members and the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, who supported this project.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

BIRD'S BODY ACTIONS

For centuries men have pondered the question of how birds are able to live so intense and vigorous a life and migrate hundreds of miles twice a year. Scientists have made marvelous strides in this as in most directions in approximately the last 75 years, and now they have actually come up with various kinds of apparatus for accurately measuring the actions of a bird's diminutive heart, lungs, and so on.

The hummingbird being our smallest bit of feathers is, naturally, the stock example. How can this 3½ inch mite keep going all day long, all summer, with its wings making hundreds of strokes a second? How can it fly all the way from the northern part of settled Canada to Panama or South America each autumn and return the following spring? How can it cross the 500 mile distance over the Gulf of Mexico in a non-stop flight? Where can a sufficient amount of fuel be stored in such a tiny body?

HAVE SOME ANSWERS

Rather recently, the scientists have learned a few answers to some of these knotty questions. The rate of metabolism in a bird's body is excessively high. A bird's blood has more red corpuscles per ounce than that of any other animal. As the function of red corpuscles is to carry oxygen from lungs to different parts of the body, we can see how this speedy metabolism would be a great advantage to birds in long, hard migrations. A bird's breathing is rapid; the heart beat is about 1,000 times a minute; its average temperature is higher than ours, much higher than is most animals' temperature, and a very great deal higher than the temperature of reptiles and fishes.

The temperature of water birds is lowest for any bird. But this does not mean that they are actually cold blooded; indeed, we are ill with a fever if our temperature is as high as a loon's normal — about 102 degrees. The average temperature of a bird is 108 degrees, that of a swift is more than 111 degrees.

TEMPERATURE VARIES

But, like our own, a bird's temperature varies. It is lowest in the morning after resting, highest when we have had exercise (as flying) is taken. At the end of a trying day of feeding a nestful of young, the temperature of some parent birds might go to perhaps 115 degrees. You may imagine Birdhouse Wren's temperature rising after she has made something like 1200 trips to the nest with food in a single day.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Prices this week at the Ontario public stockyards, as reported by the federal department of agriculture, were uneven on a moderate demand for slaughter cattle.

Veal calf and hog prices were lower, while lambs were steady to lower.

Cattle receipts were slightly more than last week and about the same as last year. Western cattle receipts were 266 head as compared to 283 last week. Western stock receipts were about even to last week's at 91 head.

"NEW FEMININE FIELDS"

". . . heart's delight blossoms in me."—Lascelles Abercrombie in "Elizabeth's Song."

In her memoirs, the English writer Brybar (daughter of the late Sir John Ellerman, prominent industrialist and financier) speaks of the bleak outlook the future held for girls of her generation (just before and after the turn of this century) as far as opportunity for self development was concerned.

Knowledge, according to the spirit of that age, she says, might make their discontentment. It was drilled into the girls that taking a job was a selfish thing to do; a disloyalty to the community. The very community, she notes, some decades later, spurns those who obeyed very fortunate, however, for those who were rebels. England always denied, by a shake of the head that meant "no," whereas the "New World" nodded and said "yes," last, attempt it," she left, and longed to go there.

So rapidly has this "magic release of work," this "milk of Paradise" become almost as a matter of course to our modern world, that it is difficult to realize that so many doors of activity were locked to women, only a few years ago. But not today!

Note, for example, in this morning's paper, an account of a pretty 23-year-old blood Australian girl (Tonia Moffat) quite the youngest representative of any General Assembly delegation in the United Nations, who is one of the few women to sit on the important Administration and Budgetary Committee of the Assembly. After which she will become the third secretary in the Australian Embassy in Bonn, Germany, with a detour of three months in Paris for temporary study. Though fond of sport, such as tennis, diving and golf, she cheerfully maintains that the many evenings spent in the study of endless documents involved in the latter are just "a routine chore" and finds the world of foreign service "completely to my liking."

Here in Belleville the other day we met Reverend Nancy White, from Statesville, North Carolina, who is assistant to Reverend James Spearman, minister of Wesleyan Methodist Church.

"Had you always wished to become a minister? Just how did youdecide to be one?" and Miss White, slim, tall and blond, answered enthusiastically:

"Ever since I was a little girl in public school. I knew it was the only thing I wanted to do."

A member of a large family, the only sister of six brothers, one of whom is a post-graduate of Duke University, Miss White attended a ministerial college in Ohio, "where I spent four of the happiest years possible." Prior to coming to Belleville she was the minister of a church in northern New York State, and of her work in this city, says:

"It was such a thrill to come to Canada. I'd never been outside of the United States before. I realize my work is not a field widely selected by women here, as it is in the United States. But for some reason it is inclined toward this kind of endeavor. I would say this: It is a seven day week. One preaches, visits people, writes letters, works behind the scenes, shares their burdens and worries, show teen-agers that they are needed and loved, in short: one has a full time vocation. But a wonderful one!"

Again, Belleville is fortunate to have a woman psychiatrist. Few women as yet choose this calling; because of its extreme and demanding qualifications: only after a medical (six years) degree is this course even available. "Yet more than anything else, it was the one thing I wanted to study," declares Dr. E. Evelyn Williamson, wife of Dr. H. F. Williamson, orthopedic surgeon, 193 John Street. "When I was a youngster in Wharton, my mother often helped nurse an ailing neighbor or sick friend, and would say, 'Oh, it's a case of nerves.' This made me wonder: 'If it's just a case of nerves, why not find out about nerves?' and so I determined to do so." Nor did marriage and a family of four boys deter her: internship in Psychiatry at hospitals in Edmonton, Hamilton, Guelph and Kingston, before the family settled in Belleville and Dr. Williamson points out:

"What I, personally feel is so satisfying about my work is that it does not interfere with my role as wife and mother, which naturally comes first with me. Rather, I find this work supplements and enriches my married life. My husband and I even use the same office, which is possible, because my patients, by appointment only, see me between 9-12 in the morning when my husband is busy at the hospital and the children are in school. My husband, I'm happy to say shares an interest in my work small way 'helping others'."

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborne will be 'at home' to their many friends, relatives and neighbors in the Community Hall at Melrose on Wednesday, December 26th from 2 - 4 p.m. and 7 - 9 in the evening on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Joseph Hart, Mr. Stanley Hart, Mr. and Mrs. John Hart and Eleanor of Roslin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart and family, Mrs. Nellie Breach of Point Anne were among the guests who attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fraser of Belleville on December 9. Mrs. Fraser is a sister of Mrs. Joseph Hart, Roslin.

Contact Club Conducts Mock Trial

Members of Christ Church Contact Club met for their closing party in the large hall.

Florence Lennox introduced Mary Fletcher, the commentator for the evening, who explained how the club became organized in 1940 and reviewed the years that showed how the club had progressed.

A number of past presidents were present and as their year came up they told of the highlights of that year. This the girls found most interesting and informative.

Betty Sands introduced her executive for the past year, and thanked them for their cooperation, at which time Mary Fletcher presented her with the past president's spoon.

On a table at the back of the hall, a number of small articles were displayed and one could make a bid on the various items, for a penny.

The past presidents were in charge of a court with Florence Lennox, judge; Doris Stewart, prosecutor; Marguerite Cooke, Mary Shappee and Catherine Roulet, lawyers; Mary Fletcher, sheriff; Joan Ford, jailer. The first "criminal" was Mick Cy Lake, who was soon found guilty and sentenced to one year of hard labor as president. She was given her symbol of office and the jailer put her on centre stage on a rocking chair, followed by Shirley Harris, first-aider; Betty Teed, lemon aid; Betty Kerr, secretary, in June Fisher's absence; Betty Lack of money was propped on stage; Edith Pringle, kitchen, in the absence of Mabel Damianov; nursery, Ann Trendell took her place with mop and bucket in hand, she was led to a play pen on stage; June Woodley, sunshine; Betty Ling, reporter, Beverly Shannick, layettes, and Dot Montague, study group.

The group leaders are Barbara Janes, Irene Weatherstone and Marilyn Smith.

Delicious refreshments were served buffet style from a table at one end of the hall.

Members were pleased to have as their guests for the evening the Rev. and Mrs. R. G. Fleming, the Rev. and Mrs. Everett Smith and the curate, the Rev. M. Caswell.

Thus this work fits in with our family schedule, my life a fulfilled one with the added reward that I feel I am, in my

Nature Lovers Find Paradise With a Visit to New Zealand

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Rotorua, New Zealand — Most North Americans would describe New Zealand as a funny oldfashioned little country. It was cast by fate in the middle of nowhere and seems to gallop determinedly after a world that is always a step ahead.

Australia, its nearest neighbor, is 1,400 miles away and hardly at the centre of things itself.

Its leading city, Auckland, boasts a magnificent scenic location astride two harbors, but it has about as much sophistication as Oklahoma City on a rainy Sunday—20 years ago — and as little amusement.

But if New Zealand is no land for the culture-and-fleshpot-oriented tourist, it is a veritable paradise for the nature lover. In an area no bigger than the British Isles, it harbors samples of most of the scenery of the world, and a few attractions that are uniquely its own.

The country is divided into North and South Islands, each quite different from the other. The South Island is spectacularly serrated by fiords and, studded with ski-sloped Alps, vast glaciers and even volcanoes.

Here in the North, the land seems gentler and more familiar. Its rolling plains give place to a velvet green and made luminescent by lush southern light. Millions of sheep graze. The landscape is relieved from its many subtle shades of green by splashes of yellow gorse and equally yellow eucalyptus trees. Dotting the hills are towering pines, the tallest we have ever seen, fill the landscape for miles on end.

PLENTY OF FISH

Fish are far from strangers to these islands. Thousand-pound sharks have been hauled from the depths and the Tasman Sea. Lake Taupo, near here in the centre of the North Island, yields 500 tons of trout a year, among them 14-lb. trout. But Rotorua Lake may well be the only one in the world where you can catch a fish and sell it without taking it off your hook or moving a step.)

Rotorua is in one of New Zealand's thermal regions. Beneath the ground and the lake, geysers boil through fissures and steam through the surface. The sands surrounding the built lake are warm beneath the feet, and the water in the lake seethes through within reach of waves lapping the shore.

Throughout the area wraithlike clouds of steam blossom in the air. A local golf course has one hissing through a green. Along the stream which runs through the town, geysers and springs have left chunky mounts of limestone which ultimately break off in cakes large as their own weight and tumble back into the water.

Rotorua is one of the few preserved centres of culture of the Maoris, the intelligent and artistic Polynesians who were the islands' original settlers. They have by now been largely absorbed into the white man's culture.

The Maoris frequently settled in thermal regions for the free heat, wash water and cooking facilities with which the springs provided them. Some still live the traditional communal life here, having built stone fences around the pools and steamy fissures, where they continue to cook and wash as they have for six centuries.

At nearby Whakarewarewa a palisaded Maori village has been reconstructed. It is identical to the type occupied for hundreds of years before the white man's coming, its huts and ceremonial houses of intricately carved red wood carefully arranged within the fortification according to custom. But the village is unoccupied and used only rarely for tourist entertainment, and the visitor is likely to find more life in the real Maori settlement in Rotorua.

CARVED IMAGES

Here the picket fence posts lining the streets are surmounted by the bizarre carved images of the Maoris. Ornate half-pagan Christian tombstones decorate the cemetery, and a modern totem pole supports an incongruous bronze Queen Victoria. Even the Ohinemutu Anglican Church, in front of which hot springs bubble through the footpath, has its splash of carved and stained glass windows with curiously Polynesian faces among more of Polynesia than of Peter.

Maori woodcarvers have, over the centuries, devised an infinite variety of attitudes for the singular image that identifies all but it is not a god — the pagans feared offending the gods — but a grotesque representation of man, the three fingered hands clasped across his stomach or raised overhead clutching a fake war club. His eyes are fierce and his tongue lolls, either straight or to one side, depending on the mood or vice depicted. Pearl-like shell eyes are skillfully incorporated in the work, usually for effect.

Possibly the most spectacular sight on the island is the glowworm cave of Waitomo, a few miles west of Rotorua. Here, for some unknown reason, hundreds of thousands of glowworms have attached themselves to the ceiling of an underground grotto. A silent boat glide through the cathedral-like cave has the eerie quality of viewing a heavenly firmament while far under the hollow, star-roofed ground that gives the surface of New Zealand so much of its character.

Women's Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

On December 13th the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was welcomed at the home of Mrs. Earl Hall for the Christmas meeting. There were 21 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. L. Griffith opened the program with a reading on Christmas written by Angela Burke. With Mrs. E. Hall at the piano a sing-song of carols was enjoyed.

An interesting and impressive Christmas story entitled "An Empty Purse" was read by Mrs. W. Davenport. From the Index of Famous Hymns, Mrs. C. Twidle read an article on "What Child Is This?". A reading "Keeping Christmas" by Van Dyke was given by Mrs. R. Griffith.

Mrs. D. Maclean took charge of the exchange of gifts after which a smorgasbord style lunch served by the executive was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. L. Reid expressed the thanks of the members and visitors to the executive Mrs. E. Hall for a most enjoyable meeting.

Christmas Concerts

ST. ANDREW'S PRESBYTERIAN

IVANHOE — A Christmas concert sponsored by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Club was held in St. Andrew's Church, West Huntingdon, on Friday evening, December 7th.

700 Women Expected To Attend PC Gathering

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Between 600 and 700 women expected to attend next month's general meeting of the Progressive Conservative party, a party headquarters official said Friday.

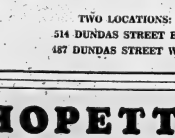
They will hold their own general meeting as well as attend the meetings of the national party organization. The official said it will mark a new peak in women's activity in the party.

The women's group, holding its sessions on Jan. 17, the first of the three days of Conservative meetings, will draw delegates from every one of Canada's 263 electoral districts.

Senator Josie Quart, energetic and personable 65-year-old native of Quebec City, is credited with sparking the higher level of activity in the Women's Progressive Conservative Association.

It is expected she will be elected handily to a second term as president, though others are reported to be in the running if she decides to retire.

The January conservative general meetings will be the first in nearly two years. No regular annual meeting was held last winter.



Now, although another election is in the wind, the party is anxious for the party pep talk and publicity which will flow from the big meeting. The party expects 1,500 delegates and alternates to attend, and another 1,500 observers and guests to be on hand.

Senator Quart, whose husband,—Quebec City industrialist Harry Quart, has been as tireless as she in canvassing the country for Conservative votes and Conservative women workers, was appointed to the Senate Nov. 17, 1960.

Another senator, Mrs. Olive Irvine of Winnipeg, a former president of the Manitoba Women's Conservative Association, and Mrs. Dorothy Morrison Smith of Kelowna, B.C., president of the British Columbia women's association of the party, are being mentioned as possible successors to Mrs. Quart.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Lists 1963 Officers

The closing meeting of the year, 1962 of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the church hall on December 11th. The president, Mrs. W. M. Barlow opened the meeting with the poem "December", and expressed welcome to those present.

Mrs. J.H. Diamond was secretary in the absence of Mrs. E. Shier.

The devotional portion of the meeting, with Mrs. D. Kane as leader, was based on a well planned Christmas service of Worship from the "Glad Tidings". For a world plagued by political and spiritual uncertainty, fighting for freedom against great powers who would enslave, desiring peace in the midst of war, and lacking the wisdom to solve its problems, the message of the birth of Christ is one of vital meaning in this twentieth century to Christians throughout the world providing freedom, truth and confidence.

The business period included reading of annual reports by various executives as follows:- secretary' report — Mrs. Diamond; treasurer's report — Mrs. F. Parsons; literature secretary — Mrs. P. Bondy; glad tidings — Mrs. C. Shier; welcome and welfare — Mrs. H. Yorke; home helpers — Mrs. W. Mantie; Mrs. A. White.

These concise but comprehensive reports indicated an active and successful year. At this time also Mrs. J. H. Diamond as 'Key Woman' in this area for the 100th anniversary of the W.M.S. in 1964, reported a satisfactory response in regard to the completion of the anniversary book.

It was brought to the attention of members that the next Presbyterial meeting would be held on January 9th, at Kingston, and Mrs. Yorke was appointed to arrange bus transportation.

The study of "The Christian Mission on the Rim of East Asia" was continued, the subject being "Hong-Kong," with Mrs. Parker as leader and Mrs. J. V. Weir and Mrs. W. Mantie as assistants. With the aid of posters and other materials, the history of these islands of Hong-Kong was traced through labor, conference, industry and religion, showing a region of wide contrasts — wealth and poverty — Asian culture and western culture. In recent years an almost unbelievable growth in population has occurred, due in large measure to the influx of refugees from Communist China, bringing with it tremendous problems of housing, feeding and clothing as well as emotional and psychological readjustments, the result of which present an unnerving challenge to the churches there.

An important feature of this final meeting of the year was the installation of officers for 1963. Mrs. V. Weir was in charge for the installation of the proceedings and presented the slate of officers as provided by the nominating committee of Mrs. O. J. Reed and Mrs. C. F. Maybee as follows: honorary president — Mrs. W. H. Walker; president — Mrs. W. M. Barlow; 1st vice-president — Mrs. J. Darvell; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. D. Elvidge; secretary — Mrs. E. Shier; treasurer — Mrs. R. A. White; card secretary — Mrs. L. Douglas; glad tidings — Mrs. R. G. Jones; home helpers — Mrs. W. Mantie; literature — Mrs. P. Bondy; press — Mrs. H. Scott; welcome and welfare — Mrs. H. Yorke, Mrs. D. Kane; and pianist — Mrs. E. Boyce.

The impressive installation ceremony was conducted by Mrs. W. H. Walker.

Mrs. Barlow resumed, expressing thanks to Mrs. Walker for installing the officers, as well as her sincere appreciation to members for their loyal support and co-operation during the year. She also expressed thanks to the nominating committee and to all the past officers whose contribution was most appreciated.

During the afternoon several musical numbers — vocal and instrumental — were presented by two young students, Barry Fraser and John McKillican.

The open-chunk shoe is here again and is well represented in resort collections.

A T-strap model has elasticized cord strapping in black that sets off nicely the yellow-tan beige of the deerskin.

Taupe brown alligator is used for the second shoe, made with a sturdy walking heel. It has a strap collar and connecting strap at the heel of matching smooth leather. Both heel and toe are open.

The dressed-up pump is of black suede or peat de sole with narrow satin strips that tie in a bow on the instep.

Peter B. — We made a mess of our marriage. Maybe we can start all over.

Dora B. — He hurt me too much. I just want my children, not him.

Peter B. — We were married 20 years ago and from the start things went wrong. We'd have three daughters, now 10, 13 and 18, and they haven't had a normal home for the past seven years. That's when Dora left me.

My sister and I took care of the two younger girls, and I boarded the oldest with a nice couple. She has just gotten married and lives in Utah. As I look back, I see that our trouble was partly my fault. I used to bribe the girls to spy on Dora and report her every move to me. I was insanely jealous and I unfairly took out the spite against her.

I'm more sensible now. Life has been hard for us both. I'd like to be asked her to come back and make a home again. She flatly refuses.

Dora B. — I didn't leave, I was driven out by his poisoning the children against me. They assured me and had no respect. He actually ordered me to leave when one of them reported I'd been out with another man. That was true, but I hadn't done anything wrong. I just needed some cheering up and I got it.

That wasn't all. Between Pete and his sister they handed me every kind of cruelty. They wouldn't let me see my children at first. Then, when they did, I was crushed to see how brazen and vulgar the girls were becoming. In the last year, however, I've been able to have a few heart-to-heart talks with my oldest daughter and she confesses that they really love me, but were forced to lie about me and to me. Also, he let me go to all four years ago on a contempt charge for non-payment of a joint debt — his and mine. No, I'll return to my children, but not him.

The Council: There's one thing The Council becomes more and more certain of — namely, that it can't meddle. The format of this column proclaims this daily. So if Peter finally realizes that he made mistakes, can't Dora 'fess up a bit, too? What really happened during those 13 years of living together?

How could children, for example, be used as spies against their mother without her raising a finger to block it? A wife and mother has recourses. There are clergymen, lawyers, policemen, child welfare authorities to protect us. Can it be that Dora was just a little bit glad to have children? And have we heard the whole story about the jail episode? Most emphatically, how everybody believed Peter and not Dora? Had she established a reputation for truth?

The usual pattern in domestic upsets is to side with the mother, especially when there are young children. For matters to be so insidiously as here, there must have been some genuine provocation on Dora's part. Even browbeaten, brainwashed children would find some way to tell the truth, perhaps to a relative or friend, to rescue their mother if she were the victim of a pack of lies.

On the record, then, we say go back, Dora. Most important is a reunited home, despite the bitter taste. Bad as things were, isn't this worse? Husband, wife, children under several roofs; when they might get back one, again? This time, the local branch of your Family Service Bureau "advises" that a behavior of all for a period, because all have been injured by the past. The children, in particular, have been damaged and tainted by "childish" parents.

Time works wonders. Some people just grow older. Lucky ones grow wiser. A reunited home will reveal whether the B.'s have grown, or merely aged.

Mrs. G. Walker Heads Red Cross Branch

DESERONTO — Mrs. Gordon Walker was elected president of the Deseronto Red Cross branch at a meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Harold Trounce on Main Street. Mrs. Walther succeeds Mrs. Thomas Parrott.

Other officers and conveners elected were: Mrs. Charles Cole, first vice-president; Mrs. Vera Ryan, second vice-chairman; Mrs. Evelyn Stuart, secretary; Mrs. Trounce, 1963 campaign chairman; Mrs. Walker, women's work; Mrs. Don Dawson, loan cupboard; Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Walker, disaster and welfare; senior citizens, Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. William Crabb and Mrs. Bertha Mansield; blood donor, Mrs. Dawson; cards, Miss Ruth Lloyd.

Mrs. Percy Stover, Miss Beatrice Rice, Mrs. Hewton Thomas and Mrs. Charles P. Dimmeit were elected as honorary presidents. Volunteer will work in shifts on Friday, December 14, from the home of Mrs. Walker on Edmond Street to pack more than 50 Christmas boxes to be given to senior citizens in the town.

A report was given of a recent conference of the Prince Holmstead, chairman of senior citizens of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross who came from the Toronto office to discuss her department work in small municipalities.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

During my vacation this summer, in the States, my aunt served "Indian Pudding" as a dessert. I have not been able to obtain the recipe and was hoping you could print it. I believe this pudding is made of molasses and cornmeal . . . Irene C.

ANSWER:

While this is not commonly known or made by Canadians, it is an excellent pudding which may be compared to our beloved baked rice pudding.

SATURDAY
Guests

Dinner Menu

Roast Dressed Shoulder of Lamb; Mint Buttered Peas; Creamed Cubed Parsnips; Sliced Potatoes and Cucumbers with Roquefort Dressing; Canned Pears Filled with Mint Sherbet Topped with Chocolate Sauce; Shortbreads; Tea.

INDIAN PUDDING (serves 6 to 8):

1-3 cup cornmeal, 1-3 cup water, 4 cups milk, ½ cup molasses, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 or 2 tablespoons nutmeg, 1 egg.

Mix the cornmeal with the water. Scald the milk in top of double boiler. Add the cornmeal paste, stirring. Cook 25 minutes in double boiler, stirring until thickened. Add the molasses, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and the beaten egg. Turn into a buttered baking dish. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes. Serve warm with ice cream or table cream or maple syrup.

QUESTION:

Would you be kind enough to send me a recipe for old-fashioned Canadian meat pie? With Christmas coming so many of my friends would like the recipe and I could pass it on to them . . . Mrs. G. A. S.

ANSWER:

We here are all puzzled by your "old-fashioned" description. Do you want a deep meat pie starting with raw meat or leftover? . . . biscuit or pie pastry? My mother made one similar to the following. If it is not as you remember it please give me more details.

OLD-FASHIONED CANADIAN MEAT PIE:

Make rich plain pastry to line and cover an average-sized baking dish. Line sides with half of the pastry.

FILLING:

Three (or 2) cups cooked (or raw, see below) beef diced, 2 cups diced potatoes, 1½ cups diced carrots, 1 cup sliced onions, 1 cup diced celery, with 1 cup hot water (or if no gravy add 2 beef bouillon cubes or 2 cups hot water). Arrange meat and vegetables in pastry-lined baking dish in alternate layers. Season each layer lightly, sprinkling generously with salt and pepper if bouillon cubes are not added. Roll out remaining half of pastry, gash centre. If desired, stand an egg cup or inverted funnel in centre. Cover filling and seal edges. Brush top with diluted egg yolk. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for, another 25 or 30 minutes. Serve. If meat is raw much longer baking time is required. Reduce temperature to 400 deg. Fahr. for 2½ hours. A small amount of pea and celery may be added if desired.)

Centre Street UCW List New Officers

Recently the U.C.W. of Centre Street United Church, Hillcrest held their regular meeting in the form of a Christmas party with 11 members, nine visitors and two children present.

The president, Mrs. Longhurst, welcomed everyone and opened the meeting with an appropriate Christmas message. Mrs. K. Ferguson gave the meditation.

After correspondence was read and business dealt with, the slate of officers for 1963 was read as follows: president — Mrs. D. Hudgins; vice-president — Mrs. A. Hawley; treasurer — Mrs. G. Wood; secretary — Mrs. L. Longhurst; sick and visiting committee — Mrs. F. Stapley; program committee — co-operative with Christian education and missionary education — Mrs. Ferguson.

Readings were given by Mrs. D. Hudgins, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Hawley and the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Vesey.

The ladies retired to the Sunday School rooms where there was an exchange of Christmas gifts. Mrs. Longhurst was presented with a lovely hand-painted tray by Mrs. Vesey in appreciations of her splendid work as president for the past five years.

Tasty Christmas goodies were enjoyed by all.

Women's Activities

The Catholic Women's League of St. Joseph's parish met for their December meeting in the parish hall, which was gaily decorated in the Christmas motif. Mrs. Carr-Brant, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Muldoon and Mrs. Jas. J. C. Maidoon opened the meeting with prayer.

She requested members to report anyone ill or deceased to her. Request the corresponding secretary, so that a suitable card could be sent on behalf of the League members. She also requested members to notify Mrs. Y. Murphy, of any new families in the parish, so that she could contact and welcome the ladies to the League.

Mrs. Muldoon, education convener asked the ladies to save the postage stamps from their Christmas mail and to forward them to the January meeting. Also she would be turned over to St. Joseph's School to aid in their missionary work. Mrs. Jas. J. Maidoon, convener read a letter from Father Cardy, O.M.I., who is a Missionary at Sandy Lake, Ont. Northwest Territories, thanking the league for the gifts that were sent. Father Cardy had embarked on her visit to the Home for the Aged and asked members to try a visit to the Home. She would be appreciated and welcomed.

The president distributed leaflets regarding the saving of labels and box tops from various meat products. Mrs. Groves will convene this project and it is hoped that many useful articles will be obtained for use in the parish hall.

The highlight of the meeting was the display and modelling of 83 of 50 homes planned in an Alberta-wide scheme by the provincial government to provide persons over 70 with comfortable housing and companionship.

I. O. O. F. Holds Successful Tea Bazaar

STIRLING — On Saturday, December 8th, Stirling I.O.O.F. Lodge, No. 220, held a successful Christmas tea and bazaar in the lodge dining hall on Charlotte Street.

Noble Grand Basil St. Pierre and a large number of members were busy all afternoon. They were assisted in the kitchen by members of Rebekah Lodge No. 211 and also several officers.

The dining hall was decorated with greenery, colored balls and a decorated and lighted Christmas tree and underneath the tree was a large assortment of ten-cent gifts for children and these were sold in record time. The long table was centred with a Christmas arrangement in boat shape and holding red tapers. candle holders and long red tapers.

In the tea room each quartet table was centred with a Christmas arrangement of greenery and a fat snowman on a glittering base. The tables were covered with red and white cakes, old fashioned rolled cookies and all of these were sold in record time.

The country-store booth featured cheddar cheese, fresh eggs, vegetables in gift baskets, pickles, relishes, jams, jellies, cream, home-made candy and other delicious goodies.

The members of Laurel Rebekah Lodge furnished these goods and a variety of items for fine grocery baskets. Two of these were the centre of the draw and the winners Robert Hulin and Donald Heath. District Deputy President and Mrs. Charles Anderson of Carrying Place conducted a Chinese auction and all had plenty of fun and merriment as the group outbid each other.

At five o'clock the winners of the other two items were chosen. These were a twenty-five pound turkey, won by Mrs. John L. Good; and a hamper of apples, won by Cecil Matchett.

During the afternoon Christmas music was supplied by the Noble Grand on a full matchbox.

Members of the I.O.O.F. No. 220 were very appreciative of the assistance and patronage of their successful venture.

of hats by Mrs. Minion and her daughter, Leslie. They presented, to the delight of the members, many hats that were styled and made by Mrs. Minion. Mrs. Hanked Mrs. Minion on behalf of the members.

Father McGee, accepted a cheque for the church building fund, and Christmas gift cheques for Schmidt and Father Buckley, who was unavoidably absent from the meeting.

A feature of the meal focal point of the delicious tea served by Mrs. Carr-Brant, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Dufour and Mrs. Clarke.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

IMPORT TIPS FOR THE HOSTESS

A busy housewife or career woman — or a bachelor, for that matter — has as much as things to remember when she's giving a party that it's almost impossible not to slip up on a few details.

A few, unfortunately, get to be pretty obvious as the party progresses. With so many parties and get-togethers scheduled for the holidays, here are a few reminders about the little things that top off arrangements and put guests completely at their ease.

For instance, make sure there are enough coasters to go around. Very often a guest will sit for ages with a sweating glass in his hand, wishing he could put it down, but he's still too much of a gentleman to risk staining a table. Solution to the problem would be serving glasses with a protective jacket attached, or making doubly sure a coaster is served at the same time as the glass.

Cocktail napkins are another aid-to-party item. Well, not exactly forgotten. They're available — often on a cocktail table nearby. But leave it to a guest seeking them out with a smeared index finger, it's more thoughtful to have the napkins at the same time the tray of hors d'oeuvres is offered.

Then there are the times when where to dispose of the napkin once it's served its purpose. Most of the time it ends up in the nearest ash tray, along with bits from olives and picks from shrimps, meatballs and a motley of other nibbles. Many hostesses either circulate with a small tray to collect such debris from guests, or delegate someone else to do it for them. Either way, it does relieve guests of the impediments, as well as the job of trying to ditch a handful of loose ends politely and unobtrusively.

Ash trays, themselves, often are another source of concern to guests, simply because there's not enough room to put out one cigarette, let alone a bushel. Dainty shapes and sizes may be perfect for a tête-à-tête group of three or four, but, for large parties, ash trays should be of a size that fit a crowd — the bigger, the better — so guests don't have to worry about bruising a finger as they put out a stub, or dumping the whole thing on the floor. Naturally, they should be emptied at intervals, and the hostess should keep a wary eye on the butts and ashes.

Seating space is another detail that should be worked out carefully, especially before a dinner party. Often a hostess tries to seat eight at a table for six, with the result that everyone is cramped — as is the enjoyment of the meal. Using small tables, rather than one large one, is often more practical and comfortable, and guests invariably enjoy this type of intimate arrangement as well as the extra elbow room it offers.

A Lift For Living

Fulfillment Found in Manger In Little Town of Bethlehem

By Dr. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Out of World War II emerged certain names to become household words: Roosevelt, Churchill, Eisenhower, Montgomery, MacArthur and others. But how many of these will be vividly remembered by our grandsons even though we of this generation honor them? Of all our American presidents, you know, only two have birthdays which are widely observed.

Yet 19 centuries ago there was born One, the child of a peasant woman, in an obscure village of Bethlehem. He grew up as a carpenter in another unimportant town. He never travelled more than two hundred miles from home. He never went to college. He never wrote a book. He never led an army. When he was thirty, He became a travelling teacher. For awhile He drew crowds, but after a short time the tide of popular favor ebbed. Even His friends deserted Him; one denied Him and another betrayed Him. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was crucified and buried in a borrowed tomb.

But a short time after His death, the name of Jesus began to be heard again in the streets of Jerusalem. His followers returned from hiding, no longer hunted refugees but bold heralds filled with and triumphant Christ. They went everywhere telling of His life and love. Persecution could not stop them. Time could not erase His memory. Aye, in fact time seems to be measured from His birth. Every day our letters and legal documents bear mute testimony to the fact that this Man of Nazareth divides time into B.C. and A.D.

LIVING FULFILLMENT .

Why this unending appeal? Why this expanding power? My answer is that those who went to the manger at Bethlehem found there the living fulfillment of the longing which sent them there.

Let us look at the longings of those who met at the manger. First of all, the shepherds.

On my visits to Palestine I have watched the shepherds under the blistering heat of the noon-day sun. Seared during the day, they shiver at night, for the chill comes early on those dry Judean hills. Their bodies have a lean and hungry look. To us of America their life seems one of poverty. It is a lonely existence — watching their flocks by night. Also it requires much patience, for sheep are rather stupid animals.

In that earlier day long ago, it took no little courage to be a good shepherd in a region where beasts of prey might break into the fold and thieves could kill for a single lamb. But there are shepherds were faithful to their flocks. Yet what about themselves? Was there any sheep herding care to look after them?

Then, as now, they searched for the answer. And found it in the Babe born at Bethlehem who grew up to become the Good Shepherd of all time.

The Judean shepherds wanted to know whether the stars which glitter so cold in the heavens have a friendly hand behind them. And Christ told them of God's plan. They yearned to know whether men are of more value than sheep. And Christ reassured them of their worth.

The shepherds who saw their lambs perish among the hills longed to know whether man's life flickered out into nothingness. And Christ answered, "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him shall not perish but have eternal life."

TRULY WISE

Let us turn now to the other group that met at the Bethlehem manger: the "Wise Men." Wisdom was old when Jesus was born. But the truly wise were aware that mere learning cannot save the world. Science gives us power over things and over other people, but not over ourselves. Culture implies some power which helps us to distinguish between wrong - doing and righteous behavior. We can learn skills which enable us to make enough to live on, but Jesus the Master Teacher gives us something to live for and to live by. Christ gives that power.

Wise men are still looking for a higher wisdom which can lift learning to the level of safety and service. This longing keeps them coming to the One born at Bethlehem.

Every Christmas Eve I am impressed with the number of people in New York City who leave the theatres and restaurants to sing Christmas carols at the midnight church services. It would appear that they relish a return from the artificial and the theatrical to the simple essentials of life. These are the qualities that first came to birth at the holy manger.

As Chesterton said, Bethlehem is the place "where God was homeless and all men are at home."

Mounties

RCMP activities relating to students or academic circles. The RCMP's job was law enforcement. He added:

"The security investigations will obviously involve the police keeping their eyes open as to anything which might go on which relates to the enforcement of the law or the subversion of our institutions by unlawful methods."

John R. Matheson (L—Leeds) said he has discussed the matter with people on the campus of the University of Toronto and other universities—"people who in some cases held high positions."

Mr. Matheson said he recognizes that security investigations are necessary. But he said the officers and constables of the RCMP should be given a pro-forma series of questions for this purpose.

"Frequently in past months the police have commenced their investigations by appearing to ask standard questions, but what has become particularly obnoxious is when they embark on their own course of question in the course of an investigation.

"This has caused offence to many thoughtful people who felt the police were really witchhunting."

WONDERS WHAT ILLEGAL

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said the government should say what it considers to be illegal or subversive activities. Did the minister regard as subversive or illegal the movements which had sprung up urging the banning of the clear arms?

The fact is, said Mr. Orlikow that "investigations are always being made at Laval and other universities about this type of activity."

Mr. Orlikow said he gained personal knowledge of RCMP activities in this field recently when his brother, a Winnipeg teacher, was questioned after taking a group of students to listen to a talk by the secretary of the Manitoba Communist party.

Mr. Orlikow said that professors from one end of Canada to the other take the matter so seriously that the Canadian Association of University Teachers now is circulating a sticker to be attached to security questionnaire forms.

The sticker, with a place for date and signature, reads:

"The Association of University Teachers has expressed its disapproval of questions concerning the political or religious beliefs, activities or associations of students. I share this view, and am not prepared to answer such questions."

Chinese Claim

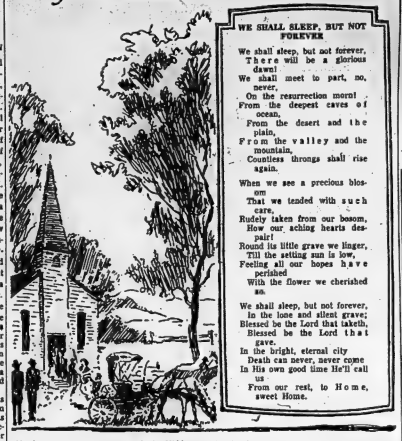
ended Bulgarian, Czechoslovak Hungarian and Italian party congresses, and admitted that their own efforts had "failed to prevent the worsening of the situation.

The Chinese said they would refuse to knuckle under to this "bludgeoning" and were sticking to their theories that communism should wage an all-out struggle against the United States rather than capitulate to it, as it indicated Russia had done over the Cuban crisis.

This ideological quarrel finds Russia, Yugoslavia and the eastern European reds arraigned against China, Albania and some of the Communist parties of Asia.

K IS 'GUILTY'

Referring to Khrushchev's Cuban missile retreat, the statement said he had been guilty of "adventurism" and "capitulationism."



"We are resolutely opposed to the imperialist policy of nuclear blackmail," it said. "We also hold that the socialist countries have no need whatsoever to use nuclear weapons as a gambling counter or for frightening others. To do this would mean truly to commit the error of adventurism. . . ."

The Chinese defended their thesis that "imperialism is a paper tiger" which Khrushchev cautiously attacked Wednesday when he said that the tiger had nuclear teeth.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

WE SHALL SLEEP, BUT NOT FOREVER

We shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn!
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn!
From the deepest caves of ocean,
From the desert and the plain,
From the valley and the mountain,
Countless throngs shall rise again.

When we see a precious blossom
That we tended with such care,
Rudely taken from our bosom,
How our aching hearts despair!
Round its little grave we linger,
Till the setting sun is low,
Feeling all our hopes have perished
With the flower we cherished so.

We shall sleep, but not forever,
In the lone and silent grave;
Blessed be the Lord that taketh,
Blessed be the Lord that gave.
In the bright, eternal city
Death can never, never come
In His own good time He'll call us
From our rest, to Home, sweet Home.

No hymn ever sang more confidently about immortality than does this one.

"There will be a glorious dawn", says the hymnist, a morn of resurrection when from ocean, desert and plain, from valley and mountain, the dead shall rise to live eternally.

A New England woman, Mrs. Mrs. Kidder wrote the hymn; verses shortly before the turn of the century. Silas Jones Vail, a prominent American composer, supplied the music. Mr. Vail wrote tunes for two other precious gospel songs, Fanny Crosby's "Close To Thee", and "Soldiers of Christ, Arise" by Charles Wesley.

M.A. Kidder, wrote the hymn; is My Name Written There?" and hundreds of others and, for many of these, Ira D. Sankey, the evangelist-composer, created musical settings. Mrs. Kidder died at Chelsea, Massachusetts in 1905.

Dec. 15, 1962 . . .

The Russians announced the encirclement of the German army in the Stalingrad sector 20 years ago today—in 1942—allowing the Red Army to mount massive offensives against the invaders. The long, bitter siege and defence of Stalingrad was ended. The encirclement and two drives routed 36 German divisions. The Red Army took 137,000 prisoners and German dead totalled 175,000 officers and men.

Flower Pieces for Christmas

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

You can't beat the tried and true red and green color scheme for Christmas decorations, but you can add to it, modify it or change the red to blue, yellow or white just to be different.

To prolong the life of those decorations and keep the cost down use plenty of greenery with a minimum of long lasting flowers. Add extra accessories for special accents.

Don't start willy-nilly decide definitely where you want to place the decorations, how you want them to look, when you will need them and for how long.

A mantel ball table, book shelves, coffee table and dining table are good places to feature special arrangements. The colors can be chosen to match a picture, an art object, candles, drapery or your dishes.

For a dining table or buffet roses, carnations or mums are a good choice with plenty of greenery. Keep the arrangement as wide as you wish but low in height. Half a dozen short stemmed roses can provide the color accent to be supported by brilliant glass balls, real, or plastic fruit or other colorful glass or plastic decorations.

The greenery which will form the background to any of these pieces can be huckleberry, pottasporum, boxwood, eucalyptus, rhododendron or magnolia or salad leaves or a combination of any of these. See what your florist has on hand and make your selection.

PROLONG THEIR LIFE

When the flowers arrive from the florist, even when they are in top condition, you can prolong their life by conditioning them as follows; spread four or five sheets of newspaper on the table and spray them thoroughly with water. Wrap the paper firmly around the flowers and plunge flowers, paper and all into a pail of warm water. Set in a cool place for three or four hours before making up the arrangement. If there is no cool place put the flowers in deep cool water and allow to stand the same length of time.

Cut off all foliage that will be below water level. Decaying leaves pollute the water and plug the tubes that take up the water in the stems.

For the greenery buy it well before the holidays and mash or pound the stems for two inches. This will enable the stems to take up more water. Place in deep water and leave in a cool place for several days. Treated this way they will keep their fresh look for several weeks.

Transpiration, the loss of moisture from flowers and leaves, can be slowed by seeing that they are in a cool place at least over night. A cool basement, bedroom or utility room makes a good resting place if it is several degrees cooler than where they are to be displayed during the day.

With flowers you can stretch their life by cutting off half an inch each day and giving fresh water.

Boxwood, holly, and any Christmas green can be sprayed with a clear plastic spray. Each leaf shines fresh and green. Mistletoe will profit from a coat also.

FOCAL POINT

If you lack confidence in making arrangements buy one or more flowering plants and make them the focal point. Flank the plant, or plants with sprays of greenery arranged loosely in your own jars or vases.

For flower arrangements see that the stems vary in length, start with flowers and place in the holder. Fill in with the greenery and add the other items such as cones, balls or candles last.

Oasis, called non-spillable water is useful in making arrangements. Soak it half an hour in water before you start and add a little fresh water each day.

Cones of various kinds make suitable additions to these pieces and the canes can be gilded, or painted in white or bright colors. We save them and store them with the glass balls. With bright bows and candles you can fashion several arrangements with little effort. Pieces of dry shrubs, or drift wood painted white adds new form and you can dip bittersweet berries in a thick starch and dust with cornstarch while wet. The effect of powdery snow is quite attractive.

Recreation Highlights

By B. JARVAH
Assistant Director

"A winter carnival begins in mid-July" says 21 year old Ron Oberlander, a senior at Georgian University in Montreal, Quebec. However Belleville, Ontario, although "slightly" smaller than Montreal, is not to be outdone.

A little over a year ago, a group of interested citizens in the Belleville Park area, formed the Stanley Park Neighborhood Association. Among the projects of this young group were supervision of an outdoor rink at Stanley Parkette, and a winter carnival, which from all reports, was a tremendous success. It is with the assistance of such groups as these that the Recreation Department is able to continue and expand its various recreation programs and make them available to the citizens of Belleville.

Each year the subject of outdoor rinks is raised and each year interested citizens ask the question - - "why don't we have more outdoor rinks?" The main answer is that "generally" the weather in this district is not always suitable to maintain an outdoor rink, and believe me, there is quite a difference between flooding a small patch of ground in your backyard and flooding a 100' x 50' piece of ground in preparation for an outdoor rink.

In 1957-58, the winters were generally unsuitable for outdoor rinks. It was for this reason that "free skating" was initiated at the Belleville Arena. The Arena, because of its central location, provided the answer for desired skating areas. Open for "free skating" - - twice a week for 1½ hours daily, the arena was a blessing in disguise for boys and girls alike who just wanted to skate.

From 1960 on, the winters in this area began to lend themselves more suitably for outdoor rinks, although even now, a warm spell can ruin 15-20 hrs. of work of preparation on a rink surface.

This year, weather permitting, outdoor rinks will be placed at the following locations: Avondale School, Queen Mary, Prince Charles, Our Lady of Fatima, Parkdale Community Centre, Holy Rosary, Hillcrest School, Stanley Parkette, Queen Elizabeth, Bleecker Street School, St. Michael's Academy, Quinte Secondary, and the Harbour.

Flooding on these areas has already begun, and whether or not these ice surfaces will be usable depends entirely on the weather.

Earlier mentioned was the Stanley Park Neighborhood Association, and also worthy of mention is the Parkdale Association, and also the Avondale Home and School Association. These groups of interested citizens are playing an important role in offering to supervise rinks in their areas and in some cases are even paying the bill for outdoor floodlights and other necessities.

However, it cannot be stressed too much the importance of the weather with regard to outdoor rinks. It is in that regard that the Belleville Recreation Department has again made arrangements with the Belleville Arena to allow free skating for pre-school and public school students. Each week on Tuesdays and Fridays, the arena will be open for "free skating" from 4.30 - 5.30. Having a good, hard ice surface on which to skate is an important asset, and it is suggested that parents make their children aware of these opportunities and enjoy free skating at the arena each Tuesday and Friday 4.30 - 5.30 - - "Happy Skating."

Alcohol and Lack of Sleep Blamed for RCAF Pilot's Fatal Crash at Pembroke

PEMBROKE (CP)—A coroner's jury said here Friday night that a 37-year-old RCAF pilot who died when his Expediter aircraft crashed near Foymount, Ont., Sept. 21 was tired from lack of sleep and had alcohol in his system.

Flt. Lt. D. P. Clifton, a native of Southport, England, whose wife, Joan Mary Clifton, lives at Kingston, N.B., was killed shortly after taking off from Bonnechere Airport, about 11 miles north of Foymount.

Foymount, site of an RCAF radar base, is about 40 miles south of Pembroke and 90 miles west of Ottawa. The Bonnechere airstrip is operated by the department of transport.

The jury said that Flt. Lt. Clifton, who had been stationed at the RCAF station at Greenwood, N.S., "came to his death at 11 a.m. Sept. 21 in bush 1,000 yards south of Foymount from multiple injuries and burns."

ALCOHOL IN SYSTEM

The jury said the crash "was caused by lack of sleep and alcohol in the pilot's system."

The jury's verdict recommended that persons "operating aircraft should not do so until 24 hours after consuming alcohol."

Flt. Lt. F. A. Stock of the Foymount base said Flt. Lt. Clifton flew the Expediter aircraft to Bonnechere from Greenwood. He was driven by car to Foymount from Bonnechere on Sept. 20 and returned to Bonnechere late that night.

Flt. Lt. Stock said he saw Clifton on the night of Sept. 20 in the officer's mess at Foymount. He testified that he saw Clifton drink "two beers" and "six shots of rye."

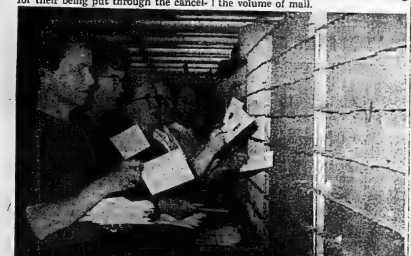
SERVES HIM DRINKS

Flt. Sgt. J. W. Murphy, a volunteer bartender in the sergeant's mess at Foymount, said Clifton was in the mess from about 9 p.m. until 11 p.m. He said he thought he served him from "six to eight single shots of liquor."

Murphy also said that he saw Clifton later in another mess where a party was being held. He said he saw him with a glass in his hand.

H. B. Cottam, chief Ontario coroner, said there was no evidence of Clifton's whereabouts between midnight Sept. 20 and the following morning when he took off from Bonnechere and crashed.

"For all we know he could have drank all night," he said.



Group Capt. J. R. Jackson, RCAF pathologist, said examination of tissues from Clifton's charred body showed that alcohol was present in his system at the time of his death.

Victor M. Poland, manager of the Bonnechere airstrip, said he saw Clifton take off and that he appeared normal.

Mrs. Elsie Buttle of Foymount, wife of a civilian employee at the radar base, said she saw Clifton's aircraft miss a television aerial on a private home by 1½ feet.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Piwowarski, of Belleville, formerly of Poland, were among the 92 persons granted Canadian citizenship yesterday in Belleville. After citizenship court, the new citizens attended a reception given by the IODE at the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's officers mess.

CANADIANS ALL—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dings of Belleville, formerly of Holland, show Mr. Dings' new citizenship certificate to Mrs. R. M. Patterson, Regent of St. Julien Chapter of the IODE, and Mrs. Ed Smith, vice-Regent of the Argyll Chapter of the IODE. The Dings were among 92 people granted Canadian citizenship in Belleville yesterday.

World Relief Group Gives Manitoba Indians $10,000

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Committee for World Relief said Friday it has been authorized to allocate $10,000 to help poverty - stricken Indians and Metis in the northern Manitoba mining area of Thompson.

An official of the committee said he wired the parent body in England, the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief, and received permission for the allocation.

Commissioner Wycliffe W. Booth of the Salvation Army said the Army has sent an official enter into the area to investigate.

Commissioner Booth said the RCAF has been advised to run mercy flights into the area if necessary and the Salvation Army's Manitoba divisional headquarters in Winnipeg is overseeing relief operations.

The Canadian committee asked the army to investigate following published reports of the Indians' plight.

The Indian affairs branch in Ottawa said Thursday a community development officer, a federal - provincial appointee, will be sent to the area and will start work early next month.

"There is nothing in any reports of Indians starving," said Col. H. M. Jones, director of the branch. "We wouldn't let them."

But he said the development officer will "help, encourage and streamline employment of Indians."

Pope Rescinds Abstinence Law This Christmas

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John has done away entirely this year with the strict pre-Christmas fast and abstinence law for Roman Catholics, L'Osservatore Romano announced Friday.

The Vatican newspaper noted that the pontiff had changed the observance law three years ago from Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, to Dec. 23. The Christmas vigil had been one of the strictest in the church year until 1959.

L'Osservatore said the fast and abstinence requirement for Dec. 23 has been lifted by the Pope this year because the date is a Sunday.

Only one full meal can be taken on a fast day, with the other two meals not together equalling a full meal. It applies to Catholics between ages 21 and 59. Abstinence, binding on Catholics over the age of seven, forbids eating of meat and products or grease made from meat. Both practices are intended as penance for sins.

U.S. Policies Will Not Hamper Oil Production

OTTAWA (CP)—Oil talks with the United States ended Friday with Canada feeling fears said new American policy won't impair the achievement of Canada's production targets next year.

The talks followed President Kennedy's announcement Dec. 30 that U.S. crude oil import restrictions were to be based on production rather than consumption.

Exports to the U.S. have been a prime reason why Canada output has been able to respond to the government challenge for increased production.

But exports east of the Rockies have been entitled by the U.S. producers whose product must compete with the Canadian oil. It was this sensitive area that was under discussion here.

While Mr. Hees said some increase in Canadian exports was agreed on within limits, he gave no details.

There will be another meeting in six months.

90 One-Time Immigrants Officially Proclaimed New Citizens of Canada

Christmas gifts took on a new dimension in Belleville yesterday, as a rather formal ceremony made a richer Canada.

With judicious realism Hastings County judge J. C. Anderson officially proclaimed 90 one-time immigrants as citizens of Canada.

The new citizens, including one Chinese, two French girls, five Irishmen with the majority east and central Europeans, reciprocated the solemnity of the occasion manifested in the figure of the judge. However, Judge Anderson tempered the event with some judicious asides to ease the formality of the ceremony.

One young couple took their place before the bench, Bible in hand and the judge noticed they also had brought along their young son, himself a native-born Canadian, from the well of the court.

"Have you got a junior size for this fellow here?" he asked.

Again, after the ceremonies had been concluded, the judge encouraged the newly-sworn citizens to comment on their own behalf on the ceremonies.

CITIZENS SPEAK

Prompted by the judge's insistence Joseph Havlik and Mrs. Maria Barasinki, both of Belleville, rose to the invitation.

Mr. Havlik, a Czech expatriate recalled that when he first arrived in Canada he was unable to speak English. He reminded his fellow new Canadians of the fact he, like all of them, had advanced so far since that time, he said now able to qualify for citizenship.

"Well now we have made it," he added.

"I think I am speaking for all our group here when I say Merry Christmas and God Bless You."

Mrs. Barasinski also noted the seasonal significance of the occasion and called it the best Christmas gift the assembled citizens had ever received.

"Thank you very much," she said, "and may God Bless Canada."

Next to the judge the centre of all attention for the new citizens was the court clerk, Marjorie McCaw, responsible for much of the groundwork that prepared the applicants for their citizenship. Mrs. McCaw complimented the assembled citizens for their diligence with which they pressed their claims to citizenship, which this time drew 92 applicants.

"This time, I think we have an extra large group," she told the new citizens, before Judge Anderson opened the court. "You have all done very well and I am proud of you all.

"Not one of the 92 we have had today has tried a (citizenship) examination twice."

Judge Anderson also invited an attendance of local and senior government officials for the occasion.

Hastings county Warden Harold Varty spoke both for his county and the city of Belleville and stressed the importance of religious freedom.

One of the best guarantees for the future, he said, was through children and their "steady attendance at the place of worship which you choose."

Elmer Sandercock, MLA, Hastings West, struck an equally serious note.

"I often think at these ceremonies of all the problems you have had before you came and all the decisions you had to make," he told the new citizens.

"I hope," he said, "there is not one here who will ever regret the decision they have made in coming to Canada."

An off-the-cuff piece of homespun of philosophy, with pointed barbs, was delivered by Arnold Campbell, for many years interested in local immigrant work, and invited by Judge Anderson to be present.

"I wonder if we as citizens of Canada have been friendly enough to the newcomers to our shores?" he puzzled.

"I would like to see a program started where we did this sort of thing: where we welcomed newcomers in our midst."

But, he warned, the philosophy of such an outlook is no one-way street. No hesitancy should be displayed in mingling with all citizens of an adopted country.

"I hope you will mingle with the Canadians," he told the assembly. "Do not make islands of yourselves - - - and let us all be one country."

Other speakers included Alderman Robert Temple, Carson Stratton, BCIVS and Don Maddox, community programme branch of the department of education.

Bibles and New Testaments were presented the new citizens by the Argyll and St. Julien chapters of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire. Mrs. Les Digby and Mrs. Olive Smith addressed the assembly.

Boyd Asks Police For Protection As Wife Calls

TORONTO (CP) — Edwin Alonzo Boyd pulled a switch Thursday night—he called the police.

Boyd, paroled Oct. 3 after serving 10 years for a list of offences that included bank robbery, enlisted the aid of his onetime foes after a man and a woman battered down his front door.

Police arrested his estranged wife and a companion and booked them on drunk charges.

Boyd, as leader of the notorious "Boyd gang," was counted as one of Canada's most noted holdup men.

FILES SUIT

PHOENIX, Ariz (AP)—Movie stuntman Robert D. Morgan, who lost a leg and eye during a filming accident, filed a $1,250,000 damage suit Wednesday against Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer. Morgan, husband of Vancouver-born actress Yvonne DeCarlo, was knocked under a moving train while the MGM movie How The West Was Won, was being filmed near Superior, Ariz., last April 9.

Kennedy Calls for Tax Cut And Economy in Govt. In Speech to Businessmen

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy called for an early and substantial tax cut, then drew enthusiastic applause from his businessmen listeners Friday night by pledging economy in government.

Appearing before 3,000 diners at the Economic Club of New York, Kennedy argued that, despite formidable opposition in Congress, a 1963 tax cut offers the best hope in the long run of spurring employment and balancing the budget.

He promised that a tax reduction bill going to Congress next month would be coupled with a new federal budget that would keep spending on domestic programs at current levels.

Although Kennedy conceded there will be heavier spending on defence and space programs, he said later during a question period that Defence Secretary Robert McNamara foresees the time not far off when defence expenditures will peak off.

Kennedy said Soviet Premier Khrushchev has kept all his known commitments made during October's Cuban crisis. He said Cuba "does not present an offensive threat under present conditions" but that aerial surveillance will continue as long as that country remains a Soviet base.

The president noted that Khrushchev has yet to fulfill a rather indefinite pledge to remove from Cuba certain Soviet elements other than those withdrawn in connection with the pull - out of missiles and bombers. But Kennedy said this commitment "was not as hard as others he has kept."

ELIMINATE TRUCKS

NEW YORK (AP) — The Port of New York authority has disclosed plans for a $20,000,000, 50-mile network of underground pipes at Idlewild airport which will virtually eliminate the need for fuel trucks. Plans call for the pipe network, which will be able to distribute 3,200,000 gallons of aircraft fuel daily, to be completed by 1964. The plan was authorized by authority commissioners at their monthly board meeting Friday.

Former Partner Of Diefenbaker Named to Bench

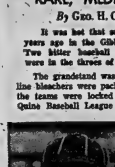
OTTAWA (CP)—One of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's former law partners, Norman Hall, 42, was appointed to the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal Friday. The announcement was made by Justice Minister Fleming.

The move fills a vacancy created by the recent promotion of Mr. Justice E. M. Culliton to the post of chief justice of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Justice Hall joined the law firm of Diefenbaker and Cuelenaere at Prince Albert, Sask., shortly after he was called to the bar in 1940.

He was a partner in the firm from 1948 to 1957 when Mr. Diefenbaker became prime minister and ended his partnership. The name was changed to Cuelenaere and Hall.

A native of Ponteix, Sask., Mr. Justice Hall is married and has two children.



Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was bad that sultry summer afternoon some 39 years ago in the Gibbard Baseball Park in Napanee. Two bitter baseball enemies, Picton and Napanee, were in the throes of a diamond "death" struggle.

The grandstand was filled with cheering fans. Baseline bleachers were packed to capacity. On the diamond the teams were locked in a tense battle for the Bay of Quinte Baseball League championship.

WALTER GEROW

On the mound a tall slim lefthander was throwing smoking balls past swinging batters with a consummate ease and regularity. With each pitch the crowd recorded its approval. The hurler was Tommy Pelaster, one of the best southpaws to come out of the Quinte district.

When his strikeout mark reached a magical "20," Ron Church, Picton's Al Schacht of baseball, remarked dryly, "Cries that stay a few more years and they'll make a pitcher out of him."

Near the Napanee bench, a long, slim figure stood, chin cupped in a hand silently watching the play. His face was expressionless. Occasionally he turned and said something to a player. At other times he made strange motions, the signals of a coach to his players.

Yesterday, Walt Gerow, who in modern sports parlance, could easily be called "the Man Mr. Essenhaft," reeled back the curtain of time and recalled the highlights of a colorful baseball career.

Sunday, Walt and a wonderful helpmeet, "Maud", are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They will be "at home" to their many friends at 174 James Street.

Walt Gerow, a "maker of champions," was an individual champion in his own right. He teethed on a baseball, and used a bat as his first toy. He was a natural athlete of the game. He knew players—and he knew baseball. He became a master strategist.

As a youth Belleville-born Walt showed a remarkable potential. He was selected when a stripling youth to play first base for a Belleville city club composed of men much older than he. He was the baby member of the famous Grand Trunks club that won this city its first Ontario senior title, back in 1909.

He soon became top first-baseman in the Central Ontario Baseball League. But an unfortunate accident cut off a brilliant diamond future in the bud—so to speak.

He was playing in a CNR shop-high school team game. He hit safely to reach first, and stole second and third. On a signal he streaked for the plate. A frustrated, beaten catcher stuck out a foot, tripped the runner, breaking his shoulder. That ended Walt Gerow's baseball playing career.

But the accident didn't break his spirit nor affect a proud love of the sport. His knowledge of the game, a keen mind earned for him the coaching job of the crack Belleville Grand Trunks. Later they copped the Nationals and Walt's proudest moment came in 1928 when they defeated a swaggering Walkerville Chicks club for Belleville's second senior championship.

For two years he took up that thankless job, umpiring. He was much in demand since he "called them as they were" and favored none. He recalls an instance when a team manager called him and asked him who was working with him. Walt told him.

"I don't want him at all," the manager said. "He stole a game for me once—and he's liable to steal one from me."

Back in active harness again he went to Napanee and in the ensuing years became a baseball household name. He brought several titles to "Gibbardville," his greatest achievement coming when he took the Intermediate "A" and "B" clubs to provincial titles in one season. During the off-season he was the manager of the Napanee arena.

Walt spent two years in Kirkland Lake as manager of the town's senior baseball squad, a tough assignment in a tough gold-mining town.

"The league trophy," Walt said, "was of solid gold, donated by six mining corporations."

"But we were glad when I received an offer to come to Belleville as manager of the arena here. The north is a great country, but we preferred the comparative quiet of the Bay of Quinte district."

The long slim figure of Walt Gerow was a familiar sight to Prince Edward County fans "away back when" the county boasted a league that was second to none. Teams like Picton, Bloomfield, Wellington, Demorestville, in redhot rivalry imported players from as far as Toronto and Rochester.

"Four or five Belleville players were called in," Walt said. "One night we would play for Picton, the next for Bloomfield. Those fellows played for keeps—and, we had a lot of fun."

Walt was never offered a job as a fat man in a circus. He is six feet tall with no surplus "meat." In fact he told me he got "stout" at one time and tipped the scales at 150 pounds.

He retired some time ago after twenty years here as arena manager. He is in good health except for a slightly ailing back. But talk baseball to Walt and the years roll off him like water off the proverbial duck. His face lights up as the golden memories of old diamond days rush back in a flood.

He was easily one of this district's most outstanding baseball figures, a man who played the game for the game's sake, was honest, helpful and generous in all his dealings. His integrity was never questioned.

The name of Walt Gerow will live here long after he has gone. He was a credit to himself, his teams, his community and to the sport he loved so well.

I'm sure all sportsmen of the Bay of Quinte District, especially those connected with baseball, join with this column in extending heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gerow on their golden wedding anniversary. It could not happen to a nicer couple.

Canadians Call For Help ★ ★ ★ ★

Swedes Hand Quakers 13-3 Drubbing

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Saskatoon Quakers suffered their second straight drubbing at the hands of Sweden's world championship national team Friday night, 13-3, in an exhibition hockey game here.

The Canadians couldn't get any semblance of an attack going until after the big, fast-skating Swedes had piled up a 9-0 margin and obviously eased up.

The Quakers have sent calls fast for defensive help and hope to bring a pair of experienced defencemen quickly to Europe. They have asked Trail Smoke Eaters, who are preparing to represent Canada at the world championships in March.

Thursday night, the Quakers started off their 17-game European exhibition tour by dropping a 7-3 decision to the same Swedish combination. The Canadians seemed to be weary from the long trip from home.

But Friday night they just didn't have a thing. After getting 16 straight goals past the Canadian nets in the two games without a reply, veteran forward George Senick finally broke the scoring ice with the first of his three goals Friday night.

SCORES FOUR TIMES

Ulf Sterner, a veteran of international competition, was the big gun in the Swedish attack with four goals, making it a total of six against the Quakers in the two games.

The Swedes again showed the excellent positional play and sharp passing they used to blank the Canadians in the opener.

The Canadians now move to Czechoslovakia for a series of 10 games starting in Prague Monday night against the Czech national team.

Coach Bobby Kromm of the Allan Cup champion Trail Smoke Eaters said Friday night in Vancouver that he had received a telephone call from Stockholm asking him for two defencemen.

GOOD OPPOSITION

They told me they don't have the defencemen they need," Kromm said. "I think they've got a good team but have underestimated the calibre of the opposition. . . .

"We're prepared to help all we can."

The exhibition games are being played under European rules which frown on heavy bodychecking, particularly into the boards.

In Edmonton Friday night, Art Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he was "very surprised" at the lopsided Canadian defeats. He said: "It may be they haven't got accustomed to the style and play in Europe."

Battle For Tops

Wings, Hawks Clash In Big One

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A National Hockey League coach is gambling against the odds when he substitutes a forward for his goaltender in the final seconds of a game in an effort to get a fifth attacker. It has worked about once out of every 10 times it's been tried this season.

Of the 22 times the opportunity has arisen to bench the goaltender, the move has paid off twice. Both times, surprisingly enough, it was the last-place Boston Bruins who benefited. On the other hand, the strategy has backfired seven times.

Bruins' Irv Spencer scored the tying goal at Boston against Detroit Red Wings Oct. 25 in a 3-3 game while Bruin netminder Eddie Johnston was on the bench. The same trio paid off again for Boston at Chicago Nov. 7 when Johnny Bucyk scored. That time Bob Pulford netted the goal as the Boston goaltender removed.

OWN VICTIM

Boston has also been the victim of its own strategy more than any other club. The opposition has scored three goals into an empty Bruin net. Chicago, Detroit, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers each have been scored against once with their own goalkeeper on the bench.

All six teams see action both today and Sunday.

Today the Rangers visit Montreal, Chicago is at Detroit and Boston plays at Toronto.

The Canadiens might use Dickie Moore, or Jean Richard, who has a fractured big toe on his right foot. Club officials hope the toe can be strapped so Richard can play. He suffered the injury Thursday night in Montreal during a 1-1 tie against Boston.

Sunday's schedule has Canadiens at Boston, Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at Rangers.

Leafs Call Arbour, Sullivan

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, with regulars Bobby Baun and Bob Nevin sidelined by knee injuries, have called up Al Arbour from their American Hockey League Rochester farm club and Norm (Red) Armstrong from Sudbury of the Eastern Professional League for two weekend games.

Arbour, 30, played with Leafs last season but was sent to Rochester at the start of the current campaign to make room for rookie Kent Douglas.

Armstrong, a 200-pounder with a rugged style of play, stood out at the Leaf training camp last spring. He plays either defence or left wing, and in 25 games this season with Sudbury has scored eight goals and made 13 assists. In 1961-62, he played with Philadelphia in the U.S. Eastern League.

Doug Jones Folley Meet Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Zora Folley, who's afraid he'll be old and gray before he ever gets a shot at the heavyweight title, aims for his 10th straight victory tonight in a television 10-rounder with Doug Jones at Madison Square Garden.

Despite the big winning streak and a previous decision over Jones only Aug. 1, the 30-year-old heavyweight contender from Chandler, Ariz., is rated only even money against the 25-year-old light heavyweight contender from New York.

A loss to the dangerous Jones would knock Folley out of the picture for keeps.

The bout will be telecast by ABC and by CFTO, Toronto.

Fill Suspension Gaps

Wings Call Up Juniors

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings said Friday they will promote junior hockey players from the Edmonton Oil Kings to fill gaps left in their professional farm club, Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League, through the suspension of three players.

The Red Wings suspended three members of their Western Hockey League farm club of the American Hockey League to complete a four-for-four player swap.

A Detroit spokesman said "we plan to bring up junior players from the Edmonton Oil Kings and the suspensions will continue indefinitely."

Forwards Chuck Holmes and Warren Hynes and defenceman Lou Marcon refused to go from Edmonton to Pittsburgh. Defenceman Keith Walsh, however, agreed to make the switch and Pittsburgh sent John Mizuk to Edmonton as a replacement.

Detroit general manager Sid Abel described as untrue reports that Detroit plans to drop the Edmonton club from the farm system at the end of this season.

Lose 4-2 In Overtime

Jrs. Deserved A Better Fate

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Juniors played their best game of the season to date here last night but still dropped a 4-2 overtime toughie to Peterborough Monsens in a good OHA Eastern Junior 'B' contest.

The losers outplayed the visitors over the first two periods, scoring a goal in each, but Monsens bagged a pair to tie it in the third and another pair to run their winning streak to six games in the ten-minute overtime.

The game did not get under way until 10.20 after the Peterborough bus broke down en route. The clubs played a straight time for the first two hours and the clean, fast game rolled exactly two hours after it started.

Peterborough's Pete Morris, who scored the tying and winning goals, and Belleville's Stu Muirhead, who assisted on both his club's markers and was robbed a half dozen times, played great hockey.

Belleville opened the scoring at 17.45 of the first period when Gerry Jones completed a three-corner passing play with Muirhead and Gary Duvall, blasting a quick one past Rexe from close in front.

Haskill and Rexe continued to shine, with Muirhead and Morris their favorite victims time and again, until 17.43 of the second when Billy Rushlow hoisted one high in the air for a 2-0 score. Muirhead had just bested two Peterborough defenders, only to have Rexe block his drive. Paul Zakos also assisted on the play.

Greg Marchen of the winners drew a two-minute minor, and a misconduct early in the third but the penalty backfired against Belleville when Paul LeBarr broke in alone from the blueline to cut the margin to 2-1.

Belleville roared right back but couldn't beat Rexe and at 12.25, with Belleville playing a man short, Morris broke in quickly and slid one past Haskill. Haskill robbed the Monsens three times in the final minute of regulation play to keep it tied 2-2.

Pete Morris triggered the winning goal, snapping home Bill Sherrer's rebound off the goalies' pads, at 7.31 of the extra period. A minute later, with Belleville playing a man short, Mike Self went in close, completing a play with Norm Bean and Paul Webb to wrap it up.

Referees Vern Goyer and Tim Williams handed out a total of 13 penalties, consisting of six minors per team, plus Marchen's misconduct. The winners took advantage of the penalties to score twice and added a third goal while playing a man short themselves.

PETERBOROUGH — Rexe, Webb, Tapping, Milburn, Self, Morris, Goudy, Walsh, Marchen, Sherrer, Byer, LeBarr, Bean, Thompson.

BELLEVILLE — Haskill, Zakos, Reid, Duvall, Muirhead (Shearer), Rushlow, Rushlow, Ford Goodfellow, Adams, Harkness, Rushlow, Hagerman, McGrimmon.

Referees — Tim Williams and Vern Goyer.

SUMMARY

FIRST PERIOD

1 Belleville—Jones (Duvall, Muirhead) 17.45

Penalties: Webb, Morris, Goodfellow.

SECOND PERIOD

2 Belleville—Rushlow (Zakos, Muirhead) 17.47

Aussies Name Cup Team

MELBOURNE (AP)—A four-man team of Rod Laver, Roy Emerson, Neale Fraser and Ken Fletcher was named by Australia today to defend the Davis Cup against Mexico at Brisbane Dec. 28-29.

Fletcher, a 22-year-old Queenslander who beat Bob Hewitt in the Victorian championships here this week, is a newcomer to the squad.

Laver, winner of the Wimbledon, Australian, French and U.S. titles this year, and Emerson are likely to play the singles against Mexicans.

Fraser may team with Emerson in the doubles.

Smokies' Hopes For Olmstead Slim

Must Be Waived by Pros

Flyers Whip Hawks 4-2

Petes Salvage 2-2 Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mr. Mantle Top Slugger Fourth Time

BOSTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees continued to collect dividends from his excellent 1962 batting performance Friday when he was officially crowned the American League slugging champion for the fourth time.

The switch-hitting outfielder compiled 228 total bases in 377 official times at bat for a slugging mark of .605. He had 107 hits, including 15 doubles, one triple and 30 home runs, according to the figures released by the American League Service Bureau.

Mantle also won the crown in 1955, 1956 and 1961. His 1961 average was .687. Slugging averages are based on total bases accumulated on all hits and official times at bat.

Peterborough Petes salvaged a 2-2 tie with Guelph Royals at Guelph Friday night to retain sole possession of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A provincial group, but the tie cost them a share of fifth place.

Petes were left with 23 points, one behind Montreal Canadiens and one ahead of Niagara Falls Flyers who defeated St. Catharines Black Hawks 4-2 at Niagara Falls in Friday night's other action.

Saturday had to come from behind with two third-period goals to get their lone point last - place Guelph Trevor Fahey put Guelph into a 1-0 first-period lead on a goal at 6:40 and Sandy Fitzpatrick scored in the second.

In the third, Dale Watson and Jim Peterson scored for Petes.

At Niagara Falls, Fern Belisle scored two goals, including the winning one, to lead Flyers. Dave Armstrong and Bill Chisholm scored Flyers' other goals. Paul Popell and Rick O'Donnell scored for Black Hawks.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bert Olmstead may not be able to play for Trail Smoke Eaters in the world hockey championships because of hockey regulations.

The veteran left winger was told this Thursday by Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League.

Olmstead is New York Rangers' property but he was suspended when he refused to report to the NHL team this season.

"According to Mr. Campbell, Rangers must first get me waived out of the NHL," Olmstead said in a telephone interview from Calgary.

"Then the American, Western and Eastern pro leagues must also waive on me before I can be released.

"I don't think there's much hope of this."

Olmstead is also up against an Dec. 31 deadline for reinstating professionals to become eligible for the amateur world championships, to be held in Stockholm in February.

The Smokies, the 1961 world hockey champions, will represent Canada in the 1963 tournament.

Rams Bombarded 9-1

Maroons Edge Tigers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manpower paid off in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A circuit Friday night.

Sarnia Rams, with 10 players dressed, were bombarded 9-1 by Woodstock Athletics and Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers, with only nine players in action, lost 9-2 to Chatham Maroons in overtime.

The win for Chatham left Maroons within one point of the first - place Windsor Bulldogs and a point in front of Woodstock.

Brilliant goaltending by veteran Boat Hurley failed to pay off for Kitchener-Waterloo at Chatham. He made 45 saves, 10 in overtime, and kept Chatham scoreless until the third period.

Bob Pole and Frank St. Marseille scored overtime for Chatham after Bill Smyth had given them a 1-0 lead in the third. Jim Gardner scored in overtime for Kitchener-Waterloo and Ivan Tennant scored in the third.

At Woodstock, Sarnia kept Woodstock to a 4-4 deal in the first and allowed them only one goal in the second. Then the manpower shortage allowed Woodstock to outscore Sarnia 4-1 in the third.

Athletics were led by two-goal performances by Gerry Stringle and Andy Gauthier. Tommy Wilson, Ray Black, Carl Hymers, Art Sullivan and Gerry Desbergo scored one apiece. Don Clark got Sarnia's goal.

Committed For Trial

Charge Stick-Swinging Player

MONTREAL (CP)—A hockey player was committed Friday for trial Jan. 17 on a charge of grievous assault arising from an attack on another player during a game.

Michel Cyrenne, 23, was struck on the head with a stick and suffered a fractured skull and partial paralysis resulting from brain damage.

Medical authorities said it has not be determined yet whether the condition is permanent.

Charged was Yvon Trudelle, 25, a player with the St. Isidore de Laprairie team of the South Shore Intermediate League for embracing a number of communities on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River opposite Montreal.

The attack occurred after Cyrenne had been checked into the boards. As he fell his stick struck another player on the head and the player had to be carried from the ice. Then Cyrenne was hit.

Violated Claim Procedure

Trainer Suspended 10 Years

BALTIMORE (AP)—Trainer Alex Pollock of Silver Spring, Md., was suspended for 10 years Friday by the Maryland Racing Commission for participating in an illegal claim during the Timonium Fairgrounds meeting last summer.

During a hearing earlier this year, John Speaks of Bethesda, Md., claimed he had given Pollock $1,600 to be used in claiming the filly Southern Flight. Pollock, however, denied he had ever seen Speaks, who was not eligible to take possession of a horse by claim.

The racing commission found Pollock guilty of violating claiming procedure and a rule applying to improper turf practices. A commission spokesman said Pollock would retain ownership of the filly, but any transfer of ownership must be approved by the stewards.

REDUCE SUSPENSION

In other decisions, the commission reduced the suspension of a Canadian trainer, A. J. Taylor, and granted extensions of apprenticeship for riders Michael Karpe and Emanuel Andrea.

Taylor was suspended for 81 days, effective Nov. 8, for failing to report the arrival of horse Alias. He will be reinstated Monday.

Taylor said the process in which nerves are removed from a horse's leg so that he won't feel the pain of injury and can continue racing.

Taylor, trainer for Donald Ross' stables in Toronto, did not register the horse as nerved before a claiming race at Hialeah. In Ontario it is not required to register a nerved horse.

Both Karpe and Address received extensions because of re-

Gains Split Decision

Cleroux Outbrawls McNeeley

BOSTON (AP)— Canadian heavyweight champion Bob Cleroux outbrawled Tom McNeeley Friday night, gaining a 10-round split decision over the former world title challenger at Boston Garden.

Referee Joe Zapustas and Judge Joe Santoro voted for the Montrealer, while judge John Norton gave the award to McNeeley. The Associated Press scored it 99-94 for Cleroux.

Cleroux weighed 205, McNeeley, of Boston, was 201.

Fighting with the style of a lumberjack, Cleroux knocked, or wrestled, McNeeley to the canvas three times, in the second, fourth and eighth rounds.

It was Cleroux's 35th victory in 40 bouts. He has lost only four times and drawn once. McNeeley, knocked out by then champion. Floyd Patterson in Toronto just one year ago, is 26-5.

TIRES IN FIFTH

Cleroux, out-bulling and out-wrestling McNeeley while landing the better punches most of the way, tired midway through the fifth round. But McNeeley was ineffective from start to finish.

McNeeley first went down as Cleroux swarmed over him midway through the second round, the Canadian fighter also toppling to avoid being thrown.

In the fourth, a solid left to the head sent McNeeley down for a short count.

The former Michigan State football tackle went down again in the eighth after Cleroux came roaring across the ring at him, landing a left as he reached McNeeley at the ropes.

Santoro scored it 89-83 for Cleroux and the referee had it 96-94. Norton saw it 96-96 for McNeeley.

The crowd of 7,385 paid a gross of $26,632 and a net of $22,379.

SNOWSHOER DIES

VICTORIA (CP) — Funeral was held here Thursday for John R. Brodie, 83, founder of the Great West Coal Company in Winnipeg. He died in Phoenix Ariz., Saturday. A native of Montreal, Mr. Brodie had gained fame as a snowshoer, runner, hockey and lacrosse player. At 15, he established a record for the quarter - mile snowshoe race which stood for more than 40 years. He also was a member of the Montreal Stanley Cup championship club of 1901-02.

Basketball At the 'Y'

The Satellites remained in undisputed first place and the basement-charging Skaters moved up to roost alongside the Globetrotters for second place in the YMCA Youth Basketball League's standings after the twin tilts held this week.

The Skaters nicked a close one from the Celtics, 58-54, in the opener last Wednesday night. John McKibbon led the winners with a 24-point scoring effort followed by Jim Hurst with 15 points. Top man for the Irish was Terry McCabe, the league's second highest scorer, with 22 points. The Celtics suffered from a lack of players and had to make use of one "import", Dave Hurst, to field a team.

The final set saw the Globetrotters left down on earth as the Satellites went way out in front for the league's third highest scorer, followed by Murray Swan, with 39 points. Swan is now the league's leading point scoring honors with 183 points in six games.

Top man for the Trotters was Rick Graham with 27 points.

Lineups:

First Game: Stealers - Anderson (10), Jim Hurst (15), Schwindt, Pugh (6), John McKibbon (24), MacCormack, Ingram.

Celtics: Terry McCabe (33), Drysdale (4), Ling (8), Dave Hurst (6).

Second Game: Satellites — Swan (39), Walsh (43), Templer, Adams, Dave Hurst (12), Smith (2), Masten.

Globetrotters — Jury (6), Clare, Graham (27), Ralph McCabe (6), Byron McKibbon (12), Freestone.

80-Year Old Scores Hole-In-One

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Dr. J. A. Redfearn stepped up to the 165-yard No. 6 tee at the American Legion golf course and whacked the ball into the air. It was a 117-yard hole in one. "How many golfers my age ever did that?" said the retired physician, a spry 80-year-old.

Armstrong Scores Winner

SUDBURY (CP)—If Toronto Maple Leafs should decide they don't want Red Armstrong, Sudbury Wolves will take him back.

Armstrong, heading for Toronto today for his National Hockey League debut, gave Sudbury fans something to remember him by last night.

The 200-pound rookie with the carrot-red hair scored a goal with little more than a minute remaining in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game to give Wolves a 3-2 win over Kingston Frontenacs.

Nicknamed "Tight - a - game" Armstrong, the big redhead has been called the heavyweight hero of the EPHL. He joins the injury-weakened Leafs tonight to add strength to their bench.

It is ironic, in a way, because Leafs sent him home this year after only one week at their training camp.

The league-leading Frontenacs held a 2-1 lead with less than five minutes remaining Friday night and, a goal by Wolves' Gord Labossiere set the stage for Armstrong's heroics.

Armstrong's tenth goal in 29 games this season and he has earned 13 assists while shifting from defence to left wing. Last season he was with Philadelphia in the United States Eastern League.

Jim Johnston was the other Sudbury scorer and Kingston markers were rookie Jim Kozie and Red Ouellette.

VITI NOT MISSING

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (CP)— Dave Viti, import end with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, has turned up here after first being reported missing. Viti was called to Providence more than a week ago because of a family illness. Police were notified when, a week later, he still had not turned up.

Massengale Ups Lead In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Young Don Massengale of Jacksboro, Tex., a pro only two years, knocked his lead in four strokes Friday in the second round of the 16,000 Mexican Open golf tournament.

Massengale shot a three-under-par 69 for a 36-hole total of 136.

In second place was veteran Jackson Bradley of Houston, whose 68 was the lowest round of the day. The four-under-par round gave him a halfway total of 140.

At 142 were veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver with a 72 on the second round, and defending champion Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif. Lema jumped back into contention with a 69.

Alvie Thompson of Toronto was in the 143 bracket with Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina, runner-up winner of the international trophy in the Canada Cup matches. Thompson shot a 73 and De Vicenzo a 71 Friday.

Western Hockey Approves 8-Race Series

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Flyers nipped Vancouver Canucks 5-4 in overtime Friday night in a Western Hockey League game. Veteran centre Gayle Fielder, playing his 700th WHL game, was credited with his 700th assist as his Seattle Totems defeated Portland Buckaroos 2-1.

In Edmonton, Flyers' scorers were Bobby Cox, Bo Elik, who scored twice, Sid Finney and Barclay Plager.

Phil Maloney, Trent Beatty, Bob McCusker and Bob Kabel scored for Canucks.

Fielder, before 4,065 Seattle fans, assisted on the tying goal by Jim Powell in the first period. Bob Sabourin scored in overtime to give the Totems the win. Orval Tessier also scored for Buckaroos.

TORONTO (CP)—The annual meeting of the Canadian Automobile Sports Club has rejected a proposal that would have restricted modifications to improve production model cars.

Principal objections to the proposal were that it would be difficult to police and that it would be a step backward when the Sports Car Club of America is moving increasingly towards Canadian improved production rules.

The club, governing body of motor racing in Canada, approved a series of eight races to count towards the Canadian sports car drivers' championship.

Dates are:

May 18—Smith Empire Motors Club's spring trophy races at Mosport.

June 1 — Canadian Racing Drivers' Association players' 200 at Mosport.

June 15—Grand Valley National Trophy race at Mosport, near Bowmanville, Ont.

June 30 — Saskatoon Sports Car Club race at North Battleford.

Aug. 24—London Automobile Sport Club's Great Canada Trophy race at Harewood Track, near Jarvis, Ont.

Sept. 1—Calgary Sports Car Club's race at Calgary.

Sept. 16—Montreal MG car race (site to be declared).

Sept. 23—RCMC's Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport.

Sports in Brief

JOINS BLADES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Blades, handicapped by injuries which will keep two players sidelined for several weeks, signed Lee Fogolin, left defenceman from Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League. Centre Hal White was acquired on look-see basis. Blades' general manager Jack Geyer announced.

FIGHT TO DRAW

ROME (AP)—Carl Bobo Olson of San Francisco and Giulio Rinaldi of Italy fought in a 10-round draw Friday night in a light heavyweight match at the Sports Palace. Olson, 34, former world middleweight champ weighed 178½. Rinaldi, 28, holder of the European light heavyweight crown, weighed 179½.

GOALIE RECALLED

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Junior Canadiens have recalled goaltender George Holmes, 20, from Niagara Falls, Ont., who played with them last season and led the Ontario Junior A league in goals against, with an average of 2.69.

18 Canadian Tracks Record $143,529,942 Betting Total For All-Time Betting Peak

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

That old urge to put $2 on a nag was stronger than ever in 1962, producing a record betting total of $143,529,942 at 18 Canadian race tracks.

Track betting records popped up almost as often as sure-thing tips. Four of the six provinces with thoroughbred racing reported all-time betting peaks.

Attendances were up slightly although accurate counts are not kept at all tracks.

The national jackpot eclipsed last year's previous record of $136,769,452 by $6,760,320 even though four more tracks operated in 1961. There were 486 racing days this year, two more than 1961, and another record.

Figures do not cover harness racing.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed all six provinces had betting increases over 1961. Records were set in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia while Saskatchewan and Alberta fell just short of previous peaks.

There is no thoroughbred racing in the four Atlantic provinces, where harness meets monopolize the racing scene.

ONTARIO TOPS BETTING

Out of the national total, about $120,000,000 went back to successful bettors and winning horses drew just under $8,500,000 in purses. The rest was for taxes, fees and track income.

Provincial governments collected $9,720,859 in taxes and the federal government took a half of one cent—$717,645—as a fee for supervisory services. Include film patrol, the saliva tests and RCMP surveillance.

Ontario, with three major tracks, accounted for almost two - thirds of the country's wagering. Bettors shoved $90,477,564 through the windows, compared with $89,549,959 in 1961. There were 196 racing days, the same as in the previous year.

Biggest single day's betting anywhere in the nation was June 16 at Toronto's luxurious New Woodbine when $1,228,599 came in. Smallest was at Williams Lake, B.C., when $566 was wagered at a May 21 race program.

Betting in Quebec, where Blue Bonnets at Montreal is the only thoroughbred track, soared to $12,844,643 from $9,397,977. Racing resumed at Blue Bonnets last year after an eight-year absence.

One Blue Bonnets official said it was the best racing season in Quebec history. "Even in the big days of 1929 and 1930 we thought we were doing great to get a handle of $100,000 on Saturdays."

There were 40 racing days at the big Montreal track, one more than in 1961.

Manitoba's racing also centres on one track, Assiniboia Downs outside Winnipeg, where the 42 - day season was unchanged. Wagering hit $8,349,944 compared with $7,894,293 in 1961 and was the highest in the five-year history of the track.

One factor at Winnipeg was an increase in United States bettors. Special days were held to attract fans from the North Dakota communities of Fargo, Grand Falls and Pembina just across the line. On such days an average of 800 made the trip.

Only three tracks operated in Saskatchewan—at Regina, Saskatoon and Prince Albert. There was no racing at Swift Current, which had $9,454 in betting in 1961.

Despite this, Saskatchewan betting rose to $1,877,123 from $1,839,569, missing the 1959 record by about $50,000. The racing season was cut to 18 days from 21.

Six Alberta tracks collected $15,172,782 for a slight gain on the $15,084,069 in 1961. There were 84 racing days compared with 81 last year.

British Columbia tracks added three days to the 103-day 1961 season and came up with a record take of $14,827,227. This compared with $13,204,456 last year and $13,307,207 in the previous record year of 1959.

Most of the B.C. betting is in Vancouver where Exhibition Park took in a record $13,538,-797 in 83 days. Sandown Park, just outside Victoria, added another $1,274,112 but fell short of a record set in 1959.

The picture by provinces, with 1961 figures bracketed:

Quebec — Blue Bonnets, $12,-644,643 ($9,397,977).

Ontario—New Woodbine, $36,-070,638 ($35,452,225); Old Woodbine, $26,483,600 ($28,684,351); Fort Erie, $27,023,226 ($26,601,-580).

Manitoba—Assiniboia Downs, $8,349,944 ($7,894,293).

Saskatchewan — Regina, $1,-116,570 ($1,113,988); Saskatoon, $760,617 ($684,157); Prince Albert, $34,946 ($30,969); Swift Current took in $9,454 last year but did not operate this year.

Alberta — Edmonton, $8,459,-104 ($8,591,778); Calgary, $8,-308,285 ($8,209,241); Lethbridge $311,126 ($249,560); Millarville $21,772 ($22,976); High River $6,810 ($7,521); Lake McGregor $4,324 ($2,882).

British Columbia—Vancouver $13,538,197 ($12,173,446); Victoria $1,274,112 ($1,017,886); New Westminster George, $7,908 ($8,-423); Williams Lake $7,810 ($3,866); Dawson Creek took in $2,968 last year, did not operate this year.

Score Was 9-4

Picton Loses to Gan.

PICTON (Special) — Ganaoque Islanders climbed into a three-way tie for second place in the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League when they downed Picton Merchants 9-4 in Gananoque Thursday night.

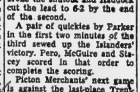
Peterborough, Napanee and Gananoque all have ten points, four back of Kingston's leading Frontenacs.

The Merchants, late in arriving because of the storm, were ordered to start without a warmup and Gananoque took advantage for a 4-0 lead in the opening periods. It was 6-2 at the end of the second heat.

The Islanders outshot Picton 56-46 as the Merchants took 12 of the game's 19 penalties, 16 of them minors. Rhodes and Liddel drew majors for fighting and Bob Brown a misconduct in the second period.

Picton club officials voiced complaints against referees Bob Hannigan and Charles Dorey Friday morning.

Rick Eaton, Doug Higgins, Jim McGuire and Jim Parker scored two goals each and Rick Swan had one for Gananoque. Higgins, Young and Rogers each drew two assists.



Larry Pero and Harold Haddock had a goal and assist apiece for Picton while Bob Guernsey and Carl Stacey also scored. "Dusty" Rhodes and Bob Martin had helpers.

Eaton and Swan gave Gan. an early 2-0 lead in the first period and Higgins added a later pair. McGuire and Eaton upped the score to 6-0 before Guernsey broke the shutout and Haddock cut the lead to 6-2 by the end of the second.

A pair of quickies by Parker in the first two minutes of the third sewed up the Islanders' victory. Pero, McGuire and Stacey scored in that order to complete the scoring.

Picton Merchants' next game is against the last-place Trenton team in Trenton Sunday afternoon at 3.30.

Sports Snapshots

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings spell out their success in terms of formal education and hockey fundamentals.

For fundamentals they rely on Russell (Buster) Brayshaw, crusty-faced coach who piloted Kings into the Memorial Cup junior hockey final the last two years.

The 38-year-old native of Saskatoon learned his hockey from 13 years of patrolling a wing position for six amateur and professional hockey teams, including four years with Chicago Black Hawks of the National League.

Manager Leo LeClerc says the club's first goal "is to ensure that the player is provided with the opportunity to continue his education or learn a vocation"—at club expense.

Then Brayshaw takes over.

Education has brought a lot of good players here, he says, but it doesn't make a hockey player. "You still have to teach them a lot."

Brayshaw stresses skating, positional play and body contact.

"I've never seen a team lose because their positional play was working."

Brayshaw concentrated on body contact after his Oil Kings lost to Toronto St. Michael's Majors in the 1961 Memorial Cup series. Kings, who matched Majors in almost every other department, were befuddled when it came to handling the solid body checks and tenacious stick-checking employed by the Toronto team.

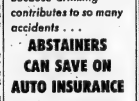
ANOTHER CONTENDER

"Body contact has been the big reason why the West hasn't won the Memorial Cup more often," Brayshaw says. "Most Western teams played a wide-open style of hockey and couldn't adjust to the body game."

Brayshaw appears to have another contender this year—Kings are battling for first place in the intermediate Central Alberta Hockey League.

Edmonton plays in the CAHL during the regular season and Brayshaw likes the idea.

"The CAHL has a lot of older, experienced players. They teach my kids quite a lot."



Brayshaw left the rubber business to become coach of the Oil Kings in 1960. He caught the eye of Detroit Red Wings, sponsors of the Edmonton junior squad, during a successful stint as coach of a local juvenile club.

The move proved to be the turning point in a hockey career that began in the late 1930s with his hometown junior Wesleys. From there Brayshaw skipped around to Moose Jaw senior Millers, Cleveland Barons and Providence Reds of the American League and Melville Intermediate Millionaires.

Highlight of his playing career was a stay with Chicago. He was only 18 when he joined the NHL team and scored 14 goals in his most productive big league season.

Alec Guinness and Dirk Bogarde in "H.M.S. Defiant"

Alec Guinness, Academy Award winner for his performance in "The Bridge on the River Kwai," brings another finely-etched portrait to the screen as the captain of a man-of-war. Columbia Pictures drama "H.M.S. Defiant," in Color and CinemaScope at the Belle Theatre today and Monday. Dirk Bogarde and Anthony Quayle also star in the breathless new drama, the former as a sadistic first lieutenant who does what he can to smash the authority of his commanding officer, and the latter as a seaman who leads a mutiny against ruthless brutality. The time is the late 18th Century; the scene, the British Navy.

"H.M.S. Defiant" is more than a spectacular picture of strong men in conflict within the confined quarters of a frigate. There are scenes of the infamous three gangs in action, recruiting men for H.M.S. Defiant by the simple process of beating them into unconsciousness wherever they can be found on the streets, homes and taverns of a British seaport town. "H.M.S. Defiant," reportedly is based upon an actual fleetwise mutiny in the British navy, there are a number of sea battles and what reportedly is a blazing action sequence when the Defiant and her desperate crew abandon their escape plans in order to save the British navy from disaster.

Braves Sale Nets 4 Million

Wampum In The Wigwam

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP)—Perini Corporation, construction firm headed by Lou Perini, former owner of the Milwaukee Braves, has informed stockholders the sale of the National League baseball club resulted in a profit of "more than $4,000,000 after taxes."

Charles Patterson, vice-president for corporate relations, said Friday night the information was contained in a report to stockholders of the firm's financial status for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1962.

The Braves sale was Nov. 28 and Patterson said the profit "must be measured against results of the corporation's operations for the entire year."

He said the quarterly report to stockholders showed a loss of some $1,400,000 for all corporation operations during the first nine months.

Clippers Clip Bisons 5-2

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Goalie Denis DeJordy of Buffalo Bisons kicked out 42 shots against the Baltimore Clippers in the only game in the American Hockey League Friday night, and it still wasn't enough. The Clippers picked up a 5-2 victory on their home ice.

Playing coach Red Sullivan paced Clippers with a goal and two assists and Mel Pearson, Vic Hadfield, Neil Price and Ralph Keller were the other marksmen.

Larry Wilson and Barry Cullen scored for Buffalo.

Protest Delay In Provincial Auditor's Report

TORONTO (CP)—A Liberal member of the legislature said Friday it is "absolutely absurd" of the provincial government to ask for a vote on estimates for the 1963-64 fiscal year when the opposition had been given no report for 1961-62.

Ray Edwards (L — Wentworth) touched off a two-hour protest by the Liberal and New Democratic parties against approving the $520,000 estimates of the provincial auditor's office for the next fiscal year.

Provincial Treasurer James N. Allan told the legislature the provincial auditor's report for the year ending March 31, 1962, will be tabled in the House within 12 days of the resumption of the session early next year.

Mr. Allan said that, although the provincial auditor reports to the legislature through the provincial treasurer, he is independent and "I have not asked the provincial auditor why his report isn't available."

APPROVE ESTIMATES

The 1963-64 estimates for the auditor's office came under fire despite opposition protests that they had been given only half the information for a "real and honest' and intelligent criticism" of the office.

Mr. Allan said he could not understand "how in conscience" the government could call for a vote on the estimates, when the opposition had no report on which to base its criticisms.

Liberal members praised the honesty and integrity of Provincial Auditor Harvey Colsam, who sat at a table near the provincial treasurer's seat in the House while the office's estimates were debated.

They argued that it was not Mr. Colsam they were criticizing for the lack of a report, but the government for tabling his office's estimates prematurely.

WANTS IN CENTRE

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) did suggest that where the provincial auditor was a servant of the entire legislature, and not of the government, he should sit in the centre of the House rather than in the position of a deputy minister to a minister when other estimates are tabled.

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said that if the report of the provincial auditor were not available it was the responsibility of the government to withhold debate on that office's estimates until the report was available.

NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald said it was "nonsense" for the provincial treasurer to say that he would never compromise the provincial auditor's independence by asking when the report would be available to the House.

Cows Better "Chewers" Than Girls

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate H. T. G. Andrews interrupted court proceedings to read a poem to four gum-chewing girls in the public gallery.

Their faces froze slowly into immobility as the magistrate recited Thursday:

The gum-chewing girl
And a cud-chewing cow
Are somewhat alike,
Yet different somehow.
What is the difference?
I think I know now—
It's the thoughtful look
On the face of a cow.

On the same program, lusty adventure in "Alaska Seas," starring Robert Ryan, Jan Sterling, Brian Keith and Gene Barry. Show starts at 7.30; "Alaska Seas" at 7.40 and "Stalag 17" at 9.10 p.m.

Policeman 'Wildly Reckless' In Firing Shots Into Car

Judge Says at Sanity Trial

TORONTO (CP) — A policeman's action in firing two shots at a car in an effort to arrest the driver was described as "wildly reckless" by Mr. Justice W. Sperve Forster in court Friday.

He said it was a miracle that one of three innocent men riding in the rear seat was not injured when Constable W. J. F. Ferguson of Meaford, fired at the car from the front and then its gasoline tank in an effort to arrest Frederick Fawcett, 47, a Grey County farmer for whom a warrant had been issued.

Mr. Justice Spence is trying the issue of Fawcett's sanity and Ferguson's charges of Fawcett, who farms 300 acres of former Crown land with his brother Harold, 42, has refused to pay property taxes since 1951.

SENT TO HOSPITAL

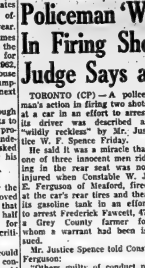
Fawcett was committed to the Ontario hospital at Penetanguishene, Ont., in 1961, after being remanded on six criminal charges including assaulting and pointing a firearm at a tax assessor.

Const. Ferguson said he had parked his police cruiser across a road less than a mile from Fawcett's laneway Sept. 10, 1961.

He said he fired at the left rear tire and gasoline tank of Fawcett's car when the farmer ignored signals to halt.

Mr. Justice Sperve said three men in the back seat "were innocent farmers who had nothing to do with the battle between the plaintiff (Fawcett) and the township."

SIX TO ARREST HIM



He said six men had been sent out to arrest Fawcett on the comparatively minor charge of pointing a firearm and shooting at a tire of a tax assessor's car.

Dr. Michael Tuchtie, director of the Forensic In-patient Clinic at Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, said he believed Fawcett was certifiably mentally ill, suffering from persistent, unalterable delusions or false beliefs.

These stemmed from Fawcett's belief that deeds to Crown grant lands gave him certain privileges, Dr. Tuchtie said.

Says Doctors Exercising Own Rights

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Patrick Bruce - Lockhart of Sudbury, president of the Ontario Medical Association, said Friday that 180 specialists who resigned from Physicians Services Incorporated were simply exercising their individual rights.

Dr. Bruce-Lockhart said OMA policy is that the individual physician must have the right to decide on participating in any insurance plan.

The specialists resigned in objection to PSI's plan to make its payments over their fees fully for most services. Previously PSI paid only a portion and the patient the remainder.

The new PSI agreement with specialists does not prevent the doctor from over-billing for all specialist services. The new agreement covers specialist fees only when the patient has been referred by a general practitioner.

A PSI spokesman said this is to encourage use of a general practitioner for all services he is capable of rendering.

There were about 2,300 specialist among 6,000 doctors participating in PSI.

SI XMISSING

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—A U.S. Air Force jet interceptor crashed in Greenland 700 miles north of the Arctic Circle Friday and a rescue helicopter dispatched an hour later on a mercy mission. In all, six men were missing in a bleak, darkened area of ice and snow. The air force launched a vast search operation.

Movie Column

Demands of New Actors, Not Old Films, Threat to TV

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Webb doesn't share the alarm some have expressed over the infusion of old movies into network programming.

Until a couple of years ago, the feature films were limited to early or late shows on the network stations. The NBC moved in old movies following years of trying to make a dent on Saturday night ratings.

Then ABC did the same on Sunday night. The latest move is NBC's pitting of features against the CBS powerhouse of Lucille Ball, Andy Griffith and Danny Thomas on Monday nights.

Some critics have complained that old movies on the networks are a creative retread, a reuse of prepackaged entertainment. Hollywood unions decry the trend as robbing their members of employment in new television programming.

NOT WORRIED

You might expect Jack Webb to view with alarm, especially since he faces competition in ABC's United Artists Features (as well as the strong-running Bonanza on NBC) with his Sunday night G.E. True series. But no.

"I don't see anything wrong with putting features on the network," he said. "The important factor in television is excitement. Heaven knows those old pictures are entertaining. They have stars and production values that we can't touch in television films.

"As for putting people out of work in Hollywood, feature films on the networks are not the important factor. It's the stupid, ridiculous demands that a lot of these young actors make.

"Some of these guys were pumping gas a few years ago, and suddenly they find they are television stars. They make demands that are almost impossible for the producers to meet. But the producers think they have to meet them. So the price of television filming goes up and up until it is almost prohibitive."

Webb solves the problem by using mostly unknowns in his True series.

Astrological Forecast

For December 16
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You are able to see persons situations as they actually exist. Moon - Mars conjunction elevates perception, creativity and spiritual insight. Fine day for being with children.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Surprise visits indicated. Day of action, activity, decisions. Strength provided by family members, trusted friends. But it is up to you to grab chance for greater happiness. Don't hesitate!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Attend to details early so you can relax later. Spiritual enlightenment obtained by going to place of worship. You may be surprised tonight by attitude of associate. Remain tactful.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Services, favors you granted in past now show up in your favor. Others tend to show appreciation. Take pride in achievements. Dine out tonight. Be with one who is attractive, charming.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21): So much happening so quickly you tend to scatter strength. Concentrate on finishing one thing at a time. Travel, basic changes indicated but don't overlook domestic stability.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): You do yourself favor by asking. Means don't let pride stand in way of obtaining knowledge. Read, analyze — draw conclusions. You might come up with idea which enhances income potential.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Plenty remains to be accomplished before goals are obtained. But you are on right track! Added responsibility due. Greater appreciation for efforts also on horizon. And more satisfaction.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Ambition highlighted. Chance to speak to one in authority appears likely. Be calm, sensible. Make suggestions in profession-al manner. This is day when spiritual needs attention.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Stress on originality, personality, greater independence. Good aspects encourage display of talents. You excel at church function, social gathering. Show off warmth, abilities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine for taking marriage or business partner into your confidence. Speak out about hopes, aspirations, ambitions. You may find others more than sympathetic. Practical aid could be forthcoming.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Key is willingness to heed words of wise ones. Slow pace. Get proper rest. Attend church of choice. Read, listen and express your own views. Much insight gained by attitude of acceptance.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Look for improvements both personally and professionally. Glide change in your favor. Get house in order. Improve personal appearance. Get self-confidence by attending spiritual service.

If today is your birthday . . . you are extremely sensitive to feelings, moods of others.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Leo, Virgo, Libra. Day when little happens halfway.

For December 17

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Unusual development probable in connection with work, fellow employees. Keep ideas to yourself. Be gracious and generous. But not extravagant or too trusting. Maintain calm disposition.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Much to be accomplished. Avoid being discouraged by what appears-to be mass detail of work. Finish one thing at a time. To-night fine for romance. Good, too, for writing, self-expression.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Realize that worthwhile accomplishments take time. Begin work week with attitude of well being. Restless individual in your family group should be soothed. But be careful with advice.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Harmony is key to happy day. Means stay out of foolish quarrel. If pride is temporarily injured, realize it is only temporarily. Bear with friend who seeks 'sounding board." Be sympathetic.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Attend to financial obligations. Check budget, potential income. See if you can save money burden. Takes some time, analysis, but you can succeed. Good for expressing ideas at place of employment.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Cycle high; means you can persuade important individuals to listen. And to give you a chance to prove your worth. Don't hesitate to speak up. Highlight independence of thought, action.

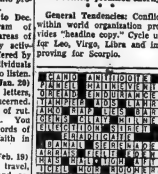
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Generally better for finishing than beginning new projects. Have heart-to-heart talk with one close to you. No time for secrets. Be frank. Express sincere beliefs. You will be encouraged by response.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Speak up. Pompous individual requires answer. Fine for being with friends. Unusual, new interest could be turned into profitable, creative hobby.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Step up program of achievement. Includes areas of professional and family activity. Words of advice offered by friends, relatives, individually prove valid. Be willing to listen.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Unusual day as far as letters, telephone calls are concerned. You are "knocked out" of rut. New interests evident. You could be inspired by words of encouragement. Have faith in your abilities.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Excellent for change, travel, creative pursuits — and romance. The "romance" is all around today, if you will but look. Stimulating conversation with friend may give key to problem.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Pay attention to the way you sound to others. Make sure you express thoughts clearly. Misunderstandings could arise unless you take time to be specific. Fine night for reading, relaxing.

If today is your birthday . . . you are not happy unless you give your best. Work, activity, interest in public affairs serve as valuable "tonic." Greater social activity promised shortly.

BALLOON SETS RECORD

CANBERRA (AP)—An upper atmosphere sampling balloon launched from Mildura reached 105,000 feet—2,000 feet higher than the previous record, it was announced Thursday. Supply Minister Allen Fairhall said the launching was part of Operation Hibal, conducted by the Australian supply department for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission to test radioactivity.

Wants Store Hours Regulated By Tax Levy

WOODSTOCK (CP) — City council Thursday night referred a suggestion that store hours be regulated by levying extra taxes to the Chamber of Commerce.

The suggestion calls for a city bylaw stating regular business hours and then for a majority of stores. Store owners operating more than the prescribed number of hours would pay a tax increasing with the number of extra operating hours.

The suggestion was made by Ralph Hancox, associate editor of the Sentinel-Review here. Offered as a solution to "Ontario's store hours problem," he said merchants operating under the levy would weigh the opportunity for extra profit against the cost longer operating hours.

President Harold Swanson told council there is no store hours problem here.

He added that Mr. Hancox's proposal "would be a nice, sensible idea, but I doubt if it would be legal."

The Golden Years

Retired Farm Couple Relates How They Found Golden Years

By THOMAS COLLINS

Down the Ohio Industrial valley, around 450-odd curves and by as many stop lights, lies the picturesque city of Charleston, W. Va. To this city came one Joseph W. Matherson, a retired Michigan farmer, who was bent on reaching Florida before the winter caught him.

Mr. Matherson and his wife were registered for the night in a motel at the south end of the city. Their 1959 sedan, parked in front of their room, was loaded to the roof with their possessions.

"We left home at 4:30 this morning," he said. "By tomorrow night we'll be in Georgia, and by the next night, with luck, we'll hit Sarasota. There we'll stay until Michigan thaws out next spring . . ."

This was the fifth year the Mathersons had gone to Florida for the winter. This time they were doing it the long way because Mrs. Matherson wanted to see the fine turnpike between Charleston and Beckley, W. Va. It was the fifth year they were travelling on government payments being made to them to keep part of their acres idle, and on rent from the rest. It was the fifth year they had simply locked their farm home, notified the sheriff, and gone.

"We've a good farm in Sarasota," Mr. Matherson continued, "Every spring we put it in dead shape for the public parking place, lock it up and leave it while we go back to enjoy the Michigan summers."

Doesn't this travelling back and forth cost money?

COST IS SMALL

"Not much," said Mrs. Matherson. "We check the small motels and usually get a room for $10 or less. We figure $20 for the two nights on the road. And we eat lightly, so that one day while travelling. We budget $6.99 a day for that, since restaurant meals are a bit high in the South. For three days that's another $20 or so. On gasoline we figure $17 going and coming."

What about missing the children on Christmas?

"We've got only two, one in the West Texas and the other in California. We don't see them anyway on Christmas. If they can come see us of all it's back at the farm in the summer."

What does a retired couple do for excitement all winter in Sarasota?

"Fish, mostly," said Mr. Matherson. "Talk, sew, cook, and visit," said his wife. Both argued that as age 70 approaches you want no excitement, and you want nothing to happen. "For tomorrow to be dependable, for you to be reasonably sure that things will be safe and orderly — this is what you want in retirement," the wife said. "And Sarasota's got it."

What does this sort of life cost?

"Well, our outside maximum budget is $250 a month," said the husband. "We never go around $210. Food is the thing you manipulate the budget with, lean rather when other costs hit you, fat ones when they don't. A retired couple sitting around in the sunshine doesn't need much food . . . and shouldn't gulp it anyway . . ."

Farm folk in Michigan must have drifted away over these five years. Has Sarasota replaced them?

MAKE NEW FRIENDS

"No," said Mr. Matherson. "At our ages, fads change fast, and frequently. Old friends vanish, die, go into rest homes, or move off with the children. You can't depend on them for next year. So, from having friends you change a paling friend, and you condition yourself to make new ones all the time." What happens when the eyes and the legs won't stand for the Michigan winters?

Scoharie

"Accept my gold, the rich man said,
As he laid his gift by the manger bed,
I give my heart, the poor man cried.

Kneeling in awe by the baby's side.
So let us this Christmas bring our praise
Wrought by the work of our common days
To Jesus — the One who walks
our ways." — Selected.

SCOHARIE — The Live Women's Circle met with Norman Latchford for the December meeting, nearly every member present for roll call, meeting and exchange of gifts.

The general meeting of Bloomfield United Church Women was held in the Sunday School rooms on Friday afternoon with a good attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Huff motored to Utica on Wednesday and spent the night with friends, going on to New York to meet their daughter, Louise who spent six months touring the British Isles and European countries.

Mrs. Don Jandrew and Brenda, Wellington were Saturday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone.

A number from here attended the Christmas concert at the Presbyterian Church in Picton on Monday night.

Unit 2 of Bloomfield United Church Women entertained Unit 1 on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Tinley Hennessy motored to Kingston recently and visited their nephew, Gordon Hennessy at Kingston General Hospital. Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hennessy, Napanee, underwent major surgery sometime ago. They also visited Mrs. Fry who is also a patient at the hospital.

ORDER NEW SUB

LONDON (AP)—The admiralty today announced the placing of an order to build Britain's third nuclear submarine. The contract was with Vickers-Armstrong. The navy's Dreadnought, is undergoing first sea trials. The second was laid down last January.

Stirling

STIRLING — Felicitations are extended to Mrs. Brad Spry, Mill Street, on the occasion of her 31st birthday anniversary. A large number of relatives and friends, including her grandchildren, paid her a friendly visit on this auspicious occasion.

Mrs. Robert Cooke, Church Street, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital following surgery.

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Glenn Bush, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Georges Heasman and Mrs. Percy MacMullen of River Valley W.I. paid a visit to the Hastings County museum and viewed the puppetry display from around the world. Mr. Roger Greig gave a puppet performance at 4.30.

Mrs. George White and Miss Mildred White entertained Mrs. Will Hutcheon, of Burnabrae, on Wednesday.

Mrs. H. C. David has returned home after two weeks holiday with Mr. and Mrs. C. Harjes in Toronto.

Mrs. A. Donnelly, Trent River Bridge and Mrs. Russell Stagley, Stirling, were guests at the Christmas meeting of River Valley W.I. which was held at the Rainbow Fishing Lodge, Trent River with Mrs. Albert Williams as hostess.

The Stirling branch of the Royal Canadian Legion have chosen the following officers for 1963: president, Allen Lamont; 1st vice-president, William McMullen; 2nd vice-president, Elwood Wilson; treasurer, Fred A. Noble, assisted by Eugene Burrell; secretary, Bert Bastedo; auditors, F. Hoornbeek, Fortner, W. DeJong, J. Jarvie and R. D. Cooke.

Mrs. H. R. Tompkins spent last week in Ottawa due to the illness of her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hough spent the weekend with relatives in Peterborough.

Mrs. Glenn Bush, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. George Heasman, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis attended the sessions of the Trent Valley area at Club Canaro, Belleville, and represented River Valley Women's Institute.

Those in attendance at the Trent Valley area convention from Stirling W.I. were Mrs. Elizabeth Foster, Mrs. Frank Hoornbeek, Chester Sills.

Mrs. Ted Reynolds was hostess to the Hon. J. B. Cooke Chapter I.O.D.E. Plans were made for their annual spinsters dance in January. There also an appropriately $150 to various funds such as overseas relief, Korean project, welfare and emergency, scholarships, commonwealth and various educational projects.

The old Santa is scheduled to visit Stirling on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. There will be free show for the children and bag of treats. The business section of the Stirling Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring this event.

YOUTH COMMITTED

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — An Alabama youth accused of making threats against President Kennedy in a letter has been ordered to a federal mental institution. The youth, James Earl Hawkins, was deemed mentally incompetent to stand trial by a psychiatrist, Dr. Howard B. Stevens.

ask henry

Henry invites letters from readers. For the most interesting letter he receives each week, he will award a copy of his best-selling book, "Ask Henry," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Dear Henry—My boy friend hits me on the seat, messes my hair which is bad enough as it is, and chokes me.

All these actions hurt. He says he does it to get me ferocious. We are both nearly 15. No wise cracks please. This is a problem.—Pounded.

Dear Pounded — Tell him that choking and messing the hair is greasy kid stuff. And tell him that you will get ferocious; ferocious enough to drop him . . . hard—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I would like your advice on a bad habit I have. I always worry when my parents go out at night. I think they are going to be kidnapped. I get out of bed and wait. I either stay up until they come home or I finally get so tired I have to go to bed.

I hope you can find an answer to my problem.—Jim.

Dear Jim: When I was younger I used to worry about that too, and parents are worth being concerned about.

But you will find that after you have worried yourself to sleep that night, as soon as you get up next morning you will bump into your parents on the way to the bathroom.—HENRY.

Dear Henry — Have you any suggestions for a Christmas gift for my son 12, daughter 16, and perhaps even my wife.—Willing To Buy.

Dear Willing — Buy them a good book. Now what do you look for in a good book? Romance? Suspense? Education? Humor? Horror? Sex?

You will find them all in a new book just published. It's called "Ask Henry."—HENRY.

Dear Henry — When I was in second grade I couldn't go to the store by myself. My sister is in the second grade now and she can. Is that fair?—Kelly.

Dear Kelly — Never go trudging slowly bent down with your head hanging low and your legs looking to see where you've been, because then the chances are you will go to the wrong places fast.

Look ahead with that head of yours up and only be happy that your sister is happy.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I know this is strange to say but I like school. I love to do homework, too, but I like to play.

I would like you to figure out a way I could get finished with my homework and still have time to play. Thank you very much for your co-operation.—Kristine.

Dear Kristine — Easy! Just go straight home, just go straight to work.

Easy! Just work in a concentrated way until you are finished.

Easier said than done, but it can be done.—HENRY

SOME BILLS

Don't Look So Big at FIRST!

The real cost in heating with any fuel is not just FIRST COST . . . equipment and installation. IT IS THE TOTAL COST . . . First cost PLUS those month by month fuel bills that you must meet. While many PLUS those month by month fuel bills that you must meet. While many fuels promise big savings at first, they cost you MORE than oil heat every month. OIL HEAT IS MORE ECONOMICAL, CLEANER and SAFER than any other modern automatic fuel. Check all the advantages of oil heat before you build or buy . . . or convert your present heating system.

The truth is . . . You Pay Much Less To Heat Better With . . . FUEL OIL!

No other automatic fuel "is just as good". Today . . . tomorrow or always . . . OIL HEAT sets the pace . . . OIL HEAT is chosen by the great majority of Canadian home owners

Indian Clergyman in Far North Takes Year off to Get View of Civilization

By WALTER HAYES

HALIFAX (CP) — An Indian clergyman from the Northwest Territories who used to preach sermons each Sunday in three languages—English, Indian and Eskimo—has taken a year off to get a first-hand view of civilization.

Rev. Jim Sillichinle of Aklavik on Mackenzie River delta had never been outside the Northwest Territories before coming to the University of King's College here three months ago at the invitation of the Kings Students Missionary Society.

"He will stay at King's for a year during which time he has the option of attending any classes he wishes," said Mrs. P. J. Power, university registrar. "The main purpose of his stay, however, is to lecture to private clubs about the life of Indians and Eskimos and to preach at local churches."

The 54 - year - old - Anglican priest smiled as he recalled his arrival in Halifax. "The traffic terrified me at first but I soon got used to it."

MISSES FAMILY

On his way to Halifax, Father Jim—as he is known to friends—stopped through Edmonton. "I didn't like it there. It's too crowded. Halifax is nice. You have lots of bush and trees."

With a tinge of homesickness for his wife Julia and his 12 children, he said: "I like the bush. I have gone for walks in it several times since I came."

Father Jim was born into the LeChoux tribe which inhabits the Peel River near Fort McPherson, about 100 miles by river from Aklavik. His dark eyes glistened as he explained that LeChoux is the French word for slant-eyes.

"I don't know how the tribe got the name. Perhaps the first Indian the French trappers saw when they came to the Peel River had crooked eyes."

Father Jim, who was ordained in 1943 and became a priest two years ago, is rector of the only Anglican cathedral in the diocese of the north.

THREE SERVICES

"Every Sunday I have three church services. One is for the Indians, another for Eskimos and the third for English-speaking people."

There is no friction among the three groups, he said. "They get along well and in many cases they inter-marry. Two of my sons are married to Eskimo girls."

He has seen civilization transform Indians and Eskimos from a society of trappers and fishermen to workers, engineers and in some cases professional people.

"Eventually there will be Indian and Eskimo doctors and nurses in the hospitals, teachers in the schools and most of the positions will be held by Indians and Eskimos."

He foresees the disappearance of Indian and Eskimo languages because "they lack the history and culture of the English language." but "it won't make much difference."

Many problems remained. Legalized sale of liquor came before the necessary education and had caused broken homes because some Indians and Eskimos didn't know how to handle it.

One problem that had been solved was a tendency toward laziness among some who preferred to live on government relief. It was done by making them work for the relief payments. "When they found they could no longer get relief for nothing, the problem was solved."

Father Jim says he'll try to improve his English here and will learn as much as he can about how people live in the south.

"When I go back home and tell the Indians and Eskimos what I have seen, they will believe me because I am an Indian."

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Frankford Girl Guides held their enrolment ceremony on Frankford Public School on December 10th.

Six girls were enrolled as Girl Guides; Marian Crowe, Susan Hubbile, Judy Pitcher, Ruth Rose, Ruth Ann Sadler, Sandra Boyarchuk; also two patrol leaders and four patrol seconds were invested. The leaders are Pearl Bates and Susan Chase and the patrol seconds: Anne Beach, Deborah Hamilton Gloria, Patrick and Vicki Patrick.

Burns Declares Soviet Demand Is Impossible

Cannot Agree to Arms Plan Without Study

GENEVA (Reuters) — Canada told the 17-nation disarmament conference today the Soviet Union was imposing impossible demands by insisting on agreement in principle before getting full detail on new proposals.

Canadian delegate Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns said the Soviet demand was completely unrealistic in business-like discussion but the West considered it unrealistic and unreasonable to accept a proposition before it knew what it was accepting.

Burns said he had been unable to find in the record even one new fact about a Russian proposal for the retention of a limited number of nuclear missiles until the end of the second stage of a three-stage disarmament process.

The proposal, a modification of previous Soviet insistence on elimination of all nuclear delivery vehicles, was made by Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko before the United Nations General Assembly last September.

LOOKS PROMISING

It is considered by some diplomats here that it was incredibly the most promising move made by the Soviet Union since the conference started last March.

Burns said the number of nuclear missiles retained should be sufficient to retain deterrence against surprise attack for both sides. Other problems to be worked out were the timing of reduction of nuclear missiles and procedures for the inspection of their demolition.

Burns said both sides must recognize that there was no side has any interests which would be benefitted by the destruction by either side, or any considerable part of the people or wealth."

Both sides should also resolve to abandon the race for nuclear superiority.

"This would really mean taking the path to co-existence in a peaceful world, and not continuing to drive along the broad highway to co - extermination," he said.

Motorist Leaves Boy Dying On Highway

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—Police today sought a motorist who struck down a six-year-old boy and left him dying on a dimly-lit road.

The pre-Christmas tragedy took the life of Paul Gabryluk.

Police in this northwestern Ontario community 125 miles east of Winnipeg said he was apparently hit by a vehicle which kept on going.

The boy's crumpled body was found on the Brinkman Road Saturday night about 50 yards from his home by another motorist, Earl Alcock.

"The child was alive," Mr. Alcock related later. "He whimpered. He was kind of noisy in his breathing.

"I took off my overcoat and rolled him into it, picked him up and carried him into a nearby house."

A doctor came and pronounced the boy dead.

The boy, son of salesman William Gabryluk was walking home from a skating rink when he was hit.

Police Chief John Pike has issued a radio appeal for the driver to give himself up.

Chas. Laughton, Noted Actor, Dies of Cancer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Charles Laughton, 63, an English hotel man's son who became the movies' top character actor, died Saturday night of cancer. He was 63.

The sadistic Captain Bligh of Mutiny on the Bounty, the Oscar-winning King Henry VIII and the addlepate butler of Ruggles of Red Gap died at 10:30 p.m. at his home.

The plump, admittedly homely actor was a naturalized citizen of the United States. He had been in a coma for some time. Beside his bed at the end were his wife, actress Elsa Lanchester, and his brother, Frank, a retired hotel man from England.

Laughton went home from from Hollywood's Cedars of Lebanon hospital Nov. 30. Attendants said only "he wanted to go home."

He entered the hospital last July 30 after prior treatment at New York's Memorial Hospital for cancer and allied diseases. At Cedars he had surgery for a collapsed vertebra. Afterward it was announced he had cancer of the spleen.

Hamilton Vegetable Wholesalers Forecast Stiff Price Increases

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A weak disturbance moved eastward over northwestern Ontario is crossing southeastern regions today. While most of the snow associated with the storm was confined to central and northern Ontario, light falls occurred over southwestern portions of the province and in some areas freezing drizzle was reported.

Some cloud is forecast for Tuesday for northern Ontario. Considerable cloud with not much temperature change is expected over the remainder of the province.

damage in Florida.

Angelo Caser of Agro Brothers said today 75 per cent of the company's commitments had been cancelled. "Supplies are short, and there will be anywhere from 50-75 per cent price increase," he said.

For the first time grapefruit has been ordered from Mexico, he said. "We are paying twice as much for a quality that is not as good."

The price of California oranges was raised twice last week alone, he said.

Lettuce was also said "with Christmas sales it's hard to say whether panic buying has been responsible."

He said Florida vegetables were "wiped out" and cucumbers that were $1.75 for 24 last week, were now $5 for the same carton.

"Peppers with 80 in a box were $3.75 last week and now they're $8.50 a box," he reported.

8,000 CRACK RUSSIAN TROOPS STILL IN CUBA

Believed Among Best in Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four top Soviet combat battalions with artillery and up to 8,000 crack troops, are among the Russian soldiers still in Cuba, information available here indicates.

Other units are part of the 17-year-old Cuban contingent of Russian infantry, artillery and aviation experts which some estimates place as high as 20,000 men.

The battalion-size outfits are believed to be among the best in the Soviet Army.

As the Soviet buildup in Cuba got under way, the battalions were sent in for the initial mission of defending the ballistic missiles and IL-28 medium jet bombers which Russia shipped to Cuba.

There now is belief that while the launching sites were pretty well knocked out of the defence and supporting equipment sent in while carrying the bigger intermediate-range rockets turned away from their Cuban destination, the United States let the world know of its firm determination for a showdown.

The plan apparently was to emplace for firing slightly more than 40 of which the greater part were medium-range rockets. The medium-range missile used by the Russians can reach about 1,200

Macmillan Sure Skybolt Issue Will Be Solved

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan left today for talks in The Bahamas with President Kennedy, expressing confidence that "we will find a way through our difficulties" in the Skybolt missile issue.

"At this moment after Cuba," Macmillan told reporters, "we have to try to make a reassessment of the position between East and West. Can the position be eased? Can we advance? Is there a chance of getting ahead with some of these questions — nuclear tests, disarmament and other matters?"

"As for Skybolt," his statement said, "I have no doubt we shall find a way through our difficulties."

Macmillan said that in spite of difficulties, he and Kennedy planned to meet in the spirit of our last meeting." Skybolt has loomed as a major issue between the British because Kennedy's government may cancel this missile in favor of others and thereby them a nuclear power.

The situation between East and West, Macmillan said:

"If there is to be a period of relief, of thaw, we must not misuse it."

He said the troubles in Asia, particularly between Red China and India, have raised a whole new set of problems.

"Our chief purpose is to talk over what has happened since our last meeting," Macmillan said.

Referring to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's acceptance of his invitation for a one-day meeting in the Bahamas, Macmillan said:

"Canada plays a great role in the North Atlantic alliance. She is deeply concerned in everything which affects the alliance and I am indeed happy Mr. Diefenbaker is happy to come."

Kennedy Tapes TV Interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy will make his first two years in the White House tonight in an unusual hour-long television broadcast.

The program, called After Two Years—a Conversation with the President, will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System and American Broadcasting Company television networks at 8:30 p.m. EST and the National Broadcasting Company television network at 8:30 p.m.

Mother, Young Daughter Die in Fire Near Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Uncanny instinct guided a father to the body of his child as fire raced through a farm house at Milford south of here at Milford Saturday night.

Robert Demerest arrived too late to save the child and his wife as the blaze destroyed his home.

Victims of the fire were Mrs. Dorothy Demerest, 35, and five-year-old Donna Demerest.

Both are believed to have suffocated in the smoke that boiled through the house in the van of the flames.

Scene of the fire was a tenant house on the farmstead of Sam Way, on Black Creek Road, where Mr. Demerest had been that afternoon.

Mr. Demerest said it was after the hum of chores about 4.45 p.m. when he noticed the reflection of fire on the snow.

Mr. Way said: "We saw the woodshed at the rear of the tenant house on fire.

"We ran through the snow to the scene and opened a rear door leading into the kitchen."

A heat blast stunned the men momentarily. But, recalled Mr. Way, Mr. Demerest "just dived" him into the dense smoke and by some "unknown instinct" dashed straight to the spot where his young daughter lay dead.

He pulled his daughter outside on the snow, but she was dead.

Better Security Regulations Needed Says H. D. Graham

MONTREAL (CP) — Howard D. Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, today called for better security legislation so more Canadians would be encouraged to invest in the stock market.

"We must have secondary industry," he said The Canadian Club. "We must try to induce more Canadians to participate in own that industry—or so much of it as they can afford. To get Canadians to put their money in such projects they must be confident that they are going to get fair treatment and to give them that confidence we do better security legislation."

Mr. Graham said that only by developing secondary industry can Canada expect to provide for the unemployed and redress the averse balance of trade.

He noted that Canada imports $235 worth of manufactured goods per person per year, compared with $50 per person in Great Britain, $60 in West Germany and $35 in the United States.

Some 85 per cent of imports from the U.S. are manufactured goods, while only 17 per cent of Canada's exports to the U.S. are manufactured goods, the balance being raw materials and farm products.

"If these figures are to change —and indeed they must change — then Canadians must purchase goods both for ourselves and for export and so make jobs for the idle hands," Mr. Graham said.

Canadians show an "abnormal tendency" to put their money in bonds, debentures and similar investments, he said, possibly because they feel that a shareholders they will not receive the full benefit of the investment to which they are entitled.

He suggested a four-point plan for strengthening shareholder protection:

1. Relative uniformity of security laws in all provinces and enforcement should be achieved in all provinces.

2. The Dominal Companies Act should be brought in line with the provincial acts in many

Believe Skybolt Dispute Will Be Settled by Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—A United States - British controversy over the Skybolt missile, involving Britain's future as a nuclear military power, will doubtless be settled in a meeting between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan.

U.S. officials have expressed confidence that in the end the Skybolt dispute would be resolved. They see it more as a political than a military issue. Nevertheless, military aspects of the problem can be solved without difficulty.

Some authorities see the rift, which has created considerable public bitterness in Britain, as a focusing of the disappointment and embarrassment with the U.S. for a number of reasons. These include a lack of consultation during the Cuban crisis and the recent statement by former Secretary of State Dean Acheson that Britain has ceased to be a world power without yet finding a new role.

Such views reflect a concern here over the present state of Washington - London relations within the Atlantic alliance and suggest that the Kennedy-Macmillan meeting opening in the Bahamas Wednesday is of more than routine importance in the relationship between the United States and Britain is the hard core of the Atlantic alliance and controversies which weaken that relationship are seen here as striking at the nuclear of NATO.

Other issues on which the two leaders are expected to spend considerable time during their

Prime Minister Will Receive Confidence Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—An official of the Progressive Conservative party said Saturday "there has not been the slightest suggestion from any quarter" that next week's general meeting of the party won't express "absolute confidence" in the leadership of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Mrs. Goodman of Toronto, chairman of the party's resolution committee, said 4,000 letters had been sent out to party members across Canada asking for suggestions that could be incorporated in resolutions. She said the letters from the leadership indicated "utter confidence" in Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mrs. Goodman said reference reports claiming that some groups within the party questioned the leadership were "not worth a hoot, soever." Such reports, he said, came from sources outside the party.

The 23-member resolutions committee met here Saturday for the last of a series and pared down the 180 resolutions suggested by constituency groups. "Every important aspect of every problem facing the country will be brought up for debate," Mr. Goodman said.

PONTIFF MAY BE SUFFERING FROM CANCER

Doctors Are Only Ones Who Know

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — An authoritative Vatican source says he simply does not know whether Pope John is suffering from cancer.

Dr. Federico Alessandrini, deputy director of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, was commenting on British press reports that the 81-year-old pontiff is suffering from cancer.

He told reporters: "I simply do not know. No one knows. The doctors perhaps may know whether or not he is suffering from cancer, but they are the only ones.

"It is evident that the Pope is suffering from some chronic disease but what it is I do not know.

"Meanwhile it surely should be brought to the attention of anyone that the Pope looked well Sunday and was fit enough to receive a head of state (the King of Burundi) in official audience.

The Pope was also able to appear at the window of his private apartments to bless the faithful in Saint Peter's Square."

LOOKS WELL

Another Vatican official said the Pope was well enough to have reported suffering stomach trouble and fairly intense anemia,

Nehru Receives Afro-Asian Plan For Border Peace

NEW DELHI (Reuters)— Prime Minister Nehru today received a copy of new Afro-Asian proposals for ending India's border dispute with Communist China before they were placed on at last week's Afro-Asian "little summit" meeting in Colombo.

The proposals given the proposals by C. S. Pieris, Ceylonese ambassador to Burma, during a 75-minute meeting.

Pieris later this week will visit China to present the plans to Premier Chou En-Lai.

Nehru told the Lok Sabha Mr. Sirimavo Bandaranaike has said she will press both leaders to accept the peace plan when she visits India and China later this month.

India so far has declined official comment on the proposals pending receipt of "precise details."

However, most political observers here believe India is cool to the plans on the grounds that they overlook "the basic fact of China's aggression."

Official circles here have not shown enthusiasm for suggestions made at a recent conference as reported in local papers.

The press reports said the conference suggested creation of a demilitarized zone in Ladakh with the Indians remaining at their present positions and the Chinese withdrawing to the posts they held prior to Sept. 8.

This would mean India would renounce, at least temporarily, some 43 position it held in the Ladakh area before the fighting began.

32 Are Dead In Ferocious European Storm

German Freighter Goes Down off Dutch Coast

LONDON (AP)—Western Europe recovered today from a ferocious winter storm that ripped a wide path of death and destruction.

More than 30 were dead in the wake of hurricane-strength winds that lashed Europe Sunday.

The biggest toll was at sea— 23 in the German freighter Nautilus which went down off the Dutch coast. A French fisherman was washed overboard in the English Channel.

In Britain at least eight persons were killed, mostly by falling trees or buildings.

Inland winds topped 100 miles an hour in Britain at times. In Scotland a 117 - mile - an - hour gust was registered. Houses toppled, trees were uprooted, roads were blocked and telephone and power lines were torn down.

Few West European countries escaped the storm. Gales and snow were dying over all the storm-battered countries today. Britain was fanned by a mild, light breeze.

SHIPS GO AGROUND

At least three freighters—the Brazilian Lolita Honduras, the Norwegian Black Eagle and the American Flying Woodpecker—driven aground along the continental coastline.

A fourth ship, the Belgian "pirate" radio ship Uylenspiegel, was driven ashore and used its wireless to send out distress calls instead of its usual popular music.

The Uylenspiegel broadcasts music and commercials from outside Belgian territorial waters in defiance of the Belgian government's radio monopoly. The ship went aground in Dutch territory and thus escaped seizure by Belgian authorities.

The gale was so strong in Sweden it flickered alarmingly on instruments at Uppsala University. Scientists at first thought another Russian nuclear bomb had been tested.

Mej. Preece said the Salvation Army has also arranged for large shipments of mattress to be sent to the Nelson reserve immediately from The Pas, Man. The Salvation Army has also chartered light aircraft at Thompson to carry a "subtantial" Christmas hamper to each of the reserve families today.

Mej. Preece said the Salvation Army is a man-to-man at Thompson has joined with a local church and Roman Catholic clergyman and a Thompson nurse to form the Nelson River Christmas relief committee. The council will be in charge of immediate relief measures.

Mej. Preece said there are too many people on the reserve for the amount of wildlife resources available. Able-bodied men running traplines could make enough to get by and catch on their families can get by. But families hit by sickness or separation were in need of food, clothing and blankets.

FUMES KILL 12

NEW YORK (AP) — Gas fumes spewing from automobile exhausts, heaters and a gas-producing furnace killed 12 persons during the frosty, snowy weekend in New York state. Half of the deaths occurred in parked automobiles. Four persons, a mother and three children, died in a Brooklyn apartment filled with carbon monoxide from a gas heater.

Phone Call Leads To Recovery Of Stolen Music

TORONTO (CP)—A mysterious phone call Saturday night led to the recovery of about 350 pieces of sheet music, worth a work of band leader Benny Louis—stolen two weeks ago.

"I just given up hope," said Mr. Louis who has been working 20 hours a day production numbers for a Christmas variety hour on television.

The press reports said the conference suggested creation of a demilitarized zone in Ladakh with the Indians remaining at their present positions and the Chinese withdrawing to the posts they held prior to Sept. 8.

This would mean India would renounce, at least temporarily, some 43 position it held in the Ladakh area before the fighting began.

One Satellite Whirls Toward Sun One Hunts Meteroids, Third Mum

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new U.S. satellite whirled in orbit a few hundred miles above the earth today while Mariner II headed toward Venus at speeds of millions of miles from earth toward orbit around the sun.

The third satellite, Relay, which was to take the place of the one that failed, wasn't performing properly.

porting as it headed into orbit around the sun. The U.S. spacecraft which journeyed 109 days through space to give earthlings their closest contact with Venus, is expected to enter solar orbit which will take 400 days at a speed of 66,000 miles an hour.

Mariner II passed within 21,600 miles of Venus Friday. Today it was 650,000 miles beyond and 37,000,000 miles from earth. It is sending back information on cosmic dust, charged particles, solar plasma and magnetic fields.

Attempts to get the partially crippled Relay's equipment working failed and NASA officials said the experiment would be postponed indefinitely.

Relay has enough power to operate its telemetry equipment, but not enough for its main function — receiving and transmitting communications. Scientists hope Relay's solar cells eventually will build up enough power to enable it to operate as planned.

Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan while prayers at the graveside in St. Michael's cemetery were said by the Rev. F. Murphy.

Bearers were Anson Jordan, John Whelan, Earl Harris, Joe Doyle, Michael Sheedy and Michael Stephan.

The funeral was held to the church from the funeral residence of George F. O'Brien.

Ram and Snow Push Out Last Of Cold Front

Winter weather spooned out a combination dressing of rain and snow for the Quinte district overnight.

The damp mixture, moving in flurries, pushed out the last of the cold front that had gripped the area from the middle of last week. In its wake however, it left slushy highways and in spots, hazardous driving conditions.

At Tweed, where the mercury had dipped well below zero earlier last week, the overnight low was 14 above. Over two inches of snow fell in the area.

The Department of Lands and Forests radio station at Tweed reported the snow blanket fairly widespread through the area. Up to this morning there were the counts on ground depths of snow in the district: Bancroft 8 inches; Wellington 7.8 inches; Collins Bay 8.5 inches; Palmer Rapids 8.5 inches.

Flurries continued to harass the district through the morning. While police warned drivers to drive cautiously, no serious accidents were reported up to press time.

Broken Jaw, Nose Suffered In Accident

A Napanee man was rushed to hospital Sunday morning after his car skidded 180 feet out of control on Highway 2 a mile east of Belleville and was wrecked against a tree.

Robert George McCutcheon, 22, R.R. 2, Napanee, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with a broken jaw and nose.

He was released from hospital before 6 a.m. Police say McCutcheon, alone in the car, apparently lost control as it veered off the highway for 115 feet, struck a tree broadside, skidded another 45 feet before ramming a second tree.

The impact pushed the floor pedals level with the top of the driver's seat, say police.

The accident was reported minutes after it occurred by a nearby resident.

Several Groups Entertain Residents of County Home

Arts, Crafts Fall Program Is Concluded

Residents of the Hastings County Home in the city's western outskirts have not lacked for entertainment this Christmas season — and there is still more to come.

Starting on the evening of December 10th, groups from the city and all parts of the county have come to the home with programs made in the stage variety programs for the enjoyment of the county home residents.

The groups came from as far away as Bancroft, with grade 7 and 8 pupils of Bancroft Public School entertaining with carol singing on Friday evening. The pupils made the 73 mile trip from Bancroft in six cars and a station wagon.

One public school group from Tabernacle Public School in Murray Township also entertained residents.

Sunday evening the Holloway United Church WC group visited the home to sing carols. They were the ninth group so far this year to entertain the county home residents and other groups are booked for the balance of the week.

Mrs. Kenneth York, county home matron, told the Ontario Intelligencer today that Christmas Eve is an "open" night for the residents with no groups scheduled.

It isn't because no groups have offered, but Mrs. York feels many of the residents go away for Christmas and to prevent over-tiredness she feels they should get to bed on Christmas Eve.

Carol singers parade through the wings of the home while variety programs are staged in the auditorium.

"The residents certainly enjoy it all," noted Mrs. York.

In addition to the entertainment this year the county home residents have contributed Christmas parcels to residents of the home who have no close relatives.

Jets Assist British Mop up Brunei Rebels

BRUNEI TOWN, Brunei (Reuters)—British forces supported by jet aircraft today moved against pockets of resistance left by the short-lived Brunei revolt.

Royal Marine commandos mopping up in the Limbang area of neighboring Northern Sarawak reported the capture of the rebel leader of Kharieh Sclieh, bearded former of some 200 "hard-core" rebels.

A British spokesman in Singapore said most rebels have been cleared from all main towns in this oil-rich sultanate.

Lord Selkirk, British high commissioner-general in Southeast Asia, told reporters at Labuan Island, North Borneo, that the revolt had "now collapsed" but the mop-up might take some time.

A British patrol was reported to have killed six rebels, wounded one and taken about 100 prisoners without suffering any casualties near Bekenu, which is south of the oil town of Miri.

Meanwhile, aircraft equipped with powerful loudspeakers made sorties over a wide area of jungle calling on the rebels of the "Northern Borneo National Army" to surrender.

TOKYO (AP) — The North Korean Communists have lined up alongside Red China in the ideological battle with the Soviet Union. A communique from the central committee of the Workers (Communist) Party said there can be no compromise with imperialism. Fifty Saved By Quick Action Of 2 Policemen

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— Two city policemen saved more than 50 sleeping Sacramento residents early Sunday when a speeding car rammed a gasoline tanker truck and turned a downtown street into a river of fire.

The car's driver was trapped and burned to death. Police identified her as Miss Frances Fontana, 41.

The truck driver, James Moore, 32, was badly burned.

Wiped out by the blaze was nearly half a city block—five homes and apartment buildings. Seven parked cars also were destroyed.

Mario Belti, 31, of Sacramento, told police he was waiting for the traffic light to change shortly after midnight, when the auto ran through the red light without slowing down.

When the car hit the truck, Belti said, "everything went up in a ball of flame."

SAW FLASH

Policeman Tom Stark and his partner, Paul Heitala, were in the vicinity and saw the flash of the explosion and flames building skyward.

When they reached the scene, Stark said, the 8,750 gallons of gasoline in the tanker was gushing from the tanks. The liquid was running down the street, igniting everything it touched.

Stark said he and Heitala ran from building to building "kicking in doors" and breaking windows to wake residents. They made room-to-room checks before leaving the burning structures.

Distillery Workers Hold Yuletide Party

Members of Local 96 of the Distillery, Rectifying, Wine and Allied Workers' International Union of America (AFL-CIO) (CLC-OFL) held their annual Christmas dinner at Club Cedars, Cannifton. About 225 members and guests were present.

One dinner was held at 5 o'clock and another at 7 o'clock. With the exception of one company, shift employees were served a hot meal in the Corby plant.

Officials representing the Corby company were Mr. G. MacDonald, assistant manager, Mr. F. Bellstedt, technical supervisor, and Mr. W. Johns, personnel manager. Representatives of the union were vice-president C. Tilbrook; secretary, A. Ulrich; chief steward and financial secretary, A. Curtis; treasurer, A. Tufts, and past president, W. Peoples. The president of the local, A. Austin, was unable to attend due to an injury.

Vice-president C. Tilbrook introduced the guests at the first evening and Mr. Peoples at the second serving.

The evening festivities were ended by dancing.

Branch 587 Visited by Santa Claus

This weekend Santa really went on a pre-Christmas gift-giving spree; among the many parties at which he was the guest of honor was the Colborne Phay Wills Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion for ex-service women where he was welcomed by the children at the Legion Hall, on Sunday evening.

After greeting each child, Santa "went straight to his work" distributing candy and toys, assisted by Mr. G. Green and Mrs. T. Hay, who had purchased the toys and arranged the party.

Santa was thanked by the Branch president, Mrs. R. Kirby who also extended the season's greetings to the boys and girls and their parents.

Christmas films were shown by Mr. Laurie Smith.

Proceeds from the dance, the "Fall Frolic" held two weeks ago, made this party possible. Much of the credit for the success of the dance went to Mrs. R. Rollins and her committee, with Mrs. M. Schmidt as their co-ordinator.

Members of Branch 587 will next meet at the home of the president for a pot-luck supper which will be followed by the election of officers.

Havelock Man Fatally Shot Hunting Moose

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Elmer Minnie of Havelock district was shot and killed Sunday in a hunting accident about 25 miles southeast of here.

Police said Minnie, dressed in dark clothing, was hunting moose in a party of six.

He and Reg Walker of Englehart were following a moose when Minnie branched out on his own and wandered into the fire of the other members of the party. Police said he was shot by John Maguire of Kirkland Lake.

An inquest will be held.

Hees Declares PCs All Behind Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Hees said today the cabinet, the caucus of MPs and senators and the Progressive Conservative party are solidly behind Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Mr. Hees, asked about recurring reports of unrest over the leadership and speculation that the Prime Minister might resign, said he is certain the prime minister "has absolutely no intention of resigning."

"He'll lead us in the next election and he'll win," Mr. Hees said.

"There is absolutely no unrest," he said, adding that as a former national president of the Progressive Conservative Association, chairman of the caucus of MPs and senators and a senior cabinet minister, he would know if it had any existence.

HASN'T HEARD ANYTHING

"I don't know of a single resolution mentioning lack of confidence in the Prime minister, or that anyone has prepared or even discussed such a thing.

"I don't know of any one or of any group planning one or expressing their views on it," he said, referring to reports that the leadership may be questioned at the party's national convention next month.

Mr. Hees was asked about a report which said Mr. Diefenbaker had hinted to colleagues that he might resign.

He said "the prime minister's health is as good today as the day he became leader six years ago. It was good then. I am sure that he has absolutely no intention of resigning the leadership."

During the last few weeks there has been a number of reports, mostly from unnamed sources, of dissatisfaction with Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership in the June 18 election campaign which placed the Conservatives in a minority position in the Commons. Conservative MPs have denied them and have said they were incensed by the Liberal opposition in an effort to undermine Mr. Diefenbaker's confidence.

Express Truck Nearly Thrown Into Quinte Bay

Wreckers hauled a CNR truck to safety Saturday night as it threatened to tilt off the Bay Bridge linking the city with Quinte.

The truck, being driven by George Dawkins, of Belleville, to Picton to pick up an express shipment, was through guardrails south of the Bay Bridge's first span during a heavy snow storm.

Provincial police say the driver lost control of the vehicle after he was forced off the road against the bridge girders by an oncoming automobile. The truck careened across the bridge, through adjoining guardrails and slid down the causeway incline toward the Bay.

It halted with its cab submerged in the water.

Mr. Dawkins was uninjured. The automobile involved in the mishap did not stop and police blame bad weather as the major probable cause of the accident.

Parents' Night At 'Y' Meet Much Enjoyed

Belleville's Y.M.C.A. passed in review Saturday night for about 200 parents who attended the association's annual Parents' Night. The members and instructors presented displays and exhibitions of all physical activities conducted by the association.

First, the Prep boys presented a display of maze marching and relay games in the gymnasium and proved their ability to beat a team composed of fathers in a relay race. Also in the gymnasium, the Junior and Intermediate boys demonstrated exercises on the parallel bars, the s'de horse and the trampoline and the Junior leaders created a pyramid on the parallel bars.

Advanced gymnastic instructors Ralph Boomhauer and John Sager presented a further display of trampoline exercises.

In the boys' Judo demonstration, instructor Ron Poste was thrown neatly by his smallest student, four-foot five-inch Sammy Nordblom. From the gym, Judo demonstrations moved down to the swimming pool where swimming instructor Rob Bongo presented a display of swimming techniques.

Junior leaders introduced to the parents Saturday night included Richard Cherry, Geof Roulet, Dave Phillips, Doug Row, Dave McLean, Ross Drysdale, Bill Heard and John Hayman.

KEEN SKATERS

Oslo, Norway, annually lees over more than 100 areas to produce skating rinks.

Around The Town

A mixed rink of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mott with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Carruthers were two-game winners at a bonspiel held at the Peterborough Gold and Country Club on Saturday, which was sponsored by the A. R. Collis Department Store in that city. There were sixteen rinks in play and the low was reported fast and the competition exceedingly keen.

The rink probably earned a title or possibly a record on the sixth end of the last game in their draw. The opposition was lying one shot when Mr. Carruthers went to throw his last rock. His stone slipped through a port and dropped the opposition rock back far enough for the Belleville rink to count a big six. The rarity of the occasion was that all sixteen rocks were in the house. That is not often seen with the "knockout" play that is featured by many rinks. The visiting rink stated that the hospitality was excellent.

A rink of Claude D. Tice, Ed Lewis, Gordon Edwards and Ron Benn went to Cobourg on Saturday and came home with a prize. The rink split with the contents during the Christmas holiday.

Slippery Roads, Falling Snow Crash Causes

TRENTON — "Slippery roads" and "snow falling" continued to appear on the Trenton district police blotter as the weekend progressed as a result of minor accidents over the weekend.

Maurice Semple, 28, of Brighton, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, after he was apprehended by Trenton police, following a hit-and-run accident on Front Street, early Saturday afternoon.

Police allege that Semple was driving the wrong way on the section of Front Street, directly stated one-way, when he struck a car driven by Michael Macdonald, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James MacDonald of Victoria Ave. Semple, police say, drove away immediately. The MacDonald car was damaged to the extent that repairs to the vehicle are sustained $150 in damages.

Saturday afternoon, too, Allen K. Weese of Front Street, in Trenton, was unable to stop his vehicle on Dundas Street West at Victoria, due to slippery roads, mounted the sidewalk and struck a house.

Weese's car was damaged to the extent of $190 but the house was not damaged.

Late Saturday night, on Highway Two, three miles east of Brighton, a two-car accident sent two persons to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries and resulted in property damage to the vehicles involved estimated $500.

Provincial police at Brighton say that Barrie Brailee, 20, of Middleton Park, driver of one car, and his passenger, Gerald Haich, 20, also of Middleton Park, sustained contusions and lacerations in the mishap.

The drivers of the other cars, Val Lattimer, 19, R.R. 4, Trenton, Donald Johnston, 29, of Brighton and John Stuart, 18, of Toronto, were uninjured.

This accident occurred during a driving snowstorm.

Sunday morning, a two-car accident on Highway 30, two miles north of Brighton, resulted in damages assessed at $220. Police say that Norma Brown of R.R. 2 Brighton, was attempting to pass a car driven by Thomas Shepherd of R.R. 1, Brighton, when the cars collided.

Theft Charged

TRENTON — Provincial police at Brighton have arrested Walter Edward Smith, 42, and Alfred Herbert Squiers, 39, both of Trenton and charged them with theft in connection with a theft at Graham's Food Products on the Wooler Road. The arrest was made Sunday night and the two men are awaiting a court appearance.

Macmillan, de Gaulle Stole Show at NATO Meetings

By ALAN WALKER

PARIS (CP) — The NATO council meetings here produced nothing spectacular and the higher level talks between Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle stole the show.

Throughout the three-day meeting of NATO ministers the word most used was "unanimity." If there were disagreements among delegates in the closed sessions, they were well hidden. The Cuba crisis, delegates insisted, had brought the alliance members closer together than ever before.

The suggested multilateral NATO nuclear force was not a major topic of the Atlantic Council, which finally turned the problem over to the permanent council for further study. The ministers agreed with U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara that NATO's conventional forces would be strengthened, enabling it to withstand a conventional attack without recourse to nuclear weapons.

CHANGE IN THINKING

This represented a change in thinking. Conventional weapons now are viewed as the main NATO force, or the Spear, while deterrent nuclear weapons become The Shield.

The use of possible clash among members about whose fingers should be on the button controlling a nuclear strike force finided out.

Many observers were vexed by the praise for the United States and the lack of criticism for the way the U.S. declined to consult the NATO council before the Cuban blockade.

"The recent attempt by the Soviet Union to alter the balance of force against the West by secretly stationing nuclear missiles in Cuba brought the world to the verge of war," said the final communique. "The peril was averted by the firmness and restraint of the U.S., supported by its allies and other free nations."

Some here suggested the U.S. action, without consultation, defeated the purpose of the alliance in many respects. But Canadian Defence Minister Douglas Harkness said with a wry smile: "We'd rather have action without consultation than consultation without action."

SEES GOOD POINTS

External Affairs Minister Howard Green, who had spoken to delegates on the subject of closer consultation, said that the good points about the Cuban blockade outweighed the bad ones. Russia had pulled her horns in and this put NATO in a "very comfortable position."

In other fields the council: stated its former policies: To build and maintain the freedom of West Berlin; to strive for disarmament; to intensify the exchange of technical infor-

Differences Wasting Away?

John Gellner, a former wing commander in the RCAF and a well-known writer on military affairs, spoke at Batawa the other day. He said he did not believe there would be a war between Russia and the West in the foreseeable future. Many others have made the same prediction. Gellner, however, advanced one reason which, while not unique, is heard only infrequently. Russians and Western ideologies, he said, were drifting towards each other and would eventually merge.

Gellner contended Russia is gradually becoming a capitalist country while the West is drifting into a socialistic form of government. The latter part of this contention is heard fairly frequently, but is generally advanced by those who deplore the development. Gellner sees this as safeguard to peace, especially when it is matched by a Russian drift towards capitalism. In the sense that a developing similarity between our economic systems would help us to understand each other better, this might be true. But this alone will not guarantee the peace.

The differences in our ideologies involve much more than economics. Indeed, the most striking difference between the two is that the communist lands is primarily a political one, in the attitude of the governments toward political freedom.

Although the report of Gellner's speech at Batawa did not mention it, there are several signs that in this realm, too, the two ideologies are drifting towards each other. There are distinct, though small, signs the communist hierarchy, in Russia at least, is prepared to grant the masses a small share of those civil rights and liberties which we take for granted. Every move in this direction, no matter how small, is an important gain. There are also signs of a precisely opposite trend in Western countries. Insofar as this trend threatens to deprive us of essential liberties, it must be resolutely resisted. But there are some so-called liberties of which we could well be rid. For instance, it was once considered the right of a manufacturer to employ children, if he chose to do so. We have long since limited that right and at every session of our legislative bodies laws are being passed which curtail what were once considered rights but are now regarded as abuses.

It is obviously desirable that any blend of the two systems should retain the most desirable features of both and reject the least desirable. It would appear reasonable to argue this will require the Russians to expand their conception of civil rights. (Many of these are already recognized on paper but denied in practice). As for ourselves, we need to adopt some of the Russian acceptance of long-range planning and that country's eye on the future and its enthusiasm for cultural development.

All history suggests that, if war is avoided, Gellner will be proven right—the two systems will merge. Let us hope though, the merger is one involving the best features, not one of Russian authoritarianism and the West's expediency and waste.

Oh Such Language

A complaint has been registered publicly by a Member of Parliament that there are too many lawyer members using too many Latin phrases in the House of Commons.

No interpreters exist, apparently, to translate the Latin used by some member to illustrate either a point (whose illustration would appear lost) or to impress others with their knowledge of a classic language.

We do hope that the fate of the country does not hang on the wrong turning of a Latin expression. Of course, perhaps the new university in Ottawa could offer a course entitled "Latin for Commoners" or some such thing. "Semper paratus, otis fensum," as we Latin quoters say.

Santa Rationed

Christmas goodies in Cuba will be slightly short this year, according to Interior Commerce Minister Manuel Luzardo, but he adds, "there will be enough for all." The revolutionary government has begun the issue of ration books to all the people to assure an equal distribution of the pork, poultry, nuts and candy favored by Cubans as Christmas treats.

Cynics, of course, may say there will never be enough for all in communist Cuba, and that the ration books are merely a blind to help cover the shortages which will occur. Such people, of course, know nothing of the many excellent recipes available for candied ration book.

Deflation Now the Peril

Financial Post

This nation's business has weathered with remarkable success the great Canadian dollar crisis, the extreme instability of federal politics and the other assorted shocks of recent months.

But this ominous comment from the world of international finance suggests even more severe tests lie ahead.

"Throughout the industrial world, supply has caught up with demand, and as productive capacity continues to increase, downward pressure on prices may well be intensified in a wide range of products from primary and semi-manufactured, as well as manufactured products."

This deflation talk comes from a man whose business is to know and assess all trends that make up the international climate for business. He is Per Jacobsson, managing director of the International Monetary Fund with headquarters in Washington.

Three years ago, when most others on this continent were obsessed with the fear of inflation, Jacobsson flatly said: "World inflation is over." He was right.

He now warns of the danger of world deflation. He says cost increases, particularly wage increases, in a world where profits are already squeezed, could set off the deflationary process.

Most certainly, the world of the 1960s is susceptible to the horrors of the deflationary spiral. The British economy is heavy with unused production capacity. The all-important American economy is saddled with chronically high unemployment. And the great European boom has begun beginning to show signs of a slowdown.

These are the new and dominant facts of international life. They may explain the determination that has come to maturity without the slightest memory of deflation.

But the truth is that few cost increases can much longer be passed along in the form of price increases — and the country, on the average, that gets out of line with international price trends does so at grave peril.

The Jacobsson prophecy merits particularly sober contemplation in this country.

First: There is unpleasant evidence that the end of the trade stage is set for deflation. Substantial as this year's economic growth may be, it is indeed far from making up for five previous years of stagnation and steadily rising unemployment.

Second: Deflation is doubly damaging to an economy like Canada's. As a nation highly dependent on exports of raw materials and semi-manufactured goods, we lose very heavily, indeed, when international commodity prices go down.

As a high-cost manufacturer, we are woefully ill-equipped to withstand violent international price competition in finished products.

What, for Canada, is now the road to safety and progress?

Jacobsson suggests that all cost increases like the plague and, in fact, he says, presupposes moderation in cost increases.

For Canadian business and Canadian labor, this implies some hard new realities. Learning to live with "normalcy" after two years of rising prices implies a wholly new approach to wage demands, to profit margins and to a host of antiquated ideas about labor management co-operation.

Jacobsson also advocates that the countries now stashing in deflationary danger collaborate very much more closely in monetary, economic and trade matters.

The plain fact is that a major shift in Canada's commercial policies is already long overdue.

Failure now to back Britain's entry into Europe and failure to link ourselves actively with Kennedy's trade expansion program is to risk life in unprofitable and un-splendid isolation.

There is room, indeed, for a great public debate about how to get Canada back on the path to high growth. But the urgent warning of the deflation peril makes it clear that action must promptly replace talk if we are to survive with prosperity and self-respect.

No one with clear memories of the 1930s will deny the urgency of the situation.

Movies Promote Travel

New York Times Ed

Of all the complex interrelationships found in modern life, one of the most curious is that linking motion pictures and travel. For the demand by motion picture audiences these days for greater realism in depicting foreign locales has made it almost mandatory for a film company to travel to the original scene for its cameras. This is a phenomenon of the United States of the post-World War II period, a time when travel has become within itself to be not only smaller than before Pearl Harbor but also more knowledgeable and sophisticated. Thus a young couple who honeymooned in the Alps would no longer acquiesce in the Sheraton-Belvedere as a movie substitute, nor will an exGI who, say, action in Korea accept a Hollywood-constructed replacement. Certainly some of the praise that has been lavished on "Lawrence of Arabia" stems from the realization by millions who took part in Operation Desert Storm that the action on the screen was the opening twenty-four hours that this is where it all actually took place.

But this is only part of the story. For movie audiences that get their first authentic taste of an exotic locale frequently become fans of that particular area, oftentimes to the extent of making it a part of a forthcoming trip. Today's motion picture thus has become not only an exciting story but also the successor to the travel film we once associated with Burton Holmes and his fellow voyagers. "Summertime," filmed when Venice was its most appealing, certainly lured travellers to Italy's city of canals.

Hong Kong, for years portrayed as a series of sinister, shadowy alleys inhabited by Dr. Fu Manchu, was shown for all its genuine fascination in "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing," and almost automatically the city became a tourist mecca. Two pictures filmed on location in Africa, "King Solomon's Mines" and "Mogambo," had such an effect on tourist habits that while visitors in Nairobi happily reported almost 100 per cent increases in safaris. "Exodus" not only lured tourists to the Holy Land but also prompted alert travel agents to schedule tours taking movie-struck travellers to the actual locations where the Leon Uris book was transferred to the screen. Of all these settings, perhaps Paris has been the most popular, often as a background for individual musicals. But the real beauty of Paris as shown in such films as "An American in Paris" and "Love in the Afternoon" has succeeded in bringing even more tourists to the City of Light.

"Mutiny on the Bounty," in its current version, is expected to do much the same kind of travel promotion for Tahiti, the 1,500-mile tropical paradise of the South Seas often called "the finest island in the world." Here, on the tiny piece of land that Tahiti is, the first voyage of Captain Bligh and Fletcher Christian, the making of the film has created a boom in the building by the French Government of a new multimillion-dollar airport. It has now possible to fly nonstop from Los Angeles —home base, symbolically, of the movie industry—to Tahiti by jet in seven and a half hours. Two Air France jets arrive on the island weekly, and with the release of the picture this schedule may well increase if the film succeeds in bringing to the fore the romantic dream of the Polynesian nirvana that lurks in the breast of the most earthbound among us.

Orville Wright made the first aircraft flight near Kitty Hawk, N.C., 59 years ago today, with Orville and his brother Wilburn, owners of a bicycle business, built the first successful heavier-than-air powered flying machine. Orville flew it 120 feet in 12 seconds—enough to convince the brothers that sustained flight was possible — and they formed a successful aircraft business.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

There is a definite shortage of store help in the city and with business riding on the crest of an unprecedented buying wave, several merchants are being handicapped as far as handling the seasonal business is concerned. The extra sales help, available in other years, is conspicuous by its absence in the most part with girls and women employed in war industry or other jobs.

After a young girl had entered McCurdy's Jewelry store on the pretense of having a ring repaired, a woman's gold watch was reported missing. Employees at the store were engaged in serving other customers and did not miss the lady's watch which was on display, until some time later. The case marked the first pre-Christmas report of shoplifting in Belleville this year.

When Abraham Somberg of Station Street lied to appear in court as the plaintiff in a court case heard before Magistrate A. L. Tudor Thrasher, the matter was promptly dismissed. Somberg had charged a local female resident with using grossly insulting language towards him, but was not present to press the charge when it was called for trial today. "No guilty," replied the defendant to the charge, as she added, "I should have called him such names, but I did not". The costs of this proceedings should be assessed Mr. Somberg", pointed out the County Crown Attorney, "and if the plaintiff doesn't pay the court $4.50 within a week, he is to spend five days in jail in default".

Dear Santa: Please Don't Forget Me

By SYDNEY . HARRIS

Dear Santa Claus: I have been a reasonably good boy all year, and I have made up a little list of some of the things I'd like for Christmas, such as —

A form letter that would refuse the impossible requests of strangers without bruising their feelings.

A soft answer that would turn away the wrath of belligerent readers who accost a stranger at a social gathering and want to argue about a piece he has long since forgotten.

A padded blackjack for the people who ask quizzically, "Do you really believe the things you write?"

And an unpadded blackjack for the ones who ask, "Is that all you do — write that little piece every day?"

An unlimited number of classified telephone books to be sent to the people who call information and ask if books were sold only in certain districts, when the book mentioned in the ad covered all of them.

A special credentials from Fu Manchu.

A tactful but effective reminder to the chairmen, (and more often, chairwomen) of program committees, informing them delicately but firmly that since they don't expect the buffet fare for which they charge a free meal for their meetings, they shouldn't expect a lecturer to give them 40 minutes of free talk.

A conducted tour through the city room for those credulous souls who persist in believing the ancient legend that newspapermen invariably wear their hats indoors, receive hourly instalments from the Kremlin, and address all females under the age of 60 as "Toots."

A free copy of Emily Palmer handwriting method of those who send me 12 pages of closely packed and utterly indecipherable letters, and then complain bitterly a month later that their proposal for settling world difficulties (or something) hasn't been answered.

A magical dictionary of fresh phrases and pensees that will enable me to write every day with the verbal freshness of a Conrad de Kooning, the profundity of a Dostoyevsky, the stylistic elegance of a Henry James, and the incisive clarity of a Dean Swift.

And, most of all, an infallible recipe for turning out a column every day that will satisfy the oldsters and the youngsters, the cynics and the romanticists, those who want it lighter and those who want it heavier, the waitress in Wichita and the professor in Pomona — and my mother.

Distinct Difference Between Cyst and Tumor

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a vaginal cyst removed and am concerned about it now. Will it return, and what caused it? Is it cancer develop? What is the difference between a cyst and a tumor? — Concerned.

We get so wrapped up these days in the new "wonders of science" that we don't have time to discuss some of the older items of knowledge that aren't so mysterious. How many people do know the difference between a cyst and a tumor?

The body is equipped with thousands of glands — a few big ones such as the thyroid, ovarian, pituitary, adrenal and others, and a vast number of tiny ones, particularly in the skin and mucous surfaces.

The purpose of these glands is to produce one material or another. As an example, take the sebaceous, or oily glands of the skin. When a gland becomes clogged, it keeps on producing but its material can't get out. As material accumulates, the gland becomes stretched, like a balloon blown too far, and a lump forms.

Puncturing or lancing doesn't solve the problem, because the duct, or outlet, is usually so small that you can't keep it open. When you lance it, you make a new hole, and release the accumulated stuff inside, but the new hole heals over. And the pressure builds up again.

That's why we have long known that there is no cure for a cyst, or clogged gland. The only permanent solution is to remove the whole gland.

Vaginal cysts are very common. Unless they are painful or otherwise cause trouble, the doctor rule is to let them alone. They rarely become cancerous. It is possible for a cyst to rupture and ulcer tissue in the body, to become cancerous, but there's no reason to anticipate it will do so any more than we expect an ingrown toenail, or a broken leg, or a cut finger, or any other injury to turn into a cancer. So "Concerned" should quit being worried about a cyst that has been removed.

Unlike a cyst, a tumor is a growth. The most familiar form is a wart. Cells in some form of tissue begin to multiply faster than is necessary to replace cells that are dying off — which goes on constantly.

Fatty tumors in the skin, which may grow to considerable size, are a common example. Tumors can occur just about anywhere, unlike cysts which occur only in the skin or the enclosed places which become clogged and gradually fill up.

A cancer is another kind of tumor — a malignant one. Plain tumors are benign, meaning that they just grow. Malignant tumors, instead of merely growing by multiplying cells, grow by creating voracious abnormal cells which, in time, gradually spread to other places and start new cancers.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will taking a tablespoon of vegetable oil every day improve the skin and hair? Will it cause facial hair to grow? — Miss O.

No to both questions. The average person doubtless gets more vegetable oil than that in salad dressing and other foods anyway.

Mrs. L. : Unfortunately yes, some people do conceal the fact that they have diabetes. It can make surgery more difficult, but the usual pre-surgery tests reveal its presence.

"Don't Quit Because Of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Tribune Syndicate, 185 N. Box 159, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of handling.

Starts School Of Silence

Toronto Telegram

Many barbers operate on the principle that a man comes into the shop not only to get a haircut but a monologue on the weather and the latest international crisis.

But not Marvin Priest. He has founded the Scarboro Technical Institute of Silence. He makes a point of avoiding a running conversation with customers in his barber shop.

Bless him.

Mr. Priest thinks there is altogether too much noise in this age. Mr. Priest is an understanding fellow.

Experts say that much of our tension is traceable to modern noises. But what can an expert to tell us that? We are deluged with the rumble of trucks, the roar of broken mufflers, the scream of brakes, the blare of loud speakers in places of public accommodation, the chairvari suphemistically called music.

Add the bombilations of orators aided and abetted by the electronic behavior.

One psychologist claims that modern man makes more noise even in his sleep than the sleepers of the past. It's his way of getting back at the clangor of twentieth century living. His snoring is subconscious revenge against the din of the day.

Silence is undoubtedly one of the rarest of the commodities today. And to think that a society dedicated to its preservation should be started by a barber, who is usually associated with the garrulous.

May Mr. Priest be twice blessed.

THE PACKSACK

Sitting in the waiting room at the airport, I was intrigued by the stewardess I went to me who said low:

"Look at that woman in the high hat across from us. She's going to take another pill. That's the third she's taken in the past twenty minutes. I bet it is those tranquilizers."

She removed a small metal box from her purse, extracted a white pill, produced a soda cracker from the purse, chewed the soda cracker, and then downed the pill with it. Then she sat back, with hands crossed and ankles crossed, and the airport. I was intrigued by the stewardess I went to me who said low:

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market trudged through trendless morning trading today.

All sections showed extremely narrow movements on index; industrials and base metals both eased.

In the main list, losses of ½ went to Algoma Steel, Canadian Export Gas and Oshawa Wholesale A.

Trans - Canada Pipeline, BC Power, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Bank of Montreal all slipped a to ¼ to ¾ range.

Power Corporation showed unusual strength, jumping 2¼ to 81. Bell Telephone, Walker-Goederham and Imperial Oil all gained ¼.

On the exchange index, industrials slipped .37 to 564.56 and base metals .37 to 187.34. Golds rose .18 to 85.36 and western oils .38 to 116.93. The 11 a.m. volume was 656,000 shares compared with 665,000 at the same time Friday.

Among base metals, Gunnar Mining fell ¼ to 10¾. International Nickel dropped ¼ and Noranda and Consolidated Mining and Smelting to each. Rio Algom advanced ¼.

In a quiet western oils section, Hudson's Bay advanced ¼.

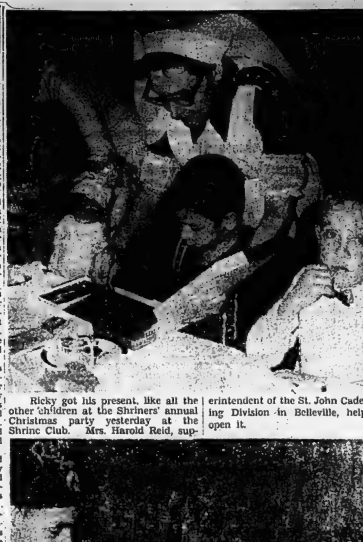
A.N.A.F. Weekly News

Despite the stormy weather last Thursday night, a large number of members were in attendance for the A.N.A.F. nomination night, at which time Cecil Brown was returned to the president's chair by acclamation.

Other officers elected were, Percy Kelly, 2nd vice-president and Ernest Gray was nominated treasurer for the coming year by acclamation. Ken Edgecombe remains as immediate past-president.

It is hoped a stag night will be held in the near future, on the same line as the "Wharf Debating Club," at which time contestants for the remainder of the positions will be given an opportunity to air their views on what they have done in the past and their plans for the future.



The club's president hopes that all members and their friends will have the opportunity to view the A.N.A.F. Front Street window Christmas scene. Most of the credit for the scene goes to Comrades Fournier and Ridley.

The A.N.A.F. Christmas party was attended by approximately 350 children and their parents. The Ladies' Auxiliary were on hand to distribute gifts and 'Santa Claus' welcomed them with bags of goodies. They were then entertained with the showing of several humorous cartoons.

A good crowd was on hand for the turkey roll Saturday evening which was considered a big help towards the financing of the children's Christmas party.

During an intermission between turkey rolls, the president asked secretary Bert Wells and his charming wife to come forward and they were heartily applauded and congratulated on their 32nd wedding anniversary.

The next big event for the A.N.A.F. will be their annual New Year's Eve dance. Tickets have been limited to 75 couples so all are asked to get tickets early. Hugo Diggins and his orchestra will be on hand to supply the music. An advertisement carrying full details of the big event will appear in the Ontario Intelligencer at a later date.

Ricky got his present, like all the other children at the Shriners' annual Christmas party yesterday at the Shrine Club. Mrs. Harold Reid, superintendent of the St. John Cadet Nursing Division in Belleville, helps him open it.

Shrine steward Leonard S. Martin, of Belleville, meets this boy at his own level to offer some candy, after a meal at the Shriners' annual Christmas party yesterday at the Shrine Club in Belleville.

Butter prices Canada first grade: Ontario tenderable 51-52; non-tenderable 51¾, in light trading; western 51¼ (nominal).

Bakelite Co. Holds Party For Children

The 13th annual children's Christmas party at Union Carbide Canada Limited, Bakelite Division, was held at the Masonic Temple on Foster Avenue, with a large number of children accompanied by their parents, in attendance. The party is sponsored by the Bakelite Company for the employees' children.

The annual event was held from 2.00 until 3.00 p.m. with jolly old St. Nick appearing on the scene about 3.15. Guests were served refreshments following which presents were presented to the children aged from one to 12 years.

A sing-song of Christmas carols was led by Bob Park accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Evelyn Warham and cartoon films were shown. Candies, nuts, oranges and apples were distributed to the children as they left the temple.

The party committee chairman wishes to commend the committee members for an excellent job well done.

Shrine Club Entertains Crippled, Retarded Kiddies At Christmas Parties

The Shrine Club's annual Christmas parties for crippled and retarded children, lost none of their former lustre, over the weekend.

Familiar faces and faces of the Shriners again greeted their young proteges in a Christmas aura at the Shrine Club on Highland Avenue and at the General Hospital.

Crippled Children Committee Chairman Noble Tom Lewis, with Nobles Jack Allin and Orliff Lloyd, accompanied Santa Claus to the hospital where some 33 youngsters, a lot of them tiny tots, were entertained and presented with gifts by "Saint Nicholas."

At the Shrine Club, 45 youngsters of all ages from the city, Picton, Trenton and one from Tweed were really entertained while awaiting the big moment, the entrance of Santa Claus.

Thanks to a new innovation of club chairman Mrs. Leonard Martin, the children were treated at tables in a three-sided square. This is a new departure from the former rows of seats and enabled all the kiddies to see and talk with Santa.

Twenty-four of the twenty-five children registered at the Belleville Retarded Children's Association School were present under the supervision of Mrs. Audrey Hayhurst.

Keeping a watchful eye on the children were Mrs. Lillian Ashley, Mrs. Molly Reid, Miss J. Langabeer and Miss Mary Anne McGuire of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Chairman Noble Tom Lewis was the master-of-ceremonies, introducing a fine variety entertainment for the kiddies.

Miss Jane Ashley was heard in fine accordion renditions with Judy Lynn McKnight drawing rounds of applause with hillbilly and other numbers.

Pam Flindall was seen in a baton routine with Miss Judy Fama and Barbara Gonzales doing a fine ballet number.

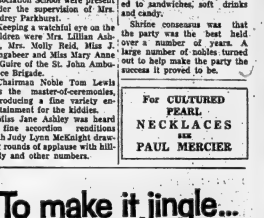
The "hit of the show" was three "Farfisas" — Doug Bannon, Bob Burke and Tom Fraser, who entertained in uproarious pop-mimic offerings.

They appeared as "three gentlemen from the hills" and a duo offered a musical explanation of the opera "Pagliacci". Tom Fraser gave an excellent harmonica rendition. It was excellent entertainment much enjoyed by not only the children but Shriners as well.

Pam Flindall and Sandy Nolan also appeared in a well-executed tap routine.

Perhaps the highest hit of the show as far as the children were concerned was Shriner Bren Hunsberger, who appeared in a specialty act his own.

The big moment came with the entrance of Santa Claus. He was greeted with much applause and the shrill cries of welcome of the children.



He gave gifts to all aided and abetted by Shriner hands. He led the popular "Jingle Bells" with Jimmy Correia at the piano.

Later the children were treated to sandwiches, soft drinks and candy.

Shrine consensus was that the party was the best held over a number of years. A large number of nobles turned out to help make the party the success it proved to be.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

ON HOLIDAY VISITING

Christmas week is one time of the year when impromptu visits are not only expected, but welcomed.

Ordinarily, a busy housewife isn't overly pleased to answer the doorbell and find a family of five standing on her welcome mat without a word of warning. But, during Christmas week, unexpected guests are more or less taken for granted. After all, wasn't that what a lot of the flurry was about, the final weeks before Christmas? Naturally, guests would drop in to offer the season's greetings, and so preparations were made to receive them as they arrived.

But while visits may be taken for granted, ideally, the hostess shouldn't. Some thought should be given to her convenience. Even though an unheralded visit may be met with a warm reception, the same basic rules of courtesy that apply at other times of the year still should be observed.

For instance, even the strongest feelings of good fellowship can hardly weather a visit at 8 a.m. in the morning. If a Christmas visit is to be relaxed and pleasant, it should be held off until after lunch, when the hostess has more chance to enjoy it without worrying about neglected household chores.

Visiting also shouldn't interfere with the family's regular mealtimes. The hostess may be amply prepared with midday snacks, but it may strain her hospitality a bit to dish up an impromptu lunch or dinner. The hours between two and four — or, if you want to stretch it a bit, between one and five — usually are most convenient. But if it seems like the young 'uns are getting fidgety for an early supper, it's more courteous to depart well before five, which is when hunger pains generally get the better of good behavior.

When making a holiday visit, it's also good manners to make it brief. Normally, droppers-in should stay no more than a half-hour or so. During the holidays, however, the time limit might be extended to an hour, if it appears the hostess is not pressed for time and if she offers encouragement.

While afternoon visits often are made without advance notice during Christmas week, any intention of dropping in during the evening should be preceded by a phone call, as usual. Many couples have a number of parties to go to, and an impromptu visit might cause them to be late. Naturally, this sort of situation could be embarrassing to everyone involved. Then, too, they might have guests coming by invitation for dinner, or for cards and a late snack. Again, an unexpected arrival would put a crimp in their plans.

So, if you're thinking of dropping in on old friends to share some seasonal cheer, the key words to remember are Tact and Timing. Both assure that the visit will be warm, friendly and congenial, in keeping with the spirit of the holidays.

Young Couple Honored at Presentation

WEST HUNTINGDON — On Saturday evening a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond, Ridge Road, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Reid (nee Sharon Hammond), who were recently married.

Mr. Alec McCurdy acted as chairman for the evening. Mr. Gray Richardson, Margaret Sheffield, Mrs. John McInroy, Mrs. John Moorcroft, Mrs. Russel Sills and Wayne McCurdy contributed to the program. Miss Greta and Jeana Tuiman sang two lovely duets.

Mrs. Allen Fargey read an address and Allen Fargey and Harold Hollinger presented the honored guests with a lovely platform rocker and cushion.

Sharon and Allen thanked everyone for the lovely gifts.

The ladies served a delicious lunch and a social time was spent.

Readers' Column

by Mary Moore

Note: I have made a switch this week because I needed one of the later days in it for our Christmas dinner menu sessions.

Letter: I must say how much I enjoy your daily column. It's so homey and I feel as though I really know you. As the holiday season comes around again I'm sending you a recipe for pudding sauce. We don't care for hard sauce — this is excellent and of course loaded with calories, as most things are at Christmas' . . . E.R.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice Cocktail; Fried Chicken Wings; Apple Jelly; Creamed Fresh Frozen Green Peas; Diced Butternut Squash; Hot Tea Biscuits; Warm Apple-sauce; Coffee.

EGG NOG SAUCE

(Courtesy E.R.) — Beat one whole egg until real light, gradually beat in 1¼ cups of icing sugar and ¼ cup melted (but not hot) butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat 1 cup heavy cream until stiff and fold the egg mixture into it. Serve cold on hot pudding, ginger bread or white cake. Keep in refrigerator until served. It keeps well.

Answer: Thank you E.R. You will see that I have included this sauce in our Christmas dinner menu which will appear here December 20th. Interested readers please clip this now. .

Question: Would you have a recipe for hot chocolate drink for 25? . . . Mrs. H.B.

Answer: HOT COCOA

These amounts yield 40 6-oz. servings which will provide "seconds" for about half of your crowd.

Six quarts homogenized milk, preferably pre-heated; mix together ⅔ to 1 cup cocoa and 1¼ or 1½ cups sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Mix into a paste by adding 2 cups boiling water. Stir this into the hot milk and then, if possible, beat with a wire whisk to make it foamy while it is reheating. Use great care to prevent scorching.

Question: I am lunch convener for a ladies' organization. We meet once a month and usually have sandwiches and a sweet. At Christmas time I would like lunch a bit different. Our problem is lack of facilities and money, of course. Could you suggest something a bit special and not too expensive also with as few dishes as possible? . . . Rita S.

Answer: That is a tall order, Rita, but I think I have a fair idea. I have mailed you two former releases from 1958 and 1959. One is for Oven Fried Chicken with a touch of cheese. The second is for Fried Chicken Legs. Either may be served cold if necessary and eaten with the fingers. But keep them warm if you can manage. Serve with the chicken very fresh buttered bread or rolls. The soft freshness of this breadstuff is important with the fried chicken. Provide a relish tray with celery, olives, dill sticks. Once you have a coffee urn make coffee and serve with it colorful, thinly sliced fruit cake.

P.S. Contest Highlights PTA Meet

The December meeting of St. Michael's Parent - Teacher Association was held recently at St. Michael's Academy auditorium.

Prior to the meeting class rooms were open for inspection.

The highlight of the meeting was an oratorical contest among students of grades 9 and 10 and students who took part in the contest were: Catherine Truaisch, Frances Beaudin, Mary Jane Lynch, Dook Pasti, Timothy Doran and Douglas Meagher.

Judges were the Reverend Sister Mary Fleurette, Mrs. Robertson Collins and Mr. Jack Ryan, and the winners of the contest were Donalda Rice and Frances Beaudin.

The attendance prize for the junior school was won by Mrs. Canting, for grades 5, 7 and 8, by the Rev. Sister Mary Lee, and Mr. Thorne, and for grades 9 and 10 by Mr. Hutchinson.

Refreshments were served by the social hostess, Mrs. Trypanis, assisted by the mothers of Sister Mary Joan's class.

Avondale H-S Presents Senior Reproduction

A short, but delightful Christmas program was much enjoyed by members of Avondale Homes and School Association at their December meeting.

In introducing the program, Mr. R. Horwood, principal of the school, noted that preparation of the entertainment had not interrupted regular school work and that staff members hoped that the children taking part would benefit from the experience of performing in front of the large audience present.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was the class president of grades six and seven, Jim Lotimer, who took charge of the program with all the poise of a veteran performer.

Pupils of Mrs. Bristol's grade 1 class recited a poem, "Christmas Helpers"; Miss Euler's grades 2-3 sang two seasonal songs; Mrs. Armstrong's grades 3-4 class presented a rhymed playlet, "Christmas Stocking," and Mr. Horwood's class presented an amusing play, "Christmas Shopping," as well as their version of the real Christmas story, with Doug Rogers acting as reader.

Pianists for the carol singing were Nancy Riedel and Bob Stirling.

PRESENTATION

During the brief business meeting which preceded the program, Mrs. Darling, chairman of the Art and Music committee, presented a Reader reproduction to Anne McCorquodale and Terry Willistan, who accepted the painting on behalf of the pupils of Avondale school. This picture was the third of a set of five, which the Home and School Association hopes to purchase for permanent hanging in the class rooms.

Early in the evening a fund-raising bake sale was held in the school. The convener of the event, Mrs. R. Riedel, and her assistants, Mrs. G. Reid and Mrs. D. Sword, as well as Mrs. H. Heslip, president of the association, are grateful to all those who helped to make it a success.

Albert College Guild Elects 1963 Officers

A snowy, winter scene provided the seasonable setting for the Christmas meeting of Albert College Guild, and indoors there was the welcoming, lighted tree, and a warm welcome from the president, Mrs. F. Wilson.

The annual reports indicated satisfactory achievement. The nominating comittee, Mrs. F. Pringle and Mrs. L. Hudgins presented the slate of officers for 1963.

Those elected were as follows: immediate past-president — Mrs. E. Wilcox; maintenance — Mrs. F. Wilson; first vice-president — Mrs. F. Davidson; second vice-president — Mrs. J. R. Williams; secretary — Mrs. E. M. Hubbs; treasurer — Mrs. M. Graham; Mrs. Mrs. A. Guest; pianist—Mrs K. Bird; assistant pianist—Mrs. T. Pringle; social convener — Mrs. Pinkle and Mrs. H. Graham; manor representative — Mrs. J. Sprague; social convener — Mrs. F. Moon, Mrs. K. Bird; membership convener — Mrs. R. B. Petturiej; program convener — Miss Helen Solman; program committee — Mrs. G. Mrs. C. Graham; Mrs. C. W. Smith, Mrs. N. Brown, Mrs. C. Howie, Mrs. F. Davidson, Mrs. C. Hyde; and nominating committee — Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. E. Hickey, Mrs. E. Fleming.

The program was a preparation for Christmas. The Dean of Women — Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Graham read Peter Marshall's "Let's Keep Christmas," at intervals in the reading, having the group join in singing familiar Christmas hymns.

Miss Barbara Anderson and Miss Margaret Hurst from the college made a delightful contribution to this Christmas program — Miss Anderson with "Holy Night," Miss Anderson and Miss Hurst with the duet, in "Little Holy Jesus,"—composed by Mary Deacon. Mrs. Graham accompanied.

Mrs. C. Hyde expressed the appreciation of the Guild, to Mrs. Dean, Miss Anderson and Miss Hurst for their Christmas' message, and also expressed good wishes for the president who is spending Christmas in Florida.

The tea hour, with Mrs. W. S. Northcott and Mrs. G. S. Crook, presiding at the beautiful decorated tea table, was a foretaste of a merry Christmas.

'Gates of Christmas' Presented By Alliance Sunday School

"Come! Come! Come to Jesus, Come! Come! Come to Jesus!

He is the Life and He is the way."

These words beautifully sung by Misses Maureen and Cathy Thompson brought the annual Christmas program of the Alliance Church Sunday School to a close on Friday night when 270 people gathered in the sanctuary of the church to view the presentation of "The Gates of Christmas".

"The Gates of Christmas" points to the birth of Christ with emphasis on the love of God and the necessity for personal salvation. Children from the nursery to senior took part in the three sections, "The Gates of Heaven," "The Gates of Earth," and "The Gates of Life".

GATES OF CHRISTMAS

An attractive replica of a gateway, large enough for the children to walk through, stood on the platform. Above the gates, in large letters, were the words, "The Gates of Christmas". As the program progressed, small signs were hung below the arch of the gateway, in this order, "The Gates of Heaven," "The Gates of Earth," and "The Gates of Life". The narrator, Mr. Paul Masse, read the scripture and introduced each part of the program. Previous to the presenting of this three part program, Mr. Judson Rae led the congregation in carol singing which was followed with prayer by Mrs. F. Fraser, superintendent of the Sunday School, where children gave the welcome "Christmas".

PART I THE GATES OF HEAVEN

The junior girls opened this part of the program with the singing of, "The Gates of Heaven Open Wide" followed by the recitation of Luke 2: 8-14 by the junior boys. A duet followed by Rita Vader and Carol Dent, "Angels Told of Jesus' Birth". Nursery and beginner children, the girls dressed as angels and the boys as shepherds, gathered on the platform as the duet was sung. The primary choir, with the boys in white collars and red bows and the girls with white mortar boards and red tassles, favored with the song, "Jesus Christ is Born". The junior high boys recited their verses on "Giving" and received the offering while an instrumental duet was played by Miss Ferne Millard and Mrs. W. Leonard.

PART II:

THE GATES OF EARTH

The juniors sang the last verse of the first verse of the theme song, "The Gates of Earth Are Closing" followed by the recitation of Luke 2:47 by junior girls. "No Room In the Inn" was sung by the junior choir. An illustrated recitation followed by the junior girls, entitled, "Closed Gates." Miss Joanne Rodgers brought part two to a close by singing a lovely solo, "Open Up Your Heart's Gate."

PART III:

THE GATES OF LIFE

The juniors sang he last verse of their theme song, "The Gates of Life Christ Opened Wide," and the intermediate boys followed by reciting Matt. 7:14; John 10:10; 1 John 5:11-12.

The play, "The Key of Life," was presented by the Alliance Youth Fellowship. In the setting of a living room in a home, several people discussed their philosophy of life. Each one had some different philosophy and the leader of the group questioned which would be the true one.

The teenage girls entered, each one with a different key. These were the key of "Moderation"; the key of "Pleasure"; the key of "Knowledge" and the key of "Love." None of these keys would unlock the Gate of Life but as the last girl entered, carrying in her hand the key marked "Jesus," the gate immediately opened as the key was put in the lock. As the leader of the group was made aware of the true philosophy of life, he stood, gazed through the open gates of Life and said, "Jesus came to open the Gates of Life to all those who will receive Him as their Savior. I have found the only true philosophy of life. The fact hath the Son hath Life. And at the same time I have discovered the real meaning of Christmas.

The Rev. Sackville Palmer, pastor of the church pronounced the benediction and the children retired to the lower auditorium of the church for their treats.

Study Guild Told of Visit To Prison

On Monday evening members of the Women's Study Guild met at the home of Mrs. H. Seldon, Dufferin Ave.

Mrs. M. Meldrum, the president, conducted the business. The Christmas meeting will be held December 17th.

Devotional thoughts on "Freedom or Slavery," were presented by Mrs. Wells.

"Reform in Women's Prisons" was the theme for the main program. Mrs. Lockyer vividly recalled retails of her visit to the Kingston Penitentiary (women's section) in 1962. The quarters were dismal. The long, dark halls, the sewing room, and the pantry with its tin cups and plates were never to be forgotten.

In May, 1962, Miss Tickell, with 16 others visited the beautiful stone Federal Women's Penitentiary south of Portsmouth, which houses 120 women prisoners, aged from 18 to 65 years.

In the gymnasium, laundry and typing room, much freedom of choice and training was evident. Here the inmates appeared not to be in uniform. However, in the sewing room it was disclosed that each prisoner had a choice of color, which gives variety.

Recently 50 new cells have been built in a circle around the older square building. Here much individuality is allowed.

Mrs. Reynolds described the work of Elizabeth Fry of 1817 and of Miss McNeill, present matron of the women's penitentiary.

The first Elizabeth Fry Society was formed in Kingston to assist prisoners to regain their places in society. She believed in reform rather than punishment.

Miss McNeill, a native of the Maritimes, did social work in Cobourg Training School and in Galt and during the war she studied methods in Europe. While at her present occupation she is using her influence to institute better methods of rehabilitation and training.

A lovely social hour followed the business session. Mrs. Demeza accompanied by Mrs K. Bird at the piano.

Mrs. Roy Jeffrey introduced the guest speaker the Rev. Gordon Woodcock, minister of Victoria Baptist Church He was introduced by Mrs. Jeffrey who chose a novel form of introduction based on the poem "The Night Before Christmas" with Mr. Woodcock the central figure in place of Santa. The speaker chose as his theme "The Kingdom of God."

Mrs. Davis expressed appreciative thanks to Mr. Woodcock for his sincere and thought provoking message.

Mrs. Clare conducted the business portion of the meeting and attendance records revealed a fair attendance. Mrs. Dallas gave a report on the bazaar as well as the report for the year which were held encouraging with the allocation having been met and a substantial balance on hand. Several other items of business were discussed, and the meeting closed.

The ladies gathered in the new recreation room where the serving table was prettily appointed with lace cloth and centred with an artistic Yule arrangement of holly and flanked with red candles in silver candelabra. The ladies enjoyed Christmas cake and a cup of tea.

UCW Hold Yule Meet

The United Church Women of Bridge Street Church held their December meeting in the newly built addition to the church with the president Mrs. Clare in charge, who expressed pleasure that the first Christmas meeting of the U.C.W. was held in the new addition.

Mrs. Moore conducted the devotional and read the Christmas story as found in Luke's Gospel with the Scripture passages divided into sections during which time Christmas carols were sung by all. She closed this portion of the meeting with a poem which compared the first Christmas with the Christmas of today.

A lovely vocal rendition was contributed by Mrs. Demeza accompanied by Mrs K. Bird at the piano.

Things Look Upside Down In Dizzy World

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Things look upside down and wrong side up as 1962 slithers toward a close in this dizzy world where mankind has been its own worst enemy.

Soviet troops in Cuba may be more help than danger, at least temporarily.

Gigantic Russia's relations with her giant Red Chinese ally never looked worse.

And U.S. allies may be worried because American-Russian relations suddenly seem better but for the wrong reason.

Russia, in addition to medium and intermediate range missiles which she withdrew under American pressure, gave Fidel Castro other weapons.

The Russian troops sticking around, perhaps to handle these other weapons in the very unlikely case of an American invasion, may be serving another purpose which benefits the United States.

KEEP FROM CASTRO

They may be also keeping the Soviet weapons out of the hands of Castro's unpredictables, particularly if they're the kind which could be used against the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo.

An attack on that base would really put the fat in the fire for then the United States would probably feel compelled to invade.

And if that happened Premier Khrushchev would probably feel compelled to go to Cuba's assistance—unless he washed his hands of close allegiance—even then all the fat there is would be in the fire.

It was Khrushchev's withdrawal of his missiles that set the Chinese in their current burst of vituperation against the Russians. Khrushchev has replied in kind.

RELATIONS BETTER

Once the Cuban scheme was discovered and Khrushchev backed down, relations between the United States and Russia became, if not downright cordial, at least amazingly non-hostile.

Last week before the Soviet parliament the Russian leader, from Khrushchev down, were so pleasant about the United States that in Paris the speech of Foreign Secretary Andrei Gromyko was regarded as "virtually pro-American."

It's too soon to say whether the purgation of the spirit which the two foes endured in the Cuban crisis has created an era of new and better relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

But Sunday French officials said they understood President de Gaulle, at his meeting with Prime Minister Macmillan, expressed concern at the possibility a special American-Soviet relationship might be developing.

HOT LINE DISTURBS

The most dramatic sign of a Washington-Moscow understanding, as de Gaulle was said to see it, lay in the plan, endorsed by President Kennedy, for so-called hot line between the White House and the Kremlin.

The idea behind such fast communication would be to lessen the chance of accidental nuclear war. To this extent Paris endorses it.

But some French authorities fear this kind of direct tie-in might lead to other political exchanges between the United States and Russia, making them both less concerned about Europe, particularly France and Britain.

Relatives Sit With Prisoners At Service

KINGSTON (CP) — Family Christmas chapel services at Collin's Bay Penitentiary next here were held for the first time Sunday with nearly 150 invited relatives and close friends attending.

The two prison chapels were filled for the services. The guests included some children.

After the services, they were given sandwiches, cake and coffee and allowed three hours of visiting.

Plans for the gathering were in the making for the last year. Warden Hett Smith and Assistant chaplain Canon Minto Swann worked out the idea.

Inmates with an unbroken record of chapel attendance for three months were given forms on which they could list persons they would like to have at the services. The names had to be approved by the warden, who pre-Christmas conference include:

1. The recent successes achieved by Red China in the border war with India, Kennedy and Macmillan evidently will go to Nassau convinced that the United States and Britain, with the Commonwealth countries, must give large-scale, long-term military help to India to bring its army up to minimum defence strength and to moderate it.

* * *

2. The Congo crisis resulting from inability of the United Nations to integrate secession-minded Katanga province with the central government. The U.S. fears that the dwindling power of Premier Cyrille Adoula and possible financial and military weakness of the UN will lead to a new civil war in The Congo and a new Soviet bid for political power in Africa.

Dean Acheson Says Britain Not Producing

NEW YORK (Reuters)—Dean Acheson says British scientific capability, produced after years of strain, amounted to only about four per cent of the total United States nuclear striking power compared to NATO.

Writing in the January issue of the quarterly Foreign Affairs, Acheson said this to support a declaration that it was "an illusion to believe that European nations can maintain independent nuclear deterrents within any time relevant to military planning, even if given the necessary technological help."

This was one of the points he made in support of a call for an agreed master strategic plan for NATO and for the forces to execute it.

Acheson, former state secretary, is an adviser to President Kennedy on NATO affairs.

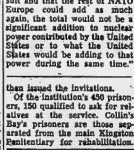
The article was written before Acheson delivered his recent West Point, N.Y., speech in which he declared Britain had about "played out" its role as an independent great power.

SUEZ 'COLONIAL'

It is also noted that Suez had been a "colonial" case which had been "gravely damaged" by the wrong thing to do" referring to the beginnings of NATO's "wholly inadequate" shield of conventional force, he said:

"Britain's meagre resources had been divided between an attempted nuclear force and garrison needs from Aden to Singapore, leaving little for the Army of the Rhine."

Discussing the demands for an independent European nuclear deterrent, he wrote in Foreign Affairs: "A European-produced nuclear force would be a tragic misuse of resources essential to provide basic elements of defence."



Together the European NATO allies spent on all defence only the same amount as the United States spent on nuclear weapons and delivery systems—$15,000,000,000 a year, he said, adding:

"The British nuclear effort over many years has strained their economic resources, reduced conventional forces to a minimum and produced a nuclear capability that can, perhaps, two per cent of the nuclear striking power which the United States could now bring to bear in the NATO area.

"If we assume that France is capable of matching that result and that the rest of NATO Europe could add as much again, the total would not be a significant addition to nuclear power contributed by the United States or to what the United States would be adding to that power during the same time-than issued the invitations.

Of the institution's 450 prisoners, 150 qualified to ask for relatives at the service. Collin's Bay's prisoners are those segregated from the main Kingston Penitentiary for rehabilitation.

Doris W. — She can't invite people over and then serve no food.

Nell A. — I only invite friends!

Doris W. — We'll never accept another of Nell's invitations! Imagine inviting people over for a Sunday evening party from 5 to 8 o'clock, and serving nothing but coffee and cake, plus a bar carrying on with the drinks! Why that's supertime for most of us.

Those who think too much of a nonconformist Nell is were prepared for this treatment. We're used to it, however, and we were taken by surprise.

As we left she rounded up two other couples and took down town for a triple-decker corned beef sandwich. What kind of a Sunday party we don't need. Never again!

Nell A. — Sunday is a day for Sunday dinners, and since my invitation didn't say dinner, you'd asume Doris would have known they wouldn't be fed at 2 o'clock. We eat our dinner at 2 on Sundays. Most of my friends have the big meal after Church any time during the afternoon. So I figured 5 to 8 would be understood as "after dinner."

I'm trying to start a trend around here where everyone I know has enough to eat, why must I feed them? We like to see them and they like to see us. But food? Most of us are overweight, anyway. I feel acted like a real friend to Doris, holding off on the calories. I hope she'll come to see us, not sandwiches!

The Council: There's an old proverb which says without food love's no good talk. and without good talk there's no good food. Well, here's Doris putting in some good talk in behalf of good food, more of it at Nell's home. And here's Nell trying to talk her out of it!

We feel Doris is justified in refusing further invitations from Nell unless the latter gets a few things clear in her own mind about hospitality, and then learns to make her invitations crystal clear to her guests so they know exactly what to expect.

From time immemorial food and love have been linked. The acme of friendship is expressed by an invitation to "break bread together" in one's home, over a dinner that one has carefully prepared. After a leisurely repast, the two boys in question will the conversation rolls along in a relaxed manner. Hence the popularity of dinner parties at home.

But Nell is out to grab the headlines, and succeeds, however, part. It's a neat trick if she can do it. It has been done under certain circumstances.

First, Nell must remember that it's a party she's inviting people to — not committee meeting. So there must be festive, special air about it's occasion. Flowers, music, interesting finger sandwiches and desserts are in order.

Then she must accept it's fact, correctly pointed out by Doris, that —despite the noncomformist urge — there are really accepted mealtimes in our society. It follows that there are also accepted times for not tween-mealtimes, too. From 3.00 to 8.00 P.M. would be considered a proper Sunday. Nothing to do with it. Well's hours should have been 3.00 to 6.00 or 7.00 to 9.00 P.M. In addition, she should have mentioned "afternoon tea," "refreshments" or "dessert party."

Most important, for good talk and good fellowship she must collect the sort of friends who can grow mellow over a platter of soda crackers!

Although the U.S. believes all offensive missiles and the IL-28 jet bombers have been pulled out of Cuba—without, however, being 100 per cent certain—a huge quantity of Soviet defensive weapons, including anti-aircraft missiles, remains ready for use.

The mission of the four battalions apparently is to be two-fold: To defend first the ballistic rocket bases and now the anti - aircraft batteries against any invasion attempt by the U.S.; to keep control of the nuclear warheads in the hands of reliable Soviet military personnel—and out of the hands of Cuban Premier Castro.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mrs. W. J. Barlow was hostess to the WA on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance. Mrs. Bell of Stirling conducted a demonstration on corsages, which proved most interesting.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the house of Mr. Newt Wilson early Wednesday morning. The house was not occupied at the time of the fire.

Those attended the funeral of Carman Sine on Thursday afternoon at Springbrook United Church. Interment was in Bethel Cemetery.

Mrs. Wilson, Belleville, and Mrs. A. V. Brown, will leave on Dec. 17th by plane for Florida for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. James McComb, Sheldon and Sandy, were weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Burkitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wellman, Mrs. Dave Wellman and Charlie attended the funeral of Blake Gifford at Exeter on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt on Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burkitt.

Congolese Pelt British Embassy

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (Reuters) — Congolese demonstrators yelling "Down with the British" hurled tomatoes at the British embassy and some of its staff here today in an apparent protest against Britain's Katanga policy.

Congolese gendarmes broke up the demonstration.

Embassy officials said the only "casualty" was a staff member whose shirt was splattered by yelling demonstrators.

Eye witnesses said about 20 Congolese were involved in the demonstration.

United Nations Secretary-General U Thant has invoked sweeping measures—including a request that Britain bar exports of Katanga copper and cobalt through Northern Rhodesia—in an effort to end the province's secession.

Britain, however, has expressed opposition to any sanctions about economic sanctions or other measures which could lead to fighting, while publishing that the role of the UN was one of conciliation rather than the use of force.

Pentagon and CIA Intrigues Said Threat to U.S. Liberty

CHICAGO (AP) — Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the U.S. Supreme Court says the freedom of Americans is threatened by what he termed intrigues by the Pentagon and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Douglas says facts are concealed from Americans for political and commercial purposes in violation of the spirit of the Bill of Rights.

Douglas' discussion of threats to individual rights was printed in a 48-page booklet, Freedom of the Mind, published Friday by the American Library Association and the Public Affairs Committee, Inc. He says:

"The press does not cover the operations of the Pentagon adequately. Nor can it report truthfully on the Central Intelligence Agency."

MOVEMENTS NOT KNOWN

"This agency has been more responsible than any other agency for the troubles in the Middle East. Its movements are not known. The manner in which it intervenes in foreign elections with its money bags is not known.

"The reasons why it supports feudal regimes, the results of its policies, the dangers that it generates are not known even to many of the informed press."

Douglas said "secrecy" of the CIA and Pentagon operations is defended on grounds of national security; and obviously matters of espionage and counter-espionage, as well as many matters of policy, cannot be publicized if they are news items.

Yet, why should the CIA efforts to fix the 1962 elections abroad be a secret to the American people when they are notorious in the foreign nation?"

42 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six Canadian provinces reported no accidental fatalities during the weekend, but the death toll in the other four provinces was at least 42.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday shows 35 of the deaths were in road accidents.

Ontario reported 12 highway deaths, including three in one accident, one drowning and three in fires.

Quebec had 11 road deaths and one drowning, British Columbia 10 road deaths and one drowning, and in Nova Scotia there were two traffic fatalities and one person died from exposure.

The survey does not include natural deaths, known suicides or industrial accidents.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Let's face the facts!

The time is coming when Canada will have to send a Stanley Cup winner abroad to win a world hockey championship.

A Swedish national hockey club which graduated with honors from a Canadian-tutored class not only defeated our representatives from Saskatoon—but added insult to injury by lopsided scores.

That initial 7-0 defeat was understandable. So was the Canadian alibi that the Quakers were a tired crew after a long air flight. The same thing happened to the McFarlands in 1939 when they tied a Paisley, Scotland, club.

But that 13-3 drubbing the Quakers absorbed the other night with the Swedes winning going away and easing up in the third period is a hockey horse of another color.

The Saskatoon Quakers, I understand, are rated among the top senior amateur clubs in Canada, along with the Trail Smoke Eaters. They must rate something or that august body, the CAHA, would not have selected them.

The Swedish club, according to newspaper reports, is the same team that rubbed us out in the last world tourney. They have a year's experience and training tacked on.

Of course they are playing in their own backyard, and under international rules. That alibi that the Quakers are not accustomed to European rules is rather weak. Former Canadian teams quickly adapted themselves to the continental book—and defeated top European teams.

The simple fact is that the Quakers are not good enough—nor were not good enough to defeat Sweden, and now they're in the land of the Czechs where the going will be tough. The Czechs are nobody's hockey fools. And they won't pull any punches.

Art Potter, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president, said he "was surprised at the lopsided scores. It may be they have not become accustomed to the style of play in Europe."

That is a lame excuse. The McFarlands, the Dunlops, the Smoke Eaters, in fact any Canadian club that has played in Europe quickly adapted themselves to the style of play and were not swamped by 7-0 and 13-3 scores in the learning.

The fact remains that unless the Trail Smoke Eaters are a helluva lot better than the Saskatoon Quakers, Canada is going to take it on the button again at Stockholm next March.

I believe the day of the community club representation in world hockey is over. In fact it has been for some time.

We taught the Europeans how to play hockey—and we did a good job. Now the student is giving the teacher a lesson.

But in my opinion they have a lesson that Canada can learn if she wants to remain at the top of the world hockey heap.

They select the best players in the nation. They train and coach them as a unit for a year or more. They add talent as it shows.

As this column has always advocated, our reply to the overseas hockey threat is a specially selected club of senior "A" players, taken from all parts of the country. Then do as they do in Europe—train them, coach them and play them as a club for a year.

That, I believe, is our only answer outside of a National League club.

'PLAYER OF YEAR'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Quarterback Len Dawson, who led Dallas Texans to the Western Division championship, was named the American Football League's player of the year Saturday. The selection was made by the league's eight teams in a poll conducted by the Sporting News. Buffalo Bills fullback Cookie Gilchrist, who came from Toronto Argonauts at the start of the season was picked for the No. 2 spot over Dallas halfback Abner Haynes.

Gump Dumps Blues Slump, Win Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Work doesn't bother Gump Worsley.

The Ranger netminder thrived on it during the weekend, making 83 saves to lead his teammates out of a six-game winless streak with two victories.

The 33-year-old Gumper made 38 saves Saturday night as Rangers dumped Canadiens 4-2 in Montreal. Jacques Plante of Montreal stopped only 14 shots.

Then Worsley kicked out 47 of 49 drives directed at him Sunday night as Rangers crushed Detroit Red Wings 5-2 in a fight-enlivened game.

Rangers' free man Andy Hebenton, who has played so many consecutive games he can't remember the last serious injury, scored three goals in Sunday's game, the season's first triple effort.

LEAFS TAKE TWO

Toronto Maple Leafs weren't slowed down by injuries during the weekend, winning both their games to move within two points of the first-place slot occupied jointly by the Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks.

Rookie defenceman Kent Douglas scored a goal and four assists in Toronto's 8-2 pasting of last-place Boston Bruins Saturday night.

Then the big M gathered three assists as Leafs whipped Chicago 6-2 Sunday night. Linemates Red Kelly and Eddie Shack each scored twice.

In the other game Saturday, the Red Wings scored twice late in the third period to edge the Black Hawks 3-1. Veteran Gordie Howe assisted on both goals as he moved into a three-way tie with Stan Mikita of Chicago and Andy Bathgate of New York for the scoring championship, each with 11 goals and 18 assists.

Montreal whipped the hapless Bruins 5-2 in Boston Sunday night. Centre Henri Richard broke a minor slump with two goals and Montreal left winger Gilles Tremblay marked his 24th birthday with his 13th goal of the season.

Apart from Mahovlich with two and Douglas and Red Armstrong with one, Leafs goals Saturday were scored by Billy Harris, Dave Keon, Dick Duff and George Armstrong.

Boston's scorers were linemates Johnny Bucyk and Tom Williams.

In Montreal, Camille Henry, Al Langlois, Jean Ratelle and Andy Bathgate scored the New York goals. Left winger Donnie Marshall scored both Montreal goals, one in the first period and the other in the third.

USE POWER PLAY

Saturday afternoon in Detroit, the Red Wings took their 3-1 win through a power-play goal by Parker MacDonald with less than five minutes left to play and an insurance goal into an empty Chicago net by Norm Ullman with 62 seconds left.

Rookie centre Alex Faulkner of Detroit and Ron Murphy of Chicago had scored the game's two previous goals, both in the first period.

In New York Sunday night, Rangers held a 2-1 lead after the first two periods although the Red Wings outshot them 37-10.

Hebenton's three goals were his 10th, 11th and 12th of the season. Bathgate and left winger Dave Balon also scored for New York, while MacDonald scored both Detroit goals, boosting his season's total to 16.

The game was featured by 48 minutes of penalties in the last four minutes as a brawl broke out between Balon of Rangers and Terry Sawchuk and defenceman Doug Barkley of Detroit.

Then Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby was given a 10-minute misconduct and a match misconduct when Hebenton scored his third goal at 17:27 of the third period. Marcel Pronovost of Detroit also drew a 10-minute misconduct on the play.

Kelly's two goals in the second period in Chicago Sunday night gave the Leafs a 4-1 lead, allowing them to coast to the 6-2 win. Ron Stewart and Bob Pulford also scored for Leafs. Mikita and Eric Nesterenko scored Chicago's goals.

Roaring Rookie Scores In 30 Seconds

Armstrong Makes Eye-Pop Debut

By PAUL RINSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—The proudest hamlet in Canada Saturday night was a place called the Irish Block, population approximately 50.

The Irish Block is a cluster of farms just south of Owen Sound and it's the home of Norman (Red) Armstrong, a swaggering hockey player who made an eye-popping debut in the National Hockey League.

Armstrong played for only one minute and 31 seconds for Toronto Maple Leafs in their 6-2 win over Boston Bruins but scored a goal the first time he touched the puck.

The rugged redhead was on the ice only 30 seconds before scoring his first NHL goal—not bad for a fellow the Leafs sent home from their training camp this year. To top it off he also got an assist Sunday night against Chicago.

"Yep," he said with a smile in the dressing room, "it sure feels good."

TRIED OUT EARLIER

Armstrong, with Philadelphia in the United States Eastern League last season, tried out with the Leafs in September but manager-coach Punch Imlach admits he didn't think the 22-year-old defenceman - winger was pro material.

Imlach sent him home but Armstrong was determined and instead joined Cleveland Barons of the American League.

"I was all set to play an exhibition game with Cleveland against Chicago Black Hawks when Rochester Americans (Leafs' AHL affiliates) informed Cleveland I was on their list," said Armstrong. "I didn't know about it."

Rochester didn't want him either, so Armstrong went home, his hopes for a professional contract seemingly gone. He would go back to Philadelphia.

But Murph Chamberlain, coach of Sudbury Wolves in the Eastern Professional League, heard about Armstrong, got clearance from Imlach and telephoned the Irish Block.

After spending a few weeks as a Sudbury defenceman, the big fellow was moved to left wing and the shift paid off. Armstrong's fists earned him the title of heavyweight champ of the EPHL and he started to score goals.

Friday night, his last game with Sudbury before joining the Leafs, Armstrong scored the winning goal with less than two minutes to play to give Sudbury a 3-2 win over the league-leading Kingston Frontenacs.

Imlach laughed after Saturday night's game.

Packers, Giants Go For NFL Title

Bears Defeat Lions

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Green Bay Packers, playing with the Western Division title safely tucked away, defeated Los Angeles Rams 20-17 Sunday in a tune-up for a repeat National Football League title game against New York Giants at Yankee Stadium Dec. 30.

Chicago Bears took the pressure off the Packers by sinking Detroit Lions 3-0 on a fourth-quarter field goal by Roger LeClerc.

LeClerc's nine-yarder at Chicago sailed through the uprights about kickoff time for the Packers at Los Angeles. A Lions victory and Packer loss would have thrown the western race into a tie.

The Giants, who sewed up the eastern title two weeks ago, slipped past Dallas Cowboys 41-31 at Y. A. Tittle, threw six touchdown passes for an NFL season record of 33. Johnny Unitas of Baltimore set the previous mark of 32 in a 1959 season in 1959 and Sonny Jurgensen of Philadelphia Eagles tied it with 32 in the current 14-game campaign.

In the other season windup games, Baltimore smothered Minnesota 42-17, Pittsburgh edged Washington Redskins 27-24 and St. Louis Cardinals outscored Philadelphia 45-35. Cleveland Browns topped San Francisco 49ers 13-10 Saturday.

In the American League, an all-Texas title game was set up for Dec. 23 when Houston Oilers clinched the eastern crown by beating New York Titans 45-10 Saturday.

In AFL season-winding games Sunday, Dallas Texans, west winners, defeated last year's west champs, San Diego, 26-10 and Oakland Raiders won 20-0 over Boston Patriots after loss and straight this season.

The Packers ran their season mark to 13-1 by subduing the remarkably stubborn Rams, who wound up with their worst slate in history, 1-13-1. Packers coach Vince Lombardi kept his regulars in action all the way and even called Paul Hornung, who has been hobbled with injuries, for duty in the second half. An 80-yard drive by Hornung's pass play provided the winning points.

Jim Taylor, voted the NFL's outstanding player, set a record with his 19th touchdown topping the season mark of 18 established by Steve Van Buren in 10 1949 games. Van Buren and Jim Brown in 13 games in 1958 add in 14 games this year.

TITTLE HURT

Tittle and his replacement, Ralph Guglielmi, were hurt Sunday but probably will be ready for the playoff. Tittle hit fullback Alex Webster with two touchdown passes and threw three to end Joe Walton and one to flanker Frank Gifford.

The Colts tried to give the game to the Vikings for three quarters and then erupted for four touchdowns in the last quarter. Unitas pitched for two touchdowns in 69 seconds and wound up with a flourish of two touchdown pass play covering 80 and 76 yards.

Pittsburgh finished with its best mark in history, 9-5, by holding off a fourth - quarter Washington rally. The Redskins, who lost quarterback Norm Snead in the first quarter on a shoulder injury, dropped their fifth straight.

Lou Michaels of the Steelers ran his NFL season field goal mark to 26, with two boots in the third quarter. George Izo, subbing for Snead for the first time all year, threw two touchdown passes in the last quarter.

The Cardinals and Eagles put on a passing show that topped the NFL single - game mark. Jurgensen threw five long touchdown passes and gained 419 yards in the air. The Cardinals got 415 yards, with quarterback Charlie Johnson picking up 386. The total of 834 surpassed the record, 821 in the New York - Washington game Oct. 23.

Bobby Ply tied the AFL record for interceptions with four against the Chargers.

Clay Meets Powell in January

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Louisville heavyweight Cassius Clay will meet Charley Powell in a 10-round fight at Pittsburgh Jan. 24, William Faversham, Clay's financial manager, said Sunday.

Faversham said Clay's backers are sending him against the unranked Powell because he is taller and heavier than Clay. "We want Clay to fight a rugged, big man obviously thinking about the future."

Powell is a 225-pound former professional football player. He fought from 1953-56, quit for four years, and teased again in 1960-61. He has had one fight since, outpointing Dave Furch at Los Angeles Nov. 1.

His record is 22 victories, five losses and three draws. Clay has a 15-0 record including 13 knockouts.

Smokies Help Quakers

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Saskatoon Quakers meet Czechoslovakia's national hockey team in Prague tonight, hoping to recoup some of the Canadian hockey prestige lost in the Quakers' two miserable defeats here by the Swedish nationals.

The Saskatoon senior club will be reinforced on defence by the addition of Don Fletcher and Harry Smith, being hurried to Prague from Trail, B.C., where they regularly play with the Smoke Eaters.

The slick Swedes smeared the Quakers 13-3 Friday night after beating the Canadians 7-0 the night before.

Following the 13-3 drubbing Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, made a telephoned plea to Trail for rear-guard reinforcements.

Smoke Eaters responded by shaking loose Fletcher and Smith. Both have played in Europe previously. They were with Trail when it won the world championship for Canada in 1961.

Took Ten On First, Shot a 75

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Defending champion Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., scored a repeat win in the Mexican open golf tournament Sunday—but Toronto's Alvie Thompson caused all the talk.

Lema carded a 71 for a winning 72-hole total of 281 and Thompson shot a 75 Sunday to take third place with a total 286, one stroke behind veteran Jackson Bradley of Houston, Tex., and tied with Don Massengale of Jacksboro, Tex.

Thompson came up with an amazing round. Shooting 75 on a par-72 course isn't amazing but it's highly unusual when you take a 10 on the first hole.

Thompson, winner of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title last summer, hit three drives out of bounds for an exasperating start.

But the 36-year-old pro from Toronto-Northwood, playing his first winter circuit, recovered with birdies on the second, third, seventh and ninth holes—missing a hole-in-one on the latter by six inches. Then he birdied the 14th and 16th to come in with a remarkable 40-35—75.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver also shot a 75 Sunday to finish fifth with 287, one stroke behind Thompson and Massengale.

Lema was 72-68-69-71—281 for the tourney, Thompson 70-68-73-75—286 and Leonard 70-72-70-75—287.

In Seventh Round

Doug Jones Knocks Out Folley

NEW YORK (AP)—Dropped in the first round, underdog Doug Jones of New York, came back strong and knocked out heavyweight contender Zora Folley in one minute, 38 seconds of the seventh round of a televised 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

The knockout came suddenly as Folley was leading going into the seventh round. The fifth ranking heavyweight contender had floored Jones with a left and right in the first round and seemed on his way to his second straight victory over Jones and his 10th in a row.

Then Jones, who had been carrying the fight to his sharp-shooting and heavier rival, nailed the Chanler, Ariz., heavyweight with a left hook to the jaw. He followed with another left and right and dropped Folley to the canvas.

Folley fell on his seat. He started to rise at five and then fell back on his haunches at seven. He made another effort to rise but referee Arthur Mercante tolled the full count of 10.

Folley, a 12-to-5 favorite, weighed 195½ to Jones' 185.

Folley, who had been clamoring for a shot at heavyweight king Sonny Liston, saw his hopes dashed. Jones, a high ranking light heavyweight, has been fighting among the big boys this year. The startling triumph vaulted him high among the heavies.

It was the fifth knockout loss for Folley, whose record now is 62-8-2. Jones, never stopped in his four year career, now has a record of 21-3-1, including 13 knockouts. It avenged his decision loss to Folley in Denver last Aug. 1.

Gordie Howe who assisted in the tying and winning goals as Detroit downed Chicago 3-1 Saturday to climb into a tie for league leadership and who set up both Red Wings goals in their 5-2 defeat by New York Sunday. This effort moved him into a tie for NHL scoring leadership.

Frank Mahovlich who added two goals to his league-leading total in Toronto's 8-2 rout of Boston Saturday and assisted in three more as Maple Leafs trounced Chicago Sunday.

Kent Douglas, Toronto's much - publicized rookie who lived up to his advance billing Saturday by scoring once and assisting in four other goals against Boston.

Andy Hebenton, New York's iron man, who became the first player in the NHL this season to score three goals in one game when he provided the victory margin in Rangers' win Sunday against Detroit.

Suspend Two Players Ten Games

TORONTO (CP)—Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, announced 10-game suspensions Sunday for Duncan MacDonald of Toronto Marlboros and Bill Smith of Whitby Dunlops.

The suspensions were handed down after the players had been given match misconduct penalties for intent to injure during the third period of a Marlboro-Dunlops OHA Metro Junior A game last Tuesday at Whitby.

Pollock ruled that the two players must sit out six games against any other team in the league and four games between Whitby and Toronto.

Petes, Baby Habs Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens and Peterborough Petes, fighting it out for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association provincial Junior A group, both came up with wins in weekend action.

Montreal trounced the last-place Guelph Royals 8-3 Sunday while Peterborough defeated St. Catharines Black Hawks, also 8-3.

The results left Montreal with 26 points, Peterborough with 25, Niagara Falls with 22, Hamilton with 19, St. Catharines with 17 and Guelph with nine.

Ron Naud, Peterborough left winger, scored four times against St. Catharines, twice in the first period and once in each of the last two periods. The outburst gave him a season's total of 16 goals. Bryan Watson, Jerry Grant, Lorne O'Donnell and Don Harriman completed the scoring for Peterborough.

Defenceman Doug Jarrett scored twice for St. Catharines, and Fred Stanfield got the other.

At Montreal, Johnny Taylor led the Canadiens with three goals. Bill Inglis had two and Leo Thiffault, Germain Gagnon and Andre Bourdias had one each.

Broden Smith, Trevor Faher and Doug Davidson tallied the Guelph goals.

Le Metro Junior A action Sunday, Oshawa Generals defeated Brampton 6-2 and Knob Hill beat Toronto Marlboros 3-1.

League Eliminates Vancouver

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Officials of the old Pacific Coast Baseball League took six hours to get rid of one member Saturday, then quickly invited three new members into a session to thrash out the 1963 schedule.

Members of the old league formally eliminated Vancouver Mounties and accepted Dallas-Fort Worth, Denver and Oklahoma City from the old American Association as new members of the 10-team circuit.

Some members were reported in favor of a 144-game slate, others 156 or, 162 games.

The old league members include Salt Lake City, San Diego, Tacoma, Portland, Seattle, Spokane and Hawaii.

In eliminating the Vancouver club, directors of the old league passed a resolution which appointed a committee of three to study ways of reactivating the franchise. However, the resolution stipulated that the Mounties must "stabilize their financial position."

EARNINGS POOR

It was the poor financial showing in 1962 and a last-minute withdrawal of a working agreement with the Minnesota Twins of the American League that resulted in Vancouver's elimination from the new Triple A alignment agreed upon at the recent baseball meetings in Rochester, N.Y.

Chatham Maroons moved into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings Saturday, then fell back into second spot Sunday.

The Maroons went to the top with a 5-4 decision over Galt Terriers at Galt Saturday night. This dropped Windsor Bulldogs into second place, but Windsor easily defeated Galt 9-3 Sunday at Windsor to go back on top.

In the other weekend game, third-place Woodstock Athletics remained two points back of Windsor with an 8-4 win over Sarnia Rams Saturday night.

Chatham's win over Galt came the hard way. Frank St. Marseille scored in the fifth minute of overtime. Dave Lochnak, Gus Morison, Jack Douglas and Ted Power scored the other Chatham goals.

TIES SCORE

Bob McKnight, Carl Hatt, Bill Wylie and Lloyd Mercer scored for Galt. Wylie tied the score for Galt with only 33 seconds left in regular time.

Sarnia and Woodstock both were undermanned for their game, Rams using 10 players and Athletics 11. Woodstock gave the win with four unanswered third-period goals. Sarnia now has won only one game first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings Saturday, then fell back into second spot Sunday.

Ben Blue Closes Nitery, Blames Expense Crackdown

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ben Blue put on one of his funniest shows at his Santa Monica night club. Then he stepped in front of the curtain and announced the place was closing.

This marked the end of the five-year career of Ben Blue's nitery. "You might call it 'death of a fun salesman,'" said the comic.

Romanoff's ends its 25-year history this month, and Blue predicts that many more class restaurants and night spots will follow. He cites this cause: The government's crackdown on expense-account spending.

"Much of our business came from big industry — aircraft, missiles—who would bring their friends and clients in for entertainment. We also got a lot of tourists who were in town on expense accounts. We can't depend on the local people for patronage."

SPENT $40,000

Blue said he spent $40,000 on redecoration and re-opened in September. "I couldn't figure out why we couldn't build up the business. Then I realized that the credit-card clientele had fallen off."

Fortunately for Blue, he is a same entertainer who can work in any medium, but he predicts a bleak future for many other bistro owners.

"I think this tightening of expense-account spending is going to close as many as 20,000 restaurants," he predicted. "And it's going to be the class joints that fold."

NE Handgun Club Holds Holiday Shoot

A number of prim turkeys were won by members of the Northern Electric (Belleville Handgun Club), revolver section, in a special Christmas shoot at the Armouries recently.

Jack Braxford and Bill Gee finished one-two in group one; Richard J. Charlton and Sir Alexander Manjuris in group two; Donald Cushing and Bob Lavender in group three.

David R. Buchanan and Wayne Wickett took top honors in the "good luck target" competition, while Red Spracklett and Jack Braxford were winners in the slow firing shooting.

Kidd Runs Mile in 4.04

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (CP-AP)—Bruce Kidd of Toronto, who hopes to become the first Canadian to break the four-minute mile barrier, ran the mile in 4:04 Saturday night to top a field of five in an invitational track and field meet.

Kidd, the six-mile winner in the recent British Empire Games in Perth, Australia, holds the Canadian native record for the mile of 4:01.4.

Vic Zowiak, U.S. indoor mile champion from Villanova, finished second in 4:07.8. Yale's Bob Mack, the Ivy League mile champion, was third at 4:10.8, followed closely by Kidd's Toronto teammate, Bill Crothers.

Giants Make Six-Man Deal With Orioles

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco Giants and Baltimore Orioles made a wholesale exchange of 1962 pitching disappointments Saturday and threw two young catchers into a six-man deal announced only a few hours before the inter-league trading deadline.

The National League champions sent Stu Miller, Mike McCormick, pitcher, and John Orsino to the Orioles for Jack Fisher, Billy Hoeft and catcher Jim Coker.

Lema Wins Mexico Open

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Defending champion Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., won the Mexican Open golf tournament again Sunday with a 71 for a 72-hole total of 283.

A steady one-under-par round clinched the second straight title for the ex-marine, who finished with a four-stroke margin over veteran Jackson Bradley of Houston, Tex.

Bradley shot a 74 for 285. The victory was worth $3,000 to the 29-year-old Lema, who won his fourth tournament of the year in a year-end surge.

WIN GOLF TOURNEY

SEBRING, Fla. (AP)—Mason Rudolph of Lehigh Acres, Fla., and Kathy Whitworth of Jal, N.M., won the $30,000 Scotch Mixed foursomes golf tournament Sunday with a 72-hole score of 272. They had rounds of 70-67-67-68 and each collected $3,225 first prize money.

Viewers Said Getting Little Tired of All Doctor Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television entertainment these days is getting deeper and deeper in medical themes.

Sunday night, even good old Bonanza had a hero who was a dedicated frontier doctor. We watched him pour ether in a cone and have his brow mopped as he did a little lung surgery on one of the Ponderosa boys. The hangman's rope awaited him outside the surgery but his hand was as steady as a rock.

This was followed immediately on NBC by The Ordeal of Doctor Shannon. I never read the A. J. Cronin novel, Shannon's Way, from which it allegedly was adopted, but the television Dr. Shannon was a dedicated research man trying to find a vaccine for influenza.

The rather fuzzy point of the shapeless and wandering story seemed to be that too much dedication to vaccine interferes with romance—something I already had picked up from Doctors Casey and Ehlers.

I'm sorry to say I'm getting a little tired of doctor shows. And that includes the mandatory spoof of Ben Casey by a comic on every variety show every week.

Dinah Shore has Bing Crosby for her guest star on her Feb. 17 show.

Recommended tonight: Ben Casey, ABC 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. EST—Burgess Meredith is the guest star.

PALMER DEFEATED

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., was defeated by South Africa's Gary Player Saturday in their six-match South Africa challenge series. In the final 18 holes of the 108-hole series Player shot a 69 to Palmer's 71, giving Player an over-all score of 420 strokes to Palmer's 426.

At the Belle

"WE'LL BURY YOU", AND BRIGITTE BARDOT IN "AND GOD CREATED WOMAN"

One of the most shocking pictures ever brought to the screen, Columbia Pictures, "We'll Bury You" opens tomorrow, Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. A full-length documentary feature, "We'll Bury You", traces the rise of communism, graphically covering in dramatic fashion the history of our troubled times. Uncensored scenes from secret film archives include red slave labor camps, brutal terror of the OGPU, bloody purges and pogroms, and more!

"We'll Bury You", is more than a history of the Soviet Union: it takes in China, Korea and Cuba, troubled spots which figure so importantly in communism's master plan for world conquest.

Khrushchev is not the only Soviet notable to figure in "We'll Bury You". Stalin looms large and there are such historic personages as Trotsky, Malenkov, Molotov, Beria, Churchill and Roosevelt are shown with Stalin at Yalta, during World War II, and Macmillan at the United Nations. Castro, Mao Tse-Tung and other world figures-both famous and infamous, are to be seen.

More important are the new film scenes of the "little people" of Russia and the world, the men and women who lived and died for their beliefs in the founding days of the Russian Revolution and after; the farmers and workers, the women and children. "We'll Bury You" shows them marching and marching, starving and feasting, laughing and crying, in rebellion and in victory, in war and in peace.

Jack Thomas penned the breathless, absorbing and authentic commentary.

"AND GOD CREATED WOMAN"

Brigitte Bardot and Curt Jurgens, are co-starred in the fascinating romantic adventure story, "And God Created Woman", in color and cinemascope, the worthy companion feature offering. Complete showings daily at 2.00, 4.00, 6.00, 8.30, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, December 18

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — Inventiveness is key. Don't be backed into corner. Show associates, know workers you have ways, means of accomplishing goals. Take pride in job well done.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Good Moon aspect indicates opportunity for greater personal happiness. Emphasis on exchange of ideas, display of personality and personal magnetism. Wonderful for romance, travel, reading.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Relaxed attitude important. Don't press, push or demand. Be diplomatic. Win your way with love, sympathy. Be understanding. Other may come to you with problems. Take time to listen.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — Relations with family members highlighted. Stop thinking of past. Look to future. Realize words said in anger can be replaced by gestures of consideration. Go with tide. Refuse to brood. Break away from recent routine.

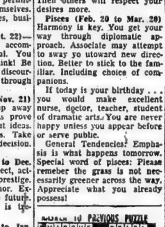
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Share hobbies, collections, benefits. Realize joy comes from pleasing loved ones. Utilize Leo showmanship. Make others simel. Sincerity is key to happiness.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Express thoughts. Give others benefit of doubt. But refuse to bear burdens others should carry. Help friends by permitting them to help themselves. Applies also to relatives, business associates.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Take first step toward accomplishing important goal. You are closer than you think! Be creative. Refuse to be discouraged. Prove worth through daring action.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Share knowledge. Rip away mystery clouds. Friends prove of value in sounding out ideas. Head, express thoughts. Take time to make correct decision. Refus eto be rushed.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Community project, activity result in added prestige. Maintain sense of humor. Expand ambition. Look to future. Realize your potential is tremendous!



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Favorable lunar aspect stresses publishing, advertising and public relations. Means you can put across personal view. Let others see that your motives are fine and constructive.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Member of opposite sex demands attention. But be practical in evaluating expenditures. Don't become emotional "doormat". Highlight self-respect. Then others will respect your desires more.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Harmony is key. You get your way through diplomatic approach. Associate may attempt to sway yo utoward new direction. Better to stick to the familiar. Including choices of companions.

If today is your birthday . . . you would make excellent nurse, doctor, teacher, student of dramatic arts. You are never happy unless you appear before or serve public.

General Tendencies? Emphasis is what happens tomorrow. Special word of caution: Please remeber the grass is not necessarily greener across the way. Appreciate what you already possess!

TOWNSHIP

OF THURLOW

In the matter of The Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1960, Chapter 249, Section 632 and The Municipal Act, Chapter 249, R.S.O. 1960, that the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow proposes to consider, and, if deemed advisable, to pass at its regular meeting to be held at the Township Hall in the Village of Canifton on the 15th day of January, 1963 at 8:00 p.m. a By-law to close and stop up part of the unopened road allowance between Lots 2 and 3, Concession 2, which said parcel is described as follows:—

ALL AND SINGULAR that certain parcel or tract of land and premises, lying and being in the Village of Canifton in the Township of Thurlow in the County of Hastings and being composed of all that portion of Third Street according to a Plan filed in the Registry Office for the said County as Number 20, lying to the south and southeast limit of the Block of the King's Highway Number 37 between the said Plan and the said Registry Office, as Highway's Deposited Plan Number 1154, and lying north of the northeast limit of the Cloverleaf leading to and from Highway Number 401. Also Block of the King's Highway Registry Office, as Highway's Deposited Plan Number 1023.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that a Council meeting to hear the petition will be held at the time and place above mentioned. The Council of the Corporation of Township of Thurlow shall then and there hear in person or by counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who desires to be heard and will be jurisdictially affected by the said By-law or who has any objection to be heard.

Dated at Canifton this 10th day of December 1962.

D. DAFOE,

Clerk, Township of Thurlow

Minor Hockey

Following are the results of weekend games in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's Juvenile, Bantam and Fowzes divisions.

JUVENILE

The Hornets shutout the Comets 5-0. B. Denard scored two goals with P. Bennett, J. Woodcock and B. Denard getting one apiece. F. Jones and S. Woodcock had two assists each. Bennett, J. Woodcock, Goodfellow, B. Martin and J. Woodcock one.

Aces turned back the Tigers 5-3, led by B. Pursey with two goals. Murphy, Follwell and Hannah also scored. P. Soule drew two helpers. Fleming, Babcock and Law one each. F. Farrell scored on goal and assisted on the other for the losers. Wood had a goal and Bird an assist.

BANTAM

Quinte shaded the Canadiens 5-4 with two players scoring all the Quinte goals. R. Summers potted three goals and F. Denyes got the other two. M. Wardhaugh and D. Blaind drew assists. R. Mallory scored a pair, G. Cummings and T. Hamilton one for the losers. C. Rump getting the only assist.

Bruins and the Macs played to a 5-5 deadlock. Whitesell led the Bruins with three goals, B. LaRue and J. McKenzie also scoring. S. Thorne and A. Bradley drew two assists each, LaRue and R. McDougall one. D. Mair potted two goals for the Macbons, L. Blatchford and W. Keller one apiece for the Macs. B. Burgh, S. Lloyd, T. Accomore, I. Hope and P. Goodfellow had assists.

Browns topped the Black Hawks 4-1 with T. Boulter firing two goals and D. Clarke and K. Rose one each. W. McTaggart and T. Beresford drew assists. R. Day for the Hawks. Long was the Hawk scoring play.

The Flyers had a field day against the Barons, coming up with a 11-2 win. D. Meagher proved the winners with three goals and assists. M. Arcangelotti had two goals and two helpers, D. Demers one goal and two assists. R. Arcangelotti and D. Walls two goals apiece. A. Slapkauskas also scored while B. Woodman and Adams had assists. G. Sero, D. House and A. Jones one each. E. Willitson and G. Demers scored for the Barons. P. Howe aiding on one.

FEEWEE

The Bruins and Rangers fought to a 3-3 tie. D. Howe scored two and Burns one for Bruins and Moore also had an assist. Two goals by Hutchinson and Morrison were the Ranger markmen. Creswell, Anderson and Arnett had assists.

Maple Leafs dumped the Canadiens 7-3. T. Love, R. Barbour and Worndal scored two goals each and S. Ellis had the other. A. Bell, Love, Deveau and Scriven drew assists. Holstrup Potts scored two and R. Doyle one for the losers. A. Revill and Hyatt had assists.

Quinte defeated the Red Wings 4-2. Quinte goals were scored by Forbert, Finch, Woodman and Adams. Hubb and Adams drew assists. James fired Wings goals, Holstrup assisting on both and Bazuk on one.

Black Hawks downed the Kbes 3-1. Royes had two goals and an assist while Rivers had one and one. MacKenzie also had an assist. Vrooman potted the Mac goal.

Barons squeezed past the Browns 3-2. J. Blatchford, D. Irwin and J. Drummond triggered the Baronet goals. Topp and Tulloch getting helpers. Keller scored both of the losers goals, Martah getting an assist.

Cards Get Ron Taylor

ST. LOUIS (CP)—Pitcher Ron Taylor, from the Toronto suburb of Leaside, Sunday was traded by the American League cleveland Indians to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

Infielder Jack Kubiszyn, who played briefly with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in 1960, went with Taylor for first baseman-outfielder Fred Whitfield.

Taylor started last season with the Indians but finished with Jacksonville Suns of the International League.

Bisons Up Lead in American

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Art Stratton came back to haunt the old Springfield Indians teammates Sunday night while helping Buffalo Bisons strengthen their hold on first place in the Western Division of the American Hockey League.

Stratton, a 29-year-old left winger who played for Springfield last year, scored twice as the Bisons beat the Indians 4-1.

Stratton enabled Buffalo to increase its lead over runner-up Rochester Americans to seven points. The Americans were beaten 4-3 by Baltimore Clippers. In other games, Cleveland Barons scored three goals in the last minute and 35 seconds of the third period to gain a 4-4 overtime tie with Quebec Aces and Providence Reds turned back Pittsburgh Hornets 5-3.

Brian Smith and Billy Dea got Buffalo's other goals while Dennis Olson, Wally Boyer and Jimmy Anderson scored for Springfield.

Stratton's goals by Bryan Hextall and Leon Rochefort carried Baltimore to its victory.

SIGNED BY BOMBERS

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—Frank Horvath, Youngstown University's top ground gainer the past three seasons, has signed a professional contract with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League.

The 190th draft choice of Minnesota Vikings, Horvath agreed to terms with Winnipeg assistant coach Joe Zaleski.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

He has 29 points on 11 goals and 18 assists, the same totals as Chicago's Stan Mikita and Rangers' Andy Bathgate, who played in the leadership by scoring a goal while Bathgate served up a slat by scoring a twice.

Toronto's Frank Mahovlich boomed into the scoring race in his biggest weekend of the season, scoring two goals Saturday and two assists in Sunday's 6-4 win over Detroit Red Wings, to whose assist Sunday gives him 21, tops in the NHL.

Ab Mcdonald of Chicago was held scoreless in weekend action and slipped to a sixth-place tie on 26 points comprising 12 goals and 14 assists. Den Prentice has the same point count on 10 goals and 17 assists.

The leaders:

Loi Reigns World Title From Yank

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Veteran Duilio Loi of Italy regained the world junior welterweight boxing championship Sunday, outpointing Eddie Perkins of Chicago in 15 rounds Saturday night.

The pint-sized, 33 - year - old Italian thus avenged his first decision defeat at the hands of the 25-year-old American in this same city last Sept. 14.

It was their third meeting and evened the series for the 140-pound division title. They drew in their first fight in Milan Oct. 21, 1961.

The title fight was a fast, spirited and close battle all the way. At the finish, referee Georges Condre of France, the sole official, proclaimed Loi the winner without any hesitation after the final bell.

For a man who has had to struggle to make the division limit in the past, Loi was surprisingly light. He weighed 137½ pounds to Perkins' 138½.

National League

Tommy Davis Top Hitter

CINCINNATI (AP)—Tommy Davis' victory in the 1962 National League batting race was confirmed Saturday. The Los Angeles Dodgers' outfielder hit .346, four points higher than runner-up Frank Robinson of Cincinnati Reds.

The official averages also disclosed that Davis paced the circuit in runs batted in with 153 and hits with 230. He became the first National Leaguer to lead in batting, RBI and hits in the same season since Stan Musial of St. Louis in 1948.

Musial finished third in the '62 batting competition with a .330 mark. He was followed by teammate Bill White .324, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee .323, George Altman Chicago .318, Felipe Alou, San Francisco .318 and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, the 1961 titleholder, .312.

Willie Mays, San Francisco's star outfielder, won the home run crown with 49 while Robinson led in runs scored and 134 and doubles, 51.

Maury Wills of the Dodgers the league's most valuable player award winner, stole 104 bases and broke the modern big league record of 96 established by Ty Cobb of Detroit in 1915.

Wills, Bill Virdon of Pittsburgh, Johnny Callison, Philadelphia and Willie Davis of Los Angeles tied for the lead in triples with 10.

San Francisco had the highest team batting average, 2.78. Then came St. Louis .271, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh .268 each and Philadelphia .260.

END TOUR UNBEATEN

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Canada's British Empire Games eight-oar rowing crew completed an unbeaten tour of New Zealand Sunday when they outclassed four New Zealand club crews in a 2,000-metre race on the Wanganui River. The Canadian team was second in the four-man race. The Canadians are from the University of British Columbia.

Father Coughlin Thinks He Was Right in Attacking FDR For Joining up With Russia

By HAROLD SCHACHERN
Detroit News) Copyright

DETROIT (AP) — Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, one of the most controversial American figures in the 20th century, broke a 30-year public silence Saturday.

And the once-famed Canadian born radio priest insisted in an exclusive interview he was right in his caustic denunciations of president Franklin D. Roosevelt in the days during the rise of Hitler and the world's move toward world war in the 1930s. He said:

"I still think I was right, for instance, in breaking with Mr. Roosevelt for recognizing Russia. I still think I was right when I opposed him for giving the Russians $11,000,000 to set them up in business. And I still think I was right in opposing our entry into the war on the side of Russia."

Father Coughlin, now 71, said he had not granted an interview since his broadcast disappeared from the air in 1940, and his newspaper, Social Justice, was closed in 1941.

TRANSITION 'TRYING'

He conceded that the transition from a world figure to the quiet role of a parish priest had been a "trying one," and to say otherwise "would make me a liar."

Father Coughlin was born in Hamilton, Ont. He taught at Assumption College, Windsor, from 1916, the year he was ordained a priest, until 1923. He also was a teacher at Toronto St. Michael's College.

He showed much of his old vigor as he made these points of the interview:

Despite his defence of his own actions, he now believes that presidents should not be criticized.

Although convinced he was justified in denouncing not only Roosevelt but England and Russia as allies as well, he added: "It wasn't because I was for Germany, but here you had the extreme left and the extreme right of totalitarianism, both the same, and I felt we should let them fight it out among themselves."

'BIGOTRY PASSE'

Although once accused as an anti-semite, he concluded "bigotry is passe" and is today the private pursuit of professional hate peddlars.

He listed obedience to authority as his primary duty of man in all walks of life, a virtue he himself demonstrated in acceding to the wishes of his archbishop.

Although Father Coughlin has continued as an active preacher in his own pulpit at the Shrine of the Little Flower in suburban Royal Oak, his oratory has been but a pale echo of the flamboyant and often vitriolic rdio addresses that won him an estimated 30,000,000 Sunday listeners on 47 stations.

Recalling his pro - Second World War castigation of the British Empire and coining of the phrase, "international bankers," Father Coughlin said:

"I was strongly opposed to the British Empire for its political imperialism, and to international business for its economic imperialism.

Pontiff May

"looked well and had a good color" at the audience he gave to the king.

(The London Sunday paper News of the World says in its main frontpage story that delegates returning from the first session of the Vatican ecumenical council "all confirm" reports of the Pope's worsening condition.

(The paper quoted the pontiff as saying in his first general audience since November: "In a year the Pope will still be here, or maybe there will be another."

(The newspaper said: "It could have been a perfectly normal statement for an octogenarian, but many of those who were there left in tears, certain that the Pope was telling them gently he had little time to live.")

Professor Cesidio Lolli, another deputy director of L'Osservatore Romano, said the press statement about the Pope suffering from cancer did not come from any official source.

Lolli is a personal friend of Pope John's doctor, Professor Antonio Gasbarrini. He was the Vatican official who met the doctor at Rome railway station and took him to the Vatican when the Pope first became ill.

CAN'T KNOW MORE

Lolli told reporters: "These reports do not emanate from the Pope's doctors or from any official Vatican source and therefore they are an hypothesis made by someone who evidently cannot know more than the doctors."

Lolli said "the doctors have said there is an improvement in the Pope's health and he has not lost weight.

"The pontiff suffered a similar crisis six or seven years ago.

"Everything makes one think that it is not cancer.

"The medical bulletins suggest a weakening of the blood vessels of the stomach."

The Pope has been gradually resuming engagements since his illness at the end of last month.

Year-End Review

Versatility Best Describes Role Played by Canadian Army in Dozen Countries

OTTAWA (CP) — Versatility best describes the role played by the Canadian Army in more than a dozen countries in 1962 and it's typified by Major Marcel Marchessault of Winnipeg. He's housekeeper extraordinary for the headquarters organization of the United Nations force in the Congo and his job calls for diplomacy, bilingualism—he speaks French and English—and familiarity with the eating customs of Europeans, Indians, Nigerians, Malayans and Pakistanis.

Among his daily problems are satisfying the housing needs of more than 100 officers from 20 countries, administering a seven-storey apartment block that houses the Canadian signals unit in Leopoldville, running a transit camp for clerks, drivers and non-commissioned officers of all nations in the force and guiding the 127 Congolese working for the UN.

He is the first to hear, "in boxcar letters in 20 languages," when the power fails, the plumbing goes out of whack or someone doesn't get his national dish at dinner.

Maj. Marchessault is one of thousands of Canadians who have found that the army has taken over from the navy as the outfit to join if you want to see the world.

Besides the 300-man force of communications personnel in the Congo, the army in 1962 had 850 men with the UN Emergency Force in Egypt, the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade in West Germany, a group of instructors in Ghana and other officers and men on external affairs department and UN duty in Pakistan, Korea, Viet Nam, Laos, Britain, the United States, other country when survey France and Palestine.

Late in the year it added another country when a survey team left for Syria at UN request to chart a segment of the Israeli-Syrian armistice demarcation line.

CANADIAN PAYS CONGOLESE HELP — Typical of the varied international jobs Canadian army personnel performed in 1962 is that of Maj. Marcel Marchessault (right) of Winnipeg. A Canadian Guards officer and camp commandant at United Nations Headquarters in The Congo, he pays his Congolese employees at Camp N'Galiema in Leopoldville. An officer of the Irish Army helps him. (CP from National Defence)

At home, four national survival courses conducted by the militia were completed with 70, 108 men trained in basic techniques of dealing with nuclear attack.

The regular army conducted a 12,000-man manoeuvre at Camp Gagetown, N.B., and the parachute company of 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Light Infantry from Edmonton took part in an 8,000-man U.S. Army exercise in Alaska.

In the equipment field, it was announced the army would get new combat clothing designed for all-weather use. Starting in October, it took delivery of new Canadian-built snow vehicles, land the Bobcat armored personnel carrier was on the assembly line at Malton, Ont. Troops in Europe got light helicopters for reconnaissance.

Work continued on mapping the Canadian North as a 17-man crew of Royal Canadian Engineers completed topographical charts of Melville, Prince Patrick, Borden and Mackenzie King islands.

Two top men who retired during the year were Maj-Gen. M. P. Bogert, boss of Eastern Command, Halifax, and Maj-Gen. H. A. Sparling, top officer at Central Command, Oakville, Ont.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Must She Twirl the Baton?

DEAR DORIS—I have just had a heated discussion with a very good friend re teen-age children. Recently her daughter asked my girl (both 13) to join a baton class with her, as a friendly gesture, knowing that Marion was not in any outside social activity. Marion went with her at my request but not because she wanted to; she is very withdrawn socially.

Now Marion does not want to attend these classes any more, because she says she doesn't enjoy them and only went because I wanted her to. My friend thinks I am foolish not to make her go but I maintain a child should not be pushed into things she doesn't enjoy. Is this a lack of discipline? My friend says it is. Marion does no go out on dates or cause me any worry other than her lack of social activity. She has no confidence in herself — E. M. W.

DEAR E. M. W.—Forcing her would be the foolish way. Ever try to pry open a clam shell? It just squeezes together tighter. You don't want your girl to close up like a clam.

Confidence comes with a taste of success—in some thing, anything, which intrigues her. You're the one who can identify this and lead her up the garden path towards joy in living.

DEAR DORIS—My problem is this: I'm very shy and can not seem to discuss this with my doctor. I have had menopausal symptoms for at least four years. Now I worry fear I may be pregnant and not know it some time.

You have any books you could recommend for me or give me any advice I would be very thankful.—JOAN.

DEAR JOAN—My advice? See your doctor. Are you so shy you'd let a baby come along without asking? Besides, if it is "the Change," he can help you through it.

You and many another find such discussions embarrassing. But the doctor won't. Reach for the phone this minute; dial his number and get an appointment. Once you have blurted out your question and got an answer, you can breathe again.

TO WONDERING BLUE EYES—You must go to the child care agency for your area. Since you have not even indicated in which province you live, I cannot tell you where. I am quite sure your aunt does care about you. In any case, she is going to have to be involved in finding a solution to your terrible problem.

You are going to have to be concerned about the unborn baby who will be the innocent victim of your loose morals.

TO SOMEONE WHO KNOWS—Your comments printable—but not unless you are willing to identify yourself to me privately.

DEAR JUST LORRAINE—Little by little you are sinking deeper in the mire. If you don't try a social worker, what will you try? And why does he have to know?

Even if you can stand being pushed under (which Heaven forbid), your children deserve a break.

(When you write, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. You will not be identified in the column.)

JFK AND MACMILLAN MEET IN NASSAU

Record Export Sales Trim Trade Deficit

Up in October 10.6 Pct From a Year Earlier

OTTAWA (CP) — Record export sales in October have trimmed Canada's trade deficit to $36,700,000 for the first 10 months of the year, DBS Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

With exports to the United States continuing to rise, total exports in October were $618,-800,000, up 10.6 per cent from a year earlier, while imports totalled $971,100,000, up 3.1 per cent.

The October trade surplus—excess of exports over imports totalling $47,100,000 reduced by more than half the deficit accumulated in the first nine months of the year.

The 10-month deficit of $36,-700,000 compares with a trade deficit of $93,400,000 for the January-October period of last year.

Total exports for the 10 months rose 8.6 per cent to $5,-239,800,000 from $4,822,700,000 a year earlier while imports were up 11.6 per cent at $5,276,500,000 compared with $4,729,200,000.

In the January-October period, exports to the U.S. were up 19.3 per cent and imports from the U.S. were 14.8 per cent higher. In trade with the United Kingdom, exports in the 10 months were down 1.2 per cent while imports were 6.6 per cent higher.

This is the trade picture by main areas for the January-October period this year and last, in millions of dollars:

Exports	1962	1961
United States	$3,143.1	$2,635.4
United Kingdom	748.5	757.3
Other Cmwlth	271.5	272.3
All others	1,076.6	1,158.7
Total	5,239.8	4,822.7
Imports
United States	3,631.4	3,181.9
United Kingdom	478.2	510.3
Other Cmwlth	297.9	283.9
All others	880.9	796.4
Total	5,276.5	4,729.2

The strong rise in exports to the U.S. helped reduce Canada's traditional deficit on trade with the U.S. from $1,306,400,000 for the 10 months, down $38,100,000 from last year. The drop in import buying from the United Kingdom was the main factor in reducing Canada's surplus with the U.K. to $272,400,000 from $347,200,000 a year earlier.

GETS STEEL ORDER

HALIFAX (CP)—The Chronicle-Herald says it has learned Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's Sydney steel works has received a $15,000-ton rail contract and 8,000,000 feet of tie dia. In an Ottawa dispatch, the newspaper says the first of the rails are being rolled and will be put aboard the British freighter Riverlore this week.

DR. P. McGEER, LIBERAL, WINS B.C. BYELECTION

Polls More Votes Than All Candidates

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal Dr. Patrick McGeer, polling almost as many votes as his three opponents combined, Monday scored an upset byelection victory in the provincial riding of Vancouver Point Grey, a Social Credit stronghold for six years.

Dr. McGeer's election also represented the first byelection defeat in two years for the Social Credit government of Premier W. A. C. Bennett. He replaces Mrs. Buda Brown, Social Credit, who died last summer.

Reg Atherton, 39-year-old accountant, polled the Progressive Conservatives narrowly into second place with 8,784 votes to 8,447 for Mrs. Eva Burns-Miller, Social Credit candidate.

Antony Holland, 42, New Democratic Party candidate, trailed with 3,202.

Dr. McGeer polled 21,689 votes. The 52-year-old scientist will represent the riding in the provincial House in conjunction with Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Social Creditor Tom Bate.

His election brings to five the number of Liberals in the 52-seat British Columbia legislature. There are 31 Social Creditors and 16 CCF-New Democratic Party members. There are 'o Progressive Conservatives.

Dr. McGeer, nephew of the late J. G. (Gerry) McGeer, said when victory was evident: "This name of McGeer certainly didn't hurt me."

Gerry McGeer was a Liberal member of the legislature, twice mayor of Vancouver, a member of Parliament and a senator. At times he was various combinations of all of them.

However, the doctor didn't stress the name during the campaign, stating: "I'm not going around showing everyone pictures of uncle Gerry."

Gerry McGeer was many things at once. In 1935 he resigned from the legislature to accept the Liberal nomination for the House of Commons and was elected. He was re-elected in 1940. Five years later he was summoned to the Senate.

Makers Greatly Overplay Safety Of Tranquilizers Claims Doctor

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Gaston Morin, clinical director of the Ottawa General Hospital department of psychiatry, has accused drug manufacturers of "grossly overplaying the safety of tranquilizers."

He was testifying Monday at the inquest into the death of Maurice Denault, 37, found dead in his boarding house Dec. 1.

A coroner's jury decided early today that Denseult had become habituated to taking meprobamate and "that put prior to his death he had lost any awareness he may ordinarily have had of the possible effects of his taking massive doses of the drug regularly during a short period of time."

The jury recommended that "drugs of this toxic nature should be classified and restricted as in the case of barbiturates."

Dr. Morin said Denault had a long history of mental disorder. He said the expression "happy pill" was associated with meprobamate.

"It brings on a state of blessed stupidity in which nothing matters any more," he said.

Dr. Morin said forgetfulness is one of the dangerous results of taking meprobamate.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Moist air covered most of Ontario this morning. The winds were light and the temperature a little above normal. A mixture of fine rain and light snow is falling in some southern sections. Not much change is likely for the next day or so. Very cold air that covers the extreme northern sections of the province does not show any tendency to move southward.

NATIONAL CRISIS SAID LOOMING OVER CANADA

English-French Unity Stressed

OTTAWA (CP) — A national crisis looms over Canada, the Commons was told Monday. To avert it, Canadians must come to grips with the fact they live in a bicultural country.

This was largely devoted to English-French unity, or lack of it, speakers from all four parties took the floor to expound their beliefs that time is precious in bridging the gap of misunderstanding between Canada's two main racial groups.

Opposition Leader Pearson started it. He said there comes how the holdup men, brandishing revolvers, demanded the judges' money, emphasizing their demand by pulling a

Mr. Pearson's speech turned the debate to a broader proposition, into a day-long discussion on English-French culture.

Mr. Pearson said the disagreement. Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny said there is a misunderstanding in Canada that threatens to grow to proportions that could prove disastrous to the Canadian way of life.

Claims Home Supt. Held Strap Over Man

OWEN SOUND (CP) — A Marshall Home official, service station operator Monday told an inquiry into the operation of the Grey County home that the Aged he saw Home Superintendent Wesley Lindsay holding a strap over an elderly resident late in the summer of 1959.

Ray Clarke, 36, whose service station is across the road from the home, retracted a statement he had given coroner Mayor E. C. Sargent of Owen Sound, in which he said he actually saw Mr. Lindsay brandishing a heavy belt over the man and there were red marks and small scratches apparent on the victim's legs.

Mr. Clarke said he was told the man, who he learned later was Allan McMann, a home resident, by two other days later. The service station operator established that he saw the incident while delivering oil.

Clarke said he took the belt from Lindsay and put it in his service station truck where it was placed it. He said he told provincial police Const. Harold West of Markdale of the incident the following morning.

When Clarke was informed that Chief West was prepared to deny being told of the incident until the inquiry opened on September, Clarke said he was sticking to his story.

Defying Bandits in Brazil, Ottawa Judge Shot in Legs

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — President Joseph T. Thorson of the Exchequer Court of Canada was wounded by bullets in both thighs Sunday when he struggled with two bandits at a picturesque tourist spot high above Rio.

The 72-year-old court president was reported in good condition in the hospital Monday. Jean Beaudelaine, 71, Canada's ambassador to Brazil, who told of the incident, said the wounds suffered by Thorson were superficial.

Thorson and Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada, both of whom attended the International Juriscts Congress here, were accosted as they stepped out of their hotel and on the Santa Marta Overlook, where they had planned to take photographs.

Ambassador Chapdelaine told how the holdup men, brandishing revolvers, demanded the judges' money, emphasizing their demand by pulling a camera from the neck of Mr. Justice Fauteux.

Fauteux turned over the camera, his wallet and other valuable personal effects but Thorson refused to relinquish the travellers cheques, passport and other valuables he was carrying.

The bandits began to grapple with him and during the struggle he was shot in the upper part of both legs. The holdup men, who fled without Thorson's money or valuables, also hit the taxi driver in the leg with a bullet.

The congress that the judges were attending ended Saturday.

In Ottawa, hopes were expressed that Chief Justice Thorson would be able to fly back to his home in the capital in a couple of days.

Diplomatic sources said it would depend on the content of a medical report expected to be issued in Rio on the jurist's condition.

'Handouts Left and Right' To Indians Not Too Good

- - Welfare Minister

WINNIPEG (CP) — Welfare Minister John Christianson of Manitoba said today night the provincial government has no intention of giving "handouts left and right" to Indians in northern Manitoba.

Mr. Christianson, defeated Friday in his bid to retain his Portage la Prairie seat in the Manitoba general election, said he sympathizes with the Indians "and I sympathize with the people whose hearts bleed for them."

"But we have a long-term program to solve their situation. We're not giving away handouts left and right, but we say to them, 'If you help yourselves we'll help you,' and we back it up."

He said emergency aid based on emotional reaction to newspaper stories about the Indians' plight would do more harm than good.

"You have to restore their ethnic pride so they will learn to build good lives for themselves."

The Salvation Army has undertaken to fly supplies to a reserve of Nelson River, 60 miles north of Winnipeg, where 400 Indians and Metis are reported to be starving in subzero temperatures.

Col. Arthur Moulton, army commander for Manitoba, said Monday the RCAF is ready to fly supplies to the Indians from Winnipeg, had its plans vetoed at the last minute on orders from Ottawa.

He said he had been advised the airlift would not be allowed until the situation became a matter of life and death.

"Where does death begin?" he asked. "The need is there."

In Toronto, Army Commissioner Wycliffe Booth said two light aircraft flew to the reserve from Thompson, Man., taking with them 150 food hampers.

The reserve is about 40 miles northwest of Thompson.

The Salvation Army stepped into the picture after its Maj. Stanley Preece of Brandon, following a short tour in the area, reported the Indians and Metis near starvation with "a bare existence" standard of living.

However, Mr. Christianson said the Indians at Nelson

Cardinal Says Ecumenical Council Too Slow for Taste

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal said Monday night the recent session of the Roman Catholic Church's ecumenical council moved too slowly and failed to act quickly enough.

"Everything that was done was badly done," he said in an address in Fabiola Hall in eastern Montreal on his impressions of the council's first session, which adjourned 10 days ago.

"I was not listened to. I spoke in the desert. I put forth many daring proposals, but I don't know if they will be accepted," he said.

In his speech in French, the cardinal stressed the slowness of the council's deliberations.

"I will tell you frankly, I spoke to the council fathers that unless a committee was created with sufficient powers to get everyone into action, we would achieve nothing.

"The fight to have affirmed the necessity of communion in both kinds during the marriage ceremony. Would it not in fact be a fine thing to see the bride and bridegroom not only get the body of Christ but also drink his blood?

"I am convinced myself that if young women were told they were going to drink the blood of Christ, they would certainly put their tube of lipstick aside that day."

Cardinal Leger said he admits to being a "lively, if not

TEN NEW SEATS PROPOSED FOR ONTARIO HOUSE

First Distribution Report Tabled

TORONTO (CP) — The first report of the provincial independent distribution commission, tabled by Premier Robarts proposed 10 new seats in the Ontario legislature.

The report Monday recommended increased representation for the York Tory ridings surrounding the city of Toronto. Set up last June, the commission said its studies are "far from complete" but a report on the Metropolitan Toronto area was made because "the most pressing need for a redistribution . . . is outside the city of Toronto itself."

Further recommendations with respect to the rest of the province will be made as the study progresses, the report said.

The commission proposal would set up 16 ridings from the present 24 York ridings with populations ranging from 45,000 to 65,000. The report said recommendations were based on a "reasonable relationship of population" of 50,000 persons for an urban constituency and 25,000 to 50,000 for a rural constituency and 50,000 to 60,000 for an "urban-rural" riding.

FIGHTS PETITION

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Edie Adams, widow of Ernie Kovacs, has asked Superior Court to throw out a petition seeking her removal as administrator of the comedian's estate. Miss Adams, 33, claimed Monday the petition was grounded less, ambiguous and unintelligible. It was filed by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Bessie Kovacs, who maintains that Miss Adams has "wrongfully mismanaged, wasted and neglected" the estate.

Kennedy Fears Independent Nuclear Powers

150 Million Would Die On First Day of War

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — President Kennedy flew to this island resort today for summit talks with Prime Minister Macmillan dealing both with strains in the Western alliance and divisions in the Communist bloc.

Kennedy's jet plane landed under a brilliant sun after a two-hour flight from Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland, near Washington. Macmillan headed the official welcoming party.

Brushed by the pleasant breezes of this colonial resort, the two leaders will delve into private talks that threaten to cause serious quarrels within the Western alliance and into assessments of the present cold war situation and the widening split between the two Communist camps led by the Soviet Union and Red China.

Their discussions will cover the Skybolt controversy, the strategy to be followed in the wake of the October crisis over Cuba, the Moscow-Peking split which deepened following Premier Khrushchev's settlement over Cuba and Red China's border attack on India and the future British - American military assistance program to India.

The United States has informed Britain it intends to arrange the Skybolt air-to-ground missile, in view of five test failures and an estimated eventual cost of $2,500,000,000 to develop it.

RAISE OBJECTIONS

This intention, still to be hardened into a definite decision, has raised objections in Congress and protests from Britain that it would cause the British deterrent as well.

The London Daily Mail reported Macmillan will ask Kennedy for a "stay of execution" on Skybolt cancelation for at least three months.

This delay would enable Britain still to claim she is a nuclear power as she faces the six-nation European Common Market in its bargaining with the coming up over her admission to the trading bloc.

London's Daily Sketch says Macmillan will propose putting Britain's nuclear weapons stockpile under NATO control on the condition that President de Gaulle and Premier Adenauer go equal three-power control over a multilateral NATO deterrent.

Blast Wrecks Toronto Bldg.

TORONTO (CP) — An explosion tore apart a two - storey west central building here today, collapsing the roof and scattering bricks over a 200-foot area.

No one was injured in the blast that turned the building containing a steel company and two flats into rubble and shattered windows in nearby homes.

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says he is opposed to the development of independent nuclear powers in Europe, warning that the spread of nuclear strength could bring on a full war that would leave 150,000,000 dead in the first 18 hours of conflict.

Summing up his first two years in office, Kennedy also rejected the Skybolt ballistic missile program, saying its projected $2,500,000,000 cost would be higher than the security benefits it would bring.

On the threshold of talks with Prime Minister Macmillan at Nassau, Kennedy told Western Europe it should do more to help Western defences through conventional means and leave the nuclear deterrent to the U.S.

"Why duplicate what we have already done and are doing in Western Europe today, as long as our guarantees are good?" he said in an hour-long television broadcast.

OTHERS MIGHT ASK

If the U.S. helped France become a nuclear power, Italy, West Germany and Belgium also might demand help. Soon several would be threatening to as many as 30 nuclear powers firing off weapons under different conditions.

"That isn't in our interest or, in my opinion, in the interest of peace or the interest of Western Europe."

Kennedy some senators had threatened a congressional battle against death of the Skybolt, which would be missiles, if it has sufficient nuclear strength to destroy the world many times over.

"There is just a limit to how much we need as well as how much we can afford to have a successful deterrent . .. How many times do you have to hit a target with nuclear weapons?"

The U.S. now is spending $50,000,000 a year on defence and must tighten up its budget.

Kennedy said Premier Khrushchev's forces have been able to build a missile that would hit an intended target in the sky but he doubted that the Soviet Union has been able to develop the ability of picking out the real missile among a flock of decoys.

SOVIET SUPERIORITY

The president said he didn't believe Khrushchev planned to fire the missiles at Cuba but rather intended to use them to change the world political balance of power.

"So it is going to be some time before it is possible for us to have any real understandings with Mr. Khrushchev."

The amazing part of the Cuban experience, said Kennedy, is that Khrushchev really believed the U.S. would not interfere with its missiles. Khrushchev had misjudged American emotions and "that is what makes life in the 1960s hazardous."

Toronto Paper Says Bogus Art Flooding Market in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says that bogus Canadian and European art is flooding the market in Canada.

At the request of the National Art Gallery, the newspaper says, the Ontario attorney-general's department is conducting an investigation through the Ontario Provincial Police.

The Telegram says the investigation of its own has uncovered more than 20 paintings which dealers say are not genuine.

"The existence of many others has been confirmed," it adds. "Some have been declared fraudulent by other authorities. Some are yet to be checked, but are considered highly question-

"Many thousands of dollars are involved . . . individual pictures have been bought for as little as $60 and as high as $3,000.

"The sources of the paintings have been known to be more than one—has yet to be uncovered.

"But the bogus works have turned up in the hands of various respected dealers . . ."

The Telegram says it has tracked down some paintings sold here recently and "among those examined by experts and declared not to be genuine were those listed by Pleinick, Manet, Vuillard, Whistler, Boudin and others."

Quebec Secessionists Are Split

Chaput Forms Separatist Political Party

MONTREAL (CP) — Division within the movement to have Quebec secede from the rest of Canada appeared several hours after separatist leader Marcel Chaput's announcement Monday of formation of a new provincial political party.

Partly today the separatist movement Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale issued a statement dissociating itself from the new party. R.I.N. members who joined the party were threatened with expulsion.

The 44-year-old Mr. Chaput, once president of the R.I.N., announced at a press conference the new party, called Le Parti Republicain du Quebec (Republican Party of Quebec), would seek independence for the province.

Mr. Chaput resigned as head of the R.I.N. to contest Quebec's Nov. 14 provincial election as an independent. He was defeated in Montreal Bourget riding.

He said he believes "fervently" the time has come for a union of the forces seeking separatism.

But the R.I.N. said in its statement Mr. Chaput's decision to form a political party at this time "will only serve the interests of the cause of independence."

The R.I.N. said it will become a political party in spring, 1964, as was decided at its last general meeting.

Mr. Chaput's move, the R.I.N. said, is a defection from the movement for independence.

At his press conference, Mr. Chaput said in French one reason for the formation of the party was "unification of the separatist forces."

He referred to two other separatist groups — L'Action Socialiste and L'Alliance Laurentienne—and said:

". . . These associations, by their multiplicity, would give the impression there is a division among the advocates of independence."

He said, formation of the new party would recruit separatists from their support of existing political parties into a party of their own.

Fall Session Of So-Ed Club Is Completed

The fall session of the Belleville So-Ed Club was successfully completed last Wednesday evening with a Christmas party and with a visit to the Peterborough Club on Saturday. The party was well attended and enjoyed by all present, both new and old members.

The auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. had been elaborately decorated previously by the decoration committee. Throughout the evening, there was games, dancing, a buffet lunch and a rousing sing-song led by Jay McGowan and Allie Minaker. To climax the evening, Santa arrived and treated everyone to candies while wishing them a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Everyone who attended this session enjoyed them selves throughly and if plans are any indication the next season beginning in January will be an even greater success.

School Bell, Clocks Stolen at Chatterton

Somebody left the door open; then somebody had stole the clanging gong from Manor Hill public school near Chatterton the other day.

The country school house was minus a teacher's school bell and two electric clocks after thieves entered it during the weekend.

Provincial police from Belleville are investigating the incident, say the door on the school house was left unlocked.

$902.14 Profit Made on Hats Rotarians Told

Belleville Rotary Club made a profit of $902.14 on their hat sales at the Belleville Fair last summer, Rotarian Bill Holway told the club at yesterday's meeting. Total sales amounted to more than $2,200, but the actual profit could not be calculated until the last of the expenses of the campaign were paid off, recently, Mr. Holway, as chairman of the hat committee, presented a cheque representing the total profit on the hat program to the club. The money will be used for service work.

Arrangements are being made for an Inter-Service-Club curling bonspiel, in Belleville, next year, Rotarian Bob Lanning told the Club yesterday. Probable date for the meet is January 16, and the organizers hope to have a total of 16 rinks from each of the four main service clubs in Belleville. A meal may be served after the bonspiel.

BCI Glee Club Well Received In Cantata

The BCIVS Glee Club, under the direction of Clifford Tempest, and assisted by Mr. Ronald Robertson, presented a Christmas cantata, "The Child of Bethlehem," by Louise Stairs, in the school auditorium Sunday afternoon.

It was a delightful rendition of that time-honored theme concerning the birth of the Christ Child, and one which was enjoyed fully by parents and others assembled for another of the annual performances by music students at the school. Over 70 students from grades nine to thirteen, twelve, pooled their musical talents to turn our thoughts to the events of that glorious "First Christmas."

The familiar "O Come Let Us Adore Him" was the processional hymn, with the choristers, each carrying a lighted candle, moving in single file through the aisles of the auditorium on their way to the stage.

Mr. E. A. Orr, principal, introduced the cantata by a portion of the Christmas Story from Matthew 2: 1-11.

While members of the chorus shared in all fourteen parts of the wonderful story in song, several portions were rendered as solos, duets and trios. Individual performers were Barbara Belch, soprano; Lillian Vincent, contralto, and Wayne Noble, baritone. All the assignments were so well done that parents, teachers, friends, and fellow students had good reason to be proud of those responsible.

Audience participation in the carol, "The First Noel," closed the hour-long program which was broadcast over CJBQ.

Mr. Templer conducted the choruses and provided the organ prelude and accompaniment.

Three County Men Will Attend Meeting

Three county men, Don Martin of Tweed, Ronald Graham of Shannonville and Ross Moorecroft of Madoc, will represent the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association at the Eastern Ontario Association annual conference at Kemptville. The conference is being held at the Kemptville Agricultural School from January 2 to 4.

In addition to the three above men several other members of the county Association are expected to take in part of the conference.

Walter Savage was named president of the county association at the annual meeting held last week at Stirling. Vice-president is Don Martin of Tweed.

John Dalrymple, from the animal husbandry department at Toronto, was the guest speaker for the county annual meeting. He gave an illustrated talk on beef cattle feature, showing the use to which British farmers put pastures and the various varieties of forage crops.

Peak Demand For Electricity Coming Up

Ontario Hydro officials expect people in Ontario to use more electricity during one week of the two remaining this month than at any other time during the year. The peak demand for electricity could easily reach Dec. 20. Cold weather, more cooking than usual, more evening entertaining and extensive lighting make the difference.

The East Central Ontario Region, centred in Belleville, however, may have a different peak. In 1961 the peak demand of 315,000 Kw. occurred during January, while the December peak was only 308,000 Kw. Temporary closing of a major industrial consumer may have dropped the December peak last year. In Nov., 1961 the peak of 311,000 Kw. indicated a much higher December demand. These winter-month peaks compare with a peak of 272,000 Kw during July of 1963.

For the month of December, this year the East Central regional office expects a peak demand of about 345,000 Kw.

Eastern Region Of Hydro Will Lose Customers

The East Central Ontario Region of the Ontario Hydro will lose thousands of customers next January, but officials are not worried about it. The lost customers, two whole rural operating areas of them, will be gained by the Georgian Bay Region.

The East Central Ontario Region serves about 70,000 customers although their 11 rural operating areas. In addition, Belleville and Napanee Public Utilities have established their own district areas, in which they sell power.

Starting January third, the Minden and Fenelon Falls areas will become part of the Georgian Bay Region. The change is for administrative purposes only, and is not expected to affect consumers.

Citrus Fruit Juices Show Hike in City

The Florida citrus-fruits disaster may leave a slightly bitter-taste in shoppers' mouths in the Belleville area.

In common with the rest of the continent, prices on citrus fruit juices are being squeezed higher by the aftermath of freezing weather that hit Florida's fruit belt last week.

A check by the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday of local food outlets confirmed an immediate increase of 30-40 per cent in the price of frozen juices.

"This means for a 12-ounce can that customarily costs 35 cents, the price could be 49 cents," one chain store manager said.

Prices on fresh fruits, notably tangerines and grapefruits, also are expected to climb. Tangerines, said one distributor, might be up by 35-40 per cent.

New Twist Has Been Added to Labor Strife

OTTAWA (CP)—A new twist has been added to the federal investigation of labor strife on the Great Lakes.

A key witness for the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) suddenly decided Monday to refuse to face cross-examination by Marc Lalonde, one of two lawyers for the inquiry commission headed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris.

The witness — Bernard Boulanger, $15,000-a-year administrator of the Canadian Seafarers' welfare plan—alleged that Mr. Lalonde has a conflict of interest in the proceedings.

Mr. Boulanger said Mr. Lalonde is lawyer for the St. Lawrence River Pilots Association. He claimed the association is affiliated with the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, a party before the inquiry.

MENACES AFFILIATION

Mr. Lalonde denied that the pilots' association, has any affiliation with the Merchant Service Guild.

"I have no double loyalty at all," he said.

Mr. Boulanger suddenly found himself alone, when SIU lawyers dissociated themselves from his stand.

He then asked for the right to be represented by his own lawyer—Georges Lafontaine, Liberal MP for Montreal Lafontaine.

This was granted by Mr. Justice Norris who described Mr. Boulanger's position as "pure obstructionism."

Mr. Boulanger is the witness who insisted several weeks ago on his right as a French-Canadian to give his testimony in French, although he is fluently bilingual.

His sudden refusal to answer brought an abrupt end to Monday's hearings—the 67th public session of the searching inquiry into shipping disruptions and labor troubles in the marine industry.

Mr. Justice Norris adjourned the sittings until today to give Mr. Boulanger time to get his own personal lawyer.

The judge said the witness was trying to "make headlines" by his position.

Hearing Date On Theft Charge Set for Feb. 4

A preliminary hearing into a charge of theft of company funds against Belleville office manager, Donald G. Dillon, has been tentatively set for February 4th.

Mr. Dillon, manager and bookkeeper for Bowman Dairy Limited, appeared briefly in court this morning for the first time since the charge was laid December 11. He was represented by Belleville lawyer, Wilkins A. Argue.

Mr. Argue told magistrate T. Y. Wills it was not likely he would be representing Dillon himself and was only seeking a date for a preliminary hearing.

Red Miners Damage U.S. Plant in Peru

LIMA, Peru (Reuters) — The government today claimed to have the mining area of Oroya under control after strikers from a Communist-led union Monday did about $4,000,000 worth of fire damage to an industrial plant owned by a United States subsidiary.

The government claim followed reports that the strikers had taken over the mining centre. All mines were reported closed with 13,000 men idle.

The government also said penalties for "subversion, and destruction of property will be rigorously applied.

Some 4,000 striking members of the Communist-led Metallurgical Union were reported to have burned the coke plant, main warehouse, sampling plant and fuel supplies of the Cerro de Pasco Corporation.

Bill Referred To Committee

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Roberts Monday heeded opposition Liberal suggestions and referred the government's meat inspection bill to the legislature's agriculture committee for study.

He said the committee, which must Wednesday morning in order to hear testimony on the bill, will then would go to committee of the whole.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart acknowledged that the bill might put some slaughterhouses out of business. He said a statement by R. F. Nixon (L—Brant) that the legislation would bring pressure on small slaughterhouses was well founded.

Mr. Nixon said some of the legislation's regulations, such as a requirement that a slaughterhouse have at least 10 employees, would be hard for operators of small farms.

Maurice Belanger (L—Windsor-Sandwich) said poultry raisers with small investments would also find it hard to stay in business

4 Men Buried Under Concrete In Rocket Pit

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP) — Rescue workers dug through a mass of concrete and steel at the bottom of a 250-foot rocket test cell today, searching for four men presumed killed in the collapse of a 304-ton, pie-shaped wedge of concrete.

The cell is a huge concrete which set off a chain-reaction collapse Monday was the first of three cells designed to equal the $10,000,000 test cell. It crashed through floors placed 50 feet apart in the huge hole, carrying additional tons of concrete and steel to the bottom.

The 150 - foot - diameter hole was blasted through middle Tennessee limestone for a facility to simulate the atmospheric conditions at 100,000 feet for a rocket booster engine with a 500,000-pound thrust. The cell with its three-foot-thick concrete walls was to be modified later to test the 1,500,000 - pound thrust of the Saturn booster.

Efforts to keep the concrete soft by pouring in a ton of water were in vain. One rescue worker said that if any bodies were in the mass of concrete and steel, "they will have to be chipped out." The sugar landed on floors at upper levels of the test cell.

Man Returned To Hospital As Mentally Ill

TORONTO (CP) — Frederick Fawcett, an Owen Sound farmer who refused to pay $1,000 damages in 1962, will be returned to mental hospital Mr. Justice W. F. Spence ruled Monday.

Mr. Justice Spence dismissed Fawcett's application for a writ of habeas corpus on the question of his sanity and on whether he is too dangerous to be at large.

Fawcett told the court he became angered at the township for refusing to open an exit from his property to a concession road.

He said he then decided that because his two farms were Crown grants they were not subject to property taxes.

Fawcett was committed to hospital a year ago but 14 months ago after being charged with assault and pointing a fire-arm first at two tax assessors and then at police when they came to his farm to serve a warrant.

His brother and sister, two neighbors, a lawyer and two psychiatrists maintained that Fawcett was not mentally ill.

President Wins Over Premier In Senegal

DAKAR, Senegal (AP)—President Leopold Senghor today appeared sure of victory in his power struggle with Premier Mamadou Via in this west African republic.

The Senegalese National Assembly voted 31 to 0 with three abstentions to abolish the office of premier and place Senegal on a presidential-type system. The Assembly also voted, by the same margin, to remove parliamentary immunity from Dia, thus leaving him open to civil arrest.

The Assembly has a total of 80 members, and Senghor's forces thus had a clear majority.

Troops loyal to Senghor backed an attempted coup by Dia Monday in this recently independent country whose capital, Dakar, was one of the great Allied bases in the last years of the Second World War. The African west coast port lies only 1,870 miles from South America.

PAIR QUARRELLED

Dia, a Moslem but with strong support among Christian factions, had been quarreling with Senghor over the premier's behind-the-scenes party, the Senegal Progressist Union, which holds 63 of the 80 seats in the National Assembly.

Dia sent police to occupy the assembly building, and they arrested four members. But 48 other deputies met at the home of the Assembly president, and voted Dia out of office. Seven members of the premier's cabinet joined in the revolt.

Senghor then invoked temporary emergency powers, took control of the armed forces and sent troops to the government administration building to arrest Dia and his supporters were meeting. The president said Dia and his backers were prisoners on one floor of the building and would be prosecuted for abuse of authority.

Pope's Doctor Pays Visit To Vatican

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John's personal physician, Dr. Antonio Gasbarrini, called on the pontiff at the Vatican Palace Monday night to convey Christmas greetings, a member of the papal household said.

The spokesman said the Pope was well and there was no cause for alarm.

When the 69-year-old Gasbarrini was asked Sunday night about reports that the Pope was suffering from cancer, he said the 81-year-old pontiff was doing well.

Earlier Monday, the Pope received two cardinals and an archbishop in separate private audiences.

Vatican sources said there were the first private audiences granted high Vatican officials since the Pope's illness three weeks ago, with the exception of several private audiences with his secretary of state, Amleto Cardinal Cigognani, and another high prelate of the Vatican secretariat.

A flurry of speculation was stirred up Sunday in the Vatican following British press reports the Pope was suffering from cancer.

A deputy director of the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano said there was every reason to believe the Pope did not have the disease while another said he simply did not know—adding doctors were the only ones who did know.

The Pope has made repeated public appearances in the last three weeks, during which his health is said to have been improving.

Five Swimmers Pass Exams

Five local swimmers successfully passed their life saving examinations at the YMCA's eight-week training course, completed last evening, and one qualified for an instructors award.

Those who passed the life saving examinations were David Beresford, Richard Cherry, David Templer, Bill Hoard and Mike Burns. Robert Murray qualified for the instructors award.

The examinations were conducted by Physical Director, Joe Ruddy and Senior Leader, Bob Douglas.

The next course will commence on January 28, 1963.

Pretty Lively Duck Says Magistrate

NORTH BAY, (CP)—A live duck was introduced as evidence Monday in the trial of G. B. Stroud of North Bay, charged with causing unnecessary suffering and injury to live birds used at a June 23 field trial of the North Bay and District Retriever and Breeding Club.

The charge was laid by Mrs. H. H. Wright, president of the North Bay and District Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, after she examined four ducks used in the field trials. Stroud was chairman of the trial committee.

Mrs. Wright and other witnesses said the ducks were bruised, their skin broken and flesh exposed.

H. B. P. Lewis of Toronto, former director of the Toronto Humane Society and chairman of the dog committee of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, said the live duck used here in court in shooting retrieves Sunday.

"I think you can indicate for the purpose of the record that it is a pretty lively duck," Magistrate W. A. Nadeau said.

Dr. A. E. Cameron, former Ontario veterinary director-general, said it was unnecessary to use live birds in training and said dogs could be trained by using stuffed birds.

Dr. C. H. D. Clarke of the fish and wildlife division of the department of lands and forests, said "dogs would reject a wounded bird if they were not trained with live birds.

Sinclair Says He Will Not Apologize

VANCOUVER (CP)—The CBC has sent a transcript of column mist Gordon Sinclair's remarks about neighbors to T. A. McRae of Rossland, B.C., with an invitation that he comment on it.

T. E. Kelly, chairman of the Kootenay and boundary citizens' committee on Doukhobor Canadian affairs, has complained that the former Toronto Star writer apologize for remarks he made about the sect in a broadcast of the television program Front Page Challenge Dec. 13.

The CBC said it would be pleased to receive any comment Mr. McRae wished to make.

Mr. McRae telegraphed Mr. Sinclair after the broadcast demanding a public apology for "unwarranted and ill-informed remarks."

Mr. McRae said indignation was aroused by Mr. Sinclair's likening of the handling of the Doukhobor problem to the treatment of Canadian-Japanese who were moved from the coast.

early in the Second World War. Mr. Sinclair was quoted in a Toronto report as saying under no circumstances would he apologize.

Annual Yule Supply Flight Made to Arctic Outposts

TRENTON — The annual R.C.A.F. Christmas re-supply flight to the Arctic outposts of Canada was completed this past weekend.

Originally planned for the full-month period from December 9 to 11, bad weather coupled with a malfunctioning propeller seal extended the normal time for this operation.

At 10 a.m. on Dec. 8, all RCAF C130B Hercules from 435 Transport Squadron at Namao, Alta., took off for Resolute Bay, N.W.T., on the first leg of "Operation Santa Claus."

Piloted by Squadron Leader H. R. Cram of Saskatoon, Sask., the aircraft, loaded with Christmas mail, parcels, food and Christmas trees, was to cover both the Central Arctic and Eastern Arctic routes.

After refuelling and re-arranging the load at Resolute Bay, the Hercules took off the same evening (Sunday) and commenced the Central Arctic flight. Landings were made at Eureka, Isachsen and Mould Bay, where supplies were unloaded from the aircraft and piled aboard flat sleds drawn by tractors. All hands pitched in to load the sleds amidst howling blizzard conditions and shouted greetings between the unloading crew and the outpost residents, with a maximum time of 15 minutes before the giant aircraft was airborne again.

BLIND MAKE PANNIERS

Limited landing facilities meant that some loads had to be dropped by parachute, using wicker baskets or panniers. Since Operation Santa Claus commenced in 1947, literally hundreds of panniers have been dropped, and the fine workmanship of the pannier weavers at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Toronto is attested to by the fact that not one pannier has ever been seen as the result of its descent.

Flying the five settlements and descending to the 500-foot drop level required expert navigation, as also part of the operation was carried out during the Arctic night.

All items marked the drop zones, and special items were attached to the loads so that lookouts on the ground could follow the falling cargo when it was dropped.

The Arctic weather began taking its toll from the aircraft after the landing at Mould Bay, and the Hercules landed at nearby Thule, Greenland, for servicing. Three hours later, the Hercules was airborne again on the homeward flight, making a landing at Alert, two more parachute drops were made and the aircraft landed at Resolute for reloading, refuelling and crew rest.

Due to take-off again at 8.30 on Monday night to complete the Eastern Arctic flight, the Hercules suffered again from the Arctic cold (some 38 degrees below zero plus a wind factor of minus 20 making an approximate temperature of —58 degrees) and bad weather delayed the departure until Thursday.

An entertainment group from the CBC, also left at Resolute Bay by bad weather, joined the Santa Claus flight and the fully loaded Hercules took off from Resolute on Thursday night direct for Montreal, arriving at Trenton on Friday morning. Following a crew rest, the aircraft then continued on the Eastern Santa Claus flight with paradrops and landings carried out on schedule, with the final landing at Resolute for the first refuelling before the return to Namao on Saturday.

One more paradrop remains to be completed at Sugluk, and this will be handled during the coming week, coupled with a routine flight to Greenland.

Fund to Date Totals $6,484

TRENTON—Mrs. "Bobbie" Reid, chairman of the fund-raising campaign for the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children, has announced that funds collected to-date total $6,484. This includes Trenton Lions' gift of $1,040. All districts have not been heard from and the "special names" donations will also be added to the total.

On Dec. 20, a Christmas party will be held for the children at the Legion, special school bus west of Trenton. Parents and friends have been asked to share the kiddies' joy. Time: 6.30 p.m.

Seek to Trade Cuban Captives For Medicine

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — New York lawyer James Donovan flew to Havana today in an effort to complete negotiations with Cuban Premier Castro for release of 1,113 rebel invasion prisoners in exchange for food and medicine.

Donovan and three officials of the Cuban Families Committee composed of relatives of the prisoners left aboard a special Pan-American Airways plane.

A flow of medical supplies to Miami has begun, presumably to be swapped for the prisoners, it was learned in New York. Trans World Airlines said one of its planes, under charter, flew 32,000 pounds of medicine to Miami from Idlewild Airport.

It said that between now and Friday 400,000 pounds will be flown to Miami from St. Louis and 19,000 pounds from Los Angeles.

In Miami, relatives of the more than 1,000 prisoners waited hopefully for Castro to say when and if he will accept food and medicine for the freedom of the prisoners captured in the 1961 rebel invasion of Cuba.

DISMISSES SUIT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A jury ruled in favor of Hedy Lamarr Monday in a $150,000 damage suit brought against her by a woman who said she suffered spinal fractures in a fall at the actress' leased home. Mrs. Lois Ross, 52, a vocational nurse, alleged her fall down basement stairs May 19, 1959, was due to negligence by Miss Lamarr.

Are These the Big Events?

Those "big events" which official circles in Washington were reported to be expecting following a solution of the Cuban crisis may be taking place.

The air of anticipation quickly disappeared from Washington when there was no quick agreement between Russian and U.S. negotiators on the question of U.S. inspection in Cuba.

Nevertheless, the major developments then forecast may actually be underway, in less spectacular form than original reports suggested and in Moscow rather than in Washington.

There the Supreme Soviet is meeting and the members have heard some strange talk. Last Wednesday they heard Premier Khrushchev openly assail Red China for leftist opportunism. (Anybody who supposes that there is anything novel about a communist using the word "leftist" as an epithet has forgotten one of Lenin's most virulent polemics, "Left-Wing Communism, an Infantile Disorder.")

Now it is true that Khrushchev did not mention China by name in this particular reference to leftist opportunism. He did, however, speak with sarcasm about Chinese policy in other parts of his speech. He also referred to the Albanians, China's "party line" stooges, he compared them to children taught to hurl obscenities by adults. Who could the guilty adults possibly be but the Chinese leaders?

When we add to this speech by Khrushchev remarks made by Foreign Minister Gromyko the following day, the picture of Foreign Minister Gromyko praised the "restrained and sober approach" shown by Washington to international issues.

There will be those who will object that a precisely opposite attitude was displayed by Khrushchev earlier when he refused to meet U.S. demands to keep its pledges regarding Cuba, Russia will be compelled to act. But the whole tenor of that address substantiates the judgment of President Kennedy concerning it. He told a press conference it appeared to be aimed at the communist, rather than the free, world.

Indeed, this is precisely the sort of thing one would expect of a dictator who had decided he must seek an accommodation with his chief foe in the past. Khrushchev is assuring the folks at home that he will never bow before his adversary, at the same time as he is assailing an ally who has accused him of bending and his chief aide is assisting his adversary for assuming a reasonable attitude.

Now all this may mean nothing of any permanent importance, but is just another jog in the party line according to Khrushchev. But it also may mark the dawn of recognition that even today's widespread communist empire is not large enough for two masters and that a showdown with China is inevitable.

This could easily mean an end of the Cold War as we know it. It would not, however, mean the world had become a safer place. Indeed, the reverse would be true. All the evidence suggests that, in any ideological struggle, Mao and his aides will take a much more intransigent attitude than have either the Russians or the United States, at least since Stalin's death.

Ontario School Controversy

Premier John Robarts has promised a solution to alleged inequities in the Ontario system of financing education will soon be found.

This reminds us of the old curmudgeon who attended one of those bountiful church suppers which can only be found in rural communities. Having feasted, he was asked how he had enjoyed the meal. "Oh," he exclaimed, "the food was wonderful." Then, fearing his praise had been too warm, he added, "... what there was of it."

Realizing he was being less than just, he continued "and there was lots of it . . . such as it was."

Similarly, Premier Robarts promises a good trick, if he can do it, and it is easy to do, if it is done right.

All he has to do to stop this squabble over the apportioning of property taxes to public and separate schools is to end the dependence of all schools on real estate taxes—and that is a step which, as we have said before, is urgently needed. It will enable municipalities to provide for themselves those services for which they ought to be solely responsible.

But, from the standpoint of the politician, the best part of this trick is that it will eliminate the necessity of taking sides between the advocates of public and separate schools.

I reject the monstrous theory that while a man may redeem the past a woman never can.—Hall Caine.

Cloak and Dagger Intrigue Latest Ottawa Affliction

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — All this cloak-and-dagger stuff can be catching. . . .certain un-named Liberals have been talking of replacing Mike Pearson with Quebec Premier Lesage . . . Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson is progressively unpopular, it is more than supposition) to be having trouble with floored "Co-leader" Real Caouette . . . and even Prime Minister Diefenbaker has not been immune to the whispering-campaign mongers who murmur of palace revolutions and other such excitement stirring . . .

So, with people skulking through the corridors of the rambling Centre Block, whispering behind cupped hands and generally acting like hit-and-run players in an old Humphrey Bogart movie, you almost expect to step up to the Centre Block.

SPECIAL AGENTS:

They looked . . . well, different, when I walked out, early, from the morning crowd burrying along to Civil Service and Government offices.

People turned, eyes swivelling.

Wondering.

The five men were immaculate, two of them in dressy pinchback black topcoats with velvet collars.

Each carried an attache case in fine tooled leather.

Behind them marched two only slightly less well-dressed men, each carrying obviously heavily-loaded good-sized suitcases.

Without a word they went through the Senate Entrance, silently caught an elevator to the Fifth floor, went directly to Room 568-South," knocked quietly, disappeared within.

If it had not been a bright, sunny Monday morning in October, it would seem that the same vague sense of mystery as if it might have come from the pages of a Raymond Chandler or Ian Fleming best-seller, or out of some old Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer thriller of the Roaring Twenties era.

Room 568-South is the office of Senator C. S. "Molly" Thorvaldson, president of the Conservative Party.

So . . . what else to do but slide up to "Solly" later, and in a back-of-hand whisper ask who were the five Johns who had been rapping on his darkened door.

A MYSTERY

"You mean", he asked in a low voice, but not without just the faintest hint of a tremble, "five Johns with the suitcases?"

"The same", he was assured. "Each with a thousand dollar bills in bundles".

"You're kidding?"

"Sure, kidding", he grinned. Turned out the five Johns were businessmen from Toronto, who flew in Monday morning seeing "Solly" about a bill he was to put through the Senate embodying the incorporation of a Canadian subsidiary of their American company.

All of which, laughed Senator Thorvaldson, would seem to go to prove two things:

1. The Senate does have some uses;

2. Unless you watch your imagination, the Senate at odd times can even convince to assume an air of mystery and cloak-and-dagger scenes.

It pointed up one other thing, too . . . that in the particular atmosphere of gossip, intrigue, speculation and conspiratorial air currently enveloping Parliament Hill, people are watching even perhaps interpreting strange things to happen.

It could be taken, too, as an indication that all the rumor of unexpected developments being afoot have about as much basis in fact as the gossip to conclusions that five strange and important men on Monday to Parliament Hill were on a mission of mysterious import.

Individualism In the Arts Flourishes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Watching the great Pablo Casals conduct a chamber orchestra in the Bach suite (in the closed television-circuit program for the National Cultural Centre last month), I was forcibly reminded again that the world of performers and artists is in many ways a model of what the outer world ought to be.

Despite the back-biting and envy and childishness of so many performers, there is an immense respect for talent and ability, skill and discipline, imagination and interpretation.

The world of the arts is supremely the world of the individual; compared to it, business and industry and being the word "individualism" too often as a synonym for making more money and being different are impersonal and anti-individualistic. The modern corporation, indeed, is the best example of high-level collectivism.

In the arts, a man or woman is judged solely and wholly by what he can do and how well he can do it. There is a true democracy of merit, which means that there is also a true individualism of the sort of those who have proved themselves as individuals, regardless of their backgrounds, their training, origin, their private failings.

The veneration given to Casals by his colleagues is a moving example of what the entire human family was meant to be. Here, in a world of name-calling, ailing old man, without money, without power, without even a country to call his own, commands the utmost respect of artists throughout the world, because of his vast ability and his fierce dedication to the highest goals of his craft.

What an artist (if he is really an artist) wants to be is the best — not the biggest or the richest or the most famous. His end is a value, not a commodity; and the civilization can survive only when we place values above commodities. The least practical, and most destructive, thing a society can do is to emphasize the practical above the "idealistic."

What is immensely appealing, in a deep human sense, about the arts is that they remain one of the few areas in which true individualism can flourish; in which the creator and performer is a person directly communicating with other persons; in which his ancestors, language, conventions and superficial traits are totally subordinated to his professional skill.

A state which cannot produce and sustain such art is doomed, however tall its buildings or powerful its armaments; and both "democracy" and "individualism" can be measured by the ways in which those who are gifted in other areas shape their lives and their government to the higher parts of their nature, and not merely to the appetitive part where all animals.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

December 18th, 1942.

Sunday Open House at the Y.M.C.A. this week was under the sponsorship of the Belleville Rotary Club, who provided very excellent refreshments at the tea time and after the evening concert, and the talent for the concert as well. Arrangements for the tea were in the hands of a Ladies' Committee, with Mrs. Ray McLean and Mrs. Walter Douglas taking charge in the afternoon and Mrs. C. A. Cameron in the evening. The devotional program was in the able hands of Rev. A. B. Pyper, the singing of old hymns and the inspirational message given by the Padre closing the Sunday program in most fitting style.

The town of Picton now boasts of a set of beautiful chimes. On Sunday they were played for the first time at Picton United Church where they have been installed. These chimes are the gift of W. H. Benson, local canner and are played from the church organ.

School days are over until January 4th for the children attending the Ontario School for the Deaf, it was stated this morning by the school principal, Mr. W. J. Morrison. This number will proceed to their various homes for the holidays, while 50 other students whose homes are too far away to permit travel, or for other reasons, will remain in the city and continue to take studies. One half of the school staff is being retained through the holidays to conduct classes with studies for the entire school to re-open early in January.

Mr. H. D. Ransom, school attendance officer in this city, has made 177 personal calls at homes here during the month of November, in which 300 children have not been attending classes regularly. This is a record for any month in the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are visiting his sister, Mrs. R. Leslie on Catherine Street.

Miss Dorothy Schiller of Deloro is spending the weekend with Mrs. A. P. Luscombe on Dundas Street East.

At the closing meeting of St. George's Women's Guild the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. Raynor; vice-president, Mrs. ——; secretary, Mrs. Trump secretary, Mrs. Pepper.

Belleville's collegiate institute and vocational school will be erected upon the site of the present high school. A resolution to this effect was moved by Trustee Geo. T. Woodley and seconded by Trustee Arthur McGie was passed without opposition at a meeting of the Board of Education.

The vacancy in the department of classics at the Belleville High School has been filled by the appointment of J. C. Clarke, B.A., at a salary of $2,000 per annum. In the department of science J. W. Dafoe, B.A., has been appointed at a salary of $2,250 per annum; and Miss Elizabeth Chown, B.A. will be in charge of the household economics at a salary of $2,200 per annum. These new teachers will assume their duties at the new year.

The filibuster, which means boring your opponent with oratory to the point of capitulation is rarely used in Canada, probably because it is a law at a particular time. Whether it is any use in securing an important law reform is another matter.

Certainly most Canadians, and probably most Canadian M.P.'s wish that divorce actions arising in Quebec or Newfoundland could be handled judicially instead of wasting Parliament's time.

For several years two M.P.s have been trying vainly to bring this about by obstructing private divorce bills for days or weeks. But Speaker Marcel Lambert intends to veto a repeat performance of the current session.

As the filibusters were getting nowhere, this ruling should not upset them. It should rather lead them to try another procedure. Indeed, the M.P. is free to bring in a one-sentence bill reading "The Exchequer Court of Canada shall have power to try and decide divorce cases originating in provinces without a divorce court."

The mover might wish to add a subsequent clause making divorce obtainable in Canada, by either sex, for cruelty, desertion, insanity, or life imprisonment — most Canadians favor such changes.

Could any back-benchers of any party get this major reform enacted? A.P. (Sir Alan) Herbert, operating as an independent British M.P., managed to get a somewhat similar single-handed measure, called "The Ayes Have It," to provides an entertaining account of exactly how it was done.

Some People Are Allergic To Certain Kinds of Drugs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A lot has been written about drugs that are harmful to many people, but I have never read anything about a drug dentists use in extractions. Here's what happened to me. The dentist shot some into my gum and my head started spinning. My heart was pounding so loud I just knew anyone could hear it in the next room, and I blacked out. Why do dentists use that kind of drug? — A.P.I.

I left out the name of the drug you mentioned. Using its name would frighten millions of people for whom it would be completely harmless.

Let's get this on the record: I'm totally dedicated to the principle that any new drug or device should be adequately studied before it is put on the market. There's no argument about that.

As a matter of fact, the drug (thalidomide) which recently stirred up such a roaring controversy, is one of the few that has slipped by without its powers being tested. It slipped by in Europe. It didn't slip by in the United States. It never was approved for use here. The Food and Drug Administration (specifically one courageous woman scientist) didn't feel that sufficient testing had been done. So the U.S. didn't get much of the drug except what was permitted for experimental use, or was "bootlegged" from abroad.

However, remember that any drug that is powerful is potentially dangerous. I don't know a single one which can't be harmful to someone who happens to be sensitive to it.

Such ordinarily predictable things such as Vitamin B, aspirin, penicillin, aspirin, codeine, morphine and a host of others can't be given to millions of people without making them ill. There are cases of such fateful drugs such as penicillin causing death, and every year we lose quite a number of babies because they eat a handful of aspirin tablets which parents "didn't know were dangerous."

Babies die from gnawing leadladen paint from a window sill. Some adults die from a single bee sting. A field of ragweed can be fatal to a hay fever sufferer. Not often — but it can happen.

Let's face it. The world we live in isn't a fictional place where right always triumphs. If we use drugs, some are dangerous, and that is why we insist on prescriptions for potent ones. The safe rule is to have their use supervised by people trained to know how to look for the danger signs — meaning doctors, as well as pharmacists who do their good share of protecting the public.

Even perfectly ordinary and harmless things can be dangerous to certain people.

Death can be as close as our front curb, our bathtub, or a staircase. Or a spoiled sandwich or some food that sets off allergy and acute asthma. The best of drugs can be dangerous, too. Our purpose is to study everything, guard against every danger. But abolish the drug that made you black out? No. Unless you also want to abolish everything else that is dangerous, including food, beer, slates, lead paint and even slippery sidewalks. Or automobiles?

As to your question: you were unusually sensitive to the drug injected and its symptoms are typical. A few people have this sensitivity; millions do not. Remind any dentist or doctor in the future of that experience — there is a substitute drug available.

Dear Dr. Molner: After reading your column about the silver nitrate used for cauterizing warts, I decided to try one application on the parents who let children sip beer and wine glasses from their glasses. — M.V.

I'm against it.

Note to R.K.G.: No, we've never found any cure remedy for psoriasis. Some people use shot-in-the-dark remedy words but there is none that can be depended upon in all cases. The disease is not fatal and will not make you an invalid. It is just a nuisance.

THE PACKSACK

by GREGORY CLARK

A friend of mine who worked and schemed and connived so hard that he made a pile of money and lost not only his wife but his own self-respect, is just home after spending a whole year in Switzerland. Like a vagabond, though usually staying at better hotels, he wandered all over the Swiss republic, city and town, village and farm, and received both his health and his common sense.

"Switzerland," he says, "is possibly the richest country on earth. It is far wealthier than the United States, in terms of capital in relation to population. But its people, rich or not rich for there are no poor, are so vastly much more happy than the American people, or the Canadian, or any other people who brag of their high standard of living. That is absurd to compare them. There is none of that touch of Judas that afflicts all of us. For a few pieces of silver or a million pieces of silver, the Swiss will not sell what is precious to their way of life, ruining parks and park land for high-rise, high-tax-revenue apartments, scruffy little housing developments that will be slums in twenty-years when the plumbing falls apart and the walls crack. In Switzerland, I found in relation to population, between the standard of living and the standard of life."

'Don't Kid Me' Magistrate Wills Tells Youth

An 18-year-old youth who said he "hadn't a chance" to contact his relatives since his arrest on false pretence charges, was verbally rapped by magistrate T. Y. Wills in Belleville today.

Clifford Rozell appeared before the magistrate charged with paying for an automobile with a bad cheque. The charge of false pretences followed purchase of the car — priced at $650 — from Roy Payne Sunoco Service in Belleville.

Rozell told the court he lived with his grandparents in Oshawa and also had relatives in Belleville. He said none of them knew where he was. Asked by the magistrate if he had contacted his relatives, Rozell replied:

"I haven't had a chance."

"You want to be a martyr? You're not going to be a martyr," retorted magistrate Wills.

"I am quite sure if you had asked to telephone or get some word out (to the county jail) you would have got it.

"I have had this said to me time and again," he told the accused. "You have had the jailor brought down here and I found it is absolutely untrue.

"Don't kid me anymore," he warned Rozell, remanding the youth one week.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved hesitantly lower during light morning trading today.

Abitibi, Dominion Foundries and Steel, Imperial Oil, Canadian Breweries and CPR all dipped in a ⅛ to ¼ range. Algoma Steel dropped ½.

Banks gave a firm undertone, with Montreal ahead ⅛, Nova Scotia up ¼, Toronto-Dominion up ⅛, Royal ahead ¼ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce up ⅛. Power Corporation climbed a point to 30.

On the exchange index, industrials dipped .27 to 585.91, and western oils .29 to 115.66. Golds rose .22 to 85.45 and base metals .05 to 187.22. The 11 a.m. volume was 627,000 shares compared with 856,000 at the same time Monday.

Among base metals, Noranda and Hudson Bay Mining both rose ¼, while International Nickel and Falconbridge each slipped ¼.

Buffalo-Ankerite Holdings dropped 20 cents to $1.35. The firm has adjourned until early January a shareholders meeting to consider a proposal which would put the company in the real estate field.

In western oils, Calgary and Edmonton and Great Plains Development both gained ¼. Home B slipped ¼.

Monday, a string of fractional advances lifted the market to a moderate advance.

Industrials gained more than a point on index; all other sections, however, gave sluggish performances.

Featured in the main list was Power Corporation, which jumped to a year's peak of $11¼, then eased to 79 for a gain of ½. The company announced a proposal to split its stock 10-for-one dividends on the new issue would amount to $2.50, a 50-cent boost over past yearly payments.

Gatineau Power dropped ½ to 26¼ several times at 1962-while Toronto-Dominion Bank, Aluminium and Dominion Foundries and Steel all declined ¼.

Among base metals, Gunnar Mining raced through more than 200,000 shares. It dropped as low as 10¼ but closed at 11, unchanged. International Nickel slipped ¼, while Rio Algom gained ½.

Lifted Socks To Get Out Of Elements

An ordinary pair of socks may yet bring temporary shelter for a 66-year-old self-admitted shoplifter in Belleville.

Mervyn Conrad this morning pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to stealing the socks Monday from Metropolitan Stores on Front Street.

"He had taken one pair of men's socks and placed them under his coat and left the store without paying," inspector J. B. McLauchlan told magistrate T. Y. Wills.

"He indicated he did this purposely to get — get out of the elements," added the inspector.

The magistrate remanded Conrad, described as "a known transient" one week to hear his record before passing sentence.

Five Members Inducted Into Kinsmen Club

The regular meeting of the Kinsmen Club was held at the Kinsmen Centre last evening, featuring G. A. Whitman of the local welfare department as the guest speaker.

Mr. Whitman based his address on the importance of the welfare to the community and how it operates.

"We must realize," said Mr. Whitman, "that public assistance has recently been extended into important areas, bringing aid to entirely new groups of people, and involving extensive additional expenditures of public funds.

"Social work is going to become what once were parents, uncles, aunts, grandparents and what were more recently, the town elders and all the good people of this little community, who said, 'we don't tolerate that kind of thing in our town.' Social work is going to have to be all of these things to these people," he said.

The speaker was thanked by Ben Yanover.

Five new members were inducted into the club and were welcomed by Tail-Twist Lang. New members were: C. Bender, R. Fralick, R. Swain, W. Flindall, and William McKenzie.

The new members were presented with their membership pins by Deputy-Governor Ken Thompson and Z. Kvarda explained the Kinsmen symbol to them.

Douglas Oliphant of 69 Octavia Street, was the lucky winner of the Christmas Cheer draw.

Baby-Sitting Service Starts At Local 'Y'

Starting today and till next Saturday inclusive a new community service is being inaugurated by the local Y.M.C.A. — a Baby Sitting Service.

Through the courtesy of the Downtown Business Men's Association the Y.M.C.A. will accept any child of school age (kindergarten and up) from 6.30 p.m. to 9.30 p.m. while their parents are shopping. This is a free service for all parents requesting a sales slip from any downtown merchant upon calling for their children.

This is more than a baby sitting service. There will be organized program activities such as movies, games, story telling, sing songs and other entertainment. Misses Carol Brown and Darlene MacDonald, members of the Girls' Hi-Y Club, and George Messers a trained movie projectionist will be on hand to entertain the youngsters. A "Y" staff member will also be present.

Should this pilot-project meet with success during this Christmas period, plans are to continue it for every Friday evening.

Employees at Deacon Bros. Vote to Decertify Union

Employees of Deacon Brothers Sportswear Ltd. of Belleville on Monday voted to decertify the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' of America as their bargaining agents. The vote was 37 to 30.

The vote at Deacon's was conducted by the Ontario Department of Labor following a petition to the board by a group of employees in October of this year. The petition asked that the bargaining rights of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' of America be terminated.

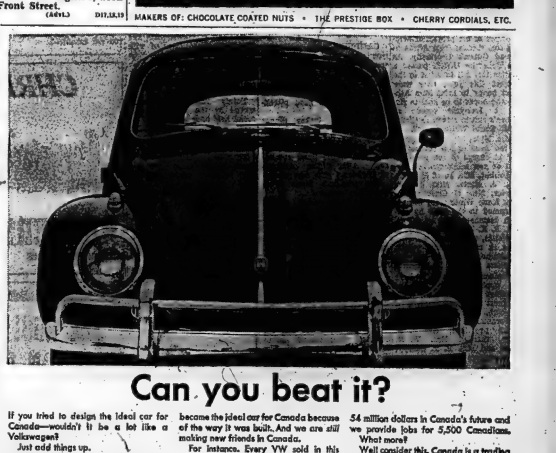
Yesterday's vote was the second held at Deacon Brothers in the last four years.

The first was in September 1958 when workers voted against having the union act as their bargaining agent.

Then, in 1960 the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' of America without a vote were certified by the Department of Labor as bargaining agents for Deacon employees.

Last year a conciliation board hearing was held in Toronto but the two parties could not come to an agreement and the board made no recommendation.

A Deacon Brothers Company official said today that in October of this year the Union charged the company with failure to bargain in good faith. At the hearing before the Ontario Relations Board, he said the board ruled, "that the Union was the author of its own misfortune in this matter, and the refusal of the company to continue to bargain, in the circumstances of this case, was not unreasonable or in bad faith."



The charge made by the Union against the Deacon Company was dismissed.

This fall the Union has been picketing stores in Belleville, Trenton and in Woodstock where Deacon Brothers men's wear is sold. The picketing was the basis of a court action taken by Horsees Men's Wear of Woodstock in protest against the secondary boycott.

Can you beat it?
If you tried to design the ideal car for Canada—wouldn't it be a lot like a Volkswagen?
Just add things up.
Economy? This begins when you buy a VW and continues on your rare visits to the gas station.
Quality? The beetle is built to last—our '53's are still running around.
Reliability? Duy in duy out you start at the turn of a key.
Performance? Put yourself in the driver's seat and you'll see what we mean.
All this didn't just happen. Volkswagen became the ideal car for Canada because of the way it was built. And we are still making new friends in Canada.
For instance. Every VW sold in this country now contains Canadian parts and materials. Things like steel, tires, headlights, bumpers, and engine parts. This alone represents a six million dollar investment in Canadian manufactured goods. We believe in doing business with our customers.
After 10 years Volkswagen has a sizeable stake in Canada. Between our 346 dealers and ourselves we have invested 54 million dollars in Canada's future and we provide jobs for 5,500 Canadians.
What more?
Well consider this. Canada is a trading nation—it must trade to live. One of Canada's best customers is West Germany. The Volkswagen you buy helps Canada to sell West Germany a dollar and a half's worth of Canadian goods for every dollar's worth she buys in return.
Imports pay for Exports.

U.W. Club Holds Annual Yule Party

On December 10th, members of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district met in the hall of Holloway St. United Church for their annual Christmas dinner party. Seated at festive tables for six, with an executive member at each table as hostess, the dinners were able to talk readily, while a change of seats at the end of the dinner aided further in creating an evening of good fellowship for all.

Following the turkey dinner, the 84 members and guests enjoyed an entertaining program. Mrs. J. E. Boyd, accompanist on the piano by Miss Anne White, led the group in the singing of a number of Christmas carols during the evening, and on special request, obliged with a beautiful Christmas solo.

Mrs. Lyle Jones told a moving Christmas story, and, also, a humorous one; Miss Agnes Ashun, a colorful guest in her charming red and yellow native costume, described several aspects of life in Ghana, and answered many questions.

Miss Ashun was introduced by Mrs. H. G. Thorburn, president of the Kingston University Women's Club who are the sponsors of the project of helping this student from Africa to attend Queen's University. As the Belleville U.W.C. passed a motion this fall to assist in the project this year, they were most happy to meet Miss Ashun who hopes to be able to finish a four-year course at Queen's and to return to Ghana to do Social Welfare work.

Mrs. Myles Morton, Chairman of the membership committee, was in charge of the introduction of new members. Mrs. W. S. Babbitt, Miss D. C. McLeish, Mrs. J. Marts, Miss Frances Fowler, Miss N Gracilla, and Miss Anne White were warmly welcomed to the Club by various members, two of whom, Mrs. R. K. Jeffery and Mrs. J. E. Neiles, made their introductions in most amusing verses. A number of guests not yet 25 members were also introduced.

Members were glad to have the opportunity to exchange greetings with a specially invited guest and past-president of the club, Mrs. J. E. McArthur, of Toronto.

The president, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, thanked Mrs. W. N. Hurst and Mrs. P. T. Seibert, the conveners of this successful dinner, and expressed sincere wishes to each member and guests for a happy and blessed holiday season.

Surprise Party Marks 25th Anniversary

On Friday evening a surprise party was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Donnan, R.R. 2, Stirling, in honor of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bronson, 17 Faria Street, Belleville, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The home was gay with Christmas motifs and a beautifully decorated bride's cake centred the dining table laden with a bountiful buffet supper.

The evening was spent viewing family movies and reminiscing. The bridegroom received an amusing incident when he and the bride-to-be "buckled" four-foot snowdrifts from Tweed to Bancroft in a '29 Durant in obtain their marriage licence — only to find on their arrival that the town clerk was the "sold out".

Those in attendance at the party included the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Eva Pennock of Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan, West Huntingdon, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bronson, Mrs. Jim Bronson and daughter Betty, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Green, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brooks and family, Noreen, Janice and Ronnie, Miss Judy Rose and Miss Linda Pritchard, all of Belleville.

Among the gifts received was a silver tea service from the bridegroom's family, and from their friends, silver liquid cups and saucers, silver flower vase and fruit tray.

Sincere wishes were extended Harry and Mae for many more happy years together.

Rebekah Past Grands Enjoy Party

CAMPBELLFORD — Christmas trees and candle lights were a perfect setting for the Past Grands of the Rebekah Lodges Christmas party which was held at the Legion hall recently, with a good attendance.

A delicious turkey dinner was prepared and served by a group from the Legion Auxiliary, with Mrs. Mae Phillips and Mrs. Lottie Shaw conveners. After dinner exchange of Christmas gifts was made.

The president, Sister Edith MacMillan presided for the business period, which started with the singing of Christmas carols, accompanied by Sister Elwa Hogle at the piano.

The correspondence was read and the treasurer's report given by Sister Della Fetherick, and the collection taken up.

It was decided to send Sister E. Abar a Christmas gift to the Odd Fellows and Rebekah Home in Barrie, as had been the custom each year she has been a resident in the home.

The meeting closed and the members then played euchre for the balance of the evening. Sister Elwa Hogle had the high score and Sisters Lillian Burgh and Helen Abernethy the low scores. This concluded a most enjoyable evening.

U.C.W. Meetings

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JUNCTION — On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Bruce Stapley was hostess for the December meeting of the Eggleton U.C.W. with 12 members and four visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Warren Harlow presided over the Christmas program, which she had prepared.

After the call to worship Mrs. Harlow read the story "In a Jungle Hospital." During the reading Miss Joyce Stapley at the piano softly played "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," while Mrs. Forde Stapley and Mrs. Maurice Clancy sang the carol in an adjoining room.

Prayer by the pastor, Mr. Dyson, closed the devotional.

Mrs. M. Clancy contributed a vocal solo "Star of the East," with Mrs. H. Stapley playing her accompaniment.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley reported three get-well cards, one sympathy card, one box of fruit sent out during month, also one visit to hospital. Mrs. Harlow read a letter received from Mrs. Smithbrin, president of Belleville Presbyterial U.C.W. giving information on work of U.C.W. and asking the Eggleton U.C.W. allocation for supply work.

The secretary is to send for new study book "On Asia's Rim."

Mrs. Murney Kirkey offered her home for the January meeting and program will be prepared by Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

The president asked that members bring to the January meeting any new ideas that would help in carrying on the work of the U.C.W. in 1963.

Mrs. Murney Martin favored with a piano selection of Christmas Carols. Mrs. Bruce Stapley conducted a Bible contest on "The Christmas Story."

The guest speaker, Mrs. C. Lansing of Stirling gave a splendid paper "No Room in the Inn." As in Bible times many today are often too busy with other things, to make room for Christ in their lives.

Mrs. Harlow, thanked the hostess, guest speaker and all those who had contributed to the program.

Members exchanged gifts, and Mr. Dyson was presented with a Christmas gift from the Eggleton U.C.W. group, for which he expressed thanks. The guest speaker was also presented with a small gift.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and a social half hour enjoyed.

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

Canniffon U.C.W. held their December meeting in the church rooms last Wednesday afternoon. There was a good attendance with the President, Mrs. D. Brenton presiding. Mrs. Brenton welcomed the members the three visitors and the guest speaker, Mrs. Cooper of Stone Church.

The theme of the program was "Christmas" and since this was a special "Christmas program the hobinee period was dispensed until the next meeting with the exception of the reading of the minutes and the treasury report.

Mrs. Crosby gave a reading "The Eternity of Christmas." Mrs. Roy Pound was in charge of the worship service, assisted by Mrs. W. Brenton who read the account of Jesus' birth from St. Matthew 2, 1-12. Mrs. Dawson sang a beautiful solo, "There's a Star in the Sky" accompanied by the pianist, Mrs. Empson.

She also introduced the guest speaker. Mrs. Cooper in her short but interesting talk said "we needed to take an adult view of Christmas. We should try to get away from the childish world of tinsel and candy and the hurry and scurry and the task of trying to keep up with "Mrs. Jones." We should remember that we are celebrating the birthday and that as we give our whole attention to a person on a birthday so we should give our attention to the one whose birthday we were celebrating, "Jesus Christ." He should be the honored guest in our hearts and homes on Christmas Day and not the gifts, the big meals and all the other things that through the years have crept into our way of celebrating Christmas."

Following Mrs. Cooper's talk a delicious lunch was served by the lunch conveners and a half hour of fellowship followed. Mrs. Brenton brought the meeting to a close with a few words of appreciation to all taking part.

Working Among Men, Women Must Always Remain Feminine

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — A woman working among men must exercise confidence in her own ability but at the same time must remain "thoroughly feminine," says Irene Baird, the first woman to become head of an information division of a federal government department.

Mrs. Baird, a slight woman with greying hair, won her post with the northern affairs and national resources department in competition with more than 100 persons. As far as she knows, all the rest were men.

Women have a tendency to become intense and emotional, she says. They needed to learn detachment and how to laugh at themselves.

"We must try for excellence but not perfection. In striving for perfection you just wear the hair off your head and the hair off all your associates' heads."

Mrs. Baird, a native of England whose family came to Canada in 1919 and settled on Vancouver Island, has more than 20 years experience in federal government information work. Before she spent a year as a columnist for the Vancouver Sun and three months as a reporter for the Vancouver Province.

WROTE THREE BOOKS

The former Irene Todd, she married shortly after her arrival in Canada. Robert D. Baird, an army officer, died in 1952.

While living on the west coast she wrote three books. The first was written in 1937 with "one hand on the typewriter and one hand in the kitchen sink." It was done with the help of a Scottish housekeeper that she was able to write and care for her two children at the same time.

Her second book, Waste Heritage, is used by Ottawa's Carleton University and the University of British Columbia as a "definitive of the 1930s." Mrs. Baird says proudly. By the time she wrote her third book she was offered a job on The Sun.

She left newspaper work to take a job with the National Film Board, serving in Washington and Mexico, then returned to Canada with the information branch of the federal mines and resources department in 1947. It later became northern affairs and national resources.

LOVED THE NORTH

Mrs. Baird loved the north from the moment she saw it. She doesn't recall how many trips she has made there but each has been different. They include a trip with French industrialists who were testing Arctic clothing and a private trip planned by Lady Eaton in a chartered plane.

Away from the office Mrs. Baird likes to play golf—she shoots in the "gay 90s"—attends plays and good movies and reads, preferably biographical novels.

In the last few months she has found a new interest—writing poetry. She says she has "always felt rather ashamed" about not writing more books but this required "quiet and sustained time." She finds it easier to fit poetry and the writing of articles into her spare time. Her poems, naturally, are mostly about the North.

V.O.N. Plans Annual Meet, Reports Given

The December meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held recently at the Y.M.C.A., with Mr. Frank Follwell presiding.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Miss L. Burnside.

Mrs. R. L. Smith was appointed as chairman of the annual dinner. The dinner is to be at Eastminster Church on Monday, February 4th. Mr. Frank Follwell consented to secure the speaker.

Miss Dorothy Connor, head nurse, gave the nurse's report. During November, 105 patients received care, totalling 535 visits making the peak month of the year. Of these visits, 411 were for nursing care. The remainder were for health supervision. Visits to mothers and babies represented 17 per cent of the total visits. In special activities, two visits were made to Douglas Athin School and three to Canniffon-Corbyville School. Three students nurses from the Belleville General Hospital observed V.O.N. work.

The Victorian Order of Nurses is a member of the United Appeal.

Dutch Airline Chefs Demonstrate Christmas "Banket"

by Mary Moore

After seeing Chefs Stekelenburg and Alderlieste of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines demonstrate how to make Banket, a reader wrote asking me for the recipe for this Dutch Christmas treat.

By quite a coincidence I am able to give the genuine recipe for Banket as made by Chef Stekelenburg for I met him and saw him preparing Banket not too to serve to an audience of over 500. I tasted it too. But his recipe presents three difficulties: it is in Dutch, and in grams and for 100-serving amounts. I have a Dutch friend Mrs. Kool, who invited me to watch her make it. She carefully weighed all of the ingredients on her old country grocer scale then translated them into measuring cups and spoons for me.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Panned Baby Beef Liver; Parsley-Green Onion Milk Gravy; Fluffy Mashed Potatoes; Broccoli; Toasted Greens; 1000-Island Dressing; Spice Layer Cake with Date Filling and Coffee Frosting; Tea.

MRS. KOOL'S GENUINE BANKET (a Dutch Christmas pastry. This is the same Banket as recently demonstrated by Chef Stekelenburg of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.)

Pastry: (Puff type — sufficient for 4 Banket "Letters"): Two cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 1 1-3 cups very cold hard butter, ½ cup ice cold water. Measure flour and put into mixing bowl. To keep the butter cold cut a 3-lb. block in half to get your 1 cup measurement. Mark the other half in thirds and cut off 1-3 of it. (This will give you 1 1-3 cups, for 1 lb. of butter measures 2 cups.) Slice this butter into ¾" slices then cut these into ¾" cubes. Add to flour. Lift with spread-out fingers to well dredge the butter cubes with flour without squeezing. Add water in 3 amounts, still mixing by hand until you have a mass you can pack together. Turn out on lightly floured board and pat, then press down with stockinette-covered rolling pin to flatten and lengthen it. Roll dough to ½" thickness. Fold into 3 thickness, (layers), roll to ½" thickness again. Repeat this folding and rolling 5 more times (7 in all). Work quickly so dough does not get warm. Cut in half and put half in refrigerator. Roll out half to ¼" thickness 17 x 9". Cut into 2 neat oblongs 17 x 4½".

Have ready this Almond Paste Filling: Blanch and dry ¾ oz. almonds. When bone dry put through Mouli Grater. (This is a tiny inexpensive grater made in England and in France and sold by Eaton's or grating hard cheese and nuts. You could put your almonds through the nut knife of your food-grinder but it makes them too oily and mushy.) Add 1 cup sugar and grated yellow rind of 2 large (or 3 small) lemons, 1 whole egg and 2 egg yolks. Mix well by hand. Pick up a handful and lay it on lightly floured board and shape into a roll about 1¼" wide and ¼" to ⅜" thick. Place this at centre of the pastry adding more almond filling to have it reach to within 1" of both ends of pastry. (Use quarter of filling for each strip of pastry.) Fold side of pastry loosely over filling. Brush other side with egg white (to "glue", Mrs. Kool said). Fold over and pat gently. Turn over to have seam underside. Shape into horseshoe or wreath or the initial of some family member. Brush top with lightly beaten egg. Prick top at 12 even intervals to show where to cut later and allow steam to escape. Place on cookie sheet. Make up remainder of dough and filling into 3 more Banketa, shaping into different initials. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 30 to 40 minutes. It must have a very hot oven. When baked and cold it may be thinly frosted then decorated with bits of candied angelica and red and green cherries and almonds. To serve, cut at the forks and at — about a 1¼" piece is the average slice.

A high class pastry cherished by the Dutch at Christmas time.

UCW List New Officers

RYLSTONE — The members of Rylstone United Church women were entertained by Mrs. Ellis Jones, for their annual meeting, with ten ladies and four children in attendance.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer opened the meeting with a short reading, and conducted the meditation, entitled "The Three Wise Men". The hymn "As With Gladness Men of Old" was sung with verses interspersed with short readings.

Mrs. Wili Rutherford conducted the Bible Study on "The Christmas Story".

Mrs. Ray Stewart, Mrs. Ross Dickie, Mrs. Jack Spencer, Mrs. Clarence Thomson and Mrs. Chester Meiklejohn were nominating committee and the following is the slate of officers as prepared by them: president — Mrs. Will Rutherford; 1st vice-president — Mrs. Ellis Jones; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. Jack Spencer; secretary — Mrs. Ray Stewart; treasurer — Mrs. Clarence Thomson; missionary treasurer — Mrs. Ross Dickie; pianist — Mrs. Ellis Jones; Christian education and missionary education co-chairman) Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Mrs. Chester Meiklejohn, Mrs. Jack Spencer, Mrs. Cecil Finch and Mrs. Fred McKeown; sunshine, flowers and visiting committee — Mrs. Ross Dickie, Mrs. Jim Milne, Mrs. Ellis Jones, and Mrs. Jack Spencer; friendship committee — Mrs. Don Spencer, Mrs. Cecil Finch and Mrs. Clarence Thomson.

Reports of the year's work were given by the officers and committees. The new president was installed and the retiring president thanked the members for their co-operation during the past year, which has been a trying one, with so much to learn about the new organization.

Mrs. Bob Spencer gave a reading "Christmas Day". Mrs. Jack Spencer read "The Meaning in Yule Decorations" and the meeting closed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Ray Stewart and Mrs. Will Rutherford.

A small bazaar of home-made Christmas gifts was an interesting and profitable feature of the afternoon. One member contributed to the birthday bank.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Spencer on January 9, 1963. Program committee will be Mrs. Clarence Thomson and Mrs. Ray Stewart and refreshment committee, Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and Mrs. Will Rutherford.

Miscellaneous Showers Held By Community

POINT ANNE — Last Tuesday evening a miscellaneous bridal shower was held in the parish hall at Point Anne in honor of Miss Connie Genereaux, future bride-to-be. During the evening euchre was enjoyed with the prizes going to Mrs. Pearl Genereaux, Mrs. Maxine Misner, Mrs. Bill Gilbert and Mrs. L. Hull.

After euchre Connie was presented with a grand array of lovely gifts for which she expressed sincere appreciation and also to those responsible in holding the shower for her.

Refreshments were served by those in charge.

On the Wednesday evening a miscellaneous bridal shower was held in the parish hall at Point Anne in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Maracle (nee Donna Preston), recent newlyweds.

The evening was spent in playing bingo and euchre with prizes going to Mrs. Evelyn Lott, Mrs. Annie Guay, Mrs. Peter Green Sr., Mrs. Beulah Maracle — low; Mrs. E. Lott — lone hand; Mrs. Peter Green — door prize; and Mrs. A. Guay — lucky chair.

Following the games Donna was presented with many lovely and useful gifts for which she expressed appreciation.

Refreshments were served by the ladies.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

Speaking of manners — how very often people accept invitations and hospitality of every description and never offer a thing in return!

This doesn't mean that invitations have to be lit-for-tat, and that the couple who entertained you on Saturday have to be invited over the following week-end.

In many cases it's impossible to entertain frequently. Young couples with small children often have a hard time finding a sniffle-free weekend for months on end to invite friends in. Often the husband travels a great deal and is in town only long enough for his wife to accept a long-standing invitation, let alone toss a party.

But when it's difficult or impossible to return hospitality as frequently as it's accepted, there are ways to express appreciation in the meantime. The polite thing to do, at least, is to let your friends know that you think of them kindly, not just when they invite you to dinner, but at other times as well.

One charming couple we know travel most of the year on business and so are usually for a few weeks in the Summer and Fall and send the children postcards from various countries, so they can collect the stamps. Anything that might interest a friend — an unusual recipe or a copy of a foreign recipe to brush up on linguistic skill — is forwarded along with a breezy note.

They keep in touch, and this is far more gratifying to a hostess than being completely forgotten and ignored by guests from one dinner invitation to the next.

If it's impossible or not feasible to offer reciprocal hospitality, a substitute courtesy can be offered a friend in the way of a thank-you note after a dinner party, or a small bunch of flowers or a plant after a particularly successful party that she really worked like a dog on.

At other times, it might be possible to invite a friend or two to accompany you on a drive, or a shopping spree, or to tea at a pleasant tea room. Sending a note when someone in the family is ill, or offering to do a favor when it's least expected, are other gestures that help keep friendships alive. Even an occasional phone call helps fill the gap. At least friends then know their invitations are taken as compliments and are not just being taken for granted.

ROYAL NEEDLEWORK

LONDON (CP) — British Museum experts are restoring a piece of needlework done by Mary, Queen of Scots, during her imprisonment in the Tower of London prior to her execution in 1586.

Men's Club Entertains on 'Ladies' Night'

STIRLING — On Wednesday evening St. John's Anglican Men's Club entertained the ladies to delicious banquet in the I.O.O.F. dining hall. The members of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 catered for the meal.

Following the dinner the group enjoyed a sing-song and a variety of games under the direction of Mr. U. E. Hay-Ellis.

This was the first Ladies' Night of the Club, and there were 65 in attendance. The group had a most enjoyable Christmas party and all were agreed that another get-together next year will be anticipated.

Women's Institutes

MARMORA—The December meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held December 13, at the home of Mrs. Frank Sweet with 13 members present.

Correspondence was read among which were thank-you notes for gifts and flowers received. Mrs. R. E. Neal brought in a report of an enquiry in regards to bursaries and it was decided that $200 be withdrawn from the bank funds and placed in a special account to be named the Bursary Fund for High School pupils. The amount of $10 each is to be given for the girl and boy with the highest standing which is to be known as the Marmora Institute Educational Bursary.

Gifts were distributed according to numbers after which a short program followed. Miss Grace Warren was pianist for the singing of Christmas carols; Mrs. Percy Carman recited "Jake's Courtship and What Became of It"; Mrs. Harold Hayler read a Christmas story of "The Canvas Back Duck"; and Mrs. Tiandill read "Twelve Days of Christmas". Two cards were signed by all for sick members and a contest was conducted by Mrs. O'Neill and won by Mrs. Kenney.

A lovely Christmas lunch was served by Mrs. Sweet and cohostesses.

14 Brownies Enrolled at Ceremony

FRANKFORD— First Frankford Brownie Pack held their enrolment ceremony and Christmas party recently in Frankford Community Hall.

The District Commissioner Mrs. A. Machalo enrolled the following Brownies: Donna Lawrence Mary Heney, Brenda Cooney, Marlene Bradshent, Susan Baxter, Beth-Dauthiese, Dale Guff, Lynn Vasey, Sharon Post, Laureen Wickson, Cathy Reid, Dianne Suderman, Carol Rose and Mary Lou Hubble.

Donna Chase showed the pictures of her Girl Guide trip to Great Britain.

The Brownies sang Christmas carols and exchanged Christmas gifts.

Refreshments were served by the local association.

Here Is Help for Arthritics

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I wish to congratulate you on the advise your offered to "Still Alive and Kicking," as there are so many people unaware of the help they can receive through the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

In Belleville we are quite fortunate in having a Women's Auxiliary of C.A.R.S. This group provides volunteer services which supplement the Society's treatment. I had the honor of being the first patient of this group. I myself had been an arthritic from my early teen ties. I have been fortunate; even with handicaps I am able to have a fairly normal life.

Our biggest drawback, of course, is the shortage of staff— with our supply of physiotherapists at a minimum.—ONE OF THE BELLEVILLE VOLUNTEERS.

DEAR ONE—Thank you, Belleville. CARS has branched right across Canada. Anyone wishing to help or be helped should get in touch, in Belleville, with Miss Anne Dugmore, CARS, c/o Rehabilitation Centre, 169 Union Street, Kingston, Ont.

(Don't keep worrying. Doris can suggest something to do about your dilemma).

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Jane Y. — Now that I've found a place in the suburbs, he's backing out.

Edgar Y. — We have no children and I don't want to have to pay school taxes.

Jane Y. — We've been married 22 years and it's about time we settled down. Ed is a sales manager and wherever his territory was, that's where we pitched our tent, or rather our furnished rooms. But now he's a vice-president in charge of sales and has a permanent desk in New York. So we agreed to sink our roots in a charming Westchester village, and I've just found a cozy split-level cottage, with a garden and even a small brook on the property.

The price is right, it needs no repairs, and we get a head start on furnishings because broadloom carpeting and draperies are included. Ed is wavering, however, because he's heard of a new assessments coming up. So what? They'll make our property more valuable. I want to close the deal now.

Edgar Y. — I like everything about the house Jane selected except the town. And it's not the people, it's the building program. We seem to have hit the worst timing from the tax viewpoint. They're just starting on a major renewal program and a big hike in real estate taxes is in the works.

I'm sure we can find something just as attractive in a location which has its big improvement drive behind it already. Give me a neighborhood where the new schools and playgrounds were put up a few years ago, so I know where I stand. In this place, surprises — unpleasant financially — are likely to be sprung on me every year. And I'm selfish enough to reason that since we have no children we won't be getting any benefit from the fancy schools.

The Council: To paraphrase Sir Walter Scott's lines in "The Lay of the Last Minstrel," breathes there the home-owner who won't see red when taxes go up on the old homestead?

Resign yourself, Ed. That Utopia you seek with "its big improvement drive behind it" doesn't exist. Ever hear of "obsolescence"? It used to mean a gradual wearing out, a slow falling into disuse. Neighborhoods could remain unchanged for generations. But these restless times insist on speed up. Roads get detoured into highways and freeways. Ball parks become sports arenas. The village green turns into a botanical garden. No matter where you settle, renovation and innovation will be in the wind, and the burghers will pay up. As a taxpayer, the most you can hope for is a voice in decisions and a fair return in enjoyment and enhancement of your holdings.

Assume you find a locale all "schooled up." Won't they be needing a new hospital, new mental health clinics, a new jail perhaps? Even though your own children, Ed, won't be using the school, the young folks who are growing up around you will. Always there's the hope that by forking out funds for the youngest citizens, we won't have to spend as much later for correctional and remedial institutions.

Buy your house, Mr. and Mrs. Y. And be glad that your tax dollar is going into buildings that "build," like schools. Both the structures and the young folks they shelter can add to the beauty of your surroundings.

Handouts

House are not starving. "The trapping was good this year. There is want and privation, true. But there is want and privation on Jarvis Avenue in Winnipeg. Ten thousand dollars would do a lot of good there."

Mr. Christianson was referring to $10,000 given the Salvation Army by the Canadian Council for world relief to get supplies to the Indians.

J. R. Bell, superintendent of Indian affairs for the federal government at The Pas, Man., said: "This relief effort is definitely overlapping, a little frosting on the cake for Christmas."

Caught in the middle of the situation is the International Nickel Company whose nickel mine at Thompson is second largest in the world.

The company has been accused of prejudice against the Indians and for a period last summer was being picketed by Indians seeking employment with the company.

The immediate situation developed following a letter to the Manitoba and federal governments and a Toronto newspaper.

From E. A. Valentine, of the United Steel Workers of America, who recently won the right to represent Thompson workers, the letter said, in part, that the natives of the area were faced with deprivation because of a burgeoning population and dwindling natural resources.

"If the Indian chooses to remain in the settlement, he has to submit to exploitation and adopt a cringing, gratitous attitude," the letter says.

"But at the same time, deep resentment seeps in and he begins to live in enforced idleness with all that it entails while he has evolutions and dreams of a better way of life."

Col. Moulton said his directive from Commissioner Booth "was to give help to those Indians and any other Indians needing it in the north. That's what we're doing."

He said the need in the area is trade training schools, not airlifted supplies. "We've got a tiger by the tail, but we're not going to assume a government responsibility."

Ma Heller Re-opens Shop In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Ma Heller, whose newsy letters helped keep Montreal alive in the minds of hundreds of Second World War soldiers, has reopened her restaurant.

More than 100 old-time friends attended the opening. Most of them were veterans with whom Ma used to correspond.

The weekend soda shop she and her husband opened more than 30 years ago became a favorite with teen-agers in the district. When war broke out she continued to keep in touch with her "boys" by mail.

She recalls they had a standard closing to their letters— "Kiss all the girls for me, I'll take over when I get back."

The walls of the new restaurant bear witness to the past. A glass case covers medals for bravery given to Ma Heller by the men awarded them. And an honor roll with nearly 600 names is beside it. It was given to her by the defence department and has the names of all the servicemen who visited the soda shop.

early in the New Year to discuss national symbols.

Real Caouette, deputy leader of the Social Credit party, said Mr. Pearson "delivered the best speech of his career."

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said his party would give wholehearted section. A Dominion-provincial conference would be called support to efforts to establish mutual respect between the two cultures. Praising the speeches by Mr. Pearson and Mr. Sevigny, he hoped "we are turning a corner."

Mr. Pearson had said that the time was past for papering over the cracks in unity, and it was necessary to revert to the principles of confederation —"our declaration of faith in the destiny of a united Canada."

MUST ACCEPT

English-Canadians, in managerial levels and in the federal public service "must accept the changes which are required to make a reality of full partnership," Mr. Pearson said.

"Why are so relatively few French - Canadians in professional and administrative jobs of the federal civil service, including Crown corporations and federal agencies?"

Education was a basic problem and, as such, the provinces must be brought in on discussions.

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) called on members to air their views on the subject so that if there is complete agreement the federal government, can approach the provinces with the question above politics.

"We must seize this opportunity—which is perhaps the last one," he said.

standing committee on privileges and elections at the current session and it is expected that Mr. Robarts subsequently will introduce a bill based on the report.

The report said the commission, headed by Mr. Justice E. A. Richardson, "has concluded that a reasonable maximum size for the legislative assembly is 12 members." There now are 98 members.

If a bill creating the new ridings is passed this session, the new seats will not become effective until a writ is issued for a provincial election. It is expected that all three parties will require at least four months to get their election machines geared to the new setup.

First reaction from the two opposition party leaders indicates the recommendations will most likely pass through the privileges and elections committee with little trouble.

PLEASED: LIBERALS

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said he is pleased with the report.

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party and member from York South, is one of the six members whose ridings would be affected.

Mr. MacDonald said the interim report is forward-looking in its population formula, which should provide a basis for more scientific redistribution.

The legislature's private bills committee approved a bill introduced by Thomas D. Thomas (NDP — Oshawa) authorizing Oshawa to pay three firms $30,000 as compensation for loss or damage in removing CNR tracks from the city's main street.

Cardinal

impulsive," man.

"When I am taken with an idea, I want to put it into practice immediately. I tell you, that is not at all the style of a council. I can't gather together 2,000 bishops and say: Let's go.'"

However, the cardinal promised the audience the second session of the council, which begins in September, will be more "active."

He also said the council will remain "the most striking fact in my life." He predicted the present council will set a trend for continued meetings of the world's Roman Catholic prelates in Rome.

He said that the simple, calm manner in which the deliberations were conducted could serve as a model for priests to adopt in their sermons.

"RESPECT NEEDED"

"A text must be read with respect. If each cure would preach his sermon in this way, without raising his voice in respect for a weighty and meaningful text, we would then reach the modern world.

"Truth shorn of its trappings, that's what modern generations seek. What matters for them is not grand flights of oratory but believing in what is said."

Cardinal Leger defined the ecumenical spirit as an answer to the present division in the Christian church.

"The church should wait for the priests who are delayed, not pass sentence on them. The church will be good for them.

"Furthermore, the church should no longer say: 'I am above you.' We must stop affirming that we alone posses the truth.

"It is true that we possess the truth but we must stop saying it. Do it without saying it.

"It is by giving the whole truth that we will attract them to us.

"That is the ecumenical spirit."

Indian, American Pilots Provide Lifeline Where War With China Being Fought

LEH, India (AP)—Indian and American pilots flying in the massive Himalayas provide the lifeline to this remote valley of monasteries, where the war with Communist China has broken the centuries-old quiet.

At 11,200 feet, Leh's steel-planked runway is one of the world's highest airports. On days when clouds lift from the mountain passes it is also one of the busiest, with up to 25 planes an hour carrying weapons, food and equipment for troops facing the Communist ceasefire line in Ladakh.

Buddhist monks and long-robed Ladakhis stalked as chunky Russian - built Ilyushin 14s, U.S.-made DC-3s and C-119 flying boxcars from the Indian air force swoop along the Indus River Valley to land.

Straining to reach altitudes thousands of feet higher than they are designed to fly, the unpressurized planes look through the winds of the Himalayas for gaps. Their wing tips almost seem to brush snow from the jagged peaks less than a mile away and hovering above the flight route. Pilots breathe from oxygen masks.

TOP MOUNTAIN

The big C-130s fly high above the mountains that stretch white and menacing as far as the eye can seen.

But the weather is so unpredictable planes can land at Leh for only about 180 days a year, Indian officers report.

With the Himalayan passes blocked by winter snows, Leh and all of Ladakh relies on the airlift.

The last army convoy to reach here by road took eight days to fight through snowdrifts on the 245 - mile road from Srinagar, capital of Kashmir.

Leh is the supply centre for all of Ladakh and India's north wing from Chushul, 70 miles to here, supplies are taken to remote outposts by parachute airdrops, lengthy hauls over switchback mountain roads or through the high passes by caravans, yaks or ponies.

FOLLOWS OLD PATTERN

As a supply centre, Leh is following an historic role. The ancient town once was a prosperous assembly point for caravans into central Asia and Tibet across the rolling three - mile high plateau now held by the Chinese.

It lies in the valley that inspired James Hilton to write Lost Horizon, his novel about the mystic hideaway of Shangri-la.

The 20th century intruded only recently—in 1948 when the first military vehicles arrived.

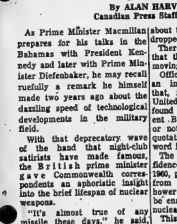
The mud - plastered stone houses of Leh's 4,000 inhabitants spread out from a main street churned to mud by the shaggy yaks, ponies and donkeys.

Pigtailed, dirt - caked men in felt boots and robes and women in tall hats with sheepskins and babies slung from their backs gather daily in the market place.

CASTLE DOMINATES

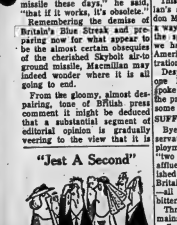
The scene is dominated by the massive stone and mud castle of the Rajah of Leh on a hilltop above the town.

Although the Chinese infantry is no pioneer unit and has never left Leh by road, the undeclared war with Peking has brought changes.



The Rajah has taken an army commission. A bright red gasoline drum now stands next to a prayer wall of stones.

And high above, beside the 900-year-old monastery, helicopters take off daily for the cease-fire line east of Leh.



Casualties — many suffering from frostbite or pneumonia—are flown out of the isolated posts and emergency supplies are flown in by a fleet of Soviet-built helicopters. Eight Indian pilots, all trained in the Soviet Union, have been added to the list of flying their bulky grey machines far beyond what their Russian builders set as their limitations.

The helicopters are designed to fly at 10,000 feet and hardly ever higher than 6,000. Rattling with effort, they grind their way to 18,000 feet in the high air where 10,000 feet in air almost too thin to catch the rotor blades.

David ancashire, a Toronto-born Canadian, reports from the Middle and Far East for the Associated Press.

"The Bride's mother is supposed to cry — not you!"

"Jest A Second"

MINOR MIRACLE — That was the way eye-witnesses described the escape from seemingly certain death of Dawson Douglas, above, with his badly damaged automobile. The car was struck by a fast-moving CNR freight on Sidney township's concession, just west of Belleville. Mr. Douglas escaped with a few, though deep, scratches. The mishap occurred almost at his front door. He lives just north of the main railroad line, and was driving across the level-crossing out of his yard when his car was hit.

Man Escapes With Scratch As Freight Clips His Car

For Dawson Douglas it might have been a day like many other—except his car was hit by a mile-long freight train outside his front door.

He also escaped with a scratch—but no other injury.

Finally, adding the finishing touch bordering on the bizarre, he towed his badly damaged automobile off the railroad tracks himself!

The minor miracle of Mr. Douglas' fairlike escape from certain death under the speeding freight occurred outside his home, north of the CNR main line on Sidney township's second concession, two miles west of Belleville.

"I don't just remember what happened," Mr. Douglas said minutes after the accident.

It happened as he drove out of his front yard, across the tracks on his way to a brick-laying job at Madoc.

The last thing he recalled, heading into Belleville nicked the side of his car, but the impact only took off the fender and flicked it through the air.

"It just turned my car around for about 50 feet," said Mr. Douglas. "I was thrown into the back seat."

He scrambled out himself, shaken up but otherwise unhurt except for some deep scratches on his hands.

"And I can't figure out how I got those," he confessed.

"I got off the track quick, because there might have been another freight along any time. It's a pretty busy line.

Provincial police raced to the scene, when first reports indicated a serious accident.

They discovered, along with a relieved train crew, that no ambulance was needed. Not only that. They didn't have to send for a tow truck.

Mr. Douglas hitched the near wreck to his own tractor and drew the damaged automobile back into his yard.

There was also another, if lesser, cause for satisfaction. Mr. Douglas said his family, his wife and two daughters, at home, didn't know the accident had happened until he told them.

BOY WINS BET

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters)—Bill Eaglinton, 20, who bet his father a dollar Australian that he could, go around the world by air in eight days, won his bet Monday with 14 hours to spare. He said that luring his "fantastic" trip he passed through Sydney, Honolulu, Los Angeles, New York, London, Paris, Moscow, New Delhi, Bangkok, Singapore and Perth.

GAMES CHAMP OF 1962? — Promising young swimmer Ray Pimetrel daydreams about winning a gold medal at the British Empire Games of 1970. Judge Favors Death Penalty

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The chairman of the Ontario police commission says he hopes capital punishment is never abolished.

Speaking to the Windsor Rotary Club, Judge Bruce Macfarlane said Monday night: "If there was ever justification for capital punishment, this kind of cold-blooded killing is it," he said. "I hope I never see the day when we no longer have capital punishment. This is the kind of thing every policeman faces while doing the dirty work that protects the public."

Judge Macfarlane's remarks donald, former crown attorney drew an ovation from club members.

The commission chief said a recent study of police forces in the British Isles left him with the impression that in Ontario "we tend to greatly over-police and over-organized."

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Nine youngsters, left parentless by a Minnesota highway crash, flew into Charlotte Monday night to join their new family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meyers, who have four children of their own but wanted a lot more, had their first meeting with their nine new charges inside the airliner here.

Meyers emerged from the plane with the youngest of the nine — two-year-old Phillip—in his arms. The round-faced tot waved gaily at the airport lights.

Karen Meyers, 11, came down the plane ramp arm-in-arm with a new sister—Pauline Rae Baker, 13.

The nine Minnesota youngsters became orphans Jan. 12, 1962, when their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baker, were killed in a traffic accident.

READ STORY

In a newspaper account of the tragedy was seen by Meyer, who also noted that neighbors were taking up collections for the children.

Meyers called the pastor of his Roman Catholic Church and said, "I want to adopt those children."

His wish has come to pass.

"This is the start of a big adventure for all of us," said Mrs. Meyers. "This is something we've been looking forward to for a year. We are going to have a lot of fun."

Meyers is vice-president of Celanese Corporation in Charlotte.

Thos. Mitchell, Noted Producer, Actor, Dies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Actor Thomas Mitchell, 70, who won more acclaim for than a half century between the Broadway era of Lee David Belasco and present day Hollywood, died Monday of cancer.

One of the actor's distinctions included a Motion Picture Academy award for his portrayal of Doc Boone in Stagecoach in 1938, and an Emmy Award in 1952 as the best television actor. His performance in the Broadway production of Hazel Flagg won him the Antoinette Perry Award in 1953.

Mitchell had been ill a long time.

His death followed by two days that of another illustrious Hollywood figure, Charles Laughton, also from cancer.

IN MANY MOVIES

Heavy-set, with bristling eyebrows and a rumbling bass voice, Mitchell had appeared in scores of movies since 1929.

His last was Rocket Full of Miracles, in which he co-starred with Glenn Ford and Bette Davis.

One of his most memorable roles was Gerald O'Hara, Scarlett's father, in Gone With the Wind."

Born in Elizabeth, N.J., Mitchell began his career as a newspaper reporter before transferring his interest to the theatre.

Top critical acclaim came with his appearance in Marc Connelly's The Wisdom Tooth, which reviewers hailed as brilliant dramatic writing, direction and production as well as acting. His first play, Glory Hallelujah, was produced and directed in 1926 by Guthrie McClintic.

Two years later he scored probably his top Broadway success as star and co-author, with Lord Dell, of The Green Hat, selected as one of that season's 10 best plays.

A three-way contract with Columbia Pictures as actor, director and writer brought Mitchell to Hollywood in 1935.

Mitchell was one of the first established actors to turn to television. He starred in many dramas, live and filmed, and later in two seasons of Mayor of the Town and Glencannon.

POSTPONE STRIKE

ROME (AP)—Italian journalists' unions have postponed until Thursday a second country-wide walkout. Newspaper men, who returned to work Sunday after a three-day walkout that virtually silenced all newspapers in Italy, had been scheduled to begin a new five-day strike today. The men, bargaining session begins Thursday.

Issue of Nuclear Arms Steadily Moving Forward To Front of Political Scene

OTTAWA (CP)—The issue of whether Canadian forces should have nuclear arms is steadily moving toward the front of the political scene. By the end of January, it may upstage all others.

The Liberal party is reported by informants to be making an assessment of its nuclear arms policy. Any revision may be publicly unveiled while Parliament is in recess—before the national convention of the Progressive Conservative Association Jan. 17-19 makes a pronouncement by way of resolution.

It has been common talk around Parliament for weeks that the Conservatives are in the throes of making up their collective minds about a plunge in favor of nuclear arms.

The matter seems to have received some recent attention among Social Credit members. The New Democrats also have been examining their policy.

POLICIES VARY

Briefly, the policies at the moment are these:

Progressive Conservatives — No nuclear arms for Canadian forces at home or abroad, so long as there is a chance of world disarmament.

Liberals — No acquisition, manufacture or use of nuclear weapons under present law without American control; subject to change, however, if interna tional developments change.

Social Credit — No nuclear warheads for North American defence; non-acceptance of nuclear forces in NATO only if NATO establishes a nuclear force.

New Democrats—No nuclear weapons for Canadian troops at home or abroad.

ASSISTS NATO, NORAD

Canada's main defence contributions are its commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and North American Air Defence.

In NATO, Canada provides certain naval forces and a brigade of troops and is building up an eight-squadron force of 200 CF-104 low-level jet bombers.

In NORAD, Canada has two main jobs The first involves various warning systems against attack over the pole so that American planes and missiles can be alerted to deliver a retaliatory blow with nuclear warheads.

The second is two Bomarc bases with 56 missiles at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., and five home squadrons totalling 64 voodoo interceptors.

In recent weeks, the controversy over nuclear arms or no nuclear arms for Canadians has centred on the CF104s in NATO and the Bomarcs and Voodoos in NORAD.

NEEDS ARMAMENT

MPs of all parties who attended the NATO parliamentarians conference in Paris last month were confronted with the argument that the CF-104 cannot do its job without nuclear armament — tactical nuclear warheads.

With regard to NORAD, defence authorities say the Bomarc is ineffective without a nuclear tip because no warhead can detonate itself explosives or jets to be fitted to the anti-aircraft missile.

And the Voodoo interceptor is regarded as valueless without a nuclear-headed missile because anything less would destroy the intruding aircraft but not its nuclear bombs.

Liberal leader Pearson argues that the government made its decision years ago on the weapons by providing Bomarcs, Voodoos and CF-104s but has failed to live up to the commitment by providing the nuclear hardware or getting the role of Canadians in NATO and NORAD changed.

The Liberal policy of no nuclear weapons under Canadian or American control did not rule out nuclear arms for NATO under NATO control.

Macmillan Shows Confident Front in Preparing for Talks

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

As Prime Minister Macmillan prepares for his talks in the Bahamas with President Kennedy and later with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, he may recall ruefully a remark he himself made two years ago about the dazzling speed of technological developments in the military field.

With that deprecatory wave of the hand that night-club satirists have made famous, the British prime minister told Commonwealth correspondents an aphoristic insight into the brief lifespan of nuclear weapons.

"It's almost true of any missile these days," he said. "that if it works, it's obsolete."

Remembering the demise of Britain's Blue Streak and pre-paring now for that appear to be the almost certain obsolescence of the cherished Skybolt air-to-ground missile, Macmillan may indeed wonder where it is all going to end.

From the gloomy, almost despairing, tone of British press comment it might be deduced that a substantial segment of editorial opinion is gradually veering to the view that it is about time the United Kingdom dropped out of the nuclear race altogether.

There are few obvious signs that the British government is preparing in that same direction.

Official spokesmen generate an impression of confidence that, in negotiations with the United States, a way will be found to maintain the independent British deterrent, whether or not cynics choose to place quotation marks around the word Independent.

The main reason for this confidence, it seems, is that March, 1960, pledge Macmillan received from former President Eisenhower whereby Britain would be enabled to keep up with the nuclear Joneses.

This is in line with Macmillan's statement as he left London Monday that "we shall find a way through our difficulties in the spirit of agreement which we have always had with the American people and administration."

Britain has a bit of optimism—one British headline Monday spoke of a "Confident Mac"—the prime minister has received some nasty knocks lately.

SUFFER LOSSES

Byelection losses for the Conservatives, the threat of unemployment, the talk of Britain as "two nations" with a gulf between affluent south and the impoverished north, Dean Acheson's Britain's role has played havoc—all these things have left a bitter taste.

Through it all Macmillan remains, as usual, surprisingly unflappable. After all, associates say, putting the best possible face on events, politics are about power and Macmillan still has power, short of a revolt within his own party, for virtually another two years.

In other words, party strategists say, many things may change before the election deadline of October, 1964. That may seem a pretty small crumb of comfort, but it is the best the Conservatives can do at the moment.

Stricter Statutes Dealing With Municipalities Asked

TORONTO (CP)—Stricter statutes dealing with municipalities with municipal government activities was advocated Monday by Vernon Singer, Liberal member of the legislature for Toronto York Centre.

Mr. Singer said there should be a method of policing the statutes to prevent mistakes like that which occurred when the legislature's standing committee on private bills Monday.

William Lane, a Picton, Ont., lawyer representing the Township of Bath, Ont., told the committee that the village carried out a $35,000 improvement to the local public school without provincial authorization to issue debentures for the project.

Mr. Lane said the Bath council gave two readings to a by-law authorizing the renovations and forwarded the proposal to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

The OMB had written the village council, approving the project, subject to approval of the final plans and authorizing the appointment of an architect to proceed with the plans.

MAKES MISTAKE

Mr. Lane said the village council misinterpreted the OMB letter as final authorization to proceed with the actual renovation, and only when the project was completed did the council learn it had been given no authority to issue debentures.

In addition, the OMB informed the village that the board no longer had the power to authorize the issue since the project was already completed.

C. E. (Zeb) Janes (PC—Lambton East) moved that the committee pass the village's bill submitted to the provincial legislature authorizing the debenture issue.

"Clerks and councils will continue making mistakes as long as there are clerks and councils," he said.

Mr. Singer suggested that "there should be something more than a perfunctionary passing of these bills with a chuckle about their silly mistakes."

Enforcement of statutes should be stiffened as a deterrent by discourage local councils from making such mistakes.

Senator Power 45 Years in Political Life

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator C. G. (Chubby) Power looked back over 45 uninterrupted years as a Canadian parliamentarian and Monday night chuckled at the good wishes of his political colleagues, asking "if these honorable speeches could not have been made 20 years ago."

The 74-year-old Liberal from Quebec, replying to a series of congratulatory speeches in the Senate, said the years in Parliament have been "a good life."

"After all, politics is the science of dealing with human nature, and who is all other sciences or arts or studies, the most important activity in this life is to be dealing with human beings, endeavoring to suit oneself to the eccentricities and, perhaps, even to the frailties of humanity."

Senator Power was first elected to the Commons in 1917 and took his seat Dec. 17. He was an MP continuously until he was appointed to the Senate in 1935. He now has the lowest unbroken career in Parliament.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Things are not looking too bright in Kitchener, a former hotbed of amateur hockey whose colors have flashed more than once in world and Canadian championships.

In fact sports editor Len Taylor paints a rather dismal picture, the last stroke of his columnar brush suggesting "let major hockey die a natural death and forget about it for a year or two . . . It isn't a very happy thought," he says, "but it could be correct."

The Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers senior OHA entry has financial troubles and has been seeking monetary help from sponsor Eddie Shore of the Sprinfield Indians. But, it is reported, Shore has a problem of his own.

It seems that Shore, who has always been interested in good young hockey prospects, isn't too pleased with his Junior Metro league operation in Whitby. Shore sponsors the Whitby club, but he told the K-W Tigers' president this week he would like to move the club somewhere else. He didn't say where.

Taylor says the hockey picture in his town gives rise to conjecture that Kitchener could be the base for a junior "A" hockey club next season.

The theory is based, Taylor says, on the fact that the Twin Cities have had flings at both pro and senior amateur hockey the past two and one-half seasons and in both cases the returns have been lousy. The K-W Beavers lost $150,000 in two Eastern Pro seasons and the Tigers are behind $15,000 at the moment.

But, Taylor points out, there's another argument. Junior "A" hockey did not fare so well in Kitchener in a number of years ago and there is little reason to believe it would do better now, especially if it were a sponsored team devoid of local talent.

GOLD, GORE AND GLORY

When the New York Giants and the Green Bay Packers clash in that* December 30th battle of the mastodons for the National Football League championship there will be more than the title at stake.

There's a great big golden melon awaiting to be cut by the club that trots off the field title in hand. It will split a pool of about $300,000 for a couple hours work. This amounts to roughly $8,000 a player and the payoff will be upped even higher when they get around to splitting the television take.

And, it is pointed out, you can add to this the fact the winning team will play the college all-stars next summer which means another $1,000 or so per player.

So far each player is getting an extra $9,000 over and above his regular salary and because he happens to have played on a championship squad, his wallet will bulge even more from commercial endorsements.

That's the way the pro football cookie crumbles. Quite a difference from the early days, say in 1935, when the Detroit Lions won the championship and each player received $350.

And it is quite a difference to the Grey Cup "take" when Canadian League players collected only $300 a game for this year's playoffs, $500 for a losing job in the Grey Cup and $850 for a winning effort.

The National Football League finals will gross nearly a million. Top prices for seats in Yankee Stadium are $12.00 and with a seating capacity of over 76,000—a nice figure it out. This is two dollars more than last year when the Packers almost chased the Giants out of the park with a 37-0 avalanche.

ANOTHER TEXAS STORY

A Texas basketball team was playing an Ivy League quintet and two students from the opposing schools were talking about a huge forward the Texans had.

"What size is he?" asked the Ivy Leaguer.

"Fifteen inches," replied the Texan.

"Surely he's taller than that?" asked the Ivy Leaguer,

"That's the old way," replied the Southerner. "In Texas we measure between their eyes."

CARL DIEM DIES

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—Carl Diem, 80, the grand old man of German sports, died Monday following a stroke. Diem led Germany's squad to the 1906 Olympics in Athens and prepared two Olympiads himself, the one for 1916 in Berlin cancelled because of war—and the second, held in Berlin in 1936.

CHICAGO (AP) — Rogers Hornsby, 66, former big league baseball star who had a stroke Friday after he underwent a minor eye operation, was reported in fair condition Monday, although he was a very sick baseball's Hall of Fame, has been called the greatest right-hand hitter of all time.

Ever Hear of a "DIURETIC"?

Maybe not. But you should know what a "diuretic" does. There may be times when you should use one. You likely understand how important the kidneys are in maintaining good health. Also that if the kidneys fail to function properly excess acids and waste material remain in the system. This may result in sedimentary irritation of the bladder and bladder discomfort, often followed by backache, tired feeling and disturbed rest.

This is when the diuretic service of Dodd's Kidney Pills may be helpful. Dodd's acts as a diuretic stimulant to help restore normal kidney action, and so relieve the systemic condition causing backache and tired feeling. When you are bothered by backache and tired feeling due to lazy kidney action you can depend on Dodd's Kidney Pills as many thousands have done during the past 70 years. Look for Dodd's at any drug counter.

Pollock Defends Suspensions

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Ontario Hockey Association President Lloyd Pollock defended Monday his action in giving 10-game suspensions to two Metro Toronto Junior A League players.

Pollock's decision was blasted Sunday by Turk Broda, Toronto Marlboro coach. One of Broda's players, Duncan Macdonald, was one of the players suspended. The other was Bill Smith of Whitby Dunlops. The suspension followed a stick swinging duel last week.

"They've got to be sentenced without a trial," said Broda. "Usually you get a chance to appear before the OHA, but they were convicted without a trial this time."

Pollock said Broda was wrong. OHA rules permitted the president to give suspensions without a hearing.

"It was a bad stick-swinging affair," said Pollock. "We've been having too much of this in the OHA. I talked to the referee and I think the suspensions were quite justified. When a match penalty is given it means an automatic minimum suspension of three games."

Pollock said any appeals against the suspensions would be heard by the OHA sub-committee early in January.

MONTREAL (CP)—Depended-on Gordie Howe, veteran of 18 National Hockey League seasons, picked up six points in three games with Detroit Red Wings last week to challenge Chicago's Stan Mikita and New York's Andy Bathgate for the league's scoring leadership.

All three players have 29 points on 11 goals and 18 assists.

Official NHL statistics released today show Mikita earned three points and Bathgate four in last week's play.

Tied for second place in the scoring race is another trio: Frank Mahovlich of Toronto, Ab McDonald of Chicago and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit.

All have 27 points, but Mahovlich ranks ahead because he leads the league in goals scored this season with 17.

New York's Dean Prentice ranks seventh with 26 points and three players are tied for eighth with 25. They are Parker MacDonald of Detroit, Johnny Bucyk and Murray Oliver, both of Boston.

Biggest producers among the league's top 24 last week were Red Wings representatives. Howe gained six points and Delvecchio and MacDonald added four each.

Montreal had the most trouble finding the range. Henri Richard picked up three points in Canadiens three games, but Gilles Tremblay netted only one and Bernie Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau were empty-handed.

Geoffrion ranked fifth last week, has dropped into a tie for 13th with Richard, whose position is unchanged. Beliveau dropped to 16th and Bellveau to 19th from 13th last week.

Two wins and a tie last week have boosted the Red Wings back on top of the league standings, if artificially, at least.

Detroit and Chicago are credited with 33 points each, as the Wings get the nod since they have played one games to 30 for the Black Hawks.

Toronto ranks third with 33, Montreal fourth with 31, New York fifth with 24 and Boston last with 14.

Detroit's Terry Sawchuk leads NHL goaltenders in the Vezina Trophy race. With 52 goals scored on him in 23 games, he has a goals-against average of 2.12.

Two other contenders are close behind, Jacques Plante of Montreal with 2.14 and Chicago's Glenn Hill with 2.19.

Sawchuk and Hall lead in shutouts with three apiece.

Detroit defenceman Howie Young is the league's stout penalized player, with 99 minutes spent in the penalty box. The Red Wings are the most penalized team, having been assessed a total of 409 minutes.

Rally To Win 9-4

Czechs Bounce To Beat Quakers

PRAGUE (CP) — Czechoslovakia's national hockey team downed Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League 9-4 in an exhibition match here Monday before a sell-out crowd of 19,500.

It was the third straight setback for the touring Quakers. They were downed 7-0 and 12-3 by the Swedish National team in two games last week.

The Czechs were strongly favored to wallop the Quakers because they defeated Sweden, the defending world champions, 6-1 and 4-3 in exhibition games three weeks ago.

The Quakers gave the Czechs a tussle and except for some Saskatoon letups the score might have been closer.

The Quakers broke into a 2-0 lead during the first 14 minutes of the game but the smooth-passing Czechs came roaring back in the closing six minutes to slam four goals past Quaker goalie - Don Campbell. Two of the counters came with the Quakers a man short as they continued to run afoul of the strict European rules.

The Czechs scored four goals to the Quakers' one in the second period and the teams split two goals in the final period.

Pit Martin Tops in Junior Race

TORONTO (CP)—Pit Martin of Hamilton Red Wings holds a two-point lead in the race for scoring honors in the Ontario Hockey Association provincial Junior A group.

Martin has 37 points in his club's 20 games. Yvon Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens has 35 points but has played two games less.

Wayne Maxner of Niagara Falls Flyers is third with 32 points, one more than Bill Inglis of Montreal.

Paul Henderson of Hamilton, fifth-place in scoring, has the most goals, 21, while Maxner has the most assists, 24.

Jocelyn Cardinal of Montreal is the leading goaltender with a 2.44 goals against average. He and Ludger Doucet of Hamilton, who is second with a 2.5 average, both have two shutouts to their credit.

American Boxers 'Robbed'

'Santa Claus' Was Referee!

ROME (CP)—Italian newspapers sympathized with boxers Eddie Perkins and Bobo Olson Monday. Many sportswriters said bad decisions robbed the two Americans in weekend boxing matches against Italians.

The verdict that aroused most bitterness was against Perkins as he lost world junior welterweight title to Duilio Loi in Milan on points Saturday night.

One night earlier in Rome, Olson and Giulio Rinaldi, European light heavyweight champion, battled to a draw in a 10-round fight.

Italy's newspapers, which had been on strike, gave their first news about the bouts Monday. Many sportswriters said bad decisions robbed the two Americans in weekend boxing matches against Italians.

"Rinaldi and Loi lost," says Corriere Bello Sport, a Rome sports daily, in a banner headline. "It's time we ended these verdicts that do not honor us," the newspaper added in a sub headline.

"Out of the bag of Santa Claus, in this case the French referee, has come a beautiful gift for Duilio Loi, world title," said Rome's Paesa Sera. The French referee, Georges Gondre, was the sole judge.

A few Italian sports writers called the Perkins-Loi match a draw. Such a verdict would have left the Chicago boxer in possession of the title.

Several newspapers said Loi deserved his victory. One was Corriere' Bella Sera, of Milan. It said Loi "just won, but deserved the decision."

It was harder to find papers supporting Rinaldi.

"Olson beat Rinaldi, but the verdict was a draw," a Corriere Bella Sera headline said.

Taylor Best Rusher

Jim Brown Top Pass Receiver

CLEVELAND (AP)—Jimmy Brown has been dethroned for the first time in six years as leading rusher in the National Football League, but the Cleveland Browns' fullback isn't giving it a second thought.

He says he's still among the best in the business.

Jim Taylor of Green Bay and Packers may have edged him for the rushing honors, but Brown notes that he became Cleveland's top pass receiver this season.

This, he says, makes him feel he had a good year.

"I'll do anything to keep the ball moving," he said in an interview Monday.

"If the coaches call for me to catch passes, that's okay. But I wish I had been used more on running plays."

To a question of whether he was slowed up some, Brown, 26, replied:

"No, not at all. If I had played a full season under normal circumstances, things would have been different. Just because I didn't lead the league doesn't mean I can't cut in any more.

"Is he no superman. I had a good season. Not a great one, though. Do I have to lead the league every time for it to be a good year?"

INJURY HURT CHANCES

Brown said a wrist injury in the fourth game of the season is not healed. The bad left hand cut down on his effectiveness.

His 996 yards in 230 carries was the lowest for Brown since the first year in 1957, when he led the league with 942 yards/Last year Brown carried 305 times for 1,408 yards. His best year in rushing was 1958, when he set the NFL season record of 1,527 yards.

Brown said he'll take yardage statistics seriously.

"Just because two or three runners gained more yards doesn't mean I was poor. I don't like to boast, but I think I'm as good as anyone in this league as an all-round offensive player."

SEVERS RELATIONS

EDMONTON (CP)—The Edmonton Maple Leaf Athletic Association has severed relations with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League. In a statement Sunday, Association Vice - President D. G. Brown said that "due to the fact Red Wings no longer wish to carry out their end of a sponsorship agreement that has proved successful with clubs over the last eight years, the Maple Leaf Athletic Club wishes to make it known they are no longer connected with Detroit."

Hornets Deal With Edmonton

PITTBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League announced Monday they have concluded a trade involving six players with Edmonton of the Western Hockey League.

The deal had threatened to fall through last week when the three Edmonton players—defenceman Lou Marcon and forwards Chuck Holmes and Warren Hynes—said they didn't want to be traded to Pittsburgh. However, they changed their minds.

The Pittsburgh players involved are defenceman Jack Price and forwards Ray Ross and Norm Corcoran.

Injured Tittle Expected To Play

Key Man In Title, Bowl Games

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The prestige of the National Football League's Eastern Conference may hinge on how Y. A. Tittle's bruised back responds under a heat lamp.

The old Bald Eagle of New York Giants is the key man in both annual East-West classics — the championship game at New York Dec. 30 and the Pro Bowl here Jan. 13.

The Giants' doctors though, say they expect Tittle to be available for quarterbacking duties in the title game against the West's Green Bay Packers. Tittle was hurt when he slipped on ice in Sunday's 41-31 win over Dallas Cowboys in which he tossed six touchdown passes to set a season record of 33.

The Giants will have eight players on eastern squad that meets the West in the bowl game.

The seven head coaches of the Eastern Conference Monday selected a squad of 32 players for the 13th annual charity contest. The Western Conference selections will be made later this week.

BROWNS PLACE SIX

Cleveland Browns placed six men on the Eastern squad, St. Louis Cardinals five, Pittsburgh Steelers, Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins four each, and Philadelphia Eagles one.

If Tittle isn't available for the Pro Bowl the selectors will have to scramble for a replacement. The second choice won't be there. He is Norman Snead of Washington Redskins, out with a shoulder separation.

The offensive backfield, in addition to the two ailing quarterbacks, includes full backs Jimmy Brown of Cleveland and Pittsburgh's John Henry Johnson, and halfbacks John David Crow, St. Louis, Don Perkins, Dallas, Bobby Mitchell, Washington, and Tommy McDonald, Philadelphia.

Others on the offensive team: Centres—Ray Wietecha, New York, Buzz Nutter, Pittsburgh; guards—Aim Ray Smith, Cleveland, John Nisby, Washington, Darrell Dess, New York, tackles—Roosevelt Brown, New York, Mike McCormick, Cleveland; ends—Del Shofner, New York, Sonny Randle, St. Louis, Preston Carpenter, Pittsburgh.

The defensive team: Halves—Erich Barnes, New York, Jimmy Hill, St. Louis, Don Bishop, Dallas; safeties—Jim Patton, New York, Larry Wilson, St. Louis; linebackers—Jerry Tubbs, Dallas, Galen Fiss, Cleveland, Rod Breedlove, Washington, Bill Koman, St. Louis; tackles — Bob Gain, Cleveland, Gene Lipscomb, Pittsburgh; ends—Jim Katcavage, New York, Bill Glass, Cleveland, Bob Lilly, Dallas.

Judge Reserves Pender Decision

Boxer Goes To Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxer Paul Pender's bid to regain the New York version of the world middleweight title was in the hands of a Supreme Court jus tice today.

Justice Arthur G. Klein reserved decision on a move by Pender, from Brookline, Mass., to set asice the action of the New York Athletic Commission, which stripped him of the title for failing to defend it in the allotted six months.

In court Monday, Pender's counsel, George Gallantz, said that 11 days after Pender regained the New York, Massachusetts and European portion of the 160-pound crown this year, the boxer signed to fight Gene Fullmer, who was recognized as champion in the other states.

Gallantz said the fight was cancelled by the promoter through no fault of Pender.

He also said Pender, although injured in an automobile accident, continued to try to get fights with recognized contenders, and finally signed Aug. 20 to fight Jose Torres of New York.

Assistant Attorney - General

Sweeney Still Tops In AHL

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Sweeney of Springfield Indians ran his league-leading total of assists to 33 last week and maintained a seven-point edge in the American Hockey League scoring race.

League statistics released today show Sweeney, got two assists during the week He has 11 goals for a 43-point total. Willie Marshall of Hershey Bears and Wally Boyer of Springfield are tied for second place with 35 points apiece.

John Ferguson of Cleveland Barons leads in goals with 19 and is fifth in the scoring list with 32 points.

Charlie Hodge of Quebec Aces retained the goaltending lead with an average of 2.83 on 82 goals allowed in 29 games.

Irving Rollins resisted the application. He said Torres is an "unrated fighter." Rollins said the commission insists on suitable contenders.

"If not, a fighter would pick a soft touch," he said.

GET DAY OFF

HOUSTON (AP) — Pop tyy gave his Houston Oilers a day off Monday, as he checked film of the team's best and poorest performances of the season both on games between the finalists against the Dallas Texans. The Oilers and Texans, with identical 11-3 records, meet next Sunday for the American Football League's third championship. Records on the two regular season games give neither team an edge.

Badminton Star On Tour

Will Meet World's Best

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Macdonell, who once finished up to set before attending to a broken ankle, is carrying his determined badminton style into world competition.

The redhead with the whippet build, who is Canada's closest singles champion, will leave in February for the world invitational championships in Glasgow.

Then he goes to Sweden for an exhibition appearance and on to Copenhagen for the Danish international championships.

If the arrangements are completed in time he'll do an exhibition sweep around Ireland before landing in London for the All-England championships.

Along the way he'll play some of the world's greatest, such as Tan Jo Huk of Indonesia, and Denmark's Erland Kops.

"Lack of competition here has hurt me and I've had some trouble keeping my game up," Macdonell said.

"This tour will be my first real exposure to international competition. I'll be playing against players undoubtedly better than me and it will be good for me."

Critics point to Macdonell's slight build—he's 137 pounds—and say he hasn't the power to play the big game. Others say his determination will make up for it.

He was two years ago in Thomas Cup matches in Toronto that Macdonell was leading Bill Berry of San Diego, Calif., number 2 in the U.S. Wayne had taken the first game and, was leading 10-2 when a sharp pain shot through one ankle.

Macdonell finished the match but lost the next two games. X-rays the next day confirmed that he had played the last two games on a broken leg.

Set Offensive Record

Cookie Won Rush Title

DALLAS (AP)—Cookie Gilchrist, the power man of Buffalo, won the rushing championship of the American Football League and set one of eight offensive records produced by the campaign that ended Sunday.

Gilchrist, formerly of Toronto Argonauts and other Canadian football league clubs, wound up with 1,096 yards on 214 carries had beat out Abner Haynes of Dallas by 47 yards. His total broke the record, bettering the 948 set by Billy Cannon of Houston last year.

Three players gained more than 1,000 yards, with Haynes making 1,049, and Charles Tolar of Houston set a record for number of attempts with 244. Tolar, Haynes and Gilchrist all bettered the record of 202 Haynes rushing 221 times.

Len Dawson of Dallas was the passing champion with 189 completions on 310 attempts for 2759 yards and 29 touchdowns. Babe Parilli of Boston was second with 33 points.

Parilli, formerly played with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Dawson set a record in completion percentage of 60.9.

Parilli also set a record for the fewest interceptions—eight, less than his record of nine set last year. His interception percentage of 2.1 was also a record.

Gene Mingo of Denver hung up a field-goal record of 27, bettering the old record of 18, and Haynes scored 19 touchdowns for another record.

King of the Hill

Leo LaBelle, last week's challenger in the King of the Hill contest took the measure of Cec. Hardwick, the perennial winner in the contest.

This week's challenger Jon Elliott is a newcomer in the big league and topped the veterans for the right to challenge King Leo. His score for 5 games was 1277.

In the roll-off LaBelle had 777 for 3 and Elliott 653.

SPINKS RETURNING

LONDON, (AP) — Terry Spinks, former British featherweight champion and a 1956 Olympic gold medalist, announced Monday he is retiring from boxing. Spinks, now 24, turned professional in 1957 and won the British featherweight crown with a knockout victory over Bobby Neill in 1960. He lost the title to Welshman Howard Winstone in May last year.

Dogs Lead Seniors One, Two

GALT (CP) — Centre Irwin Gross of Windsor Bulldogs holds a one-point lead over teammate Bob Brown, a right-winger, in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scoring race.

Brown picked up two assists in Windsor's two games last week. Gross was held to only one assist.

Gross leads in assists with 30 and Brown has the most goals, 22.

George Usitalo of Chatham Maroons is in third place with 34 points, 11 back of Gross. Lou Bendo of Windsor and Ted Power of Chatham share fourth place with 32 points each.

The goaltending race is unchanged. Leader Al Bennett of Chatham had his margin reduced slightly from a goals-against average of 2.89 to 2.90. Ron Slater of Woodstock Athletics trimmed his average to 3.39 from 3.61 and replaced Windsor's Monty Reynolds in second place.

Bennett leads in shutouts with three.

Alex Keeling was the penalty leader, adding four two-minute minors during the week for a total of 65 minutes.

Drysdale Had Fine Record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Several good reasons why Don Drysdale was named winner of the Cy Young Award as the major leagues' outstanding pitcher in 1962 were reflected today in the release of the official National League pitching records.

Drysdale, big Los Angeles Dodger righthander, led the National League in five categories: Games won—25; strikeouts—232; innings pitched—314; games started—41; total batsmen faced—1,269.

The Dodgers' workhorse also finished fourth with an earned run average of 2.84. The title was won by Drysdale's teammate, lefty sandy Koufax, 2.54. Bob Shaw of Milwaukee Braves was the runner-up at 2.60 and Cincinnati Reds' Bob Purkey was third with 2.81.

Koufax yielded 54 earned runs in 184 innings while winning 14 games and losing seven. He was on the sidelines for two months with a finger injury.

Purkey and Joey Jay of Cincinnati and Jack Sanford of San Francisco Giants were the only others to win at least 20 games. Sanford had 22 victories, Purkey 23 and Jay 21.

MACHEN 'DISTURBED'

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Eddie Machen, the No. 1 heavyweight boxing contender who has been in a mental institution almost a week, was in a "very disturbed condition" Monday, the head of the institution said. Dr. Theo Miller of Napa State Hospital where Machen was taken last Wednesday after apparently contemplating suicide, said Machen's condition varies from day to day.

LeBaron Saw 'Plenty Of Sky'

NEW YORK (CP)—Eddie LeBaron, former quarterback with Calgary Stampeders in the Canadian Football League, is a little man in a world of giants in the National Football League—but he can take about it.

He just completed one of his best years at the age of 32, with 16 touchdown passes and 1,636 yards gained for Dallas Cowboys, despite missing several games through injury.

"I probably am the friendliest fellow in the league to large tackles and ends," says the 160-pounder, lawyer. "Gino Marchetti (Baltimore Colts defensive end) has been hitting me for years. I always say 'Gino, you really are playing well.' It works, because then he helps me up. I always try not to get those unfriendly folks mad at me.

"Leo Nomellini (a tackle with San Francisco '49ers) is another of my favorites. He is a wrestler in the off-season. He likes to practise grimacing. When he lines up opposite me and glowers I wink and say 'hi Leo.'"

LeBaron, a real pro in the banquet league as well as on the football field, also mentions records he has set since joining Dallas.

"I threw the shortest touchdown pass in history, two inches," he said. "Of course, people will ask: 'What stupid quarterback would throw a pass with two inches to go?'

"Then I threw one 102 yards last year. The only trouble was that Erich Barnes (New York Giants' defensive back) caught it and went for the record. When Mike Gaechter (Dallas back) ran 100 yards with an interception this year, I told him 'next time get back in that end zone deeper just for me and get my record out of the books.'

"I'm a lawyer who is a moonlighter with a part-time job on Sunday," said LeBaron. "It was more part time than ever the way we worked it this year."

He was referring to coach Tom Landry's system of alternating him with Don Meredith on every play. The NFL plays most of its games on Sundays.

"It was nice to get out of the office on weekends," he said with a wry grin. "Nice to see the sky and the other scenery around the NFL."

As a little man who must contend with 300-pound tackles, LeBaron spent a great deal of time on his back, gazing into the wide blue yonder. till he completed 95 of 166 attempted passes.

Score Was 63-62

Lightfoots Nip Crawfords

Belleville Lightfoots nudged their intra-city basketball rivals, the Crawford Metals, in a down-to-the-wire court thriller last night, winning by a 63-62 score.

The win gives the Lightfoots a 2-0 record and a tie for third place with the Trenton RCAF Flyers. The teams battle tonight for the positional clincher.

It was anybody's victory right down to the final minutes. Crawfords held a 28-23 lead at the half-time mark, but Lightfoots swept back in the second with 10 unanswered points to grab the lead.

Again the lead switched until Crawfords finally drew away with a six-point lead. Lightfoots again raced back to the offensive and with a little more than two minutes to go scored seven points for the close-margin victory.

Don Smith triggered the Lightfoots' goal-whisker win, emerging the game's top scorer with 29 points. Don Skinner and Mike Caswell each accounted for seven.

Sid Forster sparked the Crawford offensive with 23 points, Gary Coyer and Soup Campbell each accounting for an even dozen. Ted Batchelli or was held to eight points.

The teams:

Crawfords—Ted Batchellor 8; Jack Bakker 4; McPherson 3; Soup Campbell 12; Sid Forster 23; Gary Goyer 12.

Lightfoots—Gary Duggan 6; Ted Ewing 0; Don Skinner 7; Mike Caswell 7; Glen Reynolds 2; Gord Mutter 4; Dave Bell 4; Collin Allenby 0; Dick Morden 4; Don Smith 29.

FIRE HITS 40 FAMILIES

QUEBEC (CP) — Some 40 families were evacuated Monday night when a three-alarm fire swept their four - storey apartment building in upper town, opened for occupancy only a few months ago. Police said the fire apparently started in the furnace room.

Departmental Hockey

The Public Works and Public Utilities teams were victors in the City Interdepartmental Hockey League games last night.

The Works defeated the Ontario Intelligencer "Inkspots" 6-2 with Utilities turning back the Firemen 6-1.

Bradley Lea was the star for the Works team scoring four of the six goals. Curtis and Davis got two others.

Don Woods, the Inkspots "Big W," scored one of their goals, Merv Thompson getting the second.

FINED $300

ALGONQUIN, Ill (AP) — Jacob Stob was fined $300 Monday for shooting a hen pheasant but he can get the penalty trimmed to $100.

All he has to do is appear before Magistrate Jerry Doyle Dec. 26 with 100 pictures of cock pheasants. They can be clippings from magazines books, newspapers or actual photographs.

"I want to be sure that in the future you'll know the difference between a hen and a cock pheasant," Doyle said.

TV—Radio Column

George C. Scott Decides Against Being Newsman

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System has been working for almost a year on a 1963-64 season television series to star actor George C. Scott as a newspaper man.

But Scott — considered by many to be one of the most exciting dramatic actors in today's theatre — has decided against it.

"Scott felt that the newspaper approach will not afford him much dramatic range," explained Michael Dann, the CBS programming yice - president who has been developing the project. "He felt that, essentially, a writer is a passive character whose most important work is done alone, at a typewriter."

So CBS expects Scott will play the lead in another series also planned for next year, East Side, West Side, in which the hero is a social worker.

"In this part, the leading character can get actively involved, and he can cope with everything from murder and narcotics addition to marital problems," explained Dann.

PUTS FINGER ON IT

Scott has put his finger on a troublesome television situation. With the networks awash with doctors, nurses, lawyers, rodeo riders, cowboys, public and private necstigators and others volved," the list of glamorous volved," the list of glamorous occupations for characters who really do lead pretty well exhausted.

One of the reasons that most so-called "newspaper dramas" are usually met with sneers and dismay within the profession is that the unfortunate script writers have tried to turn what is most often an observer and chronicler into the person who makes things happen — into an investigator, for instance. And it comes out phony.

At the Belle

"Well Bury You" and Brigitte Bardot in "And God Created Woman"

Tracing the history of our troubled times from Karl Marx to the Cold War, Columbia Picture "We'll Bury You!" is a shocking new, and thoroughly worth while, study of the Soviet Union, at the Belle Theatre. The film, which opened today, dramatic depicts the rise of communism and its masters.

"We'll Bury You!" traces the background of communism and its growth in Russia and in such countries as China, Cuba and Korea. Depicted are scenes of world-famous and infamous figures like Khrushchev, of course and Lenin, Stalin, Trotsky and others of the Soviet scene; Castro of Cuba, Mao Tse-Tung of China. Culminating unscreened scenes from secret film archives, "We'll Bury You!" bares the cruelty of the Hungarian uprising, brutal terror of the OGPU, Red slave labor camps, bloody purges and pogroms, daring escapes over the Berlin wall and many more of the headline-searing events of the lied reign of terror!

But, most important, "We'll Bury You!" shows the "little people," as they fight for and against the continuing Russian Revolution; the farmers and workers, their wives and children. They are revealed in all honesty, starving or feasting, laughing and crying, working, studying, playing. Rebellion, victory and defeat, all are dramatically bared.

Producers Jack Leewood and Jack W. Thomas are responsible for the breathless interest that "We'll Bury You!" receives, with their brilliant selection of motion picture footage and still photographs artfully woven into the story of an era. Thomas also penned the absorbing and history-baring narration, which is spoken by William Woolson.

"AND GOD CREATED WOMAN"

Brigitte Bardot and Curt Jurgens, are co-starred in the fascinating romantic story, "And God Created Woman," the worthy associate Feature, in Technicolor and Cinemascope. Complete showings daily begin at 2.00, 7.00 and 8.30 at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

BITKOWSKI RETIRES

OTTAWA (CP) — Bruno Bitkowski, 31-year-old centre with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference, announced his retirement Monday. Bitkowski, who won the Big Four's rookie award when he joined Hamilton in 1951, said he is quitting football to devote full time to his job. He has been appointed commercial sales manager of an Ottawa radio station, effective Jan. 1.

Universal Comes up With 2 Fine Year-End Attractions

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Universal has come up with two year-end attractions which prove the studio is capable of producing something besides cream-puff comedies.

The two films are To Kill a Mockingbird and Freud and they are as different and as meritorious as anything that the movies have had to offer this year.

Neither is exactly new. They represent a return to the kind of craftsmanship in which Hollywood once excelled and lately has neglected.

To Kill a Mockingbird is taken almost intact from the endearing Harper Lee novel about depression-year life in a small Alabama town. Unfortunately in the interests of plotting. But little else has been lost.

As in the novel, the story is seen mostly through the eyes of a small girl and boy, children of a Lincolnesque lawyer who defends a Negro man accused or raping a white girl.

The lawyer's daughter is played by Mary Badham. The son is Phillip Alford. Both youngsters are perfect.

So is Gregory Peck, playing his most credible role in years as the right-minded Atticus. The rest of the largely unknown cast fits right into the dusty streets and wooden bungalows of the Alabama hamlet, which was created with freeway-condemned houses on the Universal back lot.

The team of director Robert Mulligan, script writer Horton Foote and producer Alan Pakula can take credit for a skillful adaption of one of the best-loved books in recent times.

While Mockingbird is a throwback to a gentler kind of film story-telling, Freud has its roots in the biographies of men of science which Hollywood did so well in the 1930s.

Freud's search into the dark corners of the mind is an adventure itself, but strictly an intellectual one. There is little action and scant violence.

But for those willing to use their minds instead of the emotions in movie-watching, it can be as fascinating an experience as the best whodunit.

Freud returns John Huston to his previous eminence. His career has had its ups, but the action is never jumpy. His actors conform to the peaks of their talents.

Montgomery Clift is a superlative Freud, without the affectations that have marred his recent work. Susannah York has an amazing range as the psychosis with whom he makes his historic discovery. It's good to see Larry Parks back in a long and important role, which he makes consistently interesting.

AT THE PARK — William Holden stars in "Stalag 17", the comedy drama that won him an Academy Award in showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre. On the same program will be shown Part 10 "Alaska Seas" starring Robert Ryan, Jan Sterling, Brian Keith and Gene Barry. Show starts at 7.30. "Alaska Seas" at 7.40 and "Stalag 17" at 9.20 p.m.

Astrological Forecast

For December 19
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Good for organizing, planning, deliberating on goals. Arrive at decision, but keep it to yourself. Have some surprises up your sleeve. Key is strength through experience. Remember patience.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Much of what you desire on emotional level comes to pass. Be prepared to recognize what you want when you encounter it. Remain alert. Attend to domestic matters.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Blend initiative with creative abilities. Don't overlook love, consideration and sympathy for underdog. But keep going toward goal. You may reach it today, surprising even yourself.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Take action on projects around home, place of business. Work toward future security. Take direct action. Be willing to assume responsibility. Be prepared to make quick decisions.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Ideas are plentiful. Be selective. Fine for expanding activity. Good for attention to member of opposite sex. But better to reply upon one who has shown loyalty in past.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Be practical while shopping. Listen to sales talks from various sources. But keep in mind what you really want to purchase. Good for making up gift list. Be original.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Cycle up; means you can gain satisfaction from business, personal activity. One born under Cancer could provide happiness and practical aid. Be gracious. Permit Libra charm to shine.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Ask for what you want — but be sure demands are practical enough to be met. Avoid extravagance. Stay away from "trouble-maker." Be considerate. 'Golden Rule works wonders. Fine evening for social gathering.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Remember promise made in recent past. Fulfill it! Gesture of good will makes you happy. Also set in motion forces which insure future success. Give your best to friends.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Take conservative view. Don't over-spend. Be willing to wait. Circumstances change. Don't commit yourself to only one course of action. A little patience today means much to future. Tonight excellent for reading.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Pay heed to minority viewpoints. Don't shrug off unusual suggestions. Could be kernel of "genius" in one who comes up with unorthodox proposal. Family member provides aid, comfort.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Absorb knowledge. Share experiences. Realize you are getting close to "answer." Move with sure step of confidence. See situations, persons in their true light.

If today is your birthday . . . you are original, independent willing to break away from the old in order to try the new. Romance, excitement dot in upcoming year.

• • •

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Virgo, Libra, Scorpio. Special word to Taurus: Your needs are not as far off as you might imagine. Cheer up!

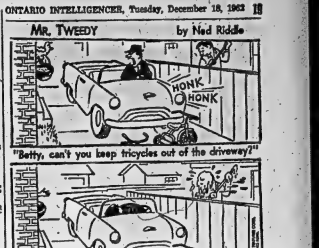
TWEED



Mrs. B. Allen First Woman to Sit on Council

TWEED (Special) — Mrs. Barbara Allen, unsuccessful in a bid in an earlier election for the township, now has headed the polls in a second election and becomes the first woman to sit on Tweed council.

The three elected for Tweed council, at yesterday's election were Mrs. Allen, 431, James Hanna, 411, and Stewart Lessard, 309. Mrs. Courtyea and John Bancroft were the unsuccessful candidates.

Elected for school trustee was Milton Elliott who won out over George Thompson for the one seat open on the board.

CAMPBELLFORD

Charges of Misconduct Hurled Against Police Force

CAMPBELLFORD—A large delegation of parents and young people waited on council on Monday night at the last regular session of the year. They charged misconduct on the part of Campbellford police officers on several occasions.

Coun. Brown stated that the matters in question were under investigation and that Constable Field had been suspended. Chief Baird following events of Friday last.

A number of citizens spoke of various occurrences in which they felt police were not justified in their conduct. In view of the fact that a legal action is pending involving Const. Field, Coun. Hackett brought up the question if council would be in contempt of court in dealing with the matter before the court hearing. It was decided to seek legal advice on the subject.

Council was informed by the H.E.P.C. of Ontario that the municipality could contribute labor but not materials toward Christmas lighting.

Mr. Gordon Wright, Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator addressed council relative to the plan.

Dr. J. E. Trimble and Mrs. Elsie Johnston appointment by the public school board to the Library Board were ratified by council. Council decided against putting boards for hockey on the public school rink.

ASSESS DEFICIT

Council proclaimed Boxing Day, Dec. 26th a holiday. The deficit of $825, owing to the former Arena Board for carelaking of the rink was absorbed in the general funds of council. Council directed that relief orders be equally divided among the town groups.

G. W. Rutherford was appointed by by-law to the N. E. Northumberland R. S. C. Area Board on a polled vote. All voted yes except Mayor Rutherford.

A by-law for $190,000 for a water filtration system was given its two readings and passed on to the Municipal Board for approval.

A by-law set aside $18,000, the proceeds from the sale of the rink toward the construction of a new one, and $200 received for the old rink was on motion added to this reserve account.

The construction by-law for a community centre was given two readings and approval sought.

Council adjourned after the by-law sheet was passed.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain at the same time. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance which is the private of their sufferers and bone without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

This was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results went so thoroughly that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 50 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in use in over 30,000 hospital tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

70 to 85 Pct of Mental Patients Go Home Within Year After Admission

Just 15 years ago, the average mental hospital was hopelessly ill equipped to treat the patients crammed within its walls. Today, ...more effort than ever before... is being directed toward better care with sometimes dramatic results. Here, in one of a series of special stories, is a report on the continuing struggle to rehabilitate the mentally ill.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—File and forget.

For sorry centuries, this literally became the fate of millions of mentally ill humans. Packed off to asylums, few came out.

But at 64, John C. came home after 23 decisive years in a state mental hospital. He is one of thousands salvaged from back wards of mental hospitals.

Fourteen years ago, he was another inmate in a hospital with 1,800 patients, and only two doctors. To feed, clothe, house and "treat" each of them, the hospital spent $1.96 a day. In some other hospitals it was as little as 43 cents a day.

Then an aroused state acted, providing more psychiatrists, nurses and psychiatric aides, to win the sick back to health. With intensive treatment, John C. recovered.

Today that same hospital spends about $11 a patient, and has only half as many patients. There and in other of the best mental hospitals in the U.S., 70 to 85 per cent of patients go home within three months to a year after being admitted. And this same hospital now spends only half as much, for total treatment of the patient, because of the shorter stay.

FEW REAP BENEFITS

The dolorous rub is that only 20 per cent of patients in all the U.S. mental hospitals get the benefits of such effective treatment.

This includes drugs and intensive psychotherapy, the psychiatrist's way of listening and talking to and encouraging patients, such as John C., "until finally a light goes on in their minds and they understand what they were doing to themselves," as Dr. William Menninger expresses it.

Still today in state mental hospitals, only half of all patients are getting anything more than custodial food and board. As a national average, mental hospitals spend only $5 daily a patient, compared with $34.90 daily in a general hospital for the person with a physical complaint.

The best hospitals have one psychiatrist for every 35 to 50 patients. The national average, however, is one for each 140.

As one thermometer in the new climate, there were 9,000 fewer patients in mental hospital at the end of 1961 than a year before. And there were 100,000 fewer than had been predicted in 1955 on then current national rates of new illness and population growth.

NOT MANY DANGEROUS

Another idea is spreading—strike away the locks and bars in mental hospitals. Wise doctors are winning the argument that cooping sick people up like prisoners can only make them sick and more frightened. Only a small percentage of mental patients is dangerous to themselves or to others.

Mental hospitals traditionally have concentrated on getting patients well enough to go home to normal life.

Coming along rapidly is a new concept of community psychiatry, says Philip E. Ryan, executive director of the National Association for Mental Health.

In this, the emphasis is to get the patient over the acute stage of illness by hospital treatment. Then, with the major wounds bound, to send him home to finish his recovery, much like the patient with a heart attack or tuberculosis.

A young mother crippled by acute anxieties, for example, was admitted to a general hospital merely as another sick person, with no commitment papers.

Once over the crisis, she went home, continuing regular visits to the hospital's out-patient clinic. She was fortunate, too, in having a community service which supplied a trained nurse to help her at home with her children or household problems.

NEED MORE DOCTORS

Only about one-fifth of the general hospitals in the U.S. as yet have such psychiatric units. Last year, general hospitals cared for about 350,000 of the emotionally ill.

There are other helping hands. Hospitals and communities now operate nearly 1,500 psychiatric outpatient clinics for advice, diagnosis, guidance, referral to mental hospitals, and treatment by drugs or psychotherapy, and last year assisted 500,000 persons.

Only a few hospitals have set up 24-hour emergency clinics. Some provide day care, where the patient can come for treatment, spending his nights at home. Some provide night hospital care for people who work by day, come in at evening for therapy and overnight stay.

There also are a few halfway houses, where discharged patients live for a time in company with other patients, gaining confidence, realizing they are not alone. In some communities, emotionally sick children from broken homes are finding foster homes, for affection and normal experiences while being treated at mental health clinics.

ILLNESS CAN RECUR

Recovery from mental illness is one thing. But people can slip back if they cannot find jobs, are shunned by friends, or return to bad home situations, and old problems. New and well-established community facilities are tackling these problems.

In Topeka, Kan., and some other communities, employers willingly give jobs to people still under clinic treatment. In many cities, under mental health association auspices, patients have formed former patient clubs to help one another in full recovery.

Formerly, about one-third of patients discharged from mental hospitals relapsed, and had to go back within a year.

Pilot programs stressing total rehabilitation through multiple services indicate this recurrence of illness could be reduced to 10 per cent or less, says the national Institute of mental health.

The battle for mental health costs money. Fifteen states by law now share with cities and communities the costs of expanding mental health facilities. The latest budget of National Institute of Mental Health allocates $4,200,000 for matching grants with states to plan comprehensive mental health plans. Last year, federal, state and local agencies spent $61,000,000 for community mental health programs.

DRIVER DIES IN FLAMING TRANSPORT

37 Killed In Buenos Aires Jail Riot

Convicts Yield, Savage Revenge Taken By Guards

Prisoners Kill Hostages So Guards Retaliate

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Nineteen prisoners and 18 guards were killed during the night in a night-long gun battle which ended in a burst of murderous revenge at the Central Jail just before dawn today.

Five of the dead guards were among hostages taken by prisoners who smashed into the prison arsenal Tuesday in an abortive mass jailbreak.

The prisoners surrendered late Tuesday night on the promise they would not be harmed, but angry guards broke into the cells and opened up with submachine-guns on the convicts.

The retaliation nearly touched off a gun battle between the guards and strong police forces called in to help stop the break.

Judge Leopoldo Insurralde, who negotiated with the prisoners, said the situation in the prison was under control.

THROW GRENADE

The break was reported to have been when a hand grenade thrown from a passing truck exploded near guards on the main gate soon after midday Tuesday.

Simultaneously, guards inside prison w e r e reported to have held hostage and prisoners broke into the prison arsenal.

Police said about 600 common offenders among the jail's 1,188 convicts—who include political and labor leaders as well as prisoners awaiting trial—started an unsuccessful escape attempt, with truckloads of outside accomplices.

In reply to a police ultimatum to surrender during the afternoon, the prisoners threw two dead guards into the forecourt. Two wounded guards died in FATAL TANGLE—The twisted remains of a car-crash at Marysville. Driver of a tractor-trailer, transport, its cargo of new model autos spilled about loaded with veneer that collided with the car transthe wreckage, marks the fatal scene of the pre-dawn port was burned to death.

Two Loaded Trucks Sideswipe Near Marysville

2 Admitted to Hospital One With Broken Back

A glancing sideswipe between two road transports brought fiery death on Highway 502, near Marysville, before dawn today.

The driver of a tractor-trailer, stacked with veneer, died when the vehicle burst into flames after colliding with a car-transport, loaded with new model cars. Two others were injured.

The estimate of property-loss ranged up to $60,000.

Burned to death was Raymond Mosher, aged about 28, Toronto truck-driver and father of three children. Injured were his brother-in-law, Karl Kober, R. R. 1, Colborne, a passenger in the Mosher vehicle, and Frederick Clarence Warren, 50, of Fort Perry, driver of the car transport.

Warren suffered back injuries while Kober was treated for burns described by police as "not too serious."

The fatal impact between the transports occurred less than a mile east of the Highway 2 junction, near the Department of Highways barns, about 4.30 a.m.

Provincial Police, still investigating the cause of the accident, believe the vehicles sideswiped each other. The car-transport was east-bound, the tractor-trailer loaded with veneer was heading west.

The car transport was heaved on its side in the ditch, spilling some of the fire cars it was ferrying east. The gas tank on the tractor-transport apparently was ripped open by the impact, spewing gasoline along the highway. The truck burst into flames, leaving a trail of burning gas along the highway for nearly 200 feet before it careened into a ditch.

ALARM RAISED

The burning vehicle rammed to a halt almost on the front lawn of Milton McTaggart, a Department of Highways worker.

Mrs. McTaggart was the first person to raise the alarm.

"I woke up and saw this big light. I looked out the window and there was a truck right off the road and on fire," Mrs. McTaggart said.

Her husband was at the nearby department barns and she frantically phoned him. Highway workers piled into cars and trucks and rushed to the scene while passers-by were also called at Belleville. Deseronto fire department rushed a pumper to the scene.

THROWN FROM CAB

The driver of the transport was thrown from the cab of the vehicle as it jammed to a halt on the McTaggart lawn. "Gasoline spilled on his body," said one witness, who arrived on the scene shortly afterwards.

"You couldn't get near him," said one highway worker.

However, it was believed the man was dead at the time, said another. He lay on the ground

BILL OF RIGHTS VIOLATED BY GOVT., CHARGE

NDP Member Says Man Kept in 'Hole'

OTTAWA (CP)—The New Democratic Party has accused the government of violating the Bill of Rights on two counts.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said Tuesday a man has been kept "in the hole"—solitary confinement — for 13 months in Kingston penitentiary because the authorities have a suspicion, but nothing more, that he knows something about the slaying of a guard in 1961.

"This is torture," Mr. Winch told the Commons.

He quoted a section of the Bill of Rights forbidding "the imposition of cruel and unusual treatment or punishment."

The NDP member identified the convict only as Cochrane. For 13 months he had been kept in a small cell without a decent bed—his bed is six inches off the floor—and without a table or chair.

JUMP TO SAFETY

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Two men made a 2,000-foot parachute jump to safety Tuesday from a crippled U.S. Air Force jet trainer that plunged through thick overcast and crashed on the north side of Oneida Lake.

The two air force captains who ejected themselves from their T-33 jet were picked up by a rescue helicopter in the vicinity of Constantia, N.Y., where the plane crashed.

A NEW TYPE?

MONTREAL (CP)—A group of McGill University students will come up with something new in marathons, a marathon pool game. Record holder in the marathon so far is Dan Levinson of Worcester, Mass., who played 28 hours in one straight session. Purpose of the endurance test? One of the organizers said: "We want to have a new type of marathon."

Distinct Christmas Customs Still Surviving in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Many distinct Christmas customs survive in Quebec, though the North American way has overwhelmed a few in this French corner of the continent.

New Year's Day, not Christmas, was the traditional time for gift-giving in Quebec, but the families now fill the stockings Dec. 25.

Kennedy Wants Talks on Congo

But Skybolt Occupies Macmillan's Mind

NASSAU, Bahamas (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan waited to learn today whether he has a chance of persuading President Kennedy to save the Skybolt missile program.

The fate of the missile on which Britain's nuclear striking force is independent will be the No. 1 issue when the two leaders open their two-day talks at a lush millionaires' retreat here.

U.S. sources pressed Tuesday night for priority to be given to what they believe is a dangerous situation in The Congo, where Katanga still maintains its secession from the central government.

But Macmillan was believed determined to drive for immediate and thorough discussion of Skybolt as the key issue of the conference.

The Kennedy administration was reported by U.S. sources to have already decided it could not afford to go on with the Skybolt program, which the president says eventually might cost a total of $2,500,000,000.

At the same time, the U.S. was said to have left open the possibility that Britain could take over the missiles develop-ment with some United States assistance.

The president was reported to explore with Macmillan the alternative of providing Britain with other nuclear weapons like Polaris or Round Dpg.

The sources said that in any event it looked as if Macmillan would not leave the Bahamas empty-handed.

The meeting between the two men at Nassau airport Tuesday was warm and cordial. They later spent almost an hour together, informally discussing arrangements for the talks.

Curston Allen, president of Allco Amusements, owner of the Casino, said the Abella-Lux firm had ended its lease on the theatre.

"They were in arrears on their rent a small amount," he said. "But we were helping them out over the Christmas slump."

Cold Christmas for Strippers, They Have No Place to Disrobe

TORONTO (CP)—It may be a cold Christmas for strippers in Toronto.

Two of the city's three burlesque houses have been closed because their rent has not been paid.

Bailiffs boggred strippers, comedians and floor sweepers from the Lux Theatre just before the first show Tuesday. The Casino Theatre didn't open its doors. Both theatres were operated by Elliott Abells and Ray Lux.

Most of the entertainers said they were left without money although they might get a week's salary from their union, the American Guild of Variety Artists (CLC).

The strippers came from all parts of the United States and two of them, Judy and Carmen Kelly, are Montrealers.

Grace Reed, a comedienne at the Casino, said she had no advance warning of the closure. She said some of the strippers haven't eaten for two days. She had tried to reach some of the Lux girls by telephone but was told most of them were out looking for a meal.

Curston Allen, president of Allco Amusements, owner of the Casino, said the Abella-Lux firm had ended its lease on the theatre.

"They were in arrears on their rent a small amount," he said. "But we were helping them out over the Christmas slump."

Police Search For Santa Gang Is Stepped Up

MONTREAL (CP) — A reorganized police search for the killers of two suburban St. Lawrence policemen is gaining momentum across the province now that investigators are armed with a composite sketch of one of the bandits.

Chief Inspector Gerard Houle of the provincial police, now in overall charge of the search, has appealed to the public for aid in discovering the Santa Claus gang that killed Const. Claude Marineau and Detective Brandon.

Heavy Influx of Capital Boosts Exchange Reserves

OTTAWA (CP)—A sharp reduction in Canada's international balance-of-payments deficit during the third quarter of this year was coupled with a strong resumption of foreign capital inflows.

The current account deficit for both merchandise trade and other payments dropped to $61,000,000 in the July-September period from $377,000,000 the previous quarter, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

This was coupled with a net capital inflow of $747,000,000—$247,000,000 of it long-term capital—compared with capital outflows of $218,000,000 in the second quarter.

The result was "a marked improvement" in Canada's foreign exchange reserves, which rose by $496,000,000 in Canadian dollar terms during the third quarter.

The report said the third-quarter drop in the current account deficit was a seasonal one. The third-quarter deficit of $61,000,000 compared with a deficit of $62,000,000 a year earlier. But there were marked differences in the contributing factors.

Merchandise trade produced a $58,000,000 surplus during the KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters) — Prime Minister Milton Obote underwent an emergency operation here Tuesday night after a piece of meat stuck in his throat.

Premier Says Seat Won on Magical Name

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Bennett suggested Dr. Patrick McGeer won a seat in the British Columbia legislature on the "magic" political name of his fabled Uncle Gerry.

He commented in an interview Tuesday on the massive majority victory for the Liberal party Monday in a byelection in Vancouver Point Grey.

In the multi-seat constituency, held by Social Credit for six years, Dr. McGeer finished with 21,569 votes. Reg Atherton, Progressive Conservative, had 8,796; Rew Burns - Miller, Social Credit, 8,442 and NDP candidate Antony Holland, 5,302.

"You know that in Vancouver the name McGeer is a magic word," Mr. Bennett said. "In a byelection where there is no major issue in question the name McGeer — naturally the name Pat McGeer, is a personal victory."

Dr. McGeer is nephew of the late G. G. (Gerry) McGeer, former mayor of Vancouver, MLA, MP and senator.

Premier Bennett said "byelections are important, but they don't show the trend of public opinion."

Seafarers Want Closed Inquiry On Union Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—The Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) has launched a bid to turn the public investigation of marine labor strife into a private inquiry whenever confidential information is involved.

Keith Eaton, SIU lawyer, made the request Tuesday before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris in objecting to questions about SIU loans to union officials and other trade unions.

The questions were asked by J. W. Geller, lawyer for Upper Lakes Shipping Limited, during cross-examination of Leonard J. McLaughlin, executive vice-president of the 14,000-member union.

The SIU has disclosed that it made loans and advances to some of its own officials as well as to other unions, including the international Longshoremen's Association and the Teamsters.

Mr. Geller wanted to know the purpose of the loans and the details of repayment.

Mr. Eaton said such information was regarded as confidential by the SIU. He said that the union be allowed to give the details at an in-camera session of the inquiry.

At first Mr. Justice Norris overruled the objection but later agreed to hear further arguments from the SIU at today's session.

Mr. Geller, opposed the SIU request for a private hearing, charging that it amounted to a change in the rules of the commission after four months of sessions.

MEMBER SEEKS END OF BAN ON COLORED OLEO

PC Backbencher Makes Earnest Plea

TORONTO (CP) — A second government backbencher has called for removal of Ontario's controversial ban on colored margarine.

Leonard Reilly (PC—Toronto Eglington) suggested Tuesday night that the government "no-tify the producers of butter fat that restrictions on the coloring of margarine will be lifted as of a specific date in the future."

"It is our democratic right to purchase colored margarine," he said. "All the barriers that have been put up to prevent consumption of margarine have failed."

Bev Lewis (PC—York Humber) last week described the ban on colored margarine as outdated.

Dick Powell Said to Be In Severe Pain

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor-producer Dick Powell is in severe pain from a cancer that apparently has spread to his lower back, his physician says.

Dr. John C. Sharpe said Tuesday that Powell, 57, is under almost continuous sedation — "he is a very sick man."

Dr. Sharpe said the malignancy apparently has spread to Powell's lower back. Cobalt treatments had almost cleared up cancer in Powell's lymph glands and upper right chest cavity, where it was first discovered.

Powell revealed last October he was suffering from cancer. He said then that he expected to be cured.

Bahai Members Will Be Shot For Their Religious Beliefs

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — A Moroccan court has sentenced three members of the Bahai faith to death and a fourth to prison for their beliefs.

The court at Nador convicted the four Bahais, all Moroccans to death. Five persons were given life sentences, one 15 years and two others were acquitted. The trial ended Saturday.

All those convicted appealed to the Supreme Court.

They were accused of "rebellion, disorder, attack on public security, organization of an association of evildoers and attack on religious faith."

Although Morocco's new constitution guarantees religious liberty to all, King Hassan II told a press conference last week that "Islam does not accept the Bahai sect or other sects which are true heresy." He added that the Hebrew and Christian religions "are to be practised in all liberty" because they are "recognized by Islam."

The Bahai religion was founded in 1844 in Iran by its prophet, Bahai Ullah. The sect believes in revelation from God through certain men and accepts the prophets of Islam as well as those of Christianity and Judaism. The Bahais believe, however, that their prophet carried the most recent divine revelation.

Sometimes called a "world religion," Bahai deems desirable the reconciliation of all religions and would like to see the establishment of a world government.

Convicts Yield, Savage Revenge Taken By Guards

Prisoners Kill Hostages So Guards Retaliate

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Nineteen prisoners and 18 guards were killed during the night in a night-long gun battle which ended in a burst of murderous revenge at the Central Jail just before dawn today.

Five of the dead guards were among hostages taken by prisoners who smashed into the prison arsenal Tuesday in an abortive mass jailbreak.

The prisoners surrendered late Tuesday night on the promise they would not be harmed, but angry guards broke into the cells and opened up with submachine-guns on the convicts.

The retaliation nearly touched off a gun battle between the guards and strong police forces called in to help stop the break.

Judge Leopoldo Insurralde, who negotiated with the prisoners, said the situation in the prison was under control.

THROW GRENADE

The break was reported to have been when a hand grenade thrown from a passing truck exploded near guards on the main gate soon after midday Tuesday.

Simultaneously, guards inside prison were reported to have held hostage and prisoners broke into the prison arsenal.

Police said about 600 common offenders among the jail's 1,188 convicts—who include political and labor leaders as well as prisoners awaiting trial—started an unsuccessful escape attempt, with truckloads of outside accomplices.

In reply to a police ultimatum to surrender during the afternoon, the prisoners threw two dead guards into the forecourt. Two wounded guards died in Voters' Lists Used in City Criticized by Retiring Ald.

Voters' lists used in Belleville municipal elections are "not worth the paper they are printed on," members of city council were told yesterday.

Alderman William Jarvah, who early in December made an unsuccessful bid for election as mayor, told council that the type of voters' list being used in this city there could be as many as 1,000 duplications of names on the list.

He said he could cite instances where the names of persons dead for two years were still on the voters' list and of people who had moved whose names were on the lists at both their old and new addresses.

Also, under the system used for compiling lists, the names of residents owning property in different wards could appear in the list at many different polls.

The alderman said there were over 500 such instances in the city.

He noted that when a person's name appeared on the voters' list he was entitled to vote and, excepting in very unusual circumstances, the deputy returning officer at the poll had no reason to raise the question of qualification.

This was possible because the type of voters' lists being used in the city had not been changed since the city conducted elections on the ward system, "many years ago."

"I am not inferring in any sense that the recent election in Belleville was improperly conducted," said Alderman Jarvah, "but if there were dishonest people there was a definite possibility."

He hoped that future councils would see to it that voters' lists were compiled in the proper manner and that the lists would be accurate.

Mayor A. M. Haig told Ald. Jarvah that an administration committee had been looking into the voters' list question since the recent election and that a recommendation would be made to the 1963 council.

Want Removal Of Secrecy on Tax Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—Removal of the curtain of pre-budget secrecy on much of the tax-change legislation introduced in federal government budgets was suggested Tuesday by representatives of the legal and accounting professions.

They proposed a change in the system to permit a more thorough review and constructive criticism in Parliament, "to reduce the likelihood of "awkward and ineffective legislation" being passed.

The suggestion was made by a joint delegation of the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants in a meeting with Finance Minister Nowlan and Revenue Minister Hugh John Flemming.

The occasion was the annual presentation of a brief on suggested tax law amendments by the two organizations.

"We question the need for keeping much of the tax legislation secret until introduction into Parliament," they said in a letter signed by W. J. Hulbig of Montreal and W. Gordon Smith of Toronto, chairmen of the taxation committees of the bar association and accountants' institute.

'REVIEW NOT POSSIBLE'

The length of time between introduction and enactment of tax legislation was often so short that no thorough review was possible.

"We suggest that informed taxpayers should be given an opportunity to study proposed legislation. The resulting constructive criticism might do much to reduce the likelihood of enacting awkward and ineffective legislation."

The letter suggested that tax legislation be referred to a small committee of the Commons to give MPs the chance to hear expert witnesses and appraise the probably consequences of new laws.

It also said the government has not enough officials on the job of preparing and studying tax legislation.

"As a result of our particular system, tax legislation is too often hastily conceived, and when anomalies are acknowledged the delays for amendment are too long."

The government should consider immediate information of a special group of officials who would work full time on drafting fiscal and tax legislation and on observing the effects of tax laws.

Wishart Says Hospital Bd. Meddles in Administration In Misconception of Role

The final meeting of the 1962 Belleville city council ended on a surprise note Monday as sharp criticism was levied at the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors by a council representative on the board.

Alderman George Wishart, council appointee to the hospital board, in a prepared address at the close of the meeting accused board members with interfering in the hospital administration. He said there was dissension between board members and the administrator and quoted an Ontario Hospitals Association administrative report which said a majority of board members had an almost "complete misconception" as to their proper function.

The report recommended a new set of by-laws for the Belleville General Hospital but the suggestion had been turned down and the report was never made public.

"What became of the report?" the alderman asked.

STAFF LOYAL

Alderman Wishart said he had taken at its face value a statement by Mayor A. M. Haig made 18 months ago that he (the mayor) was unhappy over the management at the Belleville hospital and that something might have to be done about it.

So when he was appointed to the board as council representative in January he had made a serious attempt to learn about the hospital.

He said he had found the administration to be in capable hands and also that senior staff members were competent and loyal. And most important, despite serious overcrowding of its facilities, the institution was fulfilling its primary function of providing adequate care for the patients.

Any dissension at the hospital was among the board members and between the board and the administration, he said.

REPORT QUOTED

The Ontario Hospital Association administrative report, from which he had quoted earlier, stated that policy making was the primary function of a hospital board.

In contrast to this, however, the Belleville board was too much involved if detail with the consequence that its policy-making had suffered.

The report said that a majority of the members of the Belleville board had an almost "complete misconception" as to the proper function of a hospital board.

The board had shown a reluctance to abide by its existing by-laws or to adopt new ones, according to the report.

The report suggested a new set of by-laws and terms of reference but a motion for adoption of new by-laws was defeated at the January 1962 meeting of the board.

Only members Mr. Donald MacDonald and Alderman Wishart had supported the motion.

STICKS TO RULES

The report had said the administrator at Belleville hospital was well trained but that his services were not being properly utilized by the board.

Alderman Wishart said members of the medical staff supported the hospital administrator and quoted one senior physician as saying the administrator "was capable and stuck closely to the rules."

The same physician had said that the Belleville hospital Board was behaving in a manner "away off course" and that the board's by-laws were long out of date and should be revised.

A special committee had been appointed to study by-laws but to Alderman Wishart's knowledge the committee had never met.

Alderman Wishart admitted that in presenting his report to council he would be making himself unpopular with the hospital board, but said he felt it was his duty.

He said that the hospital board adopt a new set of by-laws and stick by them, and for the hospital board to leave administration details to those hired to do the job," he concluded.

1961 Campaign Fund Balance Is Distributed

At the last regular meeting of the executive and directors of the Belleville United Appeal in December, a balance of the funds from the 1961 united campaign was voted for distribution to the eleven agencies then participating.

The current distribution is 3 per cent of the agencies' allotment for 1962. This distribution brings the total amount distributed from the 1961 campaign to 100 per cent of the agencies' allotment, the actual amount distributed being $58,000.

At the last meeting the Board of Directors voted to distribute from the proceeds of the recent campaign 10 to 13 agencies now participating, the amount of $33,966. which is equivalent to 58 per cent of the agencies' allotment for 1962.

It was learned at this meeting that the total returned from the recent campaign amount to $71,694.87 and there is some hope that this may reach a total of $72,000.

The good citizens of Belleville are to be congratulated on their generosity and their care for those whom the 13 agencies seek to serve. This Christmas season will certainly be made more comfortable for many unfortunates as a result of the concern for them shown by the donors to the agencies through the United Appeal.

In the general discussion carried on at the board meeting the recent campaign was reviewed and, while satisfaction was felt over the results of the campaign, nevertheless it was tinged with considerable regret that the total objective of $85,000. was not reached and, therefore, the agencies will be forced to curtail their good work to some extent during the coming year.

Among the reasons mentioned for the failure to reach the full objective was the fact that many contributors still treat the United Appeal campaign as just another single effort and are not realistic in remembering that it is the united effort for 13 agencies all at one time.

Another fact appears to be that there are a number of people who are not familiar with the work being carried out by the individual agencies. The opinion was expressed at this meeting that such individual agency should lose no opportunity to publicize the work it is doing and to make it abundantly clear that the services rendered by the agencies can only be performed if people will support them through the United Appeal at the time of its campaign.

The board is optimistic that, with the experience gained each year, the advantages of a united effort instead of many individual efforts will eventually become fully recognized by the citizens, and that the full needs of the agencies will be met in succeeding campaigns.

Retired Civil Servant Says Colombo Plan Has Failed to Do the Job

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—Nick Cavell says the Colombo Plan has failed to do the job it was created for.

Mr. Cavell, now a vigorous 68 and retired from governmental service, was for seven years the mastermind of Canada's part in the Southeast Asia development program.

He pulls no punches in sizing up the achievements of that program—or in advocating a whole new approach to economic aid generally.

"The individual Indian is no better off today than when the Colombo Plan got started 11 years ago," declared the bluff, dynamic old Asia hand in an interview.

He attributed this to lack of proper planning and co-ordination at the project level, an ailment which in his view besets all Western aid programs for underdeveloped countries

WIDER PLANNING

It can be overcome only through the creation of an international agency designed to bring Western standards of efficiency to bear on co-ordinated development programs, he as and pieces going" sorted.

"Right now we have only bits and pieces going."

Mr. Cavell, British-born former army officer in the old Indian Army and onetime globe-trotting businessman, was called upon by Liberal government to help get the Colombo Plan going in 1951.

He had moved to Canada in 1934, to pursue his story-book business career.

Canada's contribution the first year of the plan was $25,000,000. It now stands over that to $50,000,000 but this year was cut to $41,500,000 because of the austerity program.

Mr. Cavell is critical of the reduction, saying Canada should be moving towards the oft-cited one per cent of gross national production as the basis of its foreign aid contributions.

NEED ORGANIZATION

But he added:

"At the present stage better organization and co-ordination are more important than more money. It's no use pouring more and more money down this drain, like a shnhole."

Mr. Cavell is unimpressed by the foreign aid activities of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, saying "all it does is check up on the contributions of various members, compare them and try to make them look as good as possible."

Where co-operation is needed, he asserts, is on-the-spot in the country being helped.

"For instance, if a power plant is built in an area, while it is still under construction preparations should be made for use of the power. Factories should be built, on a multilateral basis if necessary, and always with the co-operation of the recipient country.

NO CO-ORDINATION

"The trouble with economic aid today is that every country goes its own way, pursuing in what it likes. There is practically no co-ordination."

He says there is too much emphasis on theory and not enough on first-hand contact by old pioneers with conditions as they exist in developing areas.

"We are dealing here with human beings, not abstract economic concepts.

"I have seen children ravaged by hookworm, and whole villages where the crop went unharvested because the men were sick in bed.

"People say the Asian is lazy. But the truth is that he's simply weak and starving—or has been, traditionally."

LONG, EXPERIENCE .

Mr. Cavell was Colombo Plan administrator from 1951 to 1958, when he was named high commissioner to Ceylon. He retired from the diplomatic service in 1961.

As administrator he travelled 20,000 to 30,000 miles a year and tramped around such countries as India and Pakistan inspecting sites of actual or potential development projects.

"We built a number of power plants in those early years," he has recalled. "We felt that power was a fundamental floor on which to build anything."

One day he hiked three miles into the Assam jungle to look at a river site that had been proposed for a Colombo Plan hydro project. Leeches clustered onto his legs as he walked.

On a tree in the jungle he discovered a plaque that had been left behind by a British engineer in the 18th century, recommending the river site as a worthy spot for an electric power dam.

Mr. Cavell concurred. Today the Assam city of Gauhati is lighted by power from the 5,000 kilowatt dam at the place originally proposed.

On another trip, Mr. Cavell was invited to inspect the Kabul River in northwest Pakistan where it tumbles from a gorge before emptying into the parched plains of Peshawar.

The eventual purpose of the visit was the $32,000,000 Warsak dam — showpiece of Canadian Colombo Plan projects, which inhabit the Khyber Pass country where the Warsak dam is located.

TOUGH TRIBESMEN

He is therefore particularly pleased that one of the important intangible difficulties of the Warsak project was that some 3,000 of these "very tough" tribesmen acquired industrial skills in its construction.

Mr. Cavell got to know the Pathan tribal country during his

KEITH ALFRED BECKWITH

The funeral of Keith Alfred Beckwith was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon. Capt. J. K. Tackaberry of the Salvation Army conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at the Whitby Cemetery on the Trent Road.

The bearers were Gary Phillips, Roy Smith, Larry Watson, Jack Skinkle, Roy Brown and Stan Downing.

with his hand pressed over his heart.

His brother-in-law ran to the McTaggart house from the burning wreck.

"This man came yelling up to the door saying his brother-in-law was burned," Mrs. McTaggart recounted.

RE-ROUTED TRAFFIC

Police pressed highway workers into service to re-route the traffic as they sealed off Highway 502 from Marysville to Napanee. The road was kept, closed to traffic until about 8 a.m. with all traffic being directed along Highway 2 through Deseronto.

The ammonia spilled from the car transport, were chained to the top of the vehicle. Two other cars in the lower berth were also damaged. An inconsistency which was given the wreckage by one of the vehicles. Its interior lights came on as one of its doors sprung open.

The smash marked up one of the highway's worst losses for highway accidents on recent record in the Quinte district.

"It could go as high as $25,000," said one insurance adjuster on the scene. "You can figure $50,000 would be a low estimate."

Investigating officer of the fatal crash was Provincial Police Constable Glen Hiuser.

School Attendance Record During November Splendid

Members of the Belleville Public School Board wound up their business of the 1962 year at their regular monthly meeting held Monday evening.

The year is ending on a splendid attendance record for the Belleville public schools.

The report of the school superintendent, L. A. Kells, showed that during November not one school in the public schools' system had an attendance record of less than 95 per cent. The average for the city was 96.35 per cent attendance.

Accordingly the board's commendation was expressed to the schools' attendance officer, Mr. Bruce Kerr.

The Board received the resignation of Mrs. Beverly Simmons who is moving from Belleville, approved the return of Miss Jacqueline Watson to a classroom in the Parkdale School after a leave of absence, and named Mrs. Mattie Miller to replace Mrs. Simmons.

In the finance committee the board received information of two special legislative grants received during the preceding month: the residential and farm assistance grant amounting to $80,097.20 and the special education grant amounting to $30,911.55. Both of these items were as estimated for the year's budget.

Information was received from the board's solicitors, Arnett and Arnett, that the details were now complete to the ownership of a new school site on Sidney Street from the Ponton Estate at $21,700.

NAMED TO BOARD .

The board re-appointed W. Thomas Simpson to the Bay of Quinte Conservation Authority Board for the calendar year 1963.

Following the report of the Board's Dental Health Committee, instructions were given to enquire into the possibility of securing for employment a full-time dental hygienist.

The board's thanks were extended to Trustee J. E. Sproule for his extended period of service to education in Belleville and vicinity.

Mr. Sproule served first as a member of the South Hastings District High School Board, than for a period of eight years as a member of the Board of S.S. No. 3 Thurlow, now a part of the City of Belleville. At the date of annexation, Mr. Sproule was elected to serve as a member of the Belleville Public School Board.

Particular mention was made also of the many ways in which Radio Station C.J.B.Q. has served schools in Belleville. It was recalled, that in a previous year C.J.B.Q. received a provincial award for its school broadcast services, and this year mention was made of the safety broadcasts at the close of school in June, the carols and choir work from school children during the Christmas season and especially of the daily educational programs carried for the benefit of children and without revenue to the station.

Chairman William Townson spoke briefly to the Board at the conclusion of the meeting expressing his thanks for a pleasant year in which the co-operation of the members had been a great help. He summarized the major activities of the Board, in particular those items relating to board policy and decisions that did not fall within the executive functions of the Superintendent.

Present were Chairman William Townson, Trustees J. D. Bacon, E. R. Bishop, F. E. Clarke, J. N. McHolme, Lyle Lambert, Morley Lovelace, Hazel Pugh, B.A., J. Russell Scott, Mrs. Mae Smith, G. H. Trill, and W. A. VanTassel.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served, when members and their wives enjoyed a pot luck supper.

The ship's company of the RCSCC "Trent" enjoyed its annual Christmas party last night, with parents and friends of the sea cadets in attendance.

A shield bearing the names of 15 former Trenton sea cadets, who have served and are serving with the Royal Canadian Navy, is now the prize property of the wardroom. It was a gift from the Ladies' Auxiliary of the "Trent," received by the guest of honor, Lt. Comdr. C. R. Weaver, DD, RCN, of Toronto, area officer for the sea cadets. Trenton officers admiring the shield, left to right, are: Lt. Gerald Paro, Lt. Ross Milligan, Sub-Lt. Dennis Atkins and Commanding Officer Lt. H. W. Curtis.

H.S. Supply Teachers Will Get Increase in New Year

Supply teachers working "regularly" for the Bay of Quinte High School Board will to receive an increase in pay commencing in the new year.

At Tuesday evening's regular meeting of the high school board it was agreed to increase the rate of pay to $20 per day for teachers who "supply for more than seven consecutive days in the same classroom."

For the "occasional" supply teacher the rate of pay will remain at the present $17.00 per day.

The board approved in principle that the day be granted members wherever possible, to visit schools with vocational departments, and those where such occupational shops are set up, with the view of adopting what is best for the new Quinte Secondar school addition.

MAY HAVE SUPT.

It was recommended to the 1963 board members that consideration be given to the engagement of a superintendent of education for the Quinte Belleville high schools.

The board approved the re-appointment of Mr. Ross Hall, superintendent of the C.A.S. as schools attendance officer for 1963. Board members expressed pleasure with the arrangement with the C.A.S. during the past year.

Purchase of a hospital bed for use in the girls' occupational department at Moira Secondary School was made conditional on sufficient finances from the government vocational grant scheme being available.

Grading of the school parking lot at Belleville Collegiate is now completed and board members were commended therefor, being pleased with the result.

TO SELL SURPLUS

The sale of surplus wood lathes and other equipment in the woodworking shop at Belleville Collegiate was authorized.

The engagement of Mr. Freidl Bellstedt to replace Mr. Norman Hooks as teacher at Moira Secondary School was approved. Mr. Hooks has resigned his position to return to England.

Retiring chairman W. T. Simpson expressed his pleasure at the co-operation received during the year by the board of High School Board and at the same time expressed his regret that Trustees Bishop, Lambert and William Argue were leaving the board.

The last regular meeting of the 1962 board will be held on January 8th, with the caucus meeting for appointment of committees to be held on January 2.

Found Guilty Of Murder

NEW YORK (AP) — James Mullooly, who believed he had a "calling" to kill the 23-year-old splinster sister-in-law because his suspected she was luring an affair, was convicted today of second-degree murder.

Mullooly, 41, an accountant, cried and trembled as the executive Taylor S. Gay last June 11 as Gay stood in a railroad terminal.

Mullooly face a maximum 20-years-to-life sentence.

New Sub-Division By-Law Laid Over Until New Year

The city's new sub-division by-law which has been under discussion by city council and local builders and realtors, will not get its final approval in council until next year.

The by-law was ready for presentation to council some weeks ago but realtors and builders requested they had not seen a copy of the agreement. Accordingly the matter was held up until copies of the agreement could be perused by builders and real estate men concerned should again get together on details. The by-law sets forth the regulations which will govern all future subdivisions.

Accordingly two members of Council, Aldermen Joseph Raycroft and Jack Ellis, conferred privately with the abiding following which it was recommended the matter be laid over until the New Year.

Approval was given for a subdivision of Registered plan No. 906, submitted by F. S. Follwell, on condition that the sub-divider agree to provide sanitary sewers, watermains and services and pay the roadways on the balance of Seiena Ave., Hutton Drive and all of Hubert Ave., in accordance with the new sub-division agreement.

APPROVE SIDEWALK

And, in accordance with the policy established by council earlier this month, under which the city will assume 50 per cent of the owners normal share of the cost of sidewalks, a walk on the south side of Victoria Ave., from Herchimer westerly was added to the already approved list. The policy adopted by the city covers walks constructed under Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act to provide walks where deemed necessary for school children and heavy pedestrian traffic.

Council's meeting of council was the final regular session for this year.

VOICES APPRECIATION

Yesterday's meeting of council was the final session for this year and saw Mayor A. M. Hall express his appreciation to council members for their co-operation and also to city hall administrative officials and staff members.

The members of council, Alderman Robert Temple and William Jarvah, expressed their regrets at leaving council.

Alderman Temple is resigning from municipal politics after ten years' service, but Alderman Jarvah said he hoped his absence from the council chamber here next year would be but temporary.

"I hope to be back," he said.

Garfield Weston Buys Grocery Chain in France

LONDON (CP) — Canada's Garfield Weston is linking hands with the chief executive to try to bring down the price of French beefsteak.

The multi-millionaire grocery king Tuesday told a London meeting of shareholders that he hopes to sign contracts Friday to take over a big grocery chain in France.

British newspapers quoted Weston as saying that de Gaulle has given him the go-ahead to "break up" the cartels and price rings that make meat a luxury item in France.

Weston, who already owns a string of some 2,000 supermarkets in North America, Britain and Europe, said he has been assured that policemen would be provided to protect every shop he opened.

In France, "le biftеck" remains the coveted centrepiece of the average man's mid-day meal, but the price of roughly $1.50 a pound causes the cautious French housewife to seek cheaper substitutes.

Price rings along have been notorious.

HAUSNER RESIGNS

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—The resignation of Gideon Hausner, Israeli attorney - general who was chief prosecutor in the trial of war criminal Adolf Eichmann, was accepted by the cabinet on Sunday, a government spokesman announced. Hausner, 47, submitted his resignation following a prolonged disagreement with Justice Minister Dov Joseph, a native of Montreal, over the division of functions of Hausner's office in relation to those of the Justice minister.

Dates Are Set For Inaugural Meets of Bodies

TRENTON — Now that municipal elections are a thing of the past, newly-elected officials are thinking about dates for inaugural meetings.

Following tradition, Trenton council's inaugural meeting will be held on Jan. 2. Time is 11 a.m. and the place is the town hall over the police station.

Jan. 2, at 7 p.m., members of the Trenton Board of Education elected by acclamation, will be sworn in at the North Trenton School board room.

Jan. 3 has been set as the date for the inaugural meeting of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission. This meeting will be held in the commission board room on Elgin St. and the time is 4 p.m.

Murray Township council will meet this Thursday, which is date for its inaugural meeting, which, by tradition, should fall on Jan. 3.

Frankford council plans to hold its inaugural meeting on Jan. 14.

MOUNTAIN LAND

When a U.S.A.F. fuel tanker plane caught fire recently, over Watkins Glen, N.Y., the 10-man crew bailed out, leaving the aircraft to fly on to presumed destruction on its automatic pilot. Air force officials estimated that the aircraft had crashed by one a.m. if the flames had not destroyed it first, according to the AP report.

Although officials at nearby Plattsburg A.F.B. said they assumed the plane came down in the Adirondack foothills, another report said it might have come down eventually in Canada. But nobody seemed to know for sure.

The report is disturbing for several reasons. Few people, of course, relish the thought of a flaming aircraft, loaded with explosive fuels, flying uncontrolled above either Canada or the United States. On the other hand, one must sympathize with the crew, one of whom did not survive the parachute jump, and none of whom should have been expected to stay with the plane any longer than they had to.

But one assumes that in the heartland of the North American Continent, planes the size of this one do not just disappear when the crew leaves. Surely the plane was being tracked on radar along the route it was flying, unless the North American radar net is a myth. Even if the plane was not being tracked, one hopes the U.S.A.F. could have had an interceptor up beside the burning plane within a few moments of a radioed alarm.

If no action was taken to trace the plane after the crew left it, and no preparations were made to destroy it in case it proved dangerous, someone was negligent. With an 11-hour supply of fuel, the aircraft could have reached, and crashed in, any of at least a dozen large cities. That the autopilot was set to fly north means nothing; in a burning plane an autopilot cannot be trusted. In the future, it is to be hoped the U.S.A.F. will keep careful track of its run-away aircraft, and have aircraft or weapons ready to destroy them should they threaten inhabited areas.

Paper Tiger?

According to the Edmonton Journal, that newspaper is currently in the bad books of Progressive Conservatives in the federal government. The charge was laid after Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton declined comment to a Journal reporter on an Ottawa report concerning wheat deals with Red China.

Later, Mr. Hamilton's special assistant suggested the minister's reluctance to comment might have been overcome for a reporter from another newspaper. The Journal's past record, which includes a criticism of the government on the day Prime Minister Diefenbaker visited Edmonton during an election campaign, does not please the government.

Whether there is discrimination or not, it is certainly true some reporters can get answers where other reporters get the cold. This is one of the distinctions between the top and the mediocre reporter. It is also true, in almost all cases, that the name of the newspaper represented by a reporter makes a difference. But unless a feud has been openly declared, few governments would be so foolish as to make a practice of discriminating against one particular newspaper.

Care for a Spin?

It used to be when a person asked the above question it was assumed that he was referring to a ride via some means of conveyance, be it auto, boat or plane—maybe even a horse and buggy.

With the advent of these modern times, however, one had best take a look at what the conveyance is to be before accepting the offer. Down in Tennessee folks are proving they are at least abreast, if not way out in front, of the times.

In Nashville, renowned as a centre of country music, the word laundromat has taken on a new meaning. It might be defined as one who takes rides or spins in an automatic dryer.

To date there is even a world laundromat record established of 75 spins. As far as we can see only thing this activity has to recommend itself is that participants should stay dry unless they get into a washer by mistake.

If we look, in our economic policy, to our trade with the Commonwealth for the maintenance of, or rise in, the standard of living in this country . . . we look in vain.—Lord Chandos of Britain.

Canada and Them That Hath

By James McCook in the Ottawa Journal

Sherwood H. Bidcout, a New Brunswick Liberal MP said he was afraid that changes in the railway situation would result in the Maritimes losing certain grants they now enjoy.

He feared that it would be a case of "from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

Mr. Bidcout quoted Bible at the wrong man, this week in the Commons Railways Committee.

Donald Gordon, the CNR president and chairman, often as diplomat, has committed as a bull buffalo cornered by wolves, had an answer.

Ah, he said, with deceptive meekness, he too knew his Bible and he was quite sure that the quotation from Luke 19:26 did not apply narrowly to money but to good works and faith in the Lord.

Mr. Gordon was raised in the Bible — and — porridge atmosphere of pristine Aberdonshire which makes other Scottish counties look as easy as paradise isles. You can't trim a Aberdonian on modern art and the intricacies of the Twist but not on the King James Version.

• • •

Mr. Gordon, at the head of a long and sublime caravan of officials, comes to Ottawa from Montreal like a headquarters each year determined that he will not be rash or lose his temper or give the impression that he is the sole custodian of CNR honor and glory.

It never works.

Mr. Gordon had not been before the committee studying the CNR annual report for an hour this year, before his color and choler had risen with a series of smarting questions from Douglas Fisher, NDP, Port of Arthur on whether the Government's delay in reappointing Mr. Gordon as a member of the CNR board of directors as it had indicated a lack of confidence.

Transport Minister Balcer said for the Government as it had not; Mr. Gordon had in fact been reappointed. Hon. Lionel Chevrier, L-I-L, Montreal — Laurier, who had been Minister of Transport when Mr. Gordon was made CNR boss, appeared to approve.

Mr. Gordon is quite as big as he was when Ottawa knew him as deputy governor of the Bank of Canada and chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He has hardly a grey hair in his head. Perhaps his glasses are a little thicker and he may be a bit slower but he is still what a Scottish recruiting sergeant would call a fine figure of a man.

Mr. Fisher, the school-teacher politician from Lakehead who beat C. D. Howe in 1957, is just as big, broad and deermised as Mr. Gordon and these two giants of the railway committee room find little pleasure in each other's company.

Mr. Fisher is anxious about what will happen to men and communities in the further streamlining of railway services with the fast diesels eliminating old stopping places which may fall in decline.

Mr. Gordon, having said that the CNR must be competitive, that the CNR must play its leading part in every possible phase of improved human relations and that the CNR is not concerned about decayed communities as the Maritimes, has become increasingly crusty as the questioning persists.

His basic theme is that the CNR must be prepared to fight for business "and if we can't compete against the cheapest mode of transport we should quit." It is CNR policy, he says, to use any form of transport from wheelbarrows up to get business.

The CNR is publicly - owned but Mr. Gordon makes that no comfort to socialists.

"No organization is more dedicated to the free enterprise system than the CNR," he trumpeted when badgered a bit by Mr. Fisher and William Benidickson, Liberal, Kenora-Rainy River.

Mr. Benidickson said the CNR got its money not from the free-enterprise system but the Government.

Mr. Gordon proclaimed that if the CNR were not free enterprise it could use public money to put other transport companies out of business. What it did was truly competitive rates.

"The existence of the CNR is not an experiment in socialism," he concluded.

• • •

Mr. Fisher's advantage is that he is one of the few men who can look Donald Gordon in the eye without standing on a stool. While many an MP and many a non-MP has regarded a Gordon statement as final as if it were carved on stone, Mr. Fisher debates, challenges, protests.

"Oh, that's just a balloon," he remarked about one Gordon dictum.

"It's not a balloon because it's not full of hot air," said Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Fisher said the trouble with CNR statements is caused by what he thought to be Mr. Gordon's split personality in that the board often emphasis on running the railway as a private enterprise when in fact it was a public enterprise.

That's like splitting on the flag.

Mr. Gordon, bumping the table with a fist like a Virginia ham, asserted the CNR was as efficient or more efficient than the CPR at every stage of operations. It had a better operation and a better result. The CNR would not benefit from "a dose of CPR management."

"Don't tell me that morale is better on the CPR than on the CNR," he thundered.

"I'll say to the contrary," said Mr. Fisher.

"So do I," said Mr. Benidickson.

The CNR officials gathered around Mr. Gordon seemed to wait for the boss to explode, but he held himself.

• • •

There's no other committee like this, with a witness ready and willing to give battle in parliamentarians. Mr. Gordon, in full career, will make MPs who can't bite in committee delicate pieces of information appear to be the pals of the CPR wanting to harm the Government railway.

"I will not be driven into giving answers," he growls.

"I submit that is an unfair question."

"Your questions are hostile to the CNR."

The last straw could have been a question from a friendly questioner, Dr. Ross Robinson, Conservative, Bruce:

"Does Mr. Gordon think Canada can be served by one railway instead of two?"

There was a solemn pause. Hon. W. Earl Rowe, the committee chairman, picked up his gavel.

Mr. Gordon chose to be unemotional. He answered, thought, he said, that a merger of the two railways would be to the advantage of Canada. The CNR had done a great deal to improve service generally and Canada had a better kind of railway service than if it were in the hands of one monopoly.

Then he beamed. To" them that hath more had been given!

Pocketbook Censorship

New York Times

No form of censorship is more insidious or more destructive than that based on economic pressures. Any deliberate attempt to influence the flow of information by giving or withholding the financial support, or once the public thinks they are succeeding, confidence in the integrity of news and editorial comment is bound to suffer.

The necessity for restating this elementary tenet of a free and responsible press arises from the recent disclosure by which the American Broadcasting Company is being subjected because of its policies of Alger Hiss on the network's much - controverted "political obituary" of Richard M. Nixon. A soft drink manufacturer has just announced that his company, as a means of "expanding" the network, has cancelled plans to advertise on A.B.C. stations. Five other companies, similarly motivated, previously sought to cancel their advertising with A.B.C.

James C. Hagerty, A.B.C.'s vice-president in charge of news, is right in declaring that such pressure represents an intolerable assault on freedom of the press. Even the suspicion that suppression can be exercised through the pocketbook undermines the ability of any medium of communication to fulfill its function of public enlightenment.

An extra staff of 34 high school boys, and students from Queen's University home on leave for the holidays, will augment the regular postal staff to handle the huge volume of Christmas mails now beginning to come in at the local post office, it was stated by the Post Master this morning. "I do not know just what we would do if we could not get these lads," he stated. The Christmas rush has already started, it was intimated, with lineups at stamp wickets being evident during most of the day.

"Scarcity of special Christmas merchandise is beginning to be felt in the city. Early shoppers who took advantage of previous warnings, have benefited by their foresight, while stocks of lines have already been sold out. It is a question as to what will reach if not better a record in business and counter sales."

The committee for the religious survey of the city have met to finish summarizing the work of the canvas for church affiliation. As a whole, the canvass was quite thorough although there were instances where information was not secured due to people being away and for other similar reasons. This effort was unique in the history of Belleville, with all denominations working together and the goodwill and harmony manifested thorough-out could not possibly have been better.

Strictly Personal

Whipping Boys Is Not a So Called Sport

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A game should mean itself, and nothing else. It should not be an excuse for social contacts, on the one hand, or a substitute for life activity, on the other.

Yet it is my impression that the great majority of people who play games, of whatever type, do treat them as an end in itself — do not, in the truly respect it, and therefore cannot get the maximum enjoyment out of it.

I was thinking of this while playing in a spirited tournament a few weeks ago. My opinion is most "serious" bridge is that they are merely an excuse for conversation and drinks, for chatter and escapes and "paying back" the Joneses.

But my objection to serious bridge extends to even more severe: these players are using the game as an outlet for their failures, their frustrations, their personal lacks and resentments. It is a substitute — almost, one might say, a narcotic — for the pleasures one should be receiving from reality.

This is not true of all tournament players, of course; but a distressingly high percentage of them do treat the game as a weapon, and not as a recreation of a high, subtle and stimulating order.

Few people, in any social endeavor, are able to treat it as an object, deserving its own degree of respect and attention, without making it something else, and using the game in fact actually is. The social bridge players demean the game, by giving it no reverence, while the tournament players pervert the game by giving it a relevance totally beyond its worth.

A game, to be worth while, must be an end in itself; in this sense, it shares a characteristic with the arts. And what is offensive about so many tournament bridge players is that (quite unconsciously, no doubt) they are transferring to the table their own personal dissatisfactions and disenchantments, their petty hostilities and angers and envies.

Perhaps the same is true of all the little worlds within the big world — the horse world and the dog world and the golf world — but in a directly competitive activity such as bridge, one can see more clearly the murky motivations behind the audacious and the ruthlessness.

People who play bridge without taking it seriously are insulting a pleasurable pastime; but an even greater sin against the game is to use it as camouflage for one's own retaliatory slaps against the world. A game that begins to mean something else, and more than itself is slowly but surely a corruptor of character.

Moderation Best Advice To Consumers of Alcohol

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How long does it take for alcohol to leave the system?

Who is more likely to become an alcoholic, the heavy drinker who loves the quality of whisky, or the one who drinks to acquire the feeling derived from it? — T.H.H.

Alcohol's rate of elimination depends both on the amount consumed and the rate at which it is drunk.

Eight ounces of whisky, imbibed in a short time, may show measurable levels of alcohol in the blood for 12, 24 or even more hours.

The same amount consumed over a longer period may be eliminated quickly.

Alcohol is absorbed rapidly from the stomach, but after that it may remain for varying periods in other parts of the body, including the blood.

If we knew how to hasten the elimination, we could treat acute alcoholism much better. Lacking such a method, moderation is the best advice for drinkers. In fact, moderation is the best rule for health.

Your question has no categorical answer. There are too many other factors involved: the frequency of drinking, the drinker's psychological makeup, his or her tolerance of alcohol, or the reasons for drinking.

In my experience there are precious few people who truly enjoy the taste of whisky, but the heavy drinker, whether he has a taste for it or not, responds to its intoxicating effect, is a candidate for becoming an alcoholic. I repeat: moderation is the best rule; total abstinence is the only answer for some people.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a posterior myocardial infarction? It seems to be a clot, but in what part of the body? — Mrs. E.H.

No, not a clot, but the results of a clot or some other comparable interruption of circulation.

The infarction (or infarct) is a portion of an organ that has been damaged by having the blood supply shut off.

The word myocardial given the location of the infarction (from myo for muscle and cardio for heart). Posterior means it is in the rear part of the muscle.

In short, a heart attack has occurred. This particular type is the commonest, and it also means the damage is in the rear.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is too much coffee harmful? My brother sometimes drinks seven or eight cups. What amount would you consider safe? — A.C.

It's impossible to suggest any set amount because people vary considerably in their reaction to coffee, or the caffein in it. If your brother is nervous, jittery, has a fast heart rate or forces beating of the organ, or if his blood pressure is elevated, then I'd say by all means cut down on coffee. But if he feels all right, has none of these symptoms and sleeps well, then let him alone.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would it be advisable for a woman of 48, in the skip-and-flood stage of menstruation, to be a blood donor? — D.M.

There's no reason why not, unless the "flooding" is causing acute anemia. But this condition would be checked before the blood is drawn anyway.

Adolf Hitler became commander-in-chief of the German army after sacking Field Marshal Von Brauchitsch 21 years ago today—in 1941. Hitler's decision after Nazi forces suffered setbacks in the Caucasus and the failure of the assault on Moscow had denied his promise of "gigantic destruction" that would smash the Soviets. His decision was also planned to give morale boost to the German people on the entry of the United State into the Second World War.

1949 — Canada, Britain and the United States agreed on standardization on military arms and fighting methods.

1793 — Napoleon's forces, recaptured the port of Toulon.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We have been groping around for years for a nice, polite word to describe the newcomers to our country. At first, soon after the war, when the pioneers of the tide of immigration began to be noticed, they called them, quite cheerfully, DP's, for displaced persons. This, we thought, was kinder than the old-fashioned word we used in former generations, which was just plain foreigner. We seemed to us to reflect the sympathy we felt for European victims of the war.

In the course of a year or two, by which time it became apparent that very large blocks of newcomers were to take up residence in Canada, DP lost its sympathetic tint, and the term New Canadian came into vogue. It re-expressed the friendly feeling, still reserved.

Presently, that term lost its sympathetic intimation, and finally we came up with the group of people, actually to be a good repute in American dictionaries. "Sociology: a group of people, racially or historically related, having a common and distinctive culture, as an Italian or Chinese colony in a large American city."

We larger groups are not ethnic. We're, scrambled.

Mrs. M. F. L. Jones, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, smiles happily at cheques totalling over $4,500 presented yesterday at Christmas tea from three Auxiliary committees. The cheques included $2,400 from the Opportunity Shop; $800 from the Coffee Shop, and $2,341.26 from the Fashion Show. Standing are: Mrs. W. Shand, Mrs. J. B. Casey, Mrs. H. H. Murray, Mrs. Lennox Smith and Mrs. William C. Tatham. The money will be used to assist in the purchase of a new $14,000 linen folder for the hospital.

Blind, Amputee Cripples Ride Free on Buses

Blind persons and amputee cripples yesterday received city blessing in the form of free transportation on the city-owned bus system.

Council approved the measure yesterday when it passed finance and executive committee recommendation authorizing the free passes.

Today Mr. Schwab, chairman of the city transit commission, said the free passes will be nothing new as they had been carried over from the days when the buses were operated by the Bawson Bus Lines.

"But we had no authority to hand out city money in the form of free passes, so what was done by council was merely make it legal," he said.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market continued its uncertain performances during light morning trading today.

All sections showed minus signs on index, with base metals dropping more than a point.

Losses of ¼ went to Imperial Oil, Massey-Ferguson, Canadian Breweries, Bell Telephone, Abitibi and Bank of Montreal.

Distillers Seagrams, Atlas Steel, Aluminum, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Algoma Steel all advanced in a ¼ to ½ range.

On index, industrials dipped .21 to 565.09, golds .21 to 165.09, western oils .03 to 114.40 and base metals 1.33 to 165.55. The 11 a.m. volume was 454,000 shares compared with 627,000 at the same time Tuesday.

GUNNAR FALLS

Among base metals, Gunnar Mining fell ¼ to 10¼. Falconbridge dropped ½, International Nickel ¼ and Noranda ¼. Denison and Hudson Bay Mining both gained ¼.

In a quiet western oils section, Pacific Petroleum added ¼ and Home B slipped ¼.

Tuesday, the market sagged through listless trading, finally closing on the downside.

Industrials weakened at the opening, climbed ahead shortly after noon, then dropped in the final hour. Western oils moved slowly and steadily lower, while golds remained ahead.

In the metals list, Algoma Steel declined ⅛, Moore Corporation ⅛ and Imperial Oil ¼. Abitibi, Aluminium, CPR, Interprovincial Pipe Line and Consolidated Paper all slipped in a ⅛ to ¼ range.

Banks provided a firmer undertone as Montreal and Nova Scotia both gained ⅛, Toronto-Dominion rose ⅛ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce advanced ⅛.

Among base metals, International Nickel fell a point, Hudson Bay Mining 1⅛ and Falconbridge ⅛. Gunnar Mining slipped ¼ to 10¾. Noranda retained its downward pressure, climbing to a 1962 high of 31¼ before easing to 31¼, ahead ⅛.

W.H. Aux. Closes Successful Year, Elects New 1963 Officers

On Tuesday afternoon the Christmas meeting brought to a close another busy and successful year for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Prior to the business meeting, the members gathered in Education Hall for a delightful choice of delectable deserts. The table, bright and attractive with a Christmas centerpiece of poinsettias and white candles, was in charge of Mrs. S. Kvarda who was responsible for organizing this delightful dessert party. The tea table with its centerpiece of white and tinted mums was presided over by Mrs. J. H. Forrester and Mrs. F. Finkle.

CHEQUES PRESENTED

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. M. F. L. Jones. Reports on their work were given by the various convenors. On behalf of the 'Op Shop' Mrs. J. Casey, the convenor presented Mrs. M. F. L. Jones with a cheque for $2,400. Mrs. H. H. Murray, convenor of the Coffee Shop, presented the president with a cheque for $800. These cheques represent the proceeds from the 'Op Shop' and the 'Coffee Shop' for the last two months.

Miss N. Merry displayed samples of delightful favors and prettily-wrapped gifts she and her assistants have prepared for the hospital patients on Christmas Day.

Several girls' groups from various churches in the city made the most attractive tray favors and tree decorations.

The president reminded the members about the annual luncheon meeting to be held on January 16. Mrs. J. Lennox Smith is in charge of the luncheon arrangements. Tickets may be obtained from her. As there are a limited number of tickets for sale, it was suggested that they be purchased well in advance of the date of the annual meeting.

Christmas greetings were extended to the auxiliary by the hospital administrator, Mr. W. Darcfisel, on behalf of himself and the hospital staff. Mrs. R. Smith, Director of Nurses, also expressed her good wishes for the holiday season.

Mrs. M. F. T. Jones, the retiring president, thanked the executive and the auxiliary members for all their help and constant assistance during her term of office.

On behalf of all members, Mrs. R. Burley expressed her appreciation to Mrs. Jones for her many hours of work and for all she had accomplished as president.

Mrs. F. Finkle, a former president of the auxiliary, took charge of the meeting while the nominating committee under Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, brought in their report which was duly passed.

1963 OFFICERS

The officers for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary for 1963 will be as follows: past president, Mrs. M. F. L. Jones; president, Mrs. F. A. Beeby; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. B. Casey; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. Brown; recording secretary, Mrs. N. C. Macfie; treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Nelles; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. G. Harvey.

Mrs. F. A. Beeby, as the new president, expressed her thanks to all.

The meeting adjourned with Christmas greetings.

Representatives Are Named To H.S. Board

Mr. Gerald Wishart and Mr. Gordon Lee have been appointed as city representatives on the Bay of Quinte District High School Board. The two appointments were made yesterday at the final 1962 meeting of city council.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia will supply the United Arab Republic with 1,250,000 tons of oil in 1963 under a contract signed in Cairo today, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Contract for New Overhead Railway Bridge on North Front Street Is Awarded

The Looby Construction Company Ltd. of Dublin in Western Ontario, will build the new overhead railway bridge on North Front Street.

City council yesterday accepted the Looby tender, subject to the approval of the Ontario Highway Department, the Board of Transport Commissioners and the Ontario Municipal Board. The amount of the tender was $170,745.85 and was the lowest of six bids received.

Prices for all tenders received were closely bunched and ranged from the low figure submitted by Looby Construction to a high of $202,408.20.

The proposed new bridge will be a four-lane structure over the CNR double tracks on North Front Street and will include new approaches.

Several residential structures will have to be razed to make way for the bridge approaches and council yesterday approved of tenders for the demolition.

Mr. Percy Hodge was awarded the demolition contract at $350.

Although council earlier in the year hoped that a start could be made on construction of the new bridge this year, there was no mention in council last night of when the contractor might be able to commence.

Council Will Not Oppose Water Service

Belleville city council will not oppose the installation of water service to the Robson party in the township of Sidney just outside the western city limits.

Extension of water service to the Robson property has been in and out of council several times in recent weeks and finally was tabled to allow the city to secure independent legal opinion.

In view of the legal opinion received council yesterday voted to advise the public utilities commission that it had no objection to the water service extension.

Plans called for the construction of a large department store on the Robson property — providing city water could be obtained.

Two Service Stations Entered

Burglars hit two Belleville service stations during the night — with little profit.

At Duffy's garage on Front Street, a back window was broken and the thieves made off with a small quantity of pennies from two containers used by local charities.

At Weller's service station at Harriet and North Front Street, glass was smashed in a front door and a cash register overturned. However, say police, no money was missing.

infant Jesus to the church in a procession.

Legends surround the 12 days from Christmas to the Epiphany Jan. 6 Some are expressed in carols sung at home and not heard in church or on the radio.

Farmers still study the weather closely during the season, for each of the 12 days represents a month in the forth coming year. A clear Jan. 2 may be taken as an omen of a fine August, the big harvest month.

The season draws communities together as well as families—there are few lonely old-age pensioners, at least in rural Quebec, during Christmas.

Les Guignoleurs, men dressed as Santa Claus, go through the streets of each parish ringing a bell and singing a little song. In this way, money is raised for the poor.

with fewer than 20 government members in the House. Most of the 24 Liberals and all five NDP members were present.

"Since the government members are not interested," he said, "why don't we pack up and adjourn for the night?"

Speaker William Murdoch first ruled the motion out of order, then decided to order a standing vote. The sessional bell was rung and enough of the 66 government members filed back to the chamber to defeat the motion.

In his maiden speech to the House, Murray Gaunt (L—Huron-Bruce) proposed a full-scale survey of Ontario's farm areas to determine how they might attract industry.

At 27 the youngest member of the House, Mr. Gaunt said the survey should include supply, hydro, soil, transport, housing, market potential and other factors industry would want to know about before establishing in an area.

RISES TO BATTLE

The sitting was enlivened when Gordon Lavergne (PC—Russell) rose to contribute to the throne speech debate. He was barely under way before he became involved in a running verbal battle with opposition members.

The throne speech, Mr. Lavergne said; was "typical of the speeches that come from this government."

"You don't like elections, do you?" interjected Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury). He might have been referring to Mr. Lavergne's recent unsuccessful bid for election as mayor of the Ottawa suburb of Eastview, but, if he was, it wasn't taken that way.

"Whenever an election is called and the smoke clears they (the opposition) will find that the prime minister has pinned their hides to the wall," Mr. Lavergne said.

HITS AT SOPHA

Turning on Mr. Sopha, Mr. Lavergne quoted the Sudbury lawyer as saying he had "defended safecrackers more honest than the heads of corporations . . ."

"Is there something wrong with your ears?" asked Mr. Sopha.

"My ears are more open than your mouth, my friend."

"I'm not your friend . . . I'm mad at you," said Mr. Sopha.

Earlier, the legislature's education committee approved a bill providing for creation of a system of regional library cooperatives in districts of 100,000 population. Each co - op would serve at least three communities with populations of 13,000 and at least three counties.

third quarter, compared with a $138,000,000 surplus a year earlier.

However, the deficit of "in-visible" non-merchandise transactions was cut to $119,000,000 from $200,000,000 in the third quarter of last year due mainly to a sharp rise in tourist earnings.

For the first nine months of this year there was a total current account deficit of $797,000,000, which was $81,000,000 higher than a year earlier.

There was an $8,000,000 surplus on merchandise trade for the nine months, compared with a $113,000,000 surplus a year earlier, as imports increased at a faster rate than exports.

The deficit on payments of interest and dividends to foreign investors increased by $10,000,000 to $429,000,000, accounting for more than half of the deficit on invisible transactions. And the deficit on freight and shipping costs rose by $94,000,000 to $76,000,000.

The inflow of $247,000,000 in long-term capital included $125,000,000 for direct investment in foreign-controlled businesses.

On top of this there was a huge $500,000,000 inflow of short-term capital.

The report said that about $250,000,000 in Canadian short-term capital was moved out of Canada during "the crisis of confidence" in the second quarter and then was returned to Canada during the third quarter.

Dealing with merchandise trade, the report said that less than half of the gains in both exports and imports in the first nine months of this year were due to higher prices caused by the reduced foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar.

Merchandise exports in the nine months were nearly nine per cent higher than a year earlier, at $4,270,000,000, while imports were 11¼ per cent higher at $4,636,000,000.

Dollar devaluation, combined with last June's restrictions in the allowance for duty-free purchases by Canadians in other countries, were credited for the improvement in Canada's balance of tourist expenditures.

All of the improvement was in the tourist balance with the United States. In the nine months, earnings from U.S. tourists rose by $61,000,000 to tourist expenditures in the U.S. dropped by $19,000,000 to $353,000,000, in the same period. Canadian tourist expenditures abroad rose by $31,000,000 to $176,000,000.

New Satellite Will Guide Ships, Missiles

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP)—Transit 5-A, the guiding star satellite which rocketed skyward with a brilliance visible for hundreds of miles, gave out a steady signal from its polar orbit today.

The signal will help ships and submarines more accurately determine their positions.

The 140-pound satellite was the first of two space vehicles launched from here within hours. A space probe was launched Tuesday night.

The air force did not reveal the payload of the second or the nature of its mission.

Transit 5-A is the first of a four-satellite network which by the end of 1963 should enable ships anywhere in the world to fix their positions quickly, in any kind of weather.

Such information is particularly vital to Polaris-laun-hing submarines which must know their positions precisely before firing missiles.

EIGHTEEN DIE

SAIGON Viet Nam (AP)' — Two loaded passenger buses collided 30 miles east of Saigon Tuesday, killing 18 persons and badly injuring 12 others.

by which this man can get out of the hole," Mr. Winch said.

Cochrane at first was suspected as the slayer of the guard, the MP said. Now the authorities have given up that idea, but still think he knows something about the killing because he was in the prison dormitory when it happened, he said.

Mr. Winch said he was grateful to the editor of the Kingston newspaper who took an interest in the case and sent a lawyer to see the man. The MP did not mention names, but added that he talked with the lawyer and the man's brother.

He said the prisoner is kept in a small cell and is allowed out only for a short time each day to exercise—which he must do alone. He had a "front-row seat" to the corporal punishment room where other prisoners are paddled.

Mr. Winch said the case was the concern of every member of Parliament.

He said he was raising the issue in the Commons because he has tried to handle the matter through Justice Minister Fleming but found that "that course is useless."

Earlier Tuesday, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas again complained vigorously about what he said are RCMP investigations into the political activities of university students and faculty members.

Mr. Fleming said last Friday that the only such RCMP checks are on the security risk of government job applicants. He said he had given no instructions on interrogations, and said "no special security investigations are being conducted on university campuses."

The minister was playing with words, Mr. Douglas charged.

He said he has evidence that students and their parents have been interrogated not because the students were seeking jobs, but "because those students took part in a ban-the-bomb demonstration."

Mr. Douglas said no MP will ever object to law enforcement or punishment of those who by overt action seek to overthrow democratic government by the use of force.

"However, if we persecute innocent people on the basis of secret reports which they have never seen, on the basis of gossip, on the basis of evidence from stool pigeons, we violate the basic tenets of justice and of the Bill of Rights."

hospital.

When Judge Insurralde offered to parley, the prisoners told him over a loudspeaker that 13 guards already had been killed. They said they would surrender directly to him if the police did not interfere.

The prisoners later hung a guard by a rope from a fourth-storey window and stabbed him. Then they cut the rope, dropping him to the ground.

A truce was arranged with Justice Minister Rodriguez Galan and the prisoners released 20 guards they were holding as hostages.

Unconfirmed reports indicated that at least four of the ringleaders of the mutiny were killed, but that a notorious gangster, Jorge Villarino, who apparently opposed the killing of hostages, was spared.

CELEBRATES 105TH

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Ethel Byrd, described by her physician as remarkable, celebrates her 105th birthday today —less than five years after she underwent major surgery for a fractured hip. Dr. Robert W. Woolridge said her blood pressure was 115 over 75 — which would be good for a person less than half her age.

"AT HOME"

Mr. and Mrs. William Steenburg, 1 Lorne Ave., in Trenton will entertain at an 'at home' in honor of Mrs. Steenburg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman French, who will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, Dec. 23; 2.30 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

On Thursday night, the Women of the Moose held their regular meeting of the month with Sr. Rgt. Nora Kaiser presiding. Before the meeting opened, a christmas party was held for the members and their husbands, also the L.O.O.M. No. 1004 and their wives.

Around 100 guests sat down to a turkey dinner served by candlelight. After the dinner, Santa Claus came and distributed gifts to all present, assisted by Nellie Shandraw, and Nellie Scrimgeour.

The meeting was opened by the Chaplain. After the ritual service was completed, the guides escorted Governor Fred Reed to the altar, who expressed his thanks for the lovely dinner and commended the chapter and Lodge on the excellent turnout especially on such a cold night.

Secretary Jay Rollins also expressed his thanks for the dinner and thanked the Chapter for inviting the Loyal Order of Moose to it. Past Governor, Wes Prindle, also spoke briefly and wished the Lodge a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Yea'.

After the meeting closed dancing was held.

On Saturday night the men and women of the Moose Lodge and chapter held a joint Christmas tree with a large attendance. Entertainment consisted of carols, ballet and tap dancing, enjoyed by all.

After the entertainment, Santa Claus made his appearance to the delight of the small children. Each child received a gift and candy, nuts, oranges and candy canes a gift was then presented to Santa Claus by the chapter, after which he departed for the North Pole amid a jingle of bells and cries of good bys Santa Claus, from the children.

Sandwiches and drinks were served to the children and tea for the adults. Santa Claus was assisted by Gladys Rich, Nellie Shandraw and Nellie Scrimgeour.

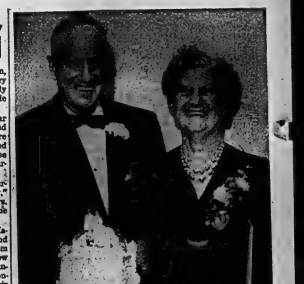
Small Talk

By Zena Cherry

Next Tuesday morning, seven-at million Canadian men will receive, for better or worse, at least one new Christmas tie. And lest you think ties are an old tale, they are a fairly recent development in the history of male clothing.

Until the mid-fifteenth century, a man's costume was a robe or tunic - - in some periods draped with distinction. Then, as various European courts became cosy with one another, clothes evolved from mere coverings into adornments.

The Renaissance dandy wore lace and velvet and with the ground swell of progress collars grew until they were the size of tires, starched and gathered - - and voila, the ruff. In 1666 came wigs and the great clouds of false hair resting on the shoulders made the collar unnecessary. It was replaced by a lace jabot and then a strip of white linen tied in a bow at the throat, into a cravat.



One hundred years later, men began to tie a black velvet ribbon around the cravat and the cravat changed its name to stock. It wasn't until 1830 that stocks became colored, spotted or striped. The frilled shirt went out as Victorianism came in. Stiff white shirts with stiff wing collars were worn and large bow ties superceded the stock amout 1870.

In the 1920's the double turned down collar was introduced in the United States and met with an onslaught of "bad taste" criticism. But after the sheer merit it survived all sneers and blazed the trail for the soft collar of today and yesday. Along with this revolt, the long tie put in its appearance in most total darkness - - it was worn only with dinner jacket and dress clothes.

Today a man's tie is about the only way he can show individuality in this phase of their life - - and why they don't like ties as gifts.

For advice on how to please a man with a tie, let's listen to Herbert B. Wood, editor of Men's Wear Magazine. Says he, "Buy a tie on the premise that a guy knows what it costs. A 99c tie always looks like a 99c tie and a man would rather have one good tie than four cheap ones. Pay at least $2.50 - - and for someone special, maybe $5.00 to $7.50. For, as you'll get a name te - - Dior or Schiaparelli - - these are made in Canada under licence and the pattern won't go off on an angle nor will there be small breaks in the fabric. Stick to medium or dark tones and you'll be safe. If any sales clerk tries to pass off a gaudy tie on you, no matter how tired your feet are, stamp them gently and say "No!"

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bailey, Canniton, 50 Years Wed

After a busy life on the farm, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey of Canniton are expectantly looking forward to an enjoyable retirement.

Now in their second year "away" from the farm, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey on Tuesday were at home to their friends and relatives as they celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage.

"We hope to enjoy ourselves for a few years now," stated the bride of 50 years. "We've worked hard on the farm all of our lives."

The couple farmed in Madoc township, in Hungerford and in the Roslin area from they retired a year ago. Now they live in a tidy white bungalow which they had constructed in readiness for their retirement.

Both natives of Madoc township, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were married by Methodist minister G. E. Ross, on December 18th, at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Bailey is the former Mabel Holmes of Remington in the Madoc area.

BRIEF HONEYMOON

They had a brief honeymoon at Foxboro and Belleville, where they travelled from Madoc by horse and buggy.

"We had to get back, there was work to do at the farm," commented Mr. Bailey.

During the next 49 years the couple enjoyed only one extended holiday. That was a six weeks' trip to the Canadian west and to Vancouver taken eight years ago. Mrs. Bailey is 72, while Mr. Bailey is 70. Both enjoy good health.

The couple have two sons, Carman and Gerald, both of Roslin, who left the farm to become carpenters, and a daughter, Mrs. Reginald Bell of Foxboro. There are nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

While appreciating the labor saving qualities of modern farm machinery, Mr. Bailey, nevertheless, is one of the old school and feels that farmers of 40 years ago were financially better off than those of today.

MACHINERY TAKES PROFIT

He claims that most of the profits of today's farmers are taken up with the cost of expensive farm machinery.

He owns a tractor for 10 years prior to his retirement, but his heart was still with his percheron horses. And he has a number of silver cups won in the fall fair circuit to prove he drove quality horses.

He never owned a milker, preferring to milk by hand, and while he admits the modern combine may get the harvesting done quicker, he still feels the best quality grain is obtained with the old-time grain binder and threshing separator.

But left alone on the farm to be found he was unable to keep up with the work and decided it was time to quit.

Although now officially retired, Mr. Bailey still "keeps his hand in" by helping out a Canniton farmer during the busy season.

In fact, neither like to be idle as is indicated by the fact that last autumn both worked at a district canning factory.

The couple attend Calvary Temple at Belleville.

Anniversary congratulations were received from Prime Minister John F. Diefenbaker, Ontario Premier Robarts and Provincial Secretary John Yaremko.

White Cane Club Enjoys Yule Party

Once again the ladies of the Kiwanis Auxiliary under the direction of Mrs. Reta Coleman played host to the members of the White Cane Club last Friday night.

The table was adorned with a gaily decorated Christmas tree with a large number of gifts surrounding it. Each member was given a box of chocolates from the Auxiliary. The Club also exchanged gifts among themselves.

During the evening soft drinks were served and later the ladies prepared a delightful Christmas lunch which included ice cream and both of these items were donated by local firms.

Ken Chantler expressed thanks to the ladies on behalf of the Club, not only for the Christmas party but also for their kindnesses every month of the year. President Pat Bavcrstock expressed thanks to the Ladies Auxiliary for the chocolates and also to the Lions Club for transportation it provided.

Entertainment was supplied by Marilee and Blake Jones who sang many Christmas carols and songs including "The Road to Bethlehem", "God Bless You", "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas". The mother of the children Mrs. Lyle Jones was the piano accompanist.

Helen Wardaugh thanked the entertainers for their generous contribution to the party.

Two Christmas contests were conducted, "Nuts to Crack" which was won by Clarence Morris and Vi Waite and "The scramble Words" won by Clarence and Sarah O'Shea. An orange relay between the ladies and the men was won by the ladies and all were presented with a candy cane.

Maude Rollins read greetings from the Kinette Club: also a timely message from the Christmas commentary of the C.C.B.

The party closed with Reta Coleman expressing greetings and blessings to all from the Kiwanis Auxiliary.

Mr. Phil Burton played quiet music during the lunch hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Gerow Happily Wed 50 Years

Well-known and highly esteemed residents of this city for the past twenty years, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gerow celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday.

Their immediate family and a large circle of friends from the city and district honored Mr. and Mrs. Gerow at their "Open House" held in their well-appointed home at 174 James Street.

Gifts and cards of felicitation flanking a "golden wedding" cake were a half-century of happy marital life.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerow have resided in the Bay of Quinte district practically all their lives with the exception of a brief two years' stay in Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Walter Gerow was born in Belleville, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gerow. Mrs. Gerow, a native of Prince Edward county first saw the light of day in Rossmore, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stillman Root.

They were married December 15th, 1912 at the Holloway Street Church parsonage by the Rev. A. Sanderson.

Five daughters and a son were born to the union. Walter Jr., followed the footsteps of an illustrious sports-minded father and like his dad became one of the better sportsmen of the Bay of Quinte District.

The daughters are Mrs. Margaret Brennan, wife of the late Hughie Brennan, well-known Napanee baseball star; Mrs. Laverne (Jean) Smart; Mrs. Claire (Fern) Williamson, all of Napanee; Mrs. Dick (Lela) Boure of Belleville and Mrs. Willie (Joan) Menard of Toronto.

Walter and Maud Gerow are blessed with 15 grandchildren.

Finishing his education, Walt Gerow learned his trade of boat-maker. He became expert and was associated with the Forward Cigar Company here where he worked for years.

FORCED TO CLOSE

Strangely enough the closing of hotel bars in the city and district resulted in the demise of the cigar-making industry here. Two city factories were forced to close down.

During the war years Walter worked in a munitions factory, later joining the Grand Trunk railway where he worked for several years in the roundhouse.

Later he moved to Napanee, where he was associated with the Gibbard Furniture Company for some eight years. Leaving Napanee he spent two years in Kirkland Lake.

"We did not like the north country," Walter said, "and we were very happy when in 1941 I received an offer to come to Belleville to manage the Hume Arena under the late Sanford Burrows."

Mr. Gerow remained in that capacity until 1961 when he was honorably relired.

Walter Gerow's name was a household word in Bay of Quinte baseball circles for several years. He was a player, coach and manager but an accident early in life ended active participation in the sport.

Highlights of a highly successful baseball career were playing with the Belleville Grand Trunks in 1919 when they won an Ontario title and piloting the 1928 Nationals to the city's second provincial crown.

His success followed him to Napanee where he won the intermediate championships with several clubs. In Picton and other district baseball centres he was known as "Mr. Baseball."

Mrs. Gerow was and is an ardent sports fan and in the earlier days often accompanied her husband on "baseball trips." She has been a wonderful helpmeet to her sportsman husband, and a loving mother to a highly appreciative family.

Christmas Concerts

POINT ANNE ST. JOHN'S

POINT ANNE—On December 11, St. John's Sunday school presented a Christmas concert in the public school auditorium. The theme was western and was thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Cavalier acted as master of ceremonies and welcomed the guests and introduced the numbers.

Jackie Cummings, played "Jingle Bells" on the accordion, and John Laithman gave a piano solo, "Stepping Stones."

Mr. Cavalier introduced the first act of a play entitled, "The Life of the Christmas Party." The girls in the play were dressed in 19th century gowns and the boys were in western garb. Cast members were:

Gladys Patsy Hart; Mrs. Cawood, Judy Cummings; Miss Jane, Nancy Cummings; James, David Akey; Hattie, Nancy Fraser; Dorcas, David Akey; Abby, Percy Ellis; Mr. Cawood, Allen Cockden; Lillian, Peggy Hull; slippery Dan, Bill Smith; sheriff Larry Fraser, and deputy, Phillip Fournier.

Between the first and second acts Pamela Akey gave a monologue entitled "What is Christmas?" and Jane Rosebush and Jill Smith acted as her children.

Between the second and third acts Margaret Green contributed a tap dance number. Bonnie Hart played a piano solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

After the play the audience joined in carol singing, with Mrs. James Horwood at the piano.

The curtains opened on the complete Sunday school cast on the stage around a western style camp fire singing "Home on the Range." Those with speaking lines were: Phillip Fournier, Hunter Fournier, Rosalie Stevenson, Debbie Ellis, Cheryl Givins, Nancy Branigan, Doug Green, Patricia Akey and Betty Hart.

Bonny Green favored with a step dance; Dale Akey recited "The First Christmas Stocking," and Carolyn Chisholm sang "Christmas" with Penny Hart at the piano.

The junior class of Duane Akey, Bobby Gifford, Teddy Hart, Tommy Givins, Karen Rosebush, Mark Smith, Susanne Horwood, Nancy Givins and Alan Horwood came on the stage, each carrying a letter spelling the word of the song, "Christmas".

The stage was vacated to the tune of "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," and David Akey as a lone cowboy in an outdoor setting recited, "The Cowboys Christmas Prayer".

THE NATIVITY SCENE

The Nativity scene was depicted as an Indian teepee with the cast in full Indian regalia. Cathy Smith, as an Indian princess, recited the "Huron Christmas Carol." Debbie Brasland was the Indian mother. Allan Colden the Indian father, and the babe in a wooden fur covered crib.

The hunters were Perry Giles and George Smith. Indian chiefs were: Perry Ellis, David Luft and Bill Joby.

The chiefs regalias were obtained through the courtesy of the Chief of the Tyendinaga Band.

The entire choir sang the "Huron Carol" and "Silent Night".

Mr. Cavalier closed the concert with a vote of thanks to those who participated in any way and the jolly old Elf, Mr. Santa Claus, was ushered in with his wee helper Miss Brenda Colden, and they distributed gifts and bags of candy to all the children.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Johanna E. — He keeps threatening to have me put away.

Sidney E. — I can't cover up for her much longer.

Johanna E. — I am in mortal fear of my husband. After a mental breakdown, during which I was in an institution, I was released in his care. He keeps in touch with the social worker. The trouble is the doctor and social worker listen to him, not me. Abi he keeps threatening to send me back whenever I don't jump to his commands.

I don't know where to turn. When I went to see a lawyer about a divorce, Sidney found out and beat me. Others don't think I'm crazy. Some women from the church took me along on a picnic. They liked me enough to have me bake a cake and serve at a barbecue the next week. But my husband keeps saying he'll call the doctor whenever I ask for a little fun. As for clothes and furniture, it's always no to that too. And I don't dare insist.

Sidney E. — If it hadn't been for me, Johanna would still be in the state hospital. They released her on probation and I'm supposed to keep a close watch on her.

But there's a devil in her. She runs away from me, like when I found her talking to a lawyer. I told her not to go to that picnic. I knew it would upset her. She's been carrying on and complaining ever since. Just because those women didn't notice she was crazy she thinks she's all right. She even thinks somebody would be foolish enough to give her a job so she'd have some money.

And what would she do with the money. She'd buy presents for all the neighbors like she did before they took her away. Or she'd doll herself up from vanity, I tell her vanity is a sin and to behave herself. If not, I'll send her back for good.

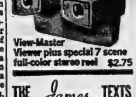
The Council: One wonders what sort of psychiatrists and psychiatric social workers would entrust Johanna to a man like Sidney! Whatever happens to her next must be an improvement over her present lot. For Sidney appears in dire need of treatment himself. Perhaps the best thing he can do for Johanna is to "call the doctor." From the protecting walls of a hospital Johanna may be able to appeal to a new set of ears, to someone who will look even more closely at her husband than at her. One thing is certain: Sidney is not aiding her recovery. He is "re-infecting" her.

It's quite possible that Sidney was able to deceive the doctors into believing that he was a stalwart, loving male. With a husband standing by, ready to welcome a wife back home, a busy staff might easily assume the patient would be in good hands. How wrong they can be! That's why the trend in psychiatric treatment now is to treat the family, not just the individual. When the home is unsuitable, the patient is discharged into a foster home, or a special residence hall, called a "halfway house."



We can appreciate how hard it is for Johanna to get anyone to listen to her side of things. After all, she has a "record." But after reading her long description (condensed above) of her plight, we're convinced she's not crazy. We're also convinced that she must take some action to preserve her health.

Her best bet would be a voluntary return to the hospital which should offer her protection while she contacts a lawyer as to her rights "of person," as against Sidney's rights over her. If possible, she should visit the nearest Legal Aid Society office to end Sidney's persecution of her, as well as his jurisdiction.

Don't despair, Johanna. Try to tell your story to the right ears — those of a doctor, lawyer, clergyman or social worker who will take action "on the merits." Never mind "the record." Life moves forward.

KILLER COMMITTED

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP)—A young chicken farmer who admitted killing his parents, a brother and a sister because "they were bad," was judged mentally incompetent Tuesday and sent to an institution. Gabriel Richard Trifari, 26, suffers from "acute schizophrenic reaction," said Dr. John F. Mohair in a report.

Women's Institutes

ELDORADO W. I.

The Eldorado and Roslin Women's Institute held their Christmas meeting on Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance at the home of Mrs. Cecil Blackburn.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Cecil Blackburn. Mrs. Harold Chambers read the correspondence and business followed. A letter was read from the little boy whom the Institute has adopted. Mrs. Chambers was in charge of the program. Mrs. Beryle Carman gave a reading, on "Abiding Gifts". A Christmas story was read by Mrs. Clayton Blackburn, on "Come and Behold Him". A Carol contest by Mrs. Chambers was much enjoyed. Lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

BABY TEETH LOSS

If a small child loses a baby tooth prematurely he should be taken to the dentist promptly.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

BRUSH UP ON BAD- WEATHER COURTESY

Here's fair warning: we're entering the season of — for some — bad-weather manners. Ice, snow, sleet, rain, storms and pelting rain bring out the monster in the human animal and when men and (women) charge heedlessly to their daily tasks, unmindful of the blinded, sodden, bruised feelings and torn packages they leave behind.

This doesn't mean that everyone should stop at each intersection and consult a handy guidebook on bad-weather etiquette. It would be impossible to read in foul weather, anyway, and, besides, anyone who tried it would probably tie up traffic — and that wouldn't be very mannerly, either.

What's called for when the heavens open up is your own handy mental guide to proper behavior on slippery and slushy streets. Here are a few checkpoints to remember, and the more often they're checked out in bad weather, the more apt they are to become an automatic part of your good nature:

Umbrellas are designed to shield you from the rain and should not be used as a weapon. Be careful where you point the point. Try to anticipate the movements of other people by looking where you're going. An umbrella shared by a tall and low over the head that it blocks vision completely.

Since bad weather cuts down vision, even without the interference of an umbrella, it's wise to observe the rules of the highway and keep to the right of the sidewalk. It's a pretty fair good-weather rule, too. There's less chance of bumping other pedestrians and more chance of reaching your destination sooner.

Don't use an armful of bundles like an offensive lineman on a professional football team. In fact, it's safer to carry no more packages than you have to when trying to keep a firm footing on slippery streets. It's almost a natural human instinct to want a taxi desperately at the very same time everyone else is looking for one. It's also a logistic tragedy that there never are enough cabs to go around when it rains or snows. Be considerate of your fellow taxi-seekers. Don't grab a cab someone else has hailed. If you're waiting in a hotel or store entrance, wait your turn. Another will come along — eventually.

And let's not forget the motorist in the big city, where rain puddles and cozy slush tend to accumulate at street corners. If you're at the wheel, drive your car gently when pedestrians are near. The best thing to do is to imagine yourself in the pedestrian's shoes, wet and dirty from the rain and mud splashed at him by your reckless tires. "So, when it rains or snows, keep in mind this pertinent fact: you don't get any less wet by running through a downpour."

Wife Preservers

Keep a can of yeast handy for use in drinking, as leaven, vegetable or fruit juices, in French, Russian or yogurt-type drinks.

Charm School Operator Says Women Lost Rights

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Now that women have won their freedom, can they still expect men to open doors for them, hold chairs for them and show other signs of respect or have they lost the right to these considerations?

Joy Davies, a Toronto fashion commentator who operates charm schools for both men and women says yes, women have lost this right but if they remain feminine the traditional etiquette relationship will continue.

What is being feminine? "Femininity involves both an attitude and an appearance—an attitude of gentleness and kindness and an appearance of good health, softness, neatness, poise and radiance."

Since women have been working XL143 scales very Dec17rg in the business world, men have lost a great deal of the respect they once had for them and justly so, says Miss Davies.

OVERPLAY ROLE

"Many career women have a hard shell—they are loud, they swear, they overdrink and they surroundings because they think this is all part of their new more aggressive role. And I have seen men deliberately flaunt rudeness at such women."

"It is possible to be aggressive in a feminine, charming way." A gentle voice and manner that persuades rather than demands is one of the tricks.

One of the first things Miss Davies stresses to pupils at her charm school is to relax with life. And to do this, she recommends that they stop being so security-minded.

"Women should stop worrying about what might happen but never does." Also, if they want to be relaxed, they must organize their time well.

She also encourages her clients to develop a sense of humor—not just the ability to laugh at a funny joke or situation but at themselves.

Being well-groomed and looking fashionable does not mean wearing lots of makeup, Miss Davies says. Women in Canada tend to wear a lot of makeup because the thinking in this country is that a woman must stay young. "In France they don't think a woman is interesting until she is 40."

FEMININE DRESS

Woman can wear tailored clothes and still achieve a feminine softness with color and fabric. A woollen tweed suit, for example, can be softened with a chiffon scarf in a stimulating color.

"Too many women play the safe colors—black, gray and brown—instead of experimenting with the more vivid colors. A gray wool dress and hat with black gloves looks very efficient but it does not look too soft."

Women should always use fragrance and Miss Davies even encourages her men clients to use some sort of cologne, because "there is nothing wrong with smelling nice."

By being feminine, a woman does not need to lose her individuality, Miss Davies says. She certainly has a right to and should have opinions and convictions of her own. She should also develop the ability to communicate these."

COMMUNICATION LACK

One of the problems of society today is the lack of communication between men and women, Miss Davies says. After marriage, even more than before, women must study and accumulate knowledge to make themselves interesting and exciting to men.

"Too many women are exhausting themselves with women's groups and so are never at their best during the few hours they have to spend with their husbands each day."

Miss Davies does not leave the responsibility of maintaining a healthy etiquette relationship entirely to women.

"Men too must be kind and gentle and have a pleasing appearance and Miss Davies never hesitates to tell her male clients that they should wash their hair more frequently, visit their dentists more often, or that their hands and fingernails are grubby.

But women should compliment their husbands on their appearance. "The women is the key to the attitude and appearance of both."

CARS Aux. Hears Report, Holds Party

The C.A.R.S. Auxiliary meeting for December was held at the home of Mrs. E Bradshaw with the president, Miss Hilda Collier presiding.

Plans were finalized for the patients annual Christmas party which was held recently.

Patients welfare report was given by Mrs. A. Fewtrell.

Following a short business meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Mrs. C. Campbell.

C.A.R.S. annual Christmas party for the patients was held recently in the parish hall of Christ Church.

A turkey dinner was served by the members of the ladies' auxiliary and there was a large attendance of patients from Belleville, Madoc and Trenton.

Turkeys were donated by the Lions Club Xi Beta Zeta of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority while the Hastings and Prince Edward County Medical Wives Association donated salads.

As each patient entered the hall, he or she was presented with a Christmas corsage. Miss Hilda Collier, president of C.A.R.S. auxiliary, and Mr. T. Freeman, president of the Board of Directors of C.A.R.S. expressed a warm welcome to the patients.

After the dinner, entertainment was supplied by Mr. George Schultz, accordionist. Miss Lorretta McDougall sang accompanied by Mr. Alec Gordon. A sing-song followed led by Miss McDougall.

The Christmas tree was loaned by Mr. D. Rendell for the occasion and a gift was presented to each patient from the auxiliary.

Mrs. A. Fewtrell, in charge of patients' welfare wished them a Merry Christmas and informed them they would receive visits from her in the New Year.

LOBA Holds Installation Ceremony

STIRLING—Stirling L.O.B.A held their installation service and the direction of Sister Crozier, and her installing team from Madoc.

At the close of Lodge the refreshment committee served a salad plate and tarts.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Jethro Palmer was hostess to the White's United Church Women on Thursday afternoon for their Christmas meeting and despite the inclement weather there was a fair attendance with visitors from Wesley and Centenary who met jointly to discuss the missionary and maintenance allocation for the three churches on the Bayside charge.

Mrs. Albert Jones led in the devotional service.

Mrs. A. Jones gave many ideas for old Christmas cards and displayed tags made from them. Mrs. Eric Jones gave a reading, "The Minister's Christmas Gift".

Lunch was served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Rebekahs Hold Annual Yule Party

STIRLING — Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211, Stirling, held its annual Christmas party at the close of their last lodge meeting in December.

Sister Pat Merrill presided over the program and led in the singsong of carols. Sister Muriel Sharp was pianist for the evening. Sister Violet Rose read a most interesting Christmas story. Noble Grand Joyce Richardson conducted a contest on a Christmas menu.

The secretary Sister Irene Pollock read an informative article from the December Yboid which described the dedication of a room at the rehabilitation centre in Kingston in memory of Bro. Newton A. Foster, P.G.M., of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows His widow, Sister Lucilla Foster and his two sons, Messrs. Don Foster of Burlington and Robert Foster of Kingston, assisted in the unveiling ceremony.

The membership was also reminded that on New Year's Day there will be an Odd Fellow-Rebekah float in the tournament of roses parade in Pasadena, California. In the centre will be 5,000 yellow roses and here an Odd Fellow and a Rebekah will sit. They are to be members of the order for at least 50 years and they will be celebrating their 50th anniversary of married life, on or about that date. The sides of the float will be completely covered with carnation petals. The float will also be made up of 100,000 white 'mums and 5,000 white carnations.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs and their assistants will donate approximately 800 hours of free labor and $5,000 in cash.

At the close of the program the lunch conveners served angel cake and fruit jello in the dining room. The tables were centred with Christmas arrangements of greenery and symbols of the Yuletide season.

At the close Sister Florence MacMullen voiced appreciative thanks for program and refreshments and a Merry Christmas to each and everyone.

Turkey Time

by Mary Moore

Temperature Tables Plus Stuffing and Gravy.

Tomorrow in this column will be my suggested Christmas dinner menu for 1962.

Since this is space-consuming, today I will repeat the information you may be hoping for, to guide you when preparing the finest turkey that ever came out of your oven.

Please clip this now and tack it to the inside of the cupboard door so you can glance, at it when stuffing time and roasting time and gravy time arrive.

Star of the dinner show—roast turkey—garnished lavishly with colorful and intriguing food. - Mary Moore | gives you the stuffing and gravy and times and temperature necessary for producing his annual masterpiece.

FLUFFY CELERY STUFFING (for 14-16 lb. bird):

Stuff the day it is to be roasted, not in advance.

Cut one 4-day-old loaf white bread into 1-3 cubes. Crusts need not be removed. Put into large bowl. Melt ½ cup butter or margarine in large frying pan and add ½ cup finely chopped onion and 3 cups very finely diced celery. Cook gently, stirring, until onion is limp but not brown. Cut ½ lb. hard butter or margarine into ¼" cubes and add to the bread cubes. Pour onion-celery mixture over. Sprinkle with—1¼ teaspoons salt, 2½ teaspoons poultry seasoning or rosemary or thyme or Sasil or combination of these herbs, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon MSG (accent). Toss lightly and stuff lightly into prepared bird. Close with skewers. Brush skin of turkey with butter. Do not cover. Do not add water. Do not baste.

TURKEY ROASTING TIME TABLE:

Ready - to - cook Weight, Pounds and Approx. Roasting Time 325 deg. Fahr. Stuffed Bird:	6-10, 3¾ to 4¼ hours; 10-14, 4¼ to 5¼ hours; 14-18, 5¼ to 6½ hours; 18-24, 6½ to 9 hours.

To know when turkey is cooked a meat thermometer is the surest way. It may be inserted in the middle of the stuffing and will register 165 deg. Fahr. when the turkey is cooked or it may be placed in the middle of the thick thigh muscle next to the side of the turkey but not touching the bone and when cooked the temperature reading will be 190 deg. Fahr. If no meat thermometer is available the bird may be tested by moving the drumstick up and down. It should move easily in the hip socket and when the meat on the drumstick is pressed it should feel soft.

Dinner Menu

Broiled Split Cheese-Stuffed Wieners on Buttered Noodles; Shoestring Harvard Beets; Celery Hearts; Mince Pie; Cheese; Coffee.

TURKEY GRAVY:

One cup gravy makes 4 or 5 servings. Makes 3 cups gravy to serve 12. Measure 6 tablespoons pan drippings (fat and brown sediment) into saucepan. Add 6 tablespoons flour and stir over medium heat until smooth and blended. Add 3 cups liquid, stirring. This should be both in which giblets were cooked plus enough boiling water to make it up to 3 cups. Stir until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chopped giblets may be added if desired. If gravy is not a rich brown and does not have a good rich flavor add 1 or 2 chicken bouillon cubes and a little "gravy browner". Leftover gravy may be used for Turkey Pie or Hash.

See Christmas dinner menu tomorrow.

It takes nearly 9,000 pounds of Bulgarian roses to make one pound of rose oil.

Use of Uranium in Alloys Being Studied by Govt. In Order to Aid Industry

TORONTO (CP)—The federal mines and technical surveys department is studying possibilities for uranium in alloys with ferrous and non-ferrous metals, the Ontario legislature was told Tuesday.

Mines Minister Wardrope, replying to charges by Elmer Sopha (C—Sudbury) that the uranium town of Elliot Lake needed more provincial help to recover from the effects of a drop in uranium demand, said the province had established a $60,000-acre park near the town which could attract large numbers of tourists in the future.

However, "the only real solution to the Elliot Lake problem . . . depends on a revival of the market for uranium," the mines minister said.

The decision by the United States in 1959 not to renew contracts for Canadian uranium had brought a serious decline but a boom in the mine, he said, but contracts signed with the United Kingdom in July this year were "enough to keep the mines open for several months at least."

Although uranium mining initially depended on the making of nuclear weapons for a market, there was hope that new uses for uranium would be developed.

The mines minister mentioned the nuclear generation of electric power and application of uranium in alloys to metals.

"Concrete results are not obtained overnight," he said, but some mining companies were testing uranium - steel alloy products and other projects were being carried out with urosteel pipe, cord and cable.

The mines minister said it had been estimated that if a uranium cable could be produced in one per cent of steel production, and if one-half of one per cent of uranium was used in the final product, it would create a market for 2,000,000 tons of uranium a year.

NDP Leader Donald C. Macdonald, said "the government had played a very important role in creating Elliot Lake . . . and the mess Elliot Lake is in now."

He suggested that it was the province's responsibility to encourage development of other markets for uranium.

Canada Signs Wheat Contract With Red China

OTTAWA (CP)—With the help of lower prices and better credit terms, Canada has completed its seventh in the current series of wheat sales to Communist China.

Agriculture Minister Hamilton announced in the Commons Tuesday that the latest contract under a 21½-year agreement involves 34,000,000 bushels of wheat worth about $65,000,000.

The Peking government will pay 25 per cent cash and the balance in one year, plus interest.

On six previous sales totalling 119,000,000 bushels of wheat the terms were 25 per cent down and the rest in nine months. At the same time Canada had been selling wheat to Poland on the basis of 10 per cent down and the balance in three years.

It had been reported earlier that negotiators for the Red Chinese trade purchasing agency were seeking better terms from the Canadian wheat board in view of the Canadian - Polish deals.

Mr. Hamilton said Tuesday in an interview with the Commons that the extra three months for repayment on the latest contract resulted from a general loosening of wheat credit terms recently by France and, to a lesser extent, Australia.

However, he refused to divulge details on the lower price, the wheat grades involved or the interest being charged, contending such information would benefit Canada's competitors in the world wheat markets.

Salvation Army in Man. To Continue to Aid Indians Without Help From Govts.

WINNIPEG (CP) — With or without the assistance of the federal and provincial governments, the Salvation Army in Manitoba will continue to give aid to northern Manitoba Indians reported suffering deprivation at Nelson House Reserve, 400 miles north of Winnipeg.

Col. Arthur Moulton, Salvation Army Manitoba commander, said Tuesday night he has "abandoned hope of any government help in this project."

"We didn't know of any political connotations when we undertook to help these people. The Salvation Army is only serving to deliver the goods.

"Unfortunately, now the government is embarrassed because we could have been called earlier with our organization ready to help. Our motives at the outset were pure and they still are pure. This cannot be stressed too strongly."

Col. Moulton was referring to a remark made by Citizenship Minister Bell in Ottawa Tuesday night in which he said his agencies in the field had told him talk of privation among the 760 Indians and Metis at Nelson House "is being promoted for publicity purposes only."

DENIES BACKING

Mr. Bell said a suggestion by Col. Moulton that the federal government was prepared to underwrite the cost of the airlift of supplies to the Indians was unfounded.

He said the federal government has "no intention whatever" of taking part in the airlift of supplies to the reserve.

Col. Moulton said the Salvation Army already has a trading car full of goods ready to go north.

Col. Moulton said the car contains "two or three tons" of supplies, including food, clothing, 300 lb. packets, 150 cases of canned meats, flour, sugar and canned milk. He said a bulk supply of potatoes is being shipped by rail from The Pas, Man.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Bell said that on hearing of the reported need, he told the Indian Affairs branch and also The Pas to look into the situation.

NO URGENT NEED

He said the official visited half the homes on the reserve and reported that while conditions were not the best, his reports "do not indicate that there is any emergency or that there is urgent need."

Salvation Army Maj. Stanley Preece of Brandon, Man., freighter from a tour of investigation at Nelson House, disagreed that there is no dire need in the area.

"They may not be (in dire need) according to government standards, but according to Salvation Army standards they need help and they are going to get it."

He added that in spite of their meagre supplies of food, basically a mixture of flour and lard called bannock, the Indians generally are in good health.

Nikita's Talk Used as Ad In the Express

LONDON (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev put an ad in a London newspaper today.

The advertisement—in The Daily Express—fills two pages. It is the first part of the text of the Soviet premier's world affairs report to the Supreme Soviet in Moscow Dec. 12—about 12,000 words of closely packed print.

And it was paid for by the Soviet government, The Express says.

The advertisement competes for attention with ads on other pages of The Express for scotch whisky, Christmas turkeys and a cure for coughing at night.

The Express draws attention to the advertisement in an editorial on another page.

"The Daily Express believes that within the bounds imposed by decency and libel its columns should be open to those willing to pay its advertising rates," the editorial says.

"As the only paper giving unqualified support to the American space race, The Express has no need to fear misunderstanding."

How much the Soviet government paid for the insertion The Express does not say.

RATE IS HIGH

But its rates for a full-page advertisement vary between £7,000 and 10,000 ($21,000 and $30,000) a page.

Nor is there any indication why the Soviet government chose to pay to get across its leader's message—or why The Express was chosen.

With a circulation of around 2,800,000 copies, The Express is Britain's second biggest-selling daily.

The Express editorial says the paper will "print the full text of the speech by Khrushchev whose Communist philosophy is quite opposed to all this newspaper stands for."

A reader of the advertisement, winding up the speech, will appear Thursday.

Report Given Tory Party In Britain

LONDON (AP)—The British are eating more, learning more, spending more, gambling more, living longer — and getting deeper into debt.

These are the main conclusions of a report commissioned by the government. With national elections due by 1964 at the latest, the report is certain to be the centre of controversy.

The report investigates the 10 years from 1951, when the Conservatives took over the government from the labor party.

Macmillan claimed at the last election, that in some ways Britons "never had it so good."

It shows, too, that in some ways they never had it so bad.

In 1951, for example, crime among the young was on the wane. By 1960 it had never been higher.

"But undoubtedly the strong flood of silence among young writers has swept in since commercial television began," the report said.

"Most social workers are convinced that standards of sexual morality among young people, and even among school children, has steeply declined during the decade."

The report said that Britain—"more on the American model"—has started a rush to the suburbs. It reported the effect has been to put more of them into long-term debt for houses, furniture, gadgets and cars.

Political economists said the report was prepared as a basis for ministerial thinking and planning.

Labor party MPs already have demanded to know who wrote the report.

Drugs Have Proven Useful For Various Mental Ills, According to Many Experts

Drugs have proven useful treatments for various mental illnesses. Here is an up-to-date report on their effectiveness and on the controversial evidence that much mental illness may result from family body chemistry and not traumatic psychological situations.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP) — "The devil still talks to me," she said, "but now I don't bother to holler back."

This did a tranquilizer drug bring one woman a ticket back toward mental health. From there, she moved co-operate with psychiatrists to work out an understanding of her emotional illness.

The "mood drugs," such as tranquillizers to calm excited minds and psychic stimulants to combat depression, are part of an exciting chemical era in mental illness. There are two great objectives.

One is to develop far more effective drugs for various types of mental illness.

The other is increasing, if controversial, evidence that much mental illness may result from family body chemistry, rather than being something to worry and fret ourselves into.

If specific chemical errors could be pinpointed, they probably could be corrected to prevent or cure mental ills, much as antibiotics combat germs, or vitamin C combats scurvy.

EXPERTS DISAGREE

Psychiatrists are divided over prospects of such chemical controls.

Tranquillizers, coming on the scene about eight years ago, have benefitted many, having tremendous impact. Men and women sick for months or years have described the mental effects as the lifting of a curtain or cloud, or brightening of a dark room. Like the schizophrenic woman preoccupied with her private devil, they become able to talk about their feelings.

Drugs have provided a bridge to home for many thousands of men and women. Many continue taking them.

With early, prompt use of drugs, through better education of physicians, many persons would never have to go to mental hospitals in the first place, declares Dr. Nathan S. Kline, director of research at Rockland State Hospital in New York.

Other psychiatrists are less convinced of the value of drugs —some 30 different tranquillizers and more than a dozen anti - depressants are available now. Some say equally good or better results are obtained from intensive psychiatric treatment of patients, but admit there is a shortage of psychiatrists.

SPEED TESTING

The National Institute of Mental Health has set up the psychopharmacology research center to speed the screening and testing of new compounds.

To many researchers, a great, encouraging fact is that mood drugs do affect the brain even though the mechanisms are not fully understood.

And certain other drugs, such as mescaline and LSD, actually produce hallucinations or other symptoms of severe mental illness in healthy persons—more reason to suspect that faulty body chemistry could be the reason for at least some types of mental illness.

In another sign, scientists have found abnormal chemicals, or abnormal amounts of regular body chemicals, in the blood and urine of schizophrenic patients. Whether these are a result, or possibly the cause of mental illness is not yet known.

One theory is that some people may inherit a make-up in which normal chemistry goes awry, perhaps under stress, producing hyperkoids poisonous to the brain and nervous system. The error might be a missing enzyme, or chemical controller, or too little or too much of essential chemicals of life.

DETECTION VITAL

A few conditions now are known in which an inherited chemical defect or dietary deficiency causes mental retardation in children. Damage is avoided if the trouble is detected in time.

And studies of twins indicate some people may inherit a vulnerability to schizophrenia, the flight from reality which constitutes the major type of serious mental illness.

The human brain with its 10,000,000,000 cells has guarded its chemical secrets well. But now parts of the story are unfolding under determined assault by scientists, enough to encourage optimists they will find chemical abnormalities explaining some disorders of the mind.

The traditional view is that Most mental illness is born from a break down in human relationships, or from extreme emotional stress. The wounded mind may withdraw, or turn to behavior relieving its stress and pain. Some scientists believe mental illness is a result of both environmental reactions and family inheritance.

PRESENTS PUZZLES

Psychotherapy presents puzzles. It is a method of listening to and helping patients discover reasons for their behavior, and new insights. There are many approaches.

But psychiatrists do not understand how it works, or why it helps some patients, but not others. It is difficult to demonstrate that psychotherapy works at all.

Yet thousands of persons obviously are relieved of their distress, and many learn to resume useful lives. Psychotherapy itself is a target of research to determine which methods are best for what types of patients, and when.

Southern Rhodesia Election Draws Clear Racial Line

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The result of the "white man's election" in Southern Rhodesia is going to have cleared the mood of sultry uncertainty for Negroes and whites alike.

Both sides know exactly where they stand, now that Sir Edgar Whitehead's United Federal Party with its graying, sometimes unconvincing, gestures towards race equality has been routed by a coalition of four conservative groups bent on keeping white control.

The whites, in responding to an election campaign to stop Sir Edgar's gradual "slider" towards desegregation and multiracial government, have thus declared they will make no more concessions to the "ungrateful" blacks. This election has been predictable since the outbursts of nationalist violence in the fall.

At the same time the whites have satisfied a long-standing urge to assert their rights against the "interference" of Britain and the United Nations —a feeling that soured them as almost personal resentment in many Rhodesians.

The satisfaction of the Negro nationalists, who boycotted the election and persuaded thousands of Negro voters to abstain, might appear a paradox.

But the answer is they now have an opponent they can understand—a party that fits their belief that the white man is only out for his own kind, without any nonsense about the eventual sharing of power. The battle lines are clearly drawn at last.

The Negroes thought Whitehead's government hypocritical and undemocratic in principle, while its policies were being persuasively offered in the name of "partnership." The nationalists found it difficult to get to grips with the enemy.

Winston Field, leader of the victorious Rhodesian Front, is a far more formidable opponent than the evasive, sophisticated Sir Edgar, whose cool dominance kept the Negroes in a state of jurisdictional irritability.

Field, a 58-year-old tobacco farmer from Salisbury, is an old-style paternalist who believes in what he calls "polite discrimination." He seems to strike Negroes as more human than Sir Edgar, and more honest.

This does not mean that the risk of race violence has lessened. It has probably increased dangerously. Yet the election has created agreement between whites within an at least one contentious topic—the future of federation.

Previously, none of the three territories in central Africa now under federation. Field, formerly leader of the party sought" Dominion status for Southern Rhodesia, is just as determined as the Negro leaders in Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland to get independence and sever more ties with Whitehall.

Observers in Britain feel that now all pretense has gone, there may be a better chance of negotiating a mutually beneficial economic linkup with no political overtones.

Tie Vote Broken NDP Man Wins

WINNIPEG (CP)—The New Democratic Party Tuesday night boosted its membership in the 57th Manitoba legislature to eight when Stanley Roberts, 34, was declared winner of the Kildonan riding over Jim Mills of the Progressive Conservative party.

When all 48 polls had been heard from in the provincial election Friday, both candidates had drawn 3,156 votes.

Returning officer Archie Fawns Tuesday night counted votes from hospital patients in the province that gave Mr. Roberts 3,203 votes compared with 3,186 for Mr. Mills.

The addition of the seat now makes the legislative standing: Progressive Conservative 33, Liberal 13, NDP 8, Social Credit 1, deferred 2. Total 57.

The two deferred elections are in the far-northern ridings of Churchill and Rupertsland where the vote will be held Jan. 4. Both seats now are held by Conservative members.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Dec. 18, 1962

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party, attacked the government for "this shameful exhibition of Parliament" which denied essential debates.

Bruce S. Beer (L—Peel) said Agriculture Minister Harry Hamilton has not lived up to his pledge to give eastern farmers a fair deal.

Gerard Perron (SC—Beauce) urged higher family allowances to give a little joy to mothers and children" in time for Christmas.

Senator Edgar J. Fournier (PC—New Brunswick) rapped Liberal senators for their criticisms of the Atlantic Development Board bill.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 19

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue its debate on an interim supply bill. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

Quebec's Separatist Leader Carries Fight Into Politics

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

MONTREAL (CP)—The most widely-publicized leader of Quebec's secessionist movement has decided to carry his fight into politics, thereby causing a wider split in separatist forces already divided three ways.

Marcel Chaput, 46, who probably has done more than any other separatist to publicize the idea of an independent French state outside the Canadian confederation, has jumped the gun on Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale (National Independence Rally) to form Le Parti Republicain du Quebec (Republican Party of Quebec). The RIN, once headed by Mr. Chaput, had planned to form a political party in 1964.

Mr. Chaput, announced his middle-of-the-road party will attempt to unify all separatist forces under his political leadership.

There was favorable reaction from the, right-wing Alliance Laurentienne, (Laurentian Alliance), the oldest if lesser known separatist group headed by a college professor. No immediate comment was available from the left-wing action Socialiste pour l'Independance du Quebec (Socialist Action for Quebec Independence).

However, within hours of Chaput's decision, the RIN, of which he is the former president and director-general, issued a statement disowning him and threatening expulsion for any member who supports him.

It was not immediately clear what effect split, resulting more from a clash on questions of tactics than on questions of principle, would have on the separatists' hopes for a free and independent Quebec by 1967, which Canada celebrates the centenary of Confederation.

Mr. Chaput and others who broke with the province to secede from the nine other provinces in Confederation consider Quebec as a colony of English-speaking and American interests.

Andre d'Allemagne, one of the leaders of the RIN, has said he believes the English - language minority in Quebec would either have to assimilate into the French-speaking "majority" or move away.

What Mr. Chaput's split from the separatist RIN will do to the ideology is difficult to assess. Some observers feel it may be the beginning of its collapse for the separatist movement, especially as the traditional and established parties are stealing much of the separatists' economic thunder.

REVENUE FREIGHT UP

Cars of railway revenue freight loaded on Canadian lines in the first seven days of December numbered 67,173, an increase of 2.7 per cent over the same week last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

SALES HIGHER

Department store sales during the week ended Dec. 8 were valued 2.4 per cent higher than in the corresponding week last year. There were increases of 3.2 per cent in Ontario, 6.6 in Quebec, 2.7 in Saskatchewan and 8.1 in British Columbia. There were decreases of 3.3 per cent in Atlantic provinces, 2.4 in Quebec and 0.8 in Alberta.

SHIPMENTS DOWN

Shipments of iron castings, pipes and fittings increased five per cent in October to 50,464 tons from the same month a year ago and showed a small decline in the January-October period to 459,694 tons.

SELL MORE WASHERS

Factory sales of domestic washing machines rose in October to 29,814 units from 27,310 in the same month in 1961. This boosted the January-October total to 252,257 units from 249,989 a year ago.

ASKS ACCEPT UN TERMS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations political committee Tuesday called on Communist North Korea to accept UN terms for Korean unification, approving a resolution to that effect, sponsored by the United States and 14 other nations, 65 to 11, with 26 abstentions.

"Jest A Second"

"Well, what d'you know?—first attempt and the lengta is just right!"

Cardinal Leger Wants Action in Second Session

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, who admits to being impulsive and impatient, says he found out at the ecumenical council in Rome how difficult it is to get 2,000 delegates moving.

The cardinal, replying off-the-cuff to questions after a speech in French in Montreal's Plateau Hall Monday night, said it is difficult to gather 2,000 bishops and say: "Let's go."

Making light of the council's procedural difficulties, he amused his audience with descriptions of the muddles that occurred.

Much that was done at the council's first session would have to be done over at the second, he said.

The cardinal, one of the members of a committee charged with preparing the Roman Catholic Church's huge conference, said he expected the second session to be more active than the first.

Informed churchmen believe the cardinal was referring to the council's difficulties with "schemas"—the subjects it was to discuss—as prepared by commissions before the council started.

SEND THEM BACK

The tone and spirit of the council was not known beforehand and many of the schemas were sent back by the full council to the commissions for thorough revision and re-drafting along the lines of the council's thinking.

It is believed this is what the cardinal referred to when he said much had to be done over and that the second session will go faster than the first. Between sessions, the work of revision and re-drafting goes on and there is expected to be less difficulty when the schemas are re-submitted.

"I tell you, frankly, I spoke to the Pope," Cardinal Leger said. "I told him that unless a committee was created with sufficient powers to get everyone into action we could achieve nothing."

Pope John XXIII several days ago appointed a committee of cardinals to supervise the work of the commissions drafting schemas o see that all is in proper form and spirit, apparently agreeing with the idea put forth by Cardinal Leger and others.

Unemployment Insurance Questions and Answers

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point, do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.

Q. After working four full years and paying contributions all that time, I resigned my job and am following courses by day and receiving no salary. Am I entitled to unemployment insurance benefit, being unable to work because of my course? If so, how much should I receive and for how long? I left my job on October 16 and reported on the same day after receiving my booklet. What should I do now?

A. One of the essential requirements for the receipt of benefit is proof that a claimant is available for work. Generally a claimant is unable to prove availability while in full-time attendance at a daytime course of instruction. Under certain circumstances the Commission may direct a claimant to attend a course and while in attendance he does not have to prove availability. You should consult your local office to ascertain what your status is. If you did not have a claim in force for a period preceding the date you establish your claim, you would be authorized one week of benefit for every two contributions weeks made on your behalf during the 104 weeks immediately prior to the commencement date of your claim. Your weekly rate of benefit is based on the average value of your most recent 30 contribution weeks.

Q. Who is the final authority as to the suitability of employment offered to a claimant for benefit?

A. In the first instance the question would be decided by the insurance officer. If the claimant is disqualified he may appeal the insurance officer's decision to the board of referees. Under certain circumstances an appeal from the decision of the board of referees may be made to the Umpire, who is a Judge of the Exchequer Court and whose decision is final.

Q. I understand $5,460 is the ceiling for contribution purposes for salaried employees. If paid by the hour, however, a person can earn far more than this and still be insurable. Why?

A. There is a greater risk of temporary unemployment due to lack of work for hourly paid employees than for salaried employees. Employees paid by the hour may earn more than $5,460 per year if they have no layoffs during the year. However, in most cases, it cannot be predetermined that they will be fully employed for the entire year. Furthermore, when not working because of weather, lack of materials, etc., they seldom continue to receive pay as salaried employees do. Therefore, it would not be proper to exclude hourly-paid employees from unemployment insurance simply because they could earn more than $5,460 per year.

Q. I am moving to the U.S.A. Can I get a rebate on the contributions in my insurance book?

A. Contributions are refundable only when it is established that they have been paid in error. As long as you are engaged in insurable employment contributions are properly payable and are not refundable. In addition, contributions are not refundable because you are going to reside in the U.S.A.

Q. I am paid a low rate of wages but receive a fairly large sum in tips each week. My benefit is based on my wage rate alone and therefore is very low. May I not contribute and receive benefits on the combined rate of wages and tips?

A. Since your employer is responsible for the payment of contributions on wages he actually pays, there is no way to make him responsible for the payment of contributions on the sums of monies received as gratuities by any of his employees.

Q. What action is taken against an employer who "helps" a person get benefit by giving false information about his or her reason for separation from employment?

A. The employer is prosecuted under the Criminal Code for collusion. This is a very serious offence and the employer places himself and his business in a grave position by practising such deception.

Q. A friend of mine was put in jail when drawing unemployment insurance as the result of an attempted robbery charge. He continued to draw his benefit by mail while in jail. Is this right?

A. No. Once a person enters a public institution of this type, he must report this fact and his benefit will cease as long as he is incarcerated. It is an offence against the Unemployment Insurance Act to draw benefit while in jail and could land the person concerned back in jail for a second term.

200 ATTEND PARTY

Nearly two hundred children attended the Christmas party at the school last Saturday afternoon, which was sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion. Mr. M. L. Snider, showed several films which the children enjoyed. The big event of the afternoon arrived, when Santa made his appearance and greeted all the children and gave each a bag of candies.

LEGION PARTY

On Sunday afternoon the annual Christmas party of the Legion members and their families was held in the Legion Hall. There were about 80 in attendance. Games were played by the children after which all joined in singing Christmas Carols. Old Santa arrived with a bag filled with parcels. Each child received a gift. After everything had quietened down, everyone sat down and enjoyed a delicious pot-luck dinner, prepared by the ladies.

FLYER DIES

PILLSON, Mont. (AP) — Mrs. Juanita Elliott, 68, Polson, who won fame for high altitude flying, died Sunday at her home on Flathead Lake and will be buried in San Diego, Calif. She held the women's light plane altitude record of 28,000 feet in the 1930s, piloting a 90-horsepower plane.

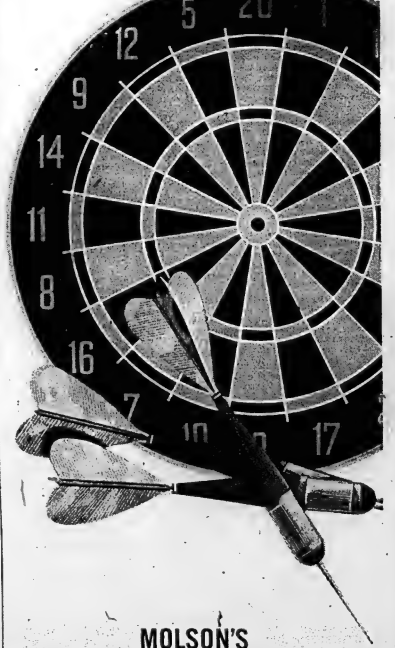
FIRE MISSILES

ROME (AP)—Two Nike-Cajun high altitude research missiles were successfully fired from Sardinia by Italian technicians last week, it was announced today. The Italian defence ministry and the Italian national research council said the missiles climbed to a height of 142.6 miles. One was launched early Friday, the other the night before, simultaneously with test firings in the United States.

MAGNATE DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Chester Dale, 79, multi-millionaire investment banker and utilities magnate who built up one of the most valuable private collections of modern art in the U.S., died Sunday following a heart attack. Dale was president of Washington's National Gallery of Art and a trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

KILLS HIMSELF



NESHAMINY, Pa. (AP) — A teacher, apparently despondent because he could not control his classes, stabbed himself to death Sunday, police reported. The body of Charles Baker, 53, a social studies instructor, was found by his wife, Thelma, in the bedroom of their home. Baker, a teacher for 20 years, taught at Neshaminy Junior High School.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Hair-styling, fashioning or whatever other titles the profession bears, is going out of style according to a New York fashion expert.

International coiffeurs, I think that's the title, the laddies who dress milady's locks and build them into beehives, corn cribs, miniature Empire State buildings, shepherd-dog drapes and whatnot may soon be out of a job.

Unless they turn to the latest fad, wig-making. And as time flits by they could inject themselves into sport as a means of income.

For according to the daily prints the fad of dressing an opponent's hair, parting it neatly or spreading it over the skull or face by means of a hockey stick instead of scissors and comb is becoming increasingly popular.

At least with some of the coaching fraternity. A case in point is that of Turk Broda, coach of the Toronto Junior "A" Marlboros, who had a hair-dressing player suspended along with another for ten days and screamed to high heaven that his player was "sentenced without trial."

The "judge" was OHA president Lloyd Pollock of Windsor who acted within his judicial rights. Pollock did not need a "jury." He has the official "book of words" which calls for the punishment meted out. The only trouble is, it is not meted out often enough.

A friend of mine has come up with an idea that would do away with referees' reports, appearances before boards, suspensions, fines and whatnot punishment for erring players.

I think he is a trifle tough as his suggestion calls for liquidation of fist-fighting hockey players directly after the game. Or to save time, he says, it might be simpler to furnish the referees with electrocution equipment so that offending players can be fried in their tracks.

Boxing, he thinks, is a noble sport, but not one that can be successfully pursued on ice skates. The scientific punch requires a foothold on something less slippery and the rabid fan demands an attack which has something more than the grace and beauty of a seal trying to walk on its flippers.

Hockey players find it virtually impossible to land a solid blow. The harder the punch the farther they push themselves—backward—from the scene of action. They leave themselves wide open. They let fly with both fists at once. They are thrown to the ice by the force of their own endeavors. Old fight fans in the pews cover their eyes.

"But," my friend states, "fighting with hockey sticks can be commended. The wide arc of the stick as it nearly cracks an enemy skull has in it some of the sweeping grace of the game itself. Since the timing and leverage involved are in keeping with skating technique, the player is able to do a workmanlike job."

"And while we're at it," he said, "kicking with skates is commendable for here again the combatants are using the tools of their trade."

"By amending the rules to permit these things," he maintains, "officials will be doing a public service. The spectators could see who was cracking down on who, and the referees and other spoil-sports who are always crowding around the fighters and obscuring the view would be discouraged."

The injuries, too, would be more above board, my friend believes. "You can't see a mildly black eye from the upper standing rooms spots, but when you see a player go down under a scientifically-wielded stick, you can feel it clear down to your heels. You, at least, can tell who was."

Another time-saver at this time of year, would be to dress fight-seeking players as a gift-boxed camera with a sign "Open me first." It would save preliminary argument and aid identification.

Giants Better in Offence

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay Packers failed to lead the National Football League in either total offence or defence but dominated the final team statistics by finishing first in 11 categories. New York Giants, who meet the Packers in the league championship game Dec. 30, showed the way in total offence. Detroit Lions, who host the western crown although it was the only team to beat the Packers, led in total defence.

Green Bay piled up most first downs rushing, 145; net yards rushing, 2,460; average yards per rush, 4.7; pass completion percentage, 60.1; total touchdowns, 52; touchdowns running, 39; extra points, 52, and total points, 415.

City Hockey League Statistics

Gary Goyer, of the league-leading Trudeau Motors team, has passed linemate "Pug" Kellar in the City Hockey League scoring race, according to the up-to-date statistics.

Goyer has 15 points, on four goals and 11 assists, while Kellar has 14 points on six goals and eight helpers. Stu Muirhead, of Welbanks Motors, is third in the points race with ten and tops the goal scorers with seven. Goyer's 11 assists is also a top mark.

Don "Turk" Barclay, who has allowed a total of two goals in his club's last two games, has a sparkling 2.68 goals-against average to head the loop's goalies. Barclay tends the nets for Trudeaus.

Trudeaus and the Pepsi's, who have tied in both their earlier meetings, clash head on in what should be the best game of the year at 9.15 tonight. A win for the Pepsi's would boost them into a tie for first place with Trudeaus.

Welbanks Motors will attempt to snap a two-game losing streak when they clash with the revamped and overdue Joyce-Rollins Combines in the opener at 7.45. Joyce-Rollins need a couple of wins badly to climb into the tight race for loop honors as the Welbanks may be in for a rough time. Joyce-Rollins led Welbanks 1-0 until mid-way through the third period the last time these clubs met but the Motors rallied for a 4-2 victory.

Following is the league standing and the top ten scorer.

Bills Sign All-American

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—George Saimes, Michigan State's all - American fullback, signed Tuesday to play with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, it was announced here.

Saimes of Canton, Ohio, was the sixth-round draft choice of Dallas Texans of the AFL and also the sixth-round choice of Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Ralph B. Wilson Jr., owner of the Bills, said he had obtained the rights to Saimes from Dallas by agreeing to give the Texans a high-draft choice next season.

LONDON (CP)—Geoff Dyson says his talents haven't been appreciated in Britain and when he signs a contract Thursday to become Canada's national director of coaching he hopes it will mean the start of an easier row to hoe.

"Britain is still in the broken-nose and rollneck-sweater stage of coaching," Dyson said in a telephone interview Tuesday when the final contract negotiations had been announced.

"I would hate it to be thought that I am not wanted in Britain but the fact remains that British sporting officials are wary of powerful, professional coaches who may become national figures, no matter how much good they do for sport." The 48 year-old track and field coach has had a long and checkered career in Britain, culminating in his resignation from the post of national coach of the English Amateur Athletic Association last year.

He started his track and field career as a hurdler and soon graduated from the track for "professionalism" after he was charged with lecturing for a fee to British students at an English college.

Royal Canada will turn his experience to Canada in a five-year stint under the auspices of the Canada Council, which will "try to develop the machinery of sport in Canada and to fire the country into greater activity."

Dyson said he hopes to raise the standard of coaching and hence, the standard of track and field.

"Canada must build her sporting pyramid on a firm base," he said. "Canada has the greatest track and field country in the world.

Dyson said he could not say exactly what his Canadian operations would involve.

"I'll be lecturing a great deal, and travelling, a lot, but other than that I'll just sit down and see what the Legion wants of me."

Last August Dyson gave Canadians a taste of what he had in mind when he gave a series of lectures and demonstrations sponsored coaching course at Guelph, Ont., attended by about 100 coaches from Canada and the United States. After the lectures he was offered the post of national coach of coaching.

He will live in Ottawa with his wife—the ex-Olympic hurdler Maureen Gardner—and his daughter. His son will stay in Britain.

So What, This Wasn't So Hot!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Football now is being played at the South Pole, the U.S. Navy reported Tuesday.

A delayed dispatch from the navy's Operation Deep Freeze in Antarctica reported that on Nov. 22 a team of Seabees defeated a team of U.S. polar scientists 6-0, in a game played in a temperature of 32 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit) at the South Pole station, some two miles above sea level.

Involves Self, Clay, Patterson, Swede

Liston Proposes 3-Bout Series

TORONTO (CP) — World heavyweight champion Sonny Liston has proposed a three-bout series involving himself, former champion Floyd Patterson, Sweden's Ingemar Johansson and fourth-ranked Cassius Clay as a solution to the controversy surrounding his next fight.

In a CBC television appearance, Liston suggested Tuesday the best program for promoters would be to match him against Johansson and Patterson against Clay and the winners of these two bouts against each other.

He said he has no doubt of the legitimacy of a $1,000,000 offer by Johansson's advisor Edvin Aldqvist to meet Johansson in Stockholm.

"I don't doubt Aldqvist has that kind of money and even if he doesn't, Johansson could put it up himself," Liston said.

"He was rich when he came over here and got rich again."

Liston doubted the public could be sold on a rematch with Patterson following his one-round victory over the former champion.

Liston indicated he didn't want a match with Clay because Clay has yet to prove his right to a title bout. "People listen to his mouth, but they don't watch him fight," he said.

However, he said Clay would be a good draw against Patterson.

The massive champion, while insisting that Johansson "is the outstanding boy right now" said he didn't think Johansson would last two rounds against him.

Football's Prodigal Son

Cookie, AFL Player Of Year

NEW YORK (CP)—They can start killing the fatted calf anytime for Chester (Cookie) Gilchrist, the prodigal son from Tarentum, Pa.

The 242-pound fullback spent eight years travelling back and forth across Canada before confining his travels to the field this season with Buffalo Bills of the American Football League with such effect that he was named the AFL's player of the year.

"That's wonderful, the man deserves it," said coach Lou Saban as the Bills Tuesday when he got the result of the poll of an Associated Press committee of writers and broadcasters from the eight league cities.

Now 27, Gilchrist made his move to Canada in 1954, fresh out of high school, when Cleveland Browns of the National Football League turned high away because of inexperience.

WITH K-W

His first port of call was Kitchener-Waterloo of the Ontario Rugby Football Union where he did well enough to earn promotion to Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

From there he moved on to Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference, back to Hamilton and on to Toronto Argonauts of the EFC.

Released by the Argos and waived out of Canadian football early this season, Gilchrist came to Buffalo with the reputation of creating equally insoluble problems for the defensive coaches of his opponents and the front office of his employers.

In the AFL this season, the only complaints have come from the victims of Cookie's bone-crushing charges through the enemy lines.

SETS RUSHING MARK

He became the first man in the league's three years of existence to gain 1,000 yards rushing, totalling 1,096 yards on 216 carries for an average of 5.1 yards a carry, and scored 13 touchdowns as well as handling the club's kickoff and field-goal assignments.

"He helped bring the Bills from the bottom to near the top," said Saban, whose club finished a close-up fourth in the AFL's Eastern Division after losing its first five games.

Gilchrist, who reported $20,000 this season and Saban said he hasn't signed his 1963 contract yet, Cookie's latest honor, on top of all-star recognition, "only makes it more difficult."

Went Berserk Twice

Machen Goes To Hospital

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Mentally-ill heavyweight fighter Eddie Machen was committed to a state hospital Tuesday as an "acute schizophrenic" in need of treatment and dangerous to himself and others.

The commitment was ordered at a 20-minute superior court hearing and was for an indefinite period—"until his mental well being is restored."

Machen, who has gone berserk on at least two occasions since he was confined to Napa State Hospital last week, was not present at the hearing before Solano County Judge Philip Lynch here.

Authorities had asked a ruling from the attorney general's office on whether the hearing could be conducted without the fighter being present and had been told that Attorney-General Stanley Mosk had ruled in a similar case in 1961 that it was legal.

FOUND IN CAR

Machen was taken to the Napa Hospital for observation and his own protection last Wednesday when a state highway patrolman found him in a car parked along the highway near Vallejo, despondently contemplating suicide.

There was a loaded pistol in the car, and the fighter was carrying what was described as a farewell letter to his wife Charlotte.

Patrolman William McClusky testified at the hearing that he asked Machen if he had intended to kill himself. Machen said "Yes," but he had changed his mind, the officer reported.

Machen told the officer he was deeply depressed over being short of money, not being able to get a worthwhile fight and "everything was all wrong."

Dr. Donald Hand of Napa Hospital said Machen was an "acute schizophrenic".

DISCUSSES SALE

NEW YORK (CP)—Joe Foss, commissioner of the American Football League, was in New York Tuesday to talk to potential buyers of New York Titans' franchise, now owned by Harry Wismer. "I am talking to several people," said Foss. "Logan to be here most of the week."

No Trade Bait For Als

MONTREAL (CP)—The Star quotes quarterback Sam Etcheverry of the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday as saying he has been told by the National Football League club it is satisfied with its quarterback personnel, and unless he hears anything different he is satisfied to remain with them.

"There had been reports that Etcheverry next season might play elsewhere, possibly returning to Canada, because during this last season he was relegated to a second-string role behind rookie Charlie Johnson.

"I mentioned that I didn't think I figured in their plans," The Star quotes Etcheverry as saying. "They said as far as they were concerned they were happy with their quarterback situation. They pointed out that they hadn't drafted any quarterbacks. So I guess I'm set here.

"I've always been an underdog in this situation doesn't bother me. Charlie did a good job. But remember there was no pressure in these last couple of games. Next year I'll have to beat him out, that's all."

The former passing star at Montreal Alouettes said only one Canadian team had made direct contact with him in St. Louis—the Alouettes.

"I heard from the Alouettes through (scout) J. J. Albrecht. I sort of got the idea that they wanted me to say I was coming back to Canada. They didn't want me for the Alouettes. They wanted to make a trade—I think with the Toronto Argonauts."

Etcheverry didn't regret his move to the NFL, when he refused to go through with a trade by Alouettes to Hamilton Tiger-Cats, a deal announced in December, 1960.

"I suppose people would like to hear me say now that I feel I made the wrong move," Etcheverry told The Star. "But I don't. I would make no more sense to rave about the decision if I was doing well. I tried and I'm happy."

May Stop Pheasant Releases

CHATHAM (CP)—Pheasants may not be released by the department of agriculture next season in southwestern Ontario if hunters don't co-operate by turning in bands from birds, J. K. Reynolds said Tuesday night.

Mr. Reynolds, district forester for the Lake Erie district at Aylmer, said only 450 bands have been turned in to date from approximately 10,000 banded pheasants released in the area.

"If this is a true indication of the small contribution penetrated birds make to shooting, maybe we should use the taxpayers' money for some better use."

CNE To Run '500' Stock Race

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian National Exhibition raceway will run a Canadian 500 next summer, Ernie Lieberman, promoter for stock car racing at the track, announced Tuesday.

"Our track has been officially certified by the U.S. Automobile Club and we'll have all the top drivers up here, for the race," said Lieberman. Eddie Sachs, Troy Ruttman, Jim Hurtubise, Rodger Ward, to name them, they'll be here."

Midget cars, some of them worth $10,000 to $12,000 will be used on the CNE's quarter-mile track.

The [illegible] annual Indianapolis 500 race, will be 200 laps, 50 miles in length and prize money will be $10,000 with an additional $2,000 going for lap prizes and time trial winners.

Lieberman said he hopes for a crowd of more than 20,000 to watch the 40-event and the net profits will be handed over to charity.

Bisons Hand Aces First Home Loss

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec Aces finally ran out of home-ice magic, and it cost them undisputed possession of first place in the American Hockey League's Eastern Division.

Buffa's Bisons handed the Aces a 3-1 defeat Tuesday night. They first in 14 home games. John MacKenzie scoring two goals.

In the only other game scheduled, Providence Reds whipped Baltimore Clippers 4-1.

The action left Providence and Quebec tied with 23 points each. Buffalo leads in the west with 24 points.

Dennis DeJordy was strong in the Buffalo nets. Ron Ingram got the only first period goal and MacKenzie put Buffalo in front 2-0 at 6:14 of the second. Skippy Burchell scored for Quebec less than a minute later and MacKenzie got his second counter in the third period.

Larry Leach gave the first three-goal performance in the new Baltimore Civic Center for the Reds. Pierre Brillant also scored for Providence. Sandy McGregor put Baltimore on the board.

JOCKEY SUSPENDED

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Jockey Herb Clark was suspended by Tropical Park stewards Tuesday for 10 days for interference in the third race Monday. The suspension starts Thursday and runs through the 28. Clark has won three races at Tropical and finished in the money five other times.

Says C. B. C. Unfair in Games Cast

MONTREAL (CP)—Al Forman, a public relations representative with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, in a statement Tuesday said he feels the CBC "showed partiality which definitely is not fair" in its televised films of the recent British Empire Games in Perth, Australia.

"There were three one-half hour shows every week and each show featured track and field and swimming," said Forman's statement. "Much as I enjoyed the shows, I speak for many other officials of other sports in wondering when we will see sports such as boxing, wrestling, fencing, weightlifting, etc.

"These sports were shown when the Games were held eight years ago in Vancouver."

Forman is Quebec representative as member of the national public relations and publicity committee of the AAU of C.

SELECT COACHES

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Selection of Hank Stram of the Dallas Texans and Frank (Pop) Ivy of the Houston Oilers to coach the American Football League's all-star teams for their game here Jan. 13 was announced Tuesday. Stram will coach the league's Western Division all-stars, and Ivy will coach the Eastern Division squad.

Woodstock Whips Galt

Dogs Crush Rams 13-4

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs maintained their lead and Woodstock Athletics held second place in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings with wins Tuesday night.

Windsor whipped the last-place Sarnia Rams 13-4 at Sarnia and Woodstock overran Galt Terriers 5-1 at Woodstock.

Windsor's Bobby Brown emerged from the night's action as the league's leading point-scorer. His two goals and two assists took him to 48 points on a total of 24 goals and 24 assists.

Teammate Irwin Gross, who had been leading with 45 points, was unable to play because of a wrenched back.

Jack Costello scored three goals for Bulldogs and Real Chevrefils and Tommy Walker each got two. Jean-Marc Gaudreault, Walt Pawlyshyn, Tom Micallef and Jerry Servita got the others.

Willie Menard with two, Reg Mullholland and Dawson Schreader were the Ram marksmen.

Woodstock dominated Galt after the first period when Bob McKnight scored Galt's lone goal.

Tommy Wilson tallied two goals for Woodstock and the others were picked up by Carl Hymers, Roy Land and Gerry Stringle.

SIGN VILLANOVA

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP)—Lou Rettino, 225-pound Villanova University fullback, said Tuesday he has signed with Green Bay Packers of the National Football League for the 1963 season. He was the eighth draft choice of the Packers and had also been selected by New York Titans of the American Football League and Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

Chatham Jr. Scoring Wizard

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — When 19-year-old Mel Wakabayashi scores two goals in a hockey game he's having an off night.

The sparkling centre for Chatham Maroons of the Ontario Hockey Association's Border Junior B series fired seven Tuesday night as his team shattered Windsor 8-2.

It was his outstanding individual performance of the year, but not by much. He's had a five-goal night and three four-goal games earlier this season in compiling a record of 45 goals and 25 assists for 70 points in 16 games.

Three-goal performances are commonplace with the group's defending scoring champion. He's turned the trick five times.

Wakabayashi, whose five-foot-five stature appears to be the major obstacle to a National Hockey League career, says he has no immediate plans to try his luck as a professional. He hopes to enter the University of Michigan next year on a hockey scholarship.

ELECTED TO BOARD

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—C. V. Whitney, Lexington horse breeder and the second owner in history to top the $1,000,000 mark in winnings, was elected to the board of directors of Churchill Downs Incorporated Tuesday. Directors also set May 4 as the date for the 1963 Kentucky Derby.

Barkley, Sawchuk Also Stars

Detroit Line NHL Top Scoring Trio

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three veteran forwards, three rookies and a never-better Terry Sawchuk in the nets have been big factors behind Detroit Red Wings' surprisingly strong showing in the National Hockey League this season.

Detroit veterans Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio and a reformed Parker MacDonald form the the league's highest-scoring forward line to date.

Meanwhile, rookie defenceman Doug Barkley is rated with Toronto defenceman Kent Douglas as leading candidates for the rookie-of-the-year award.

Rookie forwards Alex Faulkner and Larry Jeffrey, two-thirds of Detroit's hard-skating Kid Line, trail the two defencemen and New York forward Rod Gilbert in the rookie scoring race.

And the 33-year-old Sawchuk, who began wearing a face mask this season, has the league's lowest goals-against average.

Detroit is currently tied with Chicago Black Hawks for first place in the league standings, although the Wings are tied with last-place Boston in fewest goals scored—72.

ALLOW FEWEST GOALS

But the Red Wings, led by Sawchuk and a tightened-up defence, have allowed fewer goals scored against them—63—than any other team. The Wings' defensive corps has been dubbed Terry and the Pirates.

Chicago will have a chance to move into sole possession of first place when they meet Boston in tonight's only NHL game. The Hawks have won three and tied two in their five meetings with the Bruins so far this season.

But the Wings have two games in hand over the Hawks before tonight's game.

Howe-Delvecchio-MacDonald trio leads the league in total points by a forward line—81—and total goals—32.

Chicago's Scotter Line of Stan Mikita, Ab McDonald and Ken Wharram is second in goals with 31. The three are tied with New York's Andy Bathgate-Earl Ingarfield-Dean Prentice threesome for second-spot in total points with 74.

THREE ARE TIED

Howe, a 16-year-veteran and the league's all-time-high point scorer, is tied for the league lead in points with Mikita and Bathgate. All three have 29 points on 11 goals and 18 assists.

But Howe is actually down a point from his scoring total of 30 points at this time last year. Delvecchio, who now has 27 points, is up from his 22 points at this time last season.

MacDonald, however, would undoubtedly win the most-improved player award if the league had one. At this point last year, he had only one assist in nine games with the Wings.

The 29-year-old native of Sydney, N.S., split his time between Detroit and Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League last season. He already has 16 goals this year, two more than he had ever scored in an NHL season.

In the rookie crop, Douglas and Barkley stand out. Should either of them win the Calder Memorial Trophy, it would be the first time in league history a defenceman has won the best-rookie award.

DOUGLAS GETS POINTS

Douglas, boosted by a five-point performance in the Leafs' 8-2 walloping of Boston Saturday night, has 14 points so far. Barkley and Gilbert follow with 12 each, Faulkner from Bishop's Falls, Nfld., 10 and Jeffrey nine.

The 26-year-old Faulkner, the first Newfoundlander to make the NHL, leads the rookies in goals with six.

Douglas, 26, was selected as the AHL's top defenceman last season and is gaining acclaim as a playmaker. Barkley, a strapping six-foot-two and 180 pounds, is rated one of the league's coolest and hardest-hitting defensive players.

The 22-year-old native of Lethbridge, Alta., scored 27 goals and 49 assists for Calgary Stampeders in the Western Hockey League last season.

Sawchuk is credited by Detroit coach Sid Abel as playing the best hockey of his career this year.

He is tied with Chicago's Glenn Hall for the most shutouts this season—three—and has a slight edge over Hall in goals-against average—2.25 to 2.30.

Eastern Pro Points Race

OTTAWA (CP)—Winger Gord Labossiere of Sudbury Wolves collected six points in two games last week to move from seventh to fifth place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League's individual scoring race, official league statistics showed Tuesday.

Jeannot Gilbert and Don Blackburn, both of Kingston Frontenacs, share first place with 42 points apiece. Gilbert, last week's leader, didn't get a point in three games while teammate Blackburn got a goal and an assist.

Marc Dufour of Sudbury is third in the scoring list with 40 points and fourth is Bob Leiter of Kingston with 38. Leiter hasn't played a game in the EPHL since early this month when he joined Boston Bruins.

Norm Armstrong of Sudbury leads in penalties with 96 minutes.

Goalie Ernie Wakely of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens improved his goals-against average per game during the week to 2.45 from 2.85, the league's best. The over-all Hull-Ottawa goaling average is 2.80.

Flyers Trim Lightfoots

Trenton RCAF Flyers defeated the Belleville Lightfoots 53-26 in Bay of Quinte Basketball League action last night.

The Flyers consolidated third place in the league standing with the victory.

Max McNicholl, Wilf Borden and Ernie Clarke stood out for the winners.

No other details were available at press time.

DIVORCES LOEW

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Tyrone Power's widow divorced her third husband, film executive Arthur M. Loew Jr., 37, Tuesday.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Word of impending player cuts spurred Vancouver Canucks to their hardest-hitting display of the Western Hockey League season Tuesday night.

They tossed some heavy checks at Edmonton Flyers on their way to a 3-1 victory and inched to within a single point of the Northern Division lead.

Coach Max McNab had noted that at least two players must be dropped from a lineup now carrying three extra men.

Seattle Totems lead the division with 31 points.

Minor Hockey

In the midget triple-header last night the Red Wings defeated Buzzers 9-5; Maple Leafs downed Black Hawks 7-4 and the Rangers trimmed the Canadiens 3-1.

In the squirt division McFarlands blanked Flyers 6-0; Barons downed Royals 4-2; Frontenacs edged Maple Leafs 5-4; Rangers defeated Canadiens 7-2; Black Hawks nudged Bruins 6-5 and Browns turned back Red Wings 7-5.

MIDGET

Bateman led the Red Wings to victory with three goals and an assist with Lancaster getting a pair. Doran, Fullerton and Lucas got the others. Dickey had three assists. McGuigan, Holgate with two, Ellis, Fleming and Cockburn counted for the Buzzers.

G. Rutherford's hat trick paced the Malpe Leafs victory with Clapp getting a pair and Adams and G. Muldoon scoring singles. The Black Hawks had five penalties, the winners three.

B. Hunter, E. Mastin and D. Roach scored for the Rangers in their 3-1 win over Canadiens. M. Flindall got the losers lone goal.

SQUIRT DIVISION

McFarlands' John Feasby earned a shutout in the team's 6-0 win over the Flyers with R. Kerr with a pair, T. Doran, R. Poremba, P. Fralick and T. Rogers getting the goals.

M. Coogan scored twice in the Barons 4-2 win over Royals, D. Lapinskie and LaMorre also scoring. B. Buchanan and R. Farhan counted for the losers.

R. Howe was top man for the Frontenacs in their 5-4 defeat of Maple Leafs scoring three of the five goals. F. Goyer and D. Hunt got the others. K. Kayle, D. Pascoe and M. Thompson tallied for the Leafs.

B. Cousins and R. Meagher each scored a pair for Rangers with M. Bray, T. Pope and C. Jandisch getting singles on the 7-3 win over Canadiens. S. Langhead scored twice and R. Woodley once for the losers.

J. Mulvihill's trio of goals led the Black Hawks to their 6-5 victory over Bruins, M. Semark, P. Wall and Parmalie getting singles. J. Cass, D. Lorimer, F. Stickle, D. Cone and Gill counted for the losers.

Two goals each by W. Farrell and J. Semark paced the Browns 7-3 win over Red Wings, D. Caul, T. Sprackett and John Sprackett also scored. For the losers R. O'Neill with two, R. James, Reeves and C. Brant were the marksmen.

FILES SUIT

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill George, 31, captain of the Chicago Bears football team, filed a $200,000 damage suit Tuesday after a 1961 traffic mishap. The suit claimed the accident caused "neck injuries" which affected George's playing ability so that, for the first time in five years, he was not named all National Football League linebacker and did not participate in all Bear games this year.

McFarlands Bow to RCAF Squad

PICTON (Special) — Trenton RCAF Globetrotters strengthened their hold on second place in the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League here last night, defeating the Picton McFarlands by an 8-2 score.

The Macs are currently holding down third spot with the Bowmanville Shamrocks leading the loop.

The Globetrotters led by their ace line of Moroney, Blanchard and St. Pierre had things pretty well their own way throughout the game.

They scored two in the opening period, added four more in the second frame and upped the count to 7-0 in the third before the McFarlands "broke the egg." They made it 8-1 with the Macs scoring their second goal of the game with minutes to go.

The Flyers' top trio scored five of the eight goals, Moroney pacing the pack with three and an assist. St. Pierre accounted for two goals and as many assists, with Blanchard getting a goal and two helpers.

Leslie also scored twice for the Globetrotters with Currie, Drake and Steiner being credited with assists.

Davy Jones and Ron Hull scored the Picton makers, Lionel Boily getting two assists and Guernsey and Weese one each.

Don Anderson in the Trenton goal, was another standout of the game, kicking out a number of labelled pucks. Trenton outshot the Macs 48-30 on the night's play.

The game was cleanly fought, with seven of the ten minor penalties handed out, coming in the third period. The Globetrotters drew seven.

The teams meet again in Trenton on Friday night.

Close In On Second
Flyers Whip Royals 6-1

GUELPH (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers moved to within one point of second place Peterborough TPT's here Tuesday night on the strength of a 6-1 victory over the OHA Junior A's last-place Guelph Royals.

Flyers outshot Guelph only 42-36, but were in command of the game after scoring three goals in 8 minutes and 21 seconds in the opening period.

Trevor Fahey deprived George Gardner of a shutout early in the third period when he tipped in Billy Taylor's rebound.

Flyers bounced back from the Guelph marker to add three more before the game ended. Rookie Ted Smith paced the Flyers offensive with a pair of goals and an assist.

Single markers were registered by Wayne Maxner, Jerry Crisp, Ron Schock and Billy Graham. Graham's goal came while his own team was shorthanded.

In Metro Toronto Junior A action elsewhere, Whitby Dunlops broke a winless streak at 16 games when they defeated Brampton; 7-3. Toronto Knob Hill Farms tied league-leading Neil McNeil 1-1 while second-place Toronto Marlboros defeated Oshawa Generals 3-0.

Union Blocked By New Bylaw

TORONTO (CP) — Reforme Minister Irwin Haskell approved a county bylaw Tuesday removing the National Union of Public Employees (CLC) from the scope of the Labor Relations Act and thus blocking the union from gaining bargaining rights for Victoria County jail guards.

A section of the Labor Act allows municipalities to exclude their employees from coverage of the labor legislation by passing a bylaw.

NUPE representative Patrick O'Keefe argued successfully earlier before the Ontario Labor Relations Board that no by law is valid in the case of the jail employees unless approved by the minister. The union won certification for jail employees of Norfolk County on the basis of this argument. It also asked the OLRB to re-open proceedings in five other cases including Victoria County.

Mr. O'Keefe said it is incredible when a cabinet minister uses his office to deny the employees rights to which they would otherwise be entitled.

CNR Directors Form Board to Study Question

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Balcer announced in the Commons Tuesday that the CNR board of directors has formed five-un committee to review present methods of advancement for French-speaking Canadians in the railway's administration.

The announcement, greeted with applause from all parts of the House, stemmed from a decision taken by the railway at an executive meeting Dec. 13.

The five-man committee headed by CNR President Donald Gordon will review the "methods and procedures of evaluating" the railway's personnel needs. It also will seek to give French-Canadians all opportunities "to acquire experience."

Other members of the committee are board directors Guy Charbonneau and Jean-Louis Levesque both of Montreal, W. G. Stewart, Moncton, and W. C. Koerner, Vancouver.

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) said he was certain the committee would find out that present provisions for the advancement of French-Canadians are not adequate.

He found the announcement especially significant in view of Monday's debate in the House when there was "quasi unanimity" among all parties on the need for bilingualism and biculturalism in Canada.

Four Executives Sent to Trial On Fraud Counts

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)— Four executives of Golden Sands Resorts Limited were committed for trial at a preliminary hearing Tuesday on charges with conspiring to defraud the public.

Magistrate Harold Dauman said 48 people who paid $22,340 for lots in Bruce County will never receive them.

Charged are William E. Mills of Kitchener, president; Ronald Rodda of Kitchener, vice-president Vincent B. Schooley of Stratford, vice-president, and J. T. Will of Brantford, secretary-treasurer.

No date was set for the trial.

The Crown charged that the company made three misrepresentations:

The company said plans for summer resorts had been approved by the government when in fact they had been refused.

Customers were told they would receive deeds for their property when no deeds could be delivered because proposed developments violated a subdivision control bylaw.

The company said it would spend $200,000 of a trust fund to develop the property when no such trust fund had ever been established.

The development site was near Wiarton on Bruce Peninsula.

Bogus Paintings Said on Sale In Province

OTTAWA (CP)—Bogus paintings attributed to Canada's famous Group of Seven have been placed on the commercial market in Toronto and Montreal, according to information received by the National Gallery.

Dr. W. S. A. Dale, assistant director of the Gallery, said Tuesday a number of sales evidently have been made at the going rate for originals produced by members of the group.

The "going rate" is several hundred dollars for a small sketch.

Dr. Dale said the frauds were brought to the attention of a National Gallery official by someone he did not identify.

The Gallery passed the information on to Eric Silk, assistant deputy attorney-general for Ontario, whose department now is conducting an investigation.

In addition to the Group of Seven, suspect paintings include works attributed to Tom Thomson and F. S. Coburn.

Dr. Dale said the suspect paintings have turned up in Toronto and Montreal commercial galleries and auction rooms.

He said he understands that they have been on sale "for some time."

CHRISTMAS CHOIR

Toronto St. James' Cathedral choir will sing a special devotional program on CBC radio and television Dec. 24.

Long hours and hard work don't discourage the young Canadian actors and actresses at Montreal's National Theatre School. These three girls, practising ballet, also take movement exercises and fencing to keep them supple and in good physical shape.

Teenagers Hard at Work For Theatrical Career

MONTREAL (CP) — Some of Canada's hardest-working young people are the 18 teen-agers among the 120 students at Montreal's National Theatre School.

The young drama enthusiasts spend long hours daily studying acting, elocution and design.

Westerners are Bill Boychuk, 19, Vancouver, Terrence Kelly, 18, White Rock, B.C., Carolyn Lands, 16, Saskatoon, and Michael Ball, 19, and Helen Conway-Marmo, 19, of Victoria.

From Montreal are Yael Brandeis, 18, Freddy Dewancker 18, Jacques Dufour, 18, Michele Maillot, 19, Michele Dugas, 19, Sophie Clement, 18, Michele Chicoine, 18, and Louise Bellehumeur, 19.

The others are Chris Banks, 19, of Halifax, Robert du Park, 18, Drummondville, Que., Francine Dionne, 19, St. Mathias, Que., and Elva Mai Hoover, 18, and Sheiora Fitzgerald, 19, of Toronto.

PICKED BY BOARD

Selected by a board that travelled across Canada to find promising talent, they were admitted on the basis of interviews and auditions with Jean Gascon, executive director of the institution, and Pat Dean Thomas, artistic director of the English-language courses.

Work begins at 8:45 a.m. and ends at 6 p.m. or later, with an hour off for lunch and a 15-minute break during the morning.

Sometimes after a strenuous day the young people go to keep on the floor from physical fatigue.

They go through stage calisthenics and study ballet. Movement exercises and fencing classes keep them supple and in good physical shape.

Other studies include diction, vocal exercises and delivery. In their first year the students do no acting, but study prose, poetry and the history of the theatre. By the time they reach third year they will devote most of their time to acting.

Eight months of the year are spent studying at the Montreal-based school, two months at the school in Stratford, Ont., and two months are for holidays—usually spent working at what ever can be found to meet the $700 annual tuition fee.

"The long hours and hard work don't discourage the young actors and actresses.

"Our prospects in this country are very good," says Terry Kelly, "a chain of theatres and cultural centres is springing up across Canada and will provide work for many of the graduates of our school. I don't think the Canadian public knows what to expect, but I think they will be pleasantly surprised by our standards."

Converting Tiny Tim Tale Into Fairy Story Success

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It the ghost of Charles Dickens had been watching television Tuesday night, it would have been interesting to catch the Victorian author's reaction to NBC's cartoon, treatment of his sentimental Christmas Carol classic. It might have been choleric.

But most contemporary viewers must have felt that casting near-sighted, bulb-nosed Mr. Magoo as miserly, crotchety Ebenezer Scrooge was sheer inspiration. Covering the rather syrupy Tiny Tim tale into a fairy story with a musical comedy backgrounding proved a wonderful idea.

Children of all ages had a delightful time with the slyly tuneful animation. Lovable Magoo as an actor playing a part told even the smallest viewer that it was all let's pretend so those ghosts, skeletons and graveyards were merely delightfully scary. The hour-long version ought to have its place on NBC's shelf of classics, along with Peter Pan and Amahl and the Night Visitors, ready for an annual Christmas-time rerun.

President Kennedy's conversation Monday night with three network correspondents was a memorable, impressive hour. Not only was it an important person-to-person updating on matters of vital concern, but it provided millions of people in their own homes a chance to feel close to the man who must make many critical decisions on their behalf.

Charles Laughton to Rest In Land He Came to Love

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It is only fitting that Charles Laughton should come to final rest on American soil.

The later years of the great British-born actor who will be buried today were marked by a love affair with his adopted land. The testament of his romance is included in a book published during his fatal illness, The Fabulous Country.

Laughton selected his favorite writings about United States, works of famous authors which he often read on his tours through the country. He introduced each passage with a comment of his own. They reflect the deep understanding and affection he had acquired for this republic through his travels.

Among his comments:

New York City: "One of the best things that can happen in New York is when friends come from England on their first trip to America—what excitement to show their first real skyscraper, to take them to the Radio City Music Hall, particularly if it is Christmas time, for the audience there is a warm American family audience; to take them on the Staten Island ferry, to the best musical in town, to the wealth of restaurants and museums, to watch to spread before them the riches of this wonder of the world."

New England: "When Elsa and I were first in New York we visited New England several times. After the rapacity of the city, New England gave us great comfort. We had not known in the old world that the new world had 'antiques,' or that there were charming old houses. We both remember with great pleasure Farmington, which is near Hartford, Conn., and its graceful white painted houses. Old wooden houses were a revelation to us, as were elms, clam chowder, Boston scrod, trilliums which carpet the woodlands in spring, mountain laurel and the blazing colors in fall."

The South: "I have many memories of the south — of Chapel Hill in North Carolina where Thomas Wolfe was educated. It was spring, and I have never seen such a burst of blossom. There was a backyard with cherry trees, and there were cardinal birds among the pink blossoms. I will never forget that."

Chicago: "Chicago has many memories for me, and the best was the first. Elsa and I had just come to America and we were in a play together in Chicago. We had a small apartment overlooking the lake in a hotel on Lake Shore Drive, and the weather was bitter cold. There were ropes between the street lamps because it was icy underfoot, and the wind off the lake was bitter strong."

California: "Elsa and I were in New York first and then Chicago and afterward in California. It was only in California that we began to look around. We got to the mountains, the lakes, the deserts and the sea. In San Francisco, the Monterey Peninsula, the old missions, and started to learn about the redwood forests, and the flowers of the prodigal west coast."

Astrological Forecast

For December 20
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Check medical, dental appointments. Be sure you address mail correctly. Take special care with written, spoken word. Be sure you are at right place at right time.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): If you expect "red carpet" treatment, you may be disappointed. Be practical. Utilize Taurean qualities of "earthiness." Face facts as they exist. Friends, associates are on "your side."

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Show off best qualities, nothing halfway today. All the way or nothing at all, especially in creative or business dealings. Full steam ahead.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Follow through on ideas, projects. Strive for improvements in personal, professional activities. Plug up leaks in budget. Check domestic matters. Harmonize relations within home.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21): Solid basis today for actions which promote prestige. Be kind, considerate, diplomatic. Take "steady" course. Avoid one who "rocks boat." Keys are initiative, independence, original approach.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Permit love to dictate actions. Utilize flair for originality in making up gift program. Remember family needs along practical lines. Intuitive flash could solve recent dilemma.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Take care of personal needs, improve appearance and disposition. Avoid being rushed, harassed. Sense of humor saves you from situation which otherwise might be embarrassing.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Best to attend to details personally. Take time to be alone with thoughts. Visit one who is confined to hospital or home due to illness. Be considerate. Act in manner which reflects kindness, love.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Socialize, appreciative friends. Make hopes, aspirations come closer to reality. Do so by taking positive action. Don't worry about past. Potential great. Live up to it!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Alone with rhythm of events. Get cards, shopping lists completed. Remember spiritual lessons encompassed within holiday season. Avoid over - commercialization. Fine for evening at home.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Avoid rush, bustle. Take time to make intelligent decisions. Use imagination to accomplish goals with current assets. Avoid extravagance. You make others happy by first being happy yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Remember previous promises. Try to keep them. Stress practicality. Attend to details, family responsibilities. Adjustment in domestic area necessary. Act on highest motives. Others will respond beautifully.

If today is your birthday . . . you achieve greater domestic happiness in upcoming year. You are loyal and understanding. It's time to start solving certain problems.

General Tendencies: Questions arise concerning morality and loyalty. Various debates prove clash of ideas very exciting. Cycle up for Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius.

Two close games highlighted the weekly double-bill for the YMCA Junior Basketball League held this past Saturday when the Giants hit the Celtics 18-15 and the Warriors speared the Globetrotters 21-18.

Mike Hume led the Giants in the opener with a 10-point show, whilst Bob Watson tallied the full 15 points for the Irish.

In the second tilt Dave Beresford was high man for the winning Warriors with ten points and Dave McLean's 8 points sparked the Globetrotters' scoring.

Line-up:
First game:
Celtics—Ryan; Watson 15; Pugh
Slater; Ward; Law, J. Hume, Hiuser; Ross; Narusevicius.
Giants—Hasman; Beleiret; Lovett 4; Hall; R. McLean; Gilbong; Hume 10.
Second game:
Warriors: D. Beresford 10; Hoard 9; Maybee; Mc. later; Acton; Lepore.
Globetrotters—D. McLean 8; T. Beresford 1; Phillips 7; Alarc; Buchanan 2; Searle; Buchan.

Hope Mounting Cuban Captives May Be Freed

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP) — Hope mounted today that 1,113 Bay of Pigs prisoners may be freed from Premier Fidel Castro's prisons by Christmas in exchange for U.S. food and medicine.

New York lawyer James B. Donovan led a team of negotiators into a round of talks with Castro Tuesday night.

Large stores of donated drugs and food were being assembled near Miami, Fla., in case the exchange goes through.

Donovan, who arranged the trade of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for Russian spy Rudolph Abel early this year, arrived Tuesday on a third trip to Havana in his effort to effect the release of the Cubans captured in the invasion of April, 1961. WOULD FLY OUT

Sources close to the negotiators said the prisoners, if freed, probably will be flown to Miami in chartered planes.

Castro demanded $62,000,000 for their liberty last summer but later to take food and medicine instead of cash.

Havana relatives of the prisoners perked up on hearing reports from the United States of the shipment of these items as supplies to Ops-Locks airfield near Miami.

Radio reports included these details:

Castro demanded $23,000,000 worth of drugs, $6,000,000 in equipment, $9,500,000 in powdered milk and $14,500,000 in baby foods and supplied long lists of the drugs wanted. This totals only $53,000,000 at manufacturers' list prices, but Donovan said some time ago Castro could put his own value on the stocks.

It was understood the prisoners would be released on delivery of 20 per cent of the amount demanded and a pledge for the balance.

The 435-foot freighter African Pilot, loaned by the Farrell Lines to the Red Cross, was steaming to Port Everglades, Fla., to pick up the load if the exchange is completed.

THEY'RE CO-OPERATIVE

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dick Chamberlain and Donna Douglas will be co-operative actor and actress. The Hollywood Women's Press Club, which sponsors the annual awards, named Doris Day and Warren Beatty the most uncooperative acting pair. Actress Barbara Stanwyck handed out the apples.

Picton News

Film Council Hears Talk, Views Movies

PICTON — The December meeting of the Film Council was held on Monday evening in the library, Monday evening. The president, Wayne Smith, opened the meeting and welcomed all.

The first film was "The Little Match Girl," a delightful Christmas fairy tale shown in colour. The film was very effective in the midst of plenty, there are those who are in want.

Mr. Smith introduced Rev. W. Lewis, who spoke beautifully on Christ's love for mankind, the great joy Christmas brings and the spirit of sharing that the Wise Men taught us. Rev. Lewis also spoke on the old city of Jerusalem, and its sacredness for Moslems, Jews and Christians.

A film of Christmas carols was put on and all joined in the lovely, yet soul-stirring tales of Christmas.

A fantastic film called "Le Merle," French-Canadian in origin depicted in a laughable roan was shown.

The last film, "The Story of Handel's Messiah," with its certain parts sung, was truly a delight. It is to be heard Wednesday night on CBC.

The president gave a riddle contest, Mrs. J. Kearney winning the prize.

An appropriately decorated table was carried in, laden with goodies. Tea and coffee was served and a delicious lunch consewas enjoyed by the happy crowd. A vote of thanks was tendered the lunch committee by James Tully. The next meeting will be January 13.

The Film Festival will be held in Queen Elizabeth School on February 19-20. Excellent films will be shown. All are welcome.

Gregory Clapp was the able projectionist for the moving pictures, and J. Tully for the slide projection.

The members of the lunch son committee were: Mrs. C Mitchell, Mrs. Marlow, Mrs. E Payne, Miss Edith Thompson and Miss Madeline Goode. Their efforts were super and everyone enjoyed the happy Christmas party.

Holstein Club Holds Meeting In Bloomfield

PICTON — The annual meeting of Prince Edward Holstein Club was held in Bloomfield hall. Ross Parks welcomed everyone, in attendance and spoke briefly on the year's activities.

The guest speaker was George McLaughlin, owner and operator of Dunrobin farm, Metcroft Farm, Beaverton. Mr. McLaughlin spoke of some of the problems that farmers must now be prepared to deal with; among them being Marketing Farm Products, Land Use Planning and Farmer Education. Mr. McLaughlin stated that we need educated farmers in leadership positions and went on to point out that education gained through experience was of particular importance. The speaker was introduced by Gordon Parks and thanked by Hubert Townsend who presented him with a Prince Edward County dress.

Harold McCaul, Director Holstein Friesian Association of Canada brought greetings from the parent Association and G. E. Nelson, Fieldman reported on the club activities in his area. Long time and production certificates were presented with the final certificate for 100,000 pounds of milk produced going to Cecil Tomlinson, Belleville, Graham Foster, Bloomfield and Hubert Townsend. Carrying Place. Hubert Townsend also was the recipient of 2 Blue Seal certificates for cows with 125,000 pounds of milk produced and a Silver Seal certificate for a cow with 150,000 pound production. On star breed cows were awarded to the herds of Jim. Alexander, Hillier; Peter Proctor, Picton and Hubert Townsend, Carrying Place. Alan Baxter, Bloomfield was the winner of the draw for a mail box sign and Larry Lough, R.R. 7, Belleville was the winner of the purebred calf donated from the herd of Donald Kerr, Milford.

Silver Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

PICTON — On the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Keith Brummell were guests at a surprise supper at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Tom/May, who with Mr. May opened their home to 40 guests for a pot-luck supper. Upon arriving the surprised couple were presented with a corsage and boutonnieres, gifts of their grandchildren.

The guests of honor were escorted to the table covered with a white linen cloth centred with a lovely wedding cake donated by their niece, Mrs. Lloyd Rankin. Potted mums and lighted tapers also adorned the table. After everyone had partaken of a bountiful meal their daughter Sharon gave an address to the bride and bridegroom of twenty-five years and on behalf of the group assembled, they were presented with a beautiful easy chair by Tom May and Roger Morden.

The tables were cleared while some of the group retired to the living room to watch television and others played cards or visited. At midnight Tom, Joan and Sharon served a lunch of cake, cookies, ice cream and coffee. The guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Brummell many more years of wedded life together.

Guests present were Mrs. Pearl Jeffery, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jeffery, Katrina and Boys, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brummell and girls, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bateman all of Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brummell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brummell and Mary, Harry, Brenda and Sharon Brummell all of Cherry Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jeffery, Mrs. Laura Carnahan, Mrs. Emma Jennemore, and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Fraser, all of Picton and district. Mr. Ben Chapman of Bloomfield, Mrs. Ralph Dodds and Joey of Belleville.

B. & P. WOMEN'S CHRISTMAS PARTY

PICTON — The Picton Business and Professional Women's Club enjoyed their Christmas party meeting at the home of Mary Frederick.

The living room was decorated in Christmas theme and a large, decorated tree, while the fireplace was adorned with large Christmas socks. Dinner was served amongrasbord style.

Following dinner court whist was enjoyed; high winners were Gladys Foster and Edith Markland; low winner was Kay Camp. Bernice Clappham won the travelling prize.

Kay Wright distributed the Christmas gifts. Each member also gave $1.00 to go to a needy family.

President Gena Ostrander thanked Mary for opening her home for the enjoyable evening.

Police Got Him Out Of Wedlock

PALERMO, Sicily (AP)—Police say Anna Cardella, 40, considered Salvatore Sammarco a likely husband for her daughter Anna.

Mrs. Cardella invited the 18-year-old boy to her home, then locked him in a room with her 20-year-old daughter for four days. She served them meals regularly.

Salvatore's parents notified the police when he didn't come home. The police located the pair and now holding Mrs. Cardella and her daughter on a kidnaping charge.

Canadian's Goal:

He Seeks to Bolster Co-operation Between Nation's Indians, Whites

By ED TREFIAK

EDMONTON (CP) — William Ivan Clarke Wuttunee was once able to pick a partridge out of a tree with a slingshot.

"I had to," he says. "Otherwise there often wouldn't be any dinner."

His aim is still good. But now he has other targets, and more powerful weapons.

Bill Wuttunee, a 34-year-old Edmonton lawyer who writes poetry in his spare time, is one of Canada's most influential Indians.

As chief of the National Indian Council, he is using his mental vigor and forceful personality to shoot for two main goals—to bolster the Canadian Indian's self-respect and culture and to build a spirit of co-operation between the Indian and the white man.

The council, made up of provincial groups, was formed in 1961 to represent the Indian nationally, co-ordinate his activities and promote his culture.

Mr. Wuttunee, a trim, grey-haired, full-blooded Cree born on the Red Pheasant reserve in northwestern Saskatchewan, was elected co-chairman. At the group's annual meeting in Toronto this fall he became chief.

RESENT LAND LOSS

A major council project is to get a federal commission set up to decide Indian compensation claims for lands confiscated by the white man and to resolve treaty rights disputes.

"The Indian is still very resentful of the white man for taking over his land," Mr. Wuttunee said. "It wasn't as long ago as people seem to think. My grandfather once owned a large area of land, but it was taken away."

This resentment was so strong that an Indian separatist movement flourished — groups hoped to band together, break away from Canada and seek foreign help to set up their own country. Mr. Wuttunee once supported the idea.

"One night, after I had given a speech outlining our attitudes, I met a white man who understood my feelings, and I began to change. At the same time I noticed the attitude of white people toward me beginning to change.

"I'm convinced that you can't help Indians from the outside. You have to begin with yourself. When your attitudes become different, you influence others.

"My bitterness has gone. Now I try to explain the Indian's problems to the white man and try to interpret the white man's position for the Indian."

PLAN NEWSPAPER

Interpretation and explanation is to become an important role of the council when its official newspaper begins publication in Winnipeg within the next year.

Jasper Hill, a Mohawk Indian, and Mrs. Marion Meadmore, a Salteaux Indian from British Columbia, will be senior staff members. Both are experienced writers.

Mr. Wuttunee said the paper will aim at keeping Indians informed on national matters, present news concerning Indians and cover items of regional interest. How often the paper will be published has not been decided.

One of his favorite spare-time pursuits is writing poetry, "not modern stuff so much, but very that rhymes." He has had poems published in poetry journals, and once was vice-president of the Saskatchewan Poetry Society.

He became the first full-blooded Indian to be admitted to the Alberta Law Society in a ceremony before Mr. Justice Neil Primrose in Alberta Supreme Court recently and now is about to set up his own general law practice.

Mr. Wuttunee received most of his elementary school education on the Red Pheasant reserve. It was while his family lived on the reserve that he would be sent out to hunt for the supper.

BECAME LAWYER

"There weren't very many rocks around for slingshot ammunition, so sometimes I had to make a little hook of barbed wire and fasten it on the end of a long stick. I'd sneak up behind a partridge sitting on a tree branch, and slip the hook around its neck."

The Wuttunees later moved to Battleford. His parents, now retired, still live there.

He finished elementary and high school at Battleford, graduating at the top of his class with an average of 89 per cent, and received a law scholarship to McGill University, where he went for a year. He returned to Saskatchewan where he completed his law studies and was admitted to the bar in 1954. He practised general and insurance law.

He served as president of the Saskatchewan Council on Minority Groups and became a director of the John Howard Society.

About a year ago he and his wife Nola, a Canadian of Polish-French descent whom he married in 1953, decided to move to Edmonton, where he had been offered a job as regional liaison officer with the federal citizenship department. With them came their children, Nisha, 2, and daughters Wanda, 5, Lauren, 5, and Nola, 3.

After coming here he began to study for Alberta exams, and qualified this fall for admission to the province's bar.

Complaint Made Of Poor Food Says Witness

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Wesley Kerr of Barrie, son of a resident of Grey County Home for the Aged, said Tuesday his mother had complained to him about poor food and inadequate heat in the home on various occasions.

Kerr told a judicial inquiry into the home's operations that he relayed his mother's complaints to Owen Sound Mayor E. C. Sargent whose complaints instigated the inquiry.

Kerr said Mayor Sargent printed those complaints in his weekly newspaper and shortly after publication Wesley Lindsay, home superintendent, telephoned Kerr accusing him of making wild statements. Kerr said Lindsay told him he would sue for defamation of character if he didn't retract the statements.

Later Kerr signed a statement dictated by Lindsay stating that the information he gave the mayor was not founded on fact, Kerr told the court. However, he said, about a week later he wrote Mayor Sargent telling him he had signed the statement and would not have done so had he known other persons had similar complaints of conditions at the home.

Kerr did testify in court Tuesday that he doesn't think his mother's complaints were justified.

Clinton McCutcheon, 69, a home resident for five years until August, 1962, and resident of neighboring Durin County Home at present, told the court he had never been mistreated in Grey County Home.

However, McCutcheon said he had heard attendants slapping Allan McMann, 62, who died shortly after in the summer of 1960. He said when he asked McMann what had happened in the next room where he heard him crying, McMann replied: "If you got what I got this morning you'd be crying too."

Howard McManus, the elderly man's son, told the court earlier Tuesday he does not believe his father's condition worsened because of treatment he received in the home. He told the inquiry he feels his father's exaggerated conditions at the home in hopes of getting out.

The inquiry continues.

Great Changes Sweeping Through Mental Hospitals; No More Lock-Away Jails

New and encouraging treatments for the mentally ill today are replacing the centuries-old idea of hiding victims behind asylum walls. Here, in one of a series of special reports, is a look at what's being done in the United States to heal the ill.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Just before midnight one December evening, his emotional pain became too intense.

So a middle-aged man exploded into a shouting volcano of rage, then surrendered to helpless sobbing.

By taxi, his wife took him to a new kind of hospital clinic offering emergency first aid—24 hours a day—for emotional injury, a kind of mental accident ward.

At the emergency clinic, the man of 50 was given a tranquillizer and talked with a psychiatrist, learning that his feelings of frustration and depression were not uncommon, taking the first step toward understanding and dealing with his problems.

His case is one in a heartening change of climate regarding mental illness.

GIVE BACK HEALTH

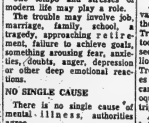
The change is sweeping through state mental hospitals. Once they were mainly dour, lock-away jails for "the insane." Today, the best hospitals are sending the majority of newly-admitted patients back to home and health.

Generating the winds of change are drugs, intensive psychotherapy, increased hospital staffs, earlier treatment, a variety of new community facilities and more enlightened public understanding and interest.

Mental patients fill half the hospital beds in the U.S., one in 10 Americans is mentally ill in mild to severe degree. Ten per cent of public school children are estimated to be emotionally disturbed, in need of help.

The tempo and stresses of modern life may play a role.

The trouble may involve job, marriage, family, school, a tragedy, approaching retirement, failure to achieve goals, something arousing fear, anxieties, doubts, guilt, anger, depression or other deep emotional reactions.



NO SINGLE CAUSE

There is no single cause of mental illness, authorities agree.

"None of us is always perfectly healthy mentally," says Dr. William Menninger of the renowned Menninger Clinic of Topeka, Kan. "Each of us has emotional quirks and problems."

Where once there was a pervading sense of hopelessness concerning mental illness, now there is "a ferment and eagerness" that the problems can be solved, says Dr. Robert H. Felix, director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

"I feel that perhaps the sun has come up and we are in the very early morning hours, at least, of a new day in the field of the mentally ill," he declares.

I.O.O.F. Rally Features Tour Of Interest

STIRLING — A large group of Stirling Oddfellows attended an I.O.O.F. rally in Trenton on a recent Saturday.

The group gathered from various points in the district they were served coffee in the Trenton Lodge hall. The hosts took the visitors on a sightseeing tour to view Mount Felion, the Bata Shoes Factory, the Trenton airport and other places of interest. The guests who came from as far as Gananoque were delighted with these trips.

A banquet followed in the lodge hall and the evening was centred on an encampment rally with D. Hinton Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Ontario delivering a special address.

Farley Parnell, last year's District Deputy Grand Patriarch was presented with his jewel.

Ivan Sine of Eldorado and a member of Stirling Lodge had the lucky ticket on a clock.

At the close of lodge refreshments were served and a short social half hour enjoyed.

NON-CONFIDENCE VOTES TAKEN BEFORE RECESS

Meat Inspection Bill Given Airing

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature adjourned for its Christmas recess early today, a few hours after the Progressive Conservative government surmounted its first two non - confidence motions of the current session.

Both motions were in the form of opposition amendments to the government motion in reply to the speech from the throne.

A Liberal non-confidence motion was beaten by a vote of 43 to 22, the five New Democratic Party members joining with the official opposition. Only the NDP members supported their own motion which expressed non-confidence in the Liberals as well as the government.

Before adjourning, the legislature gave final readings to the government's bills on meat inspection, loan guarantees for economic development and agricultural rehabilitation.

The final sitting of the session, which began Nov. 27, ended shortly before midnight when Lieutenant - Governor J. Keiller Mackay gave royal assent to government legislation and a dozen private bills.

No date has been announced but it is expected the session will resume the last week in January.

MEAT BILL PASSED

The meat inspection bill, to provide for inspection of all meat and poultry in the province within two years, was aired in the legislature's agriculture committee and passed committee of the whole without amendment.

The Meat Inspection Act provides for inspection in all plants now coming under federal inspection to be paid for by the province after Jan. 1.

The Loans Guarantee Act provides for the guarantee of loans by Ontario ministries which are unable to obtain financing for development in the province through regular lending institutions.

The Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act clearing the way for federal - provincial research and projects for improvement of land in rural areas of the province.

Provincial Treasurer John Yaremko ended the throne speech debate with a fiery defence of government policy, punctuated with attacks on the NDP for

JFK, Macmillan Find Extra Day Of Talks Needed

Are Too Many Problems To Cover in Two Days

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—An overload of nuclear strategy problems centring about the British-American wrangle over the Skybolt missile has forced President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan to extend their little summit meeting for an additional day.

The two leaders were reported to have "some prospect of a compromise which will satisfy both sides" in the missile dispute. Their spokesmen said there definitely was no deadlock. But the spokesmen said the original two-day conference timetable had not proved sufficient for discussion of the Skybolt controversy and problems involving about it and the whole spectrum of cold war issues.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said a communique will be issued after the final session Friday.

WERE OTHER MATTERS

The reason for prolonging the conference, Salinger said, was not that the Skybolt, but it is all of the NATO defence matters as well.

"There is no question that we are making good progress," Salinger said. "The agenda was just too great to be handled in two days."

Still to be discussed were such cold war matters as the aftermath of the Cuban crisis, the Chinese - Indian conflict, Moscow's ideological battle with the Red Chinese and the world's troubles it presents, Arab Middle East problems generated by the overthrow of the feudal monarchy in Yemen, and the European economy and the Common Market.

Nuclear problems, Skybolt and the prospects of a new Soviet-sparked crisis in The Congo gobbled up the two leaders' time Wednesday. The most nagging question was Britain's resistance to U.S. plans to scrap Skybolt, the American missile which Britain planned to use as its chief independent nuclear weapon.

COMPROMISE POSSIBLE

Although a compromise was reported in prospect, this in itself generated a host of other complicated problems involving the whole Western defence posture, the ever-growing crisis in Europe for an independent nuclear potential, the impact on other NATO allies if the outcome of the British - American discussions, the alternatives if Britain is left without a bone Skybolt and other questions.

Harold Macmillan's domestic public relations adviser, told reporters he saw no possibility that the present controversy in the Western big two were beyond solution. He said Kennedy and Macmillan were "determined to see their way through to a solution of these problems."

OTTAWA (CP) — The accent will be on such subjects as keeping the initiative in dealings with the Communist world when Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Prime Minister Macmillan meet in the Bahamas Friday.

Mr. Diefenbaker will fly to Nassau Friday and lunch with President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan, his office said today.

His scheduled departure at 4 p.m. EST today was postponed until Friday at 11 a.m. EST as a result of the decision to hold further discussions between President Kennedy and Mr. Macmillan.

Mr. Diefenbaker is expected to seek a briefing from Mr. Macmillan on the British prime minister's meetings with President Kennedy during the three preceding days and with President de Gaulle in Paris last weekend.

High on the list of topics is the Cuban crisis in which the Canadian government is understood to have felt that the United States failed to carry adequate consultation with its allies before imposing a naval quarantine.

The Canadian and British leaders are also expected to discuss the ever-explosive border war between India and China.

Divisions in the Communist world are likely to come up during discussion of the Cuba crisis and its aftermath.

Apart from these international problems, the Canadian prime minister is expected to ask Mr. Macmillan for his latest assessment of Britain's bid to enter the European Common Market on which negotiations are stalled.

Huge Rockets Cumbersome, Russia Turns to U.S. Style Letting America Gain Lead

WASHINGTON (CP) — Secret intelligence reaching the United States indicates Russia is abandoning her huge space rockets for later - continental missiles and concentrating instead on production of smaller, more sophisticated models, somewhat along American lines.

This shift in production emphasis, reported in authoritative quarters here, is what led Defence Secretary Robert McNamara to claim last month that the so-called missile gap favoring the Russians is a myth and that the margin of superiority now favors the U.S.

For years the Russians concentrated on development of huge rockets apparently because early types of Soviet nuclear warheads were primitive and bulky, requiring a tremendous amount of rocket thrust to lift the warhead and carry it across the oceans.

This early need for development of giant rockets is believed in the U.S. to have given Russia a significant lead in manned space orbits. Soviet rockets, with an estimated thrust of some 1,300,000 pounds, can lift about three times the weight of existing American boosters.

However, the giant Soviet rockets are difficult to safeguard and to transport. The prevailing concept is that inter-continental missiles must be protected in underground silos to prevent destruction from enemy attack.

Traffic Toll Over Holiday Forecast at 58

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Highway Safety Council forecasts a traffic death toll of 58 in the five-day Christmas period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Wednesday.

The Christmas toll, including Boxing Day, last year was 53.

W. Arch Bryce, council executive-director, said in a statement Wednesday:

"Unless every driver and every pedestrian fully and seriously realizes the perils of combined festivity, excitement and celebration, Canada's holiday toll might well exceed our fearful forecast of 58."

The council forecast 15 traffic fatalities will occur in the 30-hour period between 6 p.m. Dec. 31 and midnight New Year's Day. Last year in a three-day New Year's weekend 35 were killed.

Has Nothing to Hide Says SIU Welfare Administrator

OTTAWA (CP) — Bernard Boulanger, administrator of the Canadian Seafarers' welfare plan, told the federal investigation of labor strife on the Great Lakes Wednesday that he has "nothing to hide."

"My plan is clean," he declared after he was questioned about his 1961 salary and about a missing passage in an extract of a document he had filed with the commission.

Mr. Boulanger made the statement during cross-examination by Marc Lalonde, one of two lawyers acting for the federal inquiry commission headed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver.

Mr. Lalonde said welfare plan books showed Mr. Boulanger received $17,600 in 1961. Mr. Boulanger insisted he received only $11,600 but could not explain the discrepancy.

The missing passage came to light when Mr. Lalonde read an extract of a resolution filed by Mr. Boulanger to show that welfare plan trustees authorized rental payments to the SIU for its offices in the union headquarters in Montreal.

This extract was compared with the actual resolution in the trustees minute book—showing that the extract did not report that the trustees also voted to look into the cost of renting offices elsewhere than in the SIU building.

Mr. Boulanger said the trustees decided to set up a committee to check alternative

HOUSE STAGES SOME OF ITS WILDEST SCENES

Speaker Hard Put To Maintain Order

OTTAWA (CP)—The jittery, cliff - hanging 25th Parliament staged some of its wildest scenes in the Commons Wednesday.

Opposition Leader Pearson touched off an uproar when he accused the government of violating two "fundamental" rights of Parliament and failing to deal with the country's most urgent problems.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was drowned out by desk-banging, hooting Liberal back-benchers when he tried to answer the charges. He finally gave up and strode out of the chamber.

Half-serious name-calling arguments marked most of the abbreviated 2½-hour Wednesday sitting and Speaker Marcel Lambert had difficulty restoring order at times.

A 15-minute debate erupted over a headline in a Toronto newspaper. But just before the 6 p.m. adjournment five bills of regional scope were whipped through various stages in 30 minutes.

Chances of a Compromise Fade in Divorce Controversy

OTTAWA (CP) — The chances of the House of Commons turning over to the Senate the full power of granting parliamentary divorces have faded with collapse of negotiations for a debate on the plan.

The New Democratic Party, whose members have staged a blockade on divorce bills in the Commons and killed 700 of them, has taken a firm stand against special steps to debate a bill which would bypass the blockade, informed sources said.

The bill, introduced by Nicolas Mandziuk (PC — Marquette), would empower the colleagues, has stalled most of Senate to dissolve marriages of Quebec and Newfoundland residents by resolution.

At present they are dissolved by act of Parliament, involving passage of a private bills in both the Commons and Senate on the basis of recommendations by the Senate divorce committee. Other provinces run their own divorce courts.

The NDP blockade by Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) and Frank Howard (Skeena), has been used occasionally by others the divorce bills from the last

91 New Liquor Licences Issued During Year

TORONTO (CP)—New liquor licences were granted for 91 establishments during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1962, the annual report of the Ontario Liquor license board disclosed Wednesday.

The report, tabled in the legislature, said new licences were granted to 30 hotels, 11 taverns, seven military messes, one restaurant, 26 social clubs, 15 veterans clubs and one labor club.

Ninety - one licences were granted in the previous fiscal year, and 86 in the year before.

During the year the status of 15 municipalities changed from dry to wet and the municipalities voted in favor of lounge or dining lounge licences.

There were 2,335 establishments in Ontario licensed to sell alcoholic beverages: 1,034 hotels, 298 taverns, 321 public houses, 322 veterans clubs, 256 social clubs, 23 labor clubs, 144 military messes, 21 restaurants, three railways and three steamships.

The report shows $1,131,998.26 was paid to municipalities in fees and fines under the Liquor Control Act.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 19, 1962

Liberal Leader Pearson, House Conservative upraar, accused the government of showing its contempt for Parliament.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker tried to reply but finally gave up and left Deputy Speaker Vainy called for order over Liberal MP's uproar.

Hazen Lewis (NDP—York South) said the government has failed in its unofficial stand on oppression of natives in South Africa and Angola.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia, Alta.) complained there is too much politics involved in the national fitness program.

The Senate gave second reading to the Atlantic Development Board bill and agreed to schedule final approval for today.

NDP Leader Wants Speaker To Be Permanent

TORONTO (CP)—A bill to establish a provincial riding of Queen Park to provide for election of a permanent Speaker, was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by New Democratic Party Leader Donald C. MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald said at first reading of the bill that "there has been a growing support from all parties in Canada" for the adoption of the British practice of choosing a permanent Speaker.

In a memorandum released to the press in conjunction with his motion, he said the objection that election of a permanent Speaker by the people would disenfranchise the voters of the Speaker's provincial constituency could be overcome by creating a special riding of Queen's Park, consisting of the assembly itself.

Election of a permanent Speaker would mean that the man holding that office "would be free from partisan politics not only during the brief tenure of one or two legislatures but for as long as his health and age permitted."

Expect Special UN Meeting Over Problem of Finances

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The 17th United Nations Assembly drove for adjournment today—but with the haunting feeling that another meeting will be held in an attempt to settle financial problems.

Assembly President Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan has staged a frantic - long campaign to get things settled on time.

To be settled on votes were the perennial issues of Hungary and Palestine, with a fairly clear result on both.

Two Canadian - introduced measures were overwhelmingly approved in the assembly Wednesday, the first approving a world court advisory opinion that all UN members should pay their share of UN peace - keeping operations.

Seventy - six countries supported the resolution but the Soviet Union and France joined 15 other countries in opposition.

The other resolution called for appointment of a 21 - member committee to study apportionment of costs henceforward.

The group, by the terms of the resolution, will seek some system by which underdeveloped countries would pay proportionately less than developed countries of the security council more for the peace - keeping costs.

But of the permanent members, France, Nationalist China and the Soviet Union never have paid anything for the Congo operation. The Soviet Union never has paid anything for the Middle East operation either.

The other permanent members, Britain and the United States, have been helping pay for both operations, with the U.S. carrying the heaviest load. Canada has been paying its share of both operations according to the regular UN budget and also maintaining contingents in both places.

The special session — recommended by Secretary - General U Thant—is expected to be held in May and is expected also to be stormy in view of the great power differences.

Airman Who Saved Thousands At Belsen Now TCA President

MONTREAL (CP)—A visiting British rabbi has found the former RCAF officer he says saved thousands of lives in the days after Belsen concentration camp was liberated in the spring of 1945.

The former officer is Gordon McGregor, president of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Rabbi Leslie Hardman met him again Thursday as a result of newspaper stories published here last week.

Rabbi Hardman, a former British Army chaplain, said last week he didn't remember the names of the Canadians, encouraged by a sympathetic officer, who gave food, medical supplies and cigarettes to inmates of the German concentration camp.

"But I'd just like to shake them by the hand," he said. He was here to address a

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Arctic air moved into Ontario last night and temperatures in Southern Ontario are expected to rise very little today.

A weak low-pressure system will likely bring increasing cloudiness tonight accompanied by some moderation in temperature and snow in southern regions.

If This Just Blemishing Peace How Would It Look if Scarred?

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—An infatuated woman spurned by her doctor has admitted she was revenged by inserting a false notice of his death in a daily newspaper.

Mrs. Ruth Veronique Hughes, 46, pleaded guilty to a charge of "blemishing the peace" by conducting an anonymous 18-month campaign against Dr. Bernard Barnett.

Prosecutor F. M. Dunstant said she:

1. Advertised Dr. Barnett's house for sale when he had no intention of moving.

2. Telephoned his home on numerous occasions and sang up without speaking.

3. Stealthily fixed a padlock and chain on his front gate.

4. Bombarded his surgery with printed labels: "Dr. Barnett is a wolf."

5. Sent his children a copy of Red Riding Hood with the word "wolf" underlined throughout.

6. Punctured his tires by spreading 2,380 thumbtacks over his driveway during the 18-month period.

A thumbtack operation led to Mrs. Hughes' arrest. She was seen by a policeman.

"I'm glad I have been caught at last because there is no telling where or when it would have ended," she said.

The prosecutor said Dr. Barnett struck Mrs. Hughes off his list of patients after becoming aware of her infatuation for him.

The housewife, mother of two grown sons, was ordered to post a $112 bond to remain on good behavior.

10-Room Addition Planned For Harry J. Clarke School; Board Buys Site in West End

The Harry J. Clarke Public School in the northeast section of the city which only this year saw a new addition completed, already has new growing pains.

To keep pace with the school enrolment growth in the east end of the city, the Belleville Public School Board has decided that another new addition is called for in the area and plans are for a 10-roomed two storey junior school addition at the Harry J. Clarke School site.

Schools superintendent L. A. Kells said the Harry J. Clarke school property was large enough for the proposed new addition, and that the location also was suitable for the area to be served.

It is expected that application to the Department of Education for approval of the proposed addition will be made in 1963.

Although the addition would be a new wing to the present structure, plans would be to operate it as a separate unit.

BUY NEW SITE

But the east end is not the only section of Belleville in which there is a population boom.

The school board has also completed the purchase of a 6.2 acre school site on the Fonton property east of Sidney Street and here also it is expected there will be application for construction approval next year.

Mr. Kells said the first phase of construction would be for a six or seven-roomed school.

The public school board also has a school site on West Bridge Street, purchased from the Ontario School for the Deaf. This site is on the south west corner at the intersection of Bridge Street and Palmer Road. However, there are no services in this area, and it is not expected construction will be started for possibly two or three years.

COST IS $31,700.

The Sidney Street school site just recently purchased is on the north side of the extension of Leland Street and about 300 feet west of Sidney. Cost of the property was $21,700.

Mr. Kells said that surveys conducted by the board show that school attendance in West Belleville is now growing faster in proportion than it is in the east end. In overall numbers however, the school enrolment growth in the east end is still keeping ahead.

About three-fifths of the city public school enrolment is east of the river and just over two-fifths west of the Moira and in the northwest section of the city.

COLD WEATHER EXPECTED—Below-normal temperatures will cover most of Canada from mid-December to mid-January, according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau.

The outlook, based on long-range predictions, is not a specific forecast and a change in weather pattern may produce surprises.

Light to moderate precipitation is expected to predominate except for areas in Alberta and Saskatchewan and along the Atlantic coast. Table gives normal precipitation in inches of rain; one inch of rain equals 10 inches of snow. (CP Newsmap.)

Membership Of C of C Grew In Past Year

TRENTON — Trenton Chamber of Commerce 1962 membership stood at the combined total of 1960 and 1961 membership.

Chamber activity during the year included mailing out thousands of brochures on the town to points across Canada and the U.S.

During the year the chamber ran a tourist booth; co-operated with the police and town council in trying to induce industries to locate in Trenton; sponsored a clean-up week and ran a "Get-out-to-vote" campaign.

Next year, the chamber hopes to see the bay cleared of weeds and the banks of the Trent beautified.

Another suggestion advanced by the chamber is that Trenton have a museum.

The chamber would like to see flags erected outside the downtown stores and hanging flower baskets placed on the town's main streets.

In the meantime, chamber executive members continue to press for a permanent office building and hope that this can become a reality during 1963.

Watch for Children, Safety Officer Asks

TRENTON—By 2.30 p.m. Friday, close to 2100 children will pour out of the town's public schools, headed for the Christmas holidays. Classes will resume Jan. 3.

Trenton's Safety Officer, Sgt. Gordon Steenburg has issued a special appeal to motorists. He asks that they reduce their speeds and be on the lookout for children running out into lines of traffic.

Children are apt to forget safety rules during the Christmas season, says Sgt. Steenburg, and he places the onus on drivers to remain alert.

At the high school, Christmas tests are over and the students will take home their report cards tomorrow. Classes at the Secondary school will be resumed Jan. 3, also.

Still Battling Over Store Closing Hours

TRENTON—It almost looks as if Trenton merchants will never get together on store closing hours.

From May, 1960, until the fall of that year, a store hour battle waged in the town. Some merchants were in favor of a suggestion, advanced by the then recently re-formed Chamber of Commerce, that stores close Mondays and stay open Wednesdays. All summer, shoppers were confronted with some downtown stores closing on Mondays; closing on Wednesdays; staying open on Mondays; staying open on Wednesdays. Housewives complained bitterly that they just didn't know where they were at. Several merchants threw in the sponge and announced that they would stay open six days a week "until Trenton merchants came to their senses."

Last week the Retail Merchants' section of the Chamber of Commerce announced that, as a result of a poll stores would close at 6 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 22. Now, the arrangement has come in for opposition on the part of some merchants, who wish to remain open until 9 p.m. that night. The special merchants' committee has now made a further appeal to the store operators. "We urge all merchants to remain open (until

H. P. Holway Dies Suddenly At His Home

Well known in the city, especially among the hockey enthusiasts, Harold Peter (Bonnce) Holway, 51½ North Front St., died suddenly at home on Wednesday evening. He was in his 55th year.

Born in Toronto, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Hodges Holway and had lived in Belleville for the past 32 years. He had lived previously in Kingston and in Brockville.

He had been in health fill for the past several months but died unexpectedly from a heart attack.

"Bonnce" Holway as he was popularly known played both junior and intermediate hockey for Belleville and also played for the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and for Brockville in the "big six" O.H.A. Intermediate League. He was rated as one of the better amateur defencemen in the province.

WAR VETERAN

A veteran of World War I he enlisted in the 155th Battalion in Belleville in 1915 and served overseas in France where he was wounded. He received his discharge in 1919.

For the past eight years he was employed by Canadian Celanese Ltd. as a salesman for Neil S. O'Donnell of Toronto. At one time he was the manager of the local wine store.

He is survived by his wife, the former Elizabeth (Bess) Jeffrey, and two daughters, Mrs. Max (Margaret Anne) Holden of Belleville, and Mrs. Jack (Cathy) McBride of Cornwall.

Also surviving are two brothers, Albert R. (Toots) Holway of this city, and Ernest W. Holway of Scarborough, two sisters, Mrs. Ken (Myrtle) Smith of Belleville, and Mrs. Carl (Peg) Taylor of Trenton. There are five grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Decoration Contest

TRENTON — The outdoor decoration contest, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, ends Friday night. Town residents who have decorated their lawns and verandahs have been asked to leave on their colored lights Thursday and Friday nights so that the judges may include their homes in their survey.

Prizes will be given, one for the best side of town; the west side; Middleton Park area; Bayaws and Carrying Place Road.

Firemen Will Deliver Parcels To Children

Between 90 and 1,000 underprivileged children in and around the city of Belleville, will be having a little merrier Christmas this year, thanks to the Chief and members of the Belleville City Fire Department and the local Kiwanis Club.

The children, ranging in ages up to 12 years, will be receiving their Christmas packages this Sunday. They will be delivered by the firemen.

Over 300 flashlight batteries were donated to the chief and his staff for use in various battery-operated toys.

So far, the fire department has spent $900 on the purchase of new toys, mittens, woollen and plastic coated, candy and oranges. Repairable toys were repaired by Kiwanis members at the Kiwanis centre and were picked up by the firemen.

The toys include guns, dolls, doll houses, doll carriages, toys of all descriptions, games, books, hockey sticks, shovels, mittens, tricycles, overshoes, and candy, nuts and oranges.

Three hundred pounds of mixed candy was purchased, along with 12 cases of oranges.

All of the purchases were made from the Belleville fire Department's Underprivileged Children's Christmas Fund.

Monies for this purpose were raised through the Fire Department's social evenings held on Monday nights at the Moose Hall on Victoria Ave.

Admits Leaving Car on Tracks, Reported Stolen

Police this morning claimed a Shannonville district man left his automobile on a level crossing, where it was later hit by a freight train, then reported his car stolen.

Leon Fritz pleaded guilty to misleading police.

O.P.P. constable J. E. McAllister said Fritz's car was hit by a CNR freight train December 2 at the township boundary line of Tyendinaga and Thurlow, just north of the second concession. His 1954 sedan received about $200 damage.

"This vehicle had earlier been reported stolen from in front of the Wayside Inn at Shannonville," said the officer.

Following police inquiries into the incident, Fritz, said the officer, made a statement three days later admitting his claiming the car had been stolen "when he left it on the tracks himself."

"It is a very serious offence," commented assistant crown attorney Gordon Robertson.

"It is a very serious offence," agreed the magistrate. "On the other hand all that was occasioned in this case was some running around for investigation. The defendant already has suffered loss."

A railroad official could give no estimate of damage to the able under the minimum insurance policy at the time of the accident.

DEEP CONCENTRATION — Inspector Bob Fair (left) and Captain Stan Pomeroy of the Belleville Fire Department spend a few spare moments in deep concentration as they make some minor adjustments to a couple of the many toys which the firemen will be distributing in the community just before Christmas.

Bullet Passes Through Body Of Woman, Doing Little Injury

A Consecon woman is recuperating today from what police describe as an "awfully lucky" gunshot accident yesterday.

In Belleville General Hospital is 40-year-old Mrs. Rene Starkey, R.R. 1, Consecon, who accidentally shot herself in the stomach with a .22-calibre pistol yesterday.

Police say doctors believed the bullet passed through her body without doing serious injury.

The gun, say police, was kept fully loaded on the headboard of Mr. and Mrs. Starkey's bed in their home three miles north of Consecon. Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Starkey, seeking some article on the headboard, moved the gun. It discharged firing a bullet into her upper abdomen.

Mr. Alfred Starkey, a sales co-ordinator with a Trenton firm, was at work at the time and was hastily called home by his wife. Mr. Starkey drove the 12 miles home, realized the possible serious implications of the accident and summoned an ambulance from Trenton.

After treatment at Trenton Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Starkey was moved to Belleville hospital for surgery.

The bullet apparently missed any main arteries and she bled—mightily, say police. Despite her lengthy wait at home before being removed to hospital, provincial police from Picton say they found only few traces at the spot where Mrs. Starkey was wounded.

Bruce H. Martin Given $12,000 For Damages

More than $12,000 in damages were awarded Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Ontario to Bruce H. Martin of Consecon.

Because the claim was against the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, representing the now superseded Unsatisfied Judgment Fund, no more than $10,000 of the total of $12,326.20 can be collected.

The action arose out of an accident on Highway 502, near Marysville, on August 24, 1961. Mr. Martin, driving a milk truck, was forced off the road by an unidentified car. This accident occurred within 100 yards of the scene of yesterday's fatal truck accident, on that highway.

Mr. Martin suffered head injuries when his milk truck hit a tree after being forced off the road, and one body of his neck was broken. He spent several months in hospital, in Belleville and Toronto, as a result of the accident, and the neck injury will be a permanent disability.

Lawyer Ronald Case, who represented Mr. Martin in his claim against the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund, described Tuesday's judgment as inadequate on the part of the court, but added, that Mr. Martin's insurance had covered most expenses to date. He explained that the $10,000 maximum payment permitted under the old Unsatisfied Judgments Fund, was no estimate of damage to the accident.

EXPECT TOO MUCH

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The trouble with being named Mary Christmas is that people expect too much. "They expect me to be jolly all the time but I have my bad days just like everyone else," says 19-year-old Mary Christmas, a sophomore at Texas Tech.

Senior Citizens Hold Annual Turkey Dinner

The annual Christmas turkey banquet of the Senior Citizens Club was held on Wednesday evening with 175 members in attendance. The affair was held in Columbus Hall on Front St. with the very sumptuous full course turkey dinner with all the trimmings being served by the ladies group of St. Thomas' Anglican Church. The meeting was opened by the president, Charles L. Hyde with singing of De Queen followed by grace.

After the dinner several Christmas carols were sung while the tables were being cleared and a most interesting and delightful program ensued. The first number was a solo by Mrs. Robert Reid accompanied by Mr. S. Alec Gordon. Mr. Lloyd (Red) Doran proposed a toast to the ladies, responded to by Mrs. F. Alker, and singing, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart". Next was a solo by Mr. Robert Reid. Several draws were made for a number of valuable prizes which had been donated by local manufacturers and were won by some of the members. Mr. and Mrs. Reid accompanied by Mr. Gordon then rendered a very delightful duet. The appreciation of the members to Mr. and Mrs. Reid was amply demonstrated by their applause.

The guest speaker of the evening was the Right Rev. J. R. Sullivan, Rector of St. Michaels' Parish. He delivered a most interesting and timely address pertaining to the Advent and the vital meaning of Christmas in our individual lives. He was introduced by Mr. Fred Bradley, chairman of the Recreation Commission, and appreciation was ably expressed by Mr. James Doyle.

Congratulations were extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Preston who were celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary and a lovely corsage was pinned on Mrs. Preston by the president's wife.

It was also the 81st birthday of Mr. H. E. Shirley who received congratulations and best wishes for many more.

An hour and a half of social pleasure was then enjoyed by all who remained interspersed by old time songs in unison and dancing by those inclined to that pastime, with music being provided by Mrs. L. Adams and Mr. George Gulliver, concluding with midnight waltz and "Good Night Ladies".

61 Places Of Business Found Insecure

During the month of October there were 61 places of business found to be "insecure" and reported by the City Police during their rounds and 21 places were found insecure during the first 13 days of November, a letter for the City Police inspector J. C. Hayes advised the Chamber of Commerce recently.

In most of these instances officers observed that even the safe door was left open, a recent Chamber circular advised.

Local merchants and businessmen have been advised to take more care and precaution to see that their property is secure and help to eliminate the possibility of unauthorized persons entering the premises through unlocked doors and windows.

Family of 18 Homeless After Fire Near Bogart

TWEED — A pre-dawn fire in a frame house five miles east of Bogart, east of this village, left a family of 18 both homeless and shoeless this morning. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Prevost, ranging in age from five months to 18 years escaped the flames, which consumed their home, with only the clothes on their backs and with no shoes on.

The Tweed Volunteer Fire Department was called from a neighbor's phone, located some distance away, but the fire was out of control before the firefighters could arrive on the scene.

The house was totally destroyed and very few of the contents were saved. The fire is believed to have started in the chimney.

At the present the Prevosts are being given shelter by friends and neighbors. Mr. Prevost is a laborer with the Deloro Stellite firm in Belleville.

A second call, this time about 6.30 a.m., also drew the Tweed volunteer firemen out into the cold this morning. This time there was a chimney fire in the kitchen of the Ernest Blakely Bake Shop. No serious damage resulted after the kitchen was getting smoked up and some damage to the roof.

Mrs. Effie McCabe, chairman of the disaster committee of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, said this morning that new clothing will be provided for all members of the family and that bedding for 10 double beds will also be supplied.

In the office of the Ontario Intelligencer has received a number of enquiries throughout the morning by warm-hearted private citizens who have signified their intention to help the Prevost family out in its time of need.

Citizens in Tweed have already swung into action to give the homeless family assistance. Mr. Ted Cournyea of the Tweedsmuir Hotel is in charge of finances' contributions and any donations of clothing, bedding, etc. should be directed to Mr. J. C. Halpenny at the Crown Cleaners firm, where it will be cleaned and forwarded to the Prevosts.

Fire Chief's Car Nearly Wrecked On Way to Blaze

A false alarm turned into the Fire Department by an anonymous caller, could well have resulted in the death, or serious injury, of two fire department officials late yesterday afternoon as they were en route to the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The alarm received at the fire department was that the complete rear of the building housing the Fire Chief, said every available piece of equipment was sent to the scene.

However, upon the arrival of the fire department, it was found the alarm was false:

As the car carrying a department official, was about to turn left off Coleman Street onto Bridge Street West, a westbound car came over the lower bridge. Due to quick action on the part of the fireman-driver, a serious accident was avoided. Fire Chief Vance said the siren on the car was wailing at the time.

Mental Hospital Guard Killed East of City

An inquest has been ordered into the fatal crash of a car from the Ontario hospital at Kingston on highway 401 northeast of Belleville last night, that killed the driver, and injured a hospital guard.

Victim of the crash was 24-year-old James Campbell. The guard — 53-year-old Cecil Dillon — suffered head injuries. Both men were thrown from the vehicle when it rolled over on the highway, three miles east of Belleville.

Also in the car — but uninjured — were Dr. Oliver Kerr, 60, of Cobourg, and another hospital employee, Stewart Dibart.

Cause of the accident which happened about 5:30 p.m. is not known. Provincial police say the car suddenly went out of control, it rolled over and skidded about 200 feet on its roof along the surface of the highway. The vehicle was a write-off.

Campbell died shortly after provincial police arrived at the scene from Belleville.

The three passengers were rushed to Belleville General Hospital. Late last night the three men — including the injured Dillon — were taken to Kingston.

OPP constable Harvey Adamson investigated the fatal mishap.

Revealing Comment

It is a sorry comment on the times that a television program of the kind in which President John F. Kennedy participated Monday evening can be highly informative.

Perhaps, informative is not a strong enough term. To say that such a program can be a revelation would convey a more accurate impression of its impact.

And yet, in a sense, the President revealed little. Most of what he said had been said before, in some instances many times over.

This is just the difficulty. We live in such a welter of facts, analyses and interpretations about day-to-day events that we tend to forget much that we are told. Even when we remember, we often find much of this information contradictory, or apparently contradictory.

Thus it happens when information which is not really new is provided by such an unimpeachable source as the President of the United States, we are sometimes amazed and find it necessary to readjust our thinking to conform with these facts, which are not so much new as they are previously ignored or overlooked.

Such a moment of surprise came when President Kennedy said he was sure that the Russians could hit an anti-ballistic missile with a missile—"we can, too."

This should really have occasioned no surprise. There have been frequent news reports of late of U.S. successes in intercepting missiles fired from California out over the Pacific. There is no good reason to suppose that, if the U.S. possesses the necessary technical skills to achieve this feat, the Russians lack them. Earlier talk about the superior sobriety of U.S. rocketry has been conclusively exploded by the Russian achievement of putting two men into orbit so accurately that one spacecraft could actually be sighted from the other, as they circled the earth together.

Yet it is so short a time ago that the interception of a ballistic missile by another missile was regarded as a virtually impossible feat.

Kennedy hastened to explain the power to intercept did not mean either the Russians or the U.S. possessed any real protection against ballistic missiles. The difficulty, he explained, would be to detect the real missile, the one carrying a hydrogen bomb warhead, from a swarm of decoys. This, he said, was still beyond the capability of the U.S., and he felt sure of Russia, also.

This picture of a deadly ballistic missile hiding amongst a shower of decoys as it races towards its target begs the question: How will the decoys be launched? If they are fired in the same way as the killer weapon, would it not be simpler to arm all of the missiles with warheads? That this could be done without "wasting" too many hydrogen bombs seems probable—there has been much talk of the size of the U.S. stockpile of nuclear weapons and of "overkill" capacity. Perhaps, though, there are technical reasons why it is easier to launch decoys than the real weapons; perhaps these reasons have not been explained at some time. For the moment, though, we are at a loss to understand this decoy strategy—and probably shall remain so until President Kennedy, or some other person of equal authority, provides a brief and convincing explanation.

Drug on the Market

Drug manufacturers were accused of "grossly overplaying the safety of tranquilizers" by Dr. Gaston Morin, clinical director of the Ottawa General Hospital department of psychiatry. Dr. Moran was testifying at the inquest into the death of a man in which tranquilizers were suspected.

When tranquilizers and the other "mood drugs" became available, society praised them as a "boon to humanity." People who were unable to face life, and people who just could not be bothered to face life, took up the use of the pills and felt "respectable" because they were only taking medicines.

When the widespread misuse of these drugs became apparent, doctors quietly warned people of their dangers. But the warnings didn't work. People will insist on doctoring themselves, whether they need it or not, and the most satisfying drugs are always the most dangerous. If the patent medicine habit is to be controlled, the government must put at least as many restrictions on the tranquilizer trade as there are on the liquor trade. People who would quarrel with this suggestion are reminded that marijuana is one of the safer tranquilizers.

American medicine has lost the individual touch far more than has happened here.—Sir Robert Platt, of the British Hospital Service.

Pertinent Query for MPs--Is It Goodbye or Au Revoir?

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From the Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Parliament is adjourning today for what Prime Minister Diefenbaker has described as four weeks of Christmas-New Year holidays.

"But there are a lot of people around this high and politically windy Hill who are wondering if it is to return to work on January 31, the day allotted for re-assembling.

The Opposition, almost solidly, from old Commons veterans Jack Pickersgill of the Liberals and Stanley Knowles of the New Democrats to freshmen Social Credit co-leaders Robert Thompson and Real Caouette, are convinced that it is the closing and final day for the First — and last — Session of the stormy Twenty - Fifth Parliament.

Even some of the Conservatives are wondering if Prime Minister Diefenbaker won't ask for dissolution, perhaps on the very eve of Parliament's unscheduled return to Ottawa, and so trigger what then would be an end-of-March election.

Those who fancy this theory and their guesses are in the majority these past few days — see the Prime Minister dramatically walking into the closing night banquet, January 19, of the Conservative Party's annual conference here, and sounding the campaign call to arms.

HISTORY REPEATS

Let "history repeat" it is said.

The Prime Minister, stimulated and excited as he always is by the smell of coming political battle, telling the troops that that very afternoon he has asked the Governor General to dissolve this Parliament?

Then rallying those political shock troops around him, is simply is what the Conservative delegates are above all — and leading them in a tremendous attack against the common Liberal-Soere-SNIP enemy in the continuing war to hold Ottawa and National power?

That's the way Liberal Front-Bench MPs see it. They have it, and for 23 years, first as a backbench MP and then as a member of the Mackenzie King and St. Laurent Cabinets, he has been watching John Diefenbaker.

Better than any other man in the Commons, Paul Martin, as personal friend and avowed enemy, knows this Prime Minister.

"He will pick his own time and place and issue for the election that has to come in the new year," Paul Martin, junior, said he will do it at his party's annual pow-pow next month."

It figured, Liberals say, for the last time the Prime Minister pulled the big switch on the Parliament in January, 1958 — and he went to win that record 208-seat triumph.

SECOND MOTIVE

But there could be another reason.

All those rumors, that whispering, the gossip about a palace revolution in the Liberal party against the Prime Minister have been exciting into print.

It is no longer a rogue talk.

And true or false - - and for the moment, there seems to be only the barest foundation in fact for it -- the talk is doing no good.

On that basis, then, it might make sense for the Prime Minister to cast the election die — for reality — before the political ranks faster and tighter than the call to the campaign wars.

The Liberals - - who seldom, if ever, exhibited their leaders - - have been fascinated by the chatter of a Conservative coup d'etat.

Liberal warhorse George McIlraith who has won eight straight elections to the Commons, was a wartime Parliamentary Assistant to Trade Minister Howe, and if there is to be inquiry into the death of a man in which tranquilizers were suspected.

Then tranquilizers and the other "mood drugs" became available, society praised them as a "boon to humanity." People who were unable to face life, and people who just could not be bothered to face life, took up the use of the pills and felt "respectable" because they were only taking medicines.

When the widespread misuse of these drugs became apparent, doctors quietly warned people of their dangers. But the warnings didn't work. People will insist on doctoring themselves, whether they need it or not, and the most satisfying drugs are always the most dangerous. If the patent medicine habit is to be controlled, the government must put at least as many restrictions on the tranquilizer trade as there are on the liquor trade. People who would quarrel with this suggestion are reminded that marijuana is one of the safer tranquilizers.

Strictly Personal

Imperfections Are Sometimes Enhancing

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Most people confess their faults only to be able to excuse them again; by relieving the burden of their guilt, they feel free to repeat their misdeeds in different form — and it is a self-understanding, rather than self-accusation, that alone can break this cycle.

Whenever a toastmaster introduces me like a eulogy, nearly needs no introduction, I settle back in my seat and prepare myself for a long one.

A slight imperfection in a pretty woman often adds to her charms; a full case of bowlegs (if the limbs are well shaped) can be intensely attractive, to men if not to other women.

The physical beauty of toon signs across the face at night, messages, always reminds me of Chesterton's remark when he observed: "Holmes thinks for the first time: "What a beautiful sight this would be for someone who could not see!"

Are there many other neurotic mbtorists like me, who are forever investigating the smell something burning in the car?

The smallest sight in the world is a cosquette much too old to attract, and too vain to admit it to herself.

Originality is the one thing a mediocre mind cannot stand; and the surest sign of mediocrity is that it feels comfortable only with the familiar.

The reason some men remain bachelors was succinctly and ruefully summed up some years ago by a French diplomat, who explained: "I was always looking for the perfect woman — but when I finally met her, I found that she was looking for the perfect man."

If one acquires the habit of observation, one soon learns that the way a person walks, stand and sits is a better indication of his character than the way he talks. Finally our movements are involuntarily more honest than our words.

Does anyone know why peace have only a superficial and accidental connection, which can be separated the fact that almost all ballet music has been written by composers, and that the best music cannot be danced to.

No man's habits he is bad; the the bad man considers himself misunderstood by society; this is why prison officers resent- ment rather than reform.

New Railroad Into North

Ottawa Citizen

The Great Slave Lake Railway is a new name in transportation, but the goal is an old transportation circles. It is still unbuilt that it is still under construction. However, the railway is far enough advanced that early in November the first grain shipments were made southward over its line. That was from Manning, Alta., where huge grain elevatorsHas already been built and several others are arising.

Manning is the present railway terminus. But the Peace River district has long been handicapped by a shortage of rail transportation. This defect is to be remedied by the new construction of a railway into the Northwest Territories, a project in the hands of Canadian National Railways.

The destination of the new line, as the name indicates, is Great Slave Lake, and minerals as well as grain have a large part in the project. As a result, further tracts of northern Canada are being brought closer to markets.

Numerous fishermen are fishing through openings which they have cut in the ice on the bay and are catching large quantities of perch, perch and other small varieties of fish. When peddled about the city they are selling for 10c a pail.

Coal men, milk men and bakers returned to their wheeled vehicles today as the sharp sleet beaming down from clear skies sent temperatures hovering again in the freezing mark and turned sidewalks and roads into slush coated thoroughfares. It was a welcome relief from the sub-zero weather which gripped the city and district for the past week.

Mr. W. B. Riggs who has just completed building one of the most up-to-date garages in the province, is today installing an oil burner in the furnace which heats the garage, and he states that the big building can be heated as well with oil as with coal and at about the same cost, if not cheaper. Many people in Toronto, he states, are installing oil burners and claim to have every success with them. The experiment being made by Mr. Riggs will be followed with much interest by people of Belleville, and no doubt many will follow suit if it proves a success, in view of the uncertainty of the coal supply.

50 YEARS AGO

Congratulations to Capt. J. W. Anderson of Amelisburg, F. E. County, who today is celebrating the 80th anniversary of his birth. He was born at Massassaga Point on December 10, 1832. Mr. Anderson is the only surviving one of the old Anderson family.

One of the largest and most enjoyable banquets ever held in Hastings County was tendered to Mr. Robert Cooke, M.P.P., at St. Ola on Monday evening last. About one hundred and fifty guests were present. Among those from a distance were L. E. Allen of Belleville; G. E. Bleecker of Sidney township; J. A. Anderson of Cleveland, Ohio; C. Morton of Millbridge; Judson A. Haggerty, Haggerty, M. Haggerty, A. Haggerty of Gunter, F. Morton of Marmora; Dr. Gilmour, the chair man occupied by Mr. P. P. Clarke, reeve of Limerick township.

New Threat Of Banditry

Sarnia Observer

Thrifty motorists, in their effort to make their motoring dollar stretch a penny or two, are faced with a new threat.

Drivers who have cruised slowly past parking meters to flush one with unexpired time still showing are to be a target for those who prefer acquiring profit to encouraging the art of being provident.

Scientifically - inclined have figured out that those who scan parking meters for free time usually run around 14 cents worth of gasoline before they locate a meter with four cents worth of unused parking time. That may be true. It is beside the point. Wh..t matters is the principle of the thing. Profit is secondary and not economic. Players of this game count the money well-spent if they can deprive these curbside bandits of a penny, a nickel or a dime.

This, one of the few remaining ways to save motoring money, being threatened by machinery. Soon there will be nothing left for those who seek the unearned pennies but pay telephone and an exploratory pull on a slot machine.

In Fort Lauderdale, Florida, the Horological Electronics Corp. is reported to have developed a new kind of parking meter which automatically cancels unexpired time the minute a thrifty motorist nuzzles up to the curb. The contraption contains a magnetic current activated by the metal in the automobile which trips a switch which causes the time indicator to drop back to zero and flaunt the red flag in the face of the penny-saving driver.

Not only does the company say the device will work. It brags about it, and probably suggests it will pay for itself at the expense of the freeloaders.

This will be resented by those who have been content to hover between three and five cents a month in their money-saving safaris in the crowded curbs of cities.

Why, they can reasonably ask, shouldn't the gadget work both ways? If they can't install a parking meter to wipe out the unexpired time paid-for time of motorists it should be possible to do something for the motorist and turn today's inventive genius to perfecting another meter which will return the change for the unexpired time to the motorist who has been paying the shot for the provident freeloaders.

Don't You Be Guilty Of Guesswork Diagnosis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I think I have thyroid trouble. I have been reading a medical book on the subject.

There is a powder or tablet called "thyroid extract" and I wonder if I need a prescription or if I could buy it without one. I don't want to pay a doctor $10 or 15 dollars to tell me I am in good physical condition. J. M.

Yes, a prescription is required for thyroid extract. There are several strengths involved, and a fooling around with a medicine you don't understand could — and doubtless would — result in getting yourself fouled up in great shape.

Maybe you don't want to pay a doctor to tell you that you are in good physical condition but if your guesswork self-diagnosis is correct and something is wrong with your thyroid, I'd highly recommend that you pay one to tell you that you aren't in good physical condition.

There's an old rule of medicine: "He who treats himself has a fool for a physician." This applies to doctors, too. But it applies doubly to people who try to treat themselves on the basis of whatever medical book they happen to lay hands on.

Even doctors don't treat people of their own condition. It's human nature! A smart doctor goes to a fellow practitioner when he needs diagnosis or treatment.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are having a dispute. What is the difference between dying from a heart attack and dying from coronary? I say the cause of death can be determined. Others say both act as a heart attack. — Mrs. T.J.W.

Of course the heart stops in death, regardless of cause, but there is a distinct difference between suffocation and heart attack. With suffocation, the victim dies because air cannot reach the lungs and blood, and in turn, cannot rid itself of carbon dioxide and pick up fresh oxygen. The heart keeps on pumping as long as it can, but the victim turns blue because the blood is unable to clear away its waste products.

In a heart attack, there is plenty of air in the lungs but the heart is unable to pump the blood around. Some of the same instances cannot operate at all. In this case, too, there will be some blueness, but it is because the blood does not move through the lungs rapidly enough.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a sensitive spot in the area of the breastbone. Six months ago the doctor said me it is a cyst. I am worried about cancer. Can cysts become cancerous? Is there any way other than surgery to find out what is making the bone so sensitive? — Mrs. M.H.

The doctor told you what it is: A cyst. Cysts rarely become malignant, but they keep on growing and don't get better by themselves. Surgery is the only solution, and the sooner it's done, the sooner your discomfort ceases.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a friend who has a protrusion from the genitals and she says at times there is a small amount of blood. She is 68, and I want her to see a doctor at once as I understand that cancer is a good possibility when there is a show of blood after one has not menstruated for many years. — Mrs. M.G.

I don't usually care to answer queries made in behalf of friends, but I'm glad to in this case. Yes, it is important to heed any abnormal bleeding. Urge your friend to be examined. There are plenty of possible explanations other than cancer, but they deserve attention too, even though they are not as ominous.

TOROVIO (CP) — The stock market continued the advance it began Wednesday during moderate mounting trading today.

Page-Hersey Tubes, on unusually heavy turnover, jumped to 22¼ before vealing 20 3-4 ahead ¼. BC Power also traded actively, rising ¼ to a 1962 peak of 30¼.

Levy Industries gained ¼, Algoma Steel ¼ and Royal Bank ¼, while losses of ¼ went to Abitibi, Massey - Ferguson, Imperial Oil, Consumers' Gas and Bell Telephone. Losers included Power Corporation, down ⅛, Calgary Power, off ⅛ and Atlas Steel, down ⅛.

On the exchange index, industrials rose 0.38 to 568.00 and base metals .84 to 196.37. Golds dipped .03 to 85.93 and western oils .01 to 141.01. The 11 a.m. volume was 443,000 shares compared with 454,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Among base metals, international Nickel and Falconbridge both advanced¼. Noranda climbed ¼ and Denison ¼, while Gunnar Mining slipped ¼.

In western oils, Home B dropped ¼ and Canada Southern Petroleums rose 30 cents to $4.70.

The market Wednesday gave a promising display.

Although industrials shook off early weakness to close with a two-point index gain, all other sections took setbacks ranging to a drop of more than a point on base metals.

Featured in the industrial list were Atlas Steel and BC Power, both showing fractional gains to close at their best prices of 1962. BC Power traded almost 20,000 shares.

Page - Hersey Tubes jumped two points to 21¼, while Steel Company of Canada climbed ¼ to 18½. Rumors centred on the possibility that Stelco had taken over designs on Page-Hersey, but officials of both firms denied the reports.

Aluminium advanced a point and General Motors ¼, while gains of ⅛ went to Power Corporation, Distillers - Seagrams and Dominion Foundries and Steel.

Among base metals, "Gunnar ing and Falconbridge both ...ipped ¼. Noranda dropped ¼, ...ile Consolidated Mining and ...melting and International ...ickel both gained ¼.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were reported unchanged today.

The egg market opened steady with offerings barely adequate for a light to fair demand.

Country dealers are quoted by the federal department of agriculture on Canada grade eggs, delivered Toronto, in cents: A large 42; A medium 30; A small 25; B 40-47 grades, no market.

Butter prices: Canada first grade: Ontario tenderable 51; non-tenderable 51¾, in light trading; western 51¼ (nominal) to become "a shareholder in this great Canadian heritage".

Judge J. C. Anderson, honorary chairman of the fund-raising campaign, stated that the new building would be the work of many citizens who had striven to bring it about. He complimented the board of directors of the Belleville YMCA for undertaking the project. It was, he suggested, just one in a long line of successful YMCA projects and work in this community.

"Help is still needed," Judge Anderson advised, since the new building is incomplete and will need the addition of such facilities as a gymnasium in the future.

Mayor A. McLean Haig brought the greetings and congratulations of the city. He stated that the new "Y" was in an excellent location to be readily accessible to many of the youth and upcoming generation in the city. He complimented the local YMCA for making such a great contribution to the youth of the community.

The Reverend J. S. A. Spearman gave the invocation and Archdeacon A. S. McConnell gave the benediction.

Also on the platform were Mrs. W. H. Finkle, vice-president of the YMCA, and D. Diamantides, secretary of the local "Y".

The new building is to cost about $450,000. The firm of Craig and Zeidler of Peterborough and Toronto are the architects and Hugh Murray Ltd. of Belleville are undertaking the construction.

'Y' Pres., Bruce McKenzie, Turns Sod to Start Work On First Stage of Building

The bulldozers beat the official sod-turning ceremonies for Belleville's new family YMCA by a good 24 hours but the 40 people in attendance at the sod-turn location for the "Y's" new home agreed that the sooner the job got underway for modern youth facilities for the community the better.

Bruce McKenzie, YMCA president, put the gold shovel for the ceremony to such good use that he was called upon for several repeat performances.

During this opening remarks Mr. McKenzie noted the need for many such facilities in Canada. There are 515 boys and girls entering the youth and teenage group every 24 hours in Canada alone who need the recreation, leadership and spiritual guidance which is available in a YMCA, he said.

There is a population explosion to be met and the new "Y" for Belleville will be one of 2,000 in North America, he advised and quoted an American industrial leader who said that any company or group of citizens who live and work in a community where there is no strong support for the development of the youth can expect a downgrading of their businesses and homes.

Mr. Mackenzie stressed that the new "Y" should be a "Family-Y". A full YMCA building will not be constructed initially due to a need for more funds but the first stage will offer a swimming pool, locker rooms, a health club and several exercise areas. The gymnasium and other facilities will have to be left to a later date. The new building is expected to be ready for occupancy by late 1963, he said.

SYMBOL A TRIANGLE

Mr. McKenzie mentioned that the "Y" symbol was a triangle and of this one side was for active duties devoted to the building of strong bodies. The other two sides were for the building of the mind and spirit, he advised and this the "Y" attempted to achieve through the provision of leadership training and a non-sectarian application of Christian principles.

The "Y", he suggested, makes a "door" of every onlooker and gives each participant a chance to become "a shareholder in this great Canadian heritage".

Had No Proof Car Insured, Fined $50

A Tweed youth was fined $50 in magistrate's court this morning for failing to produce an automobile insurance certificate.

This is the minimum penalty under Ontario's Highway Traffic Act for failure to produce proof of liability insurance at any time. Motorists have been publicly warned that they must carry the insurance certificate when driving.

Charged this morning was Robert Charles McGuire, who told magistrate T. Y. Wills he would shortly be 17.

Ordering him to pay the penalty, the magistrate told McGuire: "If you can own a motor vehicle you can find the money for this."

New Subdivision Planned for City

Plans for still another Belleville housing sub-division - this one in the northwest section of the city, are now before the Department of Municipal Affairs for approval.

The planned development is west of Sidney Street and north of the Canadian National Railways double track.

The development has already received the approval of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

To provide access to the housing area, three short streets running west from Sidney Street are to be opened. The city purchased two of the right of ways some months ago and this week council approved a planning board recommendation that the city continue negotiations with another owner, Mr. David Johnston, for the purchase of the last right-of-way required for the third right of way.

Hold Juveniles After Wave Of Thefts; Heavy Damage

A pastry hurled at a police officer in downtown Belleville last night has brought nine charges against two juveniles involving what detectives describe as "several hundreds of dollars" malicious damage.

Meantime, police say charges are also pending against a third teenager.

The charges came on the heels of seven other juveniles pleading guilty to other counts of theft before Magistrate T. Y. Wills yesterday.

The parade of allegations, marshalled by police against city teenagers in recent weeks, cover a rash of breakins at city stores and business premises and thefts from parked cars.

The charges laid this morning against two youths aged 13 and 14, follow a police chase through the city's downtown area last night.

SPOTTED ON ROOF

A police constable on patrol in the Foothbridge area spotted a youth on the roof of a shoe repair shop, near Burkholder's Bakery. When the officer challenged the teenager the youth hurled a pastry at him and jumped to the ground. The chase led across the city business area, and ended on Campbell Street when the constable caught up with the youth.

Later, police detained the second juvenile, and laid nine charges against the pair.

These included breakins at the following premises: Burkholder's Bakery, Roblin Dairy, Foothridge Fish and Chips and Duffy's service station.

TRY SET WRECKED

The latest incident occurred at the Queen's Hotel sometime between Tuesday and Wednesday this week. Police say thieves entered the hotel, stole a television set from a locked room and hauled it across a rear roof to the bank of the Moira River. While letting the set down to the ground, they lost hold and it fell to the river bank. Police say they kicked the wreckage into the river.

Property damage figured high in one of the breakins charged against the pair. Police report at Roblin's Dairy. There, say officers, a chocolate syrup container was smashed, oozing its contents across the floor; orange juice was poured into a cash register and adding machine, gumming up the works; one delivery truck was driven into a second vehicle, and wiring was damaged on a parked car.

The charges will be heard later before magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Yesterday, say police, the seven youths charged on various other counts, were remanded to January 14 when the magistrate will make his decisions known.

One juvenile pleaded guilty to eight charges involving theft from parked cars.

Driver Escapes Injury When Car Hits Tree

An automobile driver escaped injury when his vehicle went out of control on the Madoc county road and hit a tree last night.

Police say Reginald Workman, West Huntingdon, lost control of the car as it skidded on the slippery road surface. The vehicle veered off the road and struck the tree broadside.

Damage was estimated at $250.

misleading the public on medical care insurance and on the Liberals for "muddled thinking" on government finance.

He said Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer had proposed a reduction of the provincial debt on one hand and abolition of taxes on the other.

QUESTIONS FINANCING

Of an NDP medical care insurance proposal, Mr. Yaremko said the Ontario party has promised to introduce a scheme that would cost less in premiums than the Saskatchewan plan. Yet NDP Leader Donald MacDonald also wanted to abolish Ontario's three-per-cent retail sales tax.

Or had the NDP decided to keep the sales tax? Mr. Yaremko asked.

"Certainly," replied Mr. MacDonald.

In answer to opposition jibes that the Progressive Conservative administration is too old, the provincial treasurer said the average age of the cabinet is 52.5 years, while opposition front - benchers average 54.5 years.

"Some people are old before their time," Mr. MacDonald said.

Earlier in the throne speech debate, J. F. Edwards (PC—Perth) urged that a provincial transportation study of the metropolitan Toronto region as far north as Barrie be extended to examine a larger area.

He said railway companies in the province could still play a role in the development of the province by carrying freight and passengers and by taking some of the burden off the province's highways.

"There are too many boxcars now on our highways."

SEEKS MINIMUM WAGE

Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) urged legislation setting a minimum wage of $1.25 an hour for male and female workers and a 40 - hour work week throughout Ontario.

He said "necessary legislation ought to be passed now, giving notice to all concerned that such minimum standards will become effective by a specified time, say, three years from now."

"The law should also set forth intermediate standards that must be reached progressively during the three-year period."

In addition, special orders should be passed for "special situations," Mr. Bryden said. "It should be reasonable to prescribe a minimum wage of $1.75 an hour in the construction industry in view of the onerous nature of the work."

The Ontario Labor Relations overhauled to facilitate union-organization in industries where it now is impossible."

ASKS MEDICARE DEBATE

Mr. Bryden challenged premier Roberts to a public debate on public medical care insurance.

"I have every reason to believe that the Prime Minister will accept this challenge," he said. Mr. Roberts did not reply.

Mo'e

Vernon Singer (L—York Centre) accused the NDP of being "in league with the government and part of a conspiracy to defeat the Liberal party" in Ontario.

The government itself, he said, is "afraid to call byelections" in the three vacant ridings of Hamilton Centre, Sault Ste. Marie and Hilton.

On municipal affairs, Mr. Singer said the legislature's select committee on municipal law had held meetings and heard many representations "but we have not as yet arrived at any conclusion."

Problems in municipal legislation, he said, "will not be solved by any select committee." They required direct attention by the municipal affairs department.

Mental Patient Says Return to Hungary Forced

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Hungarian refugee Mihaly (Mike) Kerekes, 32, said today he was forced to go back to Hungary while he was undergoing treatment at a mental hospital here.

Mr. Kerekes, reported to have asked to be repatriated and changed his mind en route to Hungary, arrived here by train. He was met by an immigration official.

He told reporters that he had been secretly reading a letter from the communist council in Hungary while he was at the Saskatchewan Hospital here. As a result of this, he said in broken English, he was called a Communist and told to go back to Hungary.

The refugee spent 1½ years at the hospital for treatment of a mental illness. He was released earlier this month.

Dr. Harold Denney, superintendent of the Saskatchewan Hospital said later that Mr. Kerekes was "not forced to go anywhere."

BEGGED TO RETURN

Mr. Kerekes said he was to send him back to Hungary." The hospital obliged by even paying some of the return fare, Dr. Demay said in an interview.

The refugee, granted political asylum in Canada after the 1956 Hungarian rebellion, is reported to have told Dutch justice ministry officials he was expelled from Canada and begged them not to send him to Budapest. Dutch officials said they had placed him on a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane bound for Edmonton.

Immigration officials at Ottawa said Kerekes was being returned to Hungary at his own request and "he must have changed his mind en route." "We have a letter requesting repatriation, signed by him and dated Nov. 16, 1962, at North Battleford, Sask., a department spokesman said in Ottawa.

The spokesman added that Mr. Kerekes was ordered deported on medical grounds in 1960 but since no one in turned behind the iron curtain except in unusual circumstances, the order was not carried out.

RETURNS TO HOSPITAL

In his departure from Edmonton, Mr. Kerekes said he was going back to the hospital here.

The spokesman added that according to the hospital because he did not have any relations or friends in North Battleford. He said he would like to return to his old job, working in the hospital here.

Asked why he had changed his mind and wanted to return to Canada, Mr. Kerekes said that the police in Holland told him he was crazy to go back to Hungary now, when conditions were bad.

Mr. Kerekes said he would like to return to Hungary when the communists move out in October, 1963.

"I don't want to go back when the Communists are at home," he said. He did not reply when asked who told him about the possibility of such a move.

1962: A Bleak Year for Neighbors, Canada, U.S. Relations Strained

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Relations between two old buddies — Canada and the United States — became more strained during 1962 as differences increased and unfinished business piled up. But joint sponsorship of a major international trade conference pointed to possibility of closer, warmer relations in 1963.

Differences ranged from new tariff defence to lumber and from hydro power to tariffs. But there was no element of crisis. Grumblings and complaints across the border were mainly family quarrels.

When Canada needed help to protect her fast - sinking currency reserves, the U.S. immediately plunged in with massive financial aid.

The flow of U.S. defence contracts to Canadian firms reached a post-war high of more than $200,000,000—about one - fifth of Canadian defence orders in the U.S.

DELAY ON WARHEADS

But, there was coolness between governments as differences piled up. Canada continued to delay a decision on the question of allowing American warheads to be stored on Canadian soil. Americans questioned whether Canada was willing to pull her full weight in continental defence and in providing foreign aid to underdeveloped countries.

Some American legislators criticized Canada for maintaining trade links with Red China and for doing trade with Cuba at a time when the U.S. was attempting to bring the downfall of Fidel Castro. Others protested that Canada was flooding the U.S. with oil and lumber.

Of greater aggravation to American authorities was the discovery of an increase in number of barriers to fulfillment of the Canada-U.S. agreement to harness the Columbia River for power. President Kennedy had hailed the Columbia Treaty, signed in 1961, as the beginning of closer relations with Canada.

By the end of 1962 the treaty still had not been ratified by the Canadian Parliament as the U.S. and British Columbia fussed over B.C. price demands for surplus power.

AGREE ON TRADE

Amid this period of strain, Kennedy agreed to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal for a free world trade conference early in 1963 to prepare the stage for multi - lateral negotiations under Kennedy's new trade expansion policy. But Canada suggested Diefenbaker hasten to eliminate the extra Canadian tariffs imposed when the Canadian dollar weakened in June.

By the end of 1962, Canada had eliminated about one-fifth of the restrictions and the U.S. had eliminated about one-half. Likewise if Canada removed the remainder of the curbs before the new trade conference opened around March.

Canada also felt it had reason to complain. Canada had persistently experienced a major deficit in U.S. trade and America can pressure to reduce the flow of Canadian lumber and oil was strongly urged.

As for the Columbia River Treaty, the Ottawa administration argued it could not move as long as British Columbia raised objections which had not been settled despite years of negotiations.

Canada complained that though the two countries had a continental defence agreement, Kennedy had failed to consult the Canadian government before threatening the Soviet Union with nuclear war if Soviet missiles and bombers were not removed from Cuba.

This lack of prior consultation —a matter of contention in previous cross-border defence talks —was given by Canada as one reason why it was cautious and slow in agreeing to a full alert of Canadian air defence even though this had been ordered by the North American air defence system.

The main pulling element between Canada and the U.S. was trade. Between them flowed more goods than between any other two countries. And both faced similar export problems. The major one was the restrictive food import policies of the European Common Market.

Conspiracy Trial Of James Hoffa Nearing End

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The government and defence wind up their closing arguments today in the James R. Hoffa conspiracy trial.

The U.S. District Court jury of seven men and five women is expected to start deliberations after receiving final instructions from the judge, probably Friday. The trial began Oct. 22.

Lawyers began their summations Wednesday, the government using two hours and 20 minutes and the defence 30 minutes. Each then has 3 1-3 hours to state its case, James E. Haggerty, a Detroit lawyer, was reviewing the circuit position when court adjourned.

Hoffa, president of the 1,500,000 member Teamsters Union, is charged in a two-count indictment with conspiring to violate the Taft-Hartley Act with him accepting funds in violation of law.

The government says he conspired with commercial carriers, Inc., Detroit-based automobile hauler, to create Test Fleet Corporation as a payoff for labor peace.

Test Fleet, a truck leasing firm, was chartered here in 1959 shortly after Hoffa helped end a Teamster strike at a commercial criers termini. Stocks in the corporation was put in the maiden names of Mrs. Hoffa and Mrs. Owen Brennan, wife of a Teamsters official who died last year.

Protest Move to Use in Court 'Tape' of Talk With Priest

VANCOUVER (CP) — A police - recorded conversation between a woman and her priest was offered in evidence in court Wednesday, a move attcked a hitting at "the very foundations of religion."

Magistrate Gordon Scott adjourned the trial and his decision on introduction of the tape until Dec. 27.

The Crown had attempted to introduce recordings of a conversation said to have taken place between Eleanor Lloyd, 23, and Rev. Aloysius Craven, a Roman Catholic priest.

Mrs. Lloyd and her 25-year-old husband, Donald, are charged with conspiring to extort $15,000 from Mrs. Mary Donald, a 77-year-old widow.

The Lloyds' lawyer, John Mccy, said that any suggestion that a record of conversation between a woman and her priest was available to the court should be "strongly condemned." The police action in making the recording in the police station attacked "the very foundations of religion."

He said the conversation was "secret" and the Crown's action took him by surprise.

Court was told Mrs. McDonald received a telephone call Nov. 15 and we told her foster daughter, Shirley Bieble, was being held. Unless $15,000 was paid for her son on a certain corner, the daughter would be killed, she said she was told.

Legion Branch 78 Presents $10,000 Cheque to Hospital

PICTON — Ten years ago, Branch 78 of the Royal Canadian Legion pledged $10,000 toward a new hospital at Picton. It was one of the factors which made possible Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, which each year since 1952 has received a $1,000 cheque from the Legion and Auxiliary.

Thus the presentation of the final cheque was a red letter event in the branch's history, and about 125 members and friends gathered at the hall for the occasion.

"I am very happy to present this final cheque on behalf of the branch and Ladies' Auxiliary," said Branch President Ron Stone, to chairman of the Hospital Board, Ira Sharpe.

"It is a wonderful thing the Legion has done and the board and the people of the county appreciate it," said Mr. Sharpe in praising the Legion. "It is no small task to raise this amount of money each year, and all concerned are deserving of the highest praise and gratitude."

Adding words of commendation were former Hospital Board chairman Don Ellis and Legion past president Lance Nethery.

The evening concluded with the serving of a delectable buffet supper.

meeting of former concentration camp inmates.

Of the three RCAF wing commanders in the area at the time, only Mr. McGregor, then commanding officer of 126 wing, remembered Rabbi Hardman.

HELP CAME FAST

Mr. McGregor said at Thursday's press party: "I remember him, but I doubt if he remembers me. I'm wearing slightly different clothes."

Rabbi Hardman said, "what impressed me most was that the Canadians got more unofficial help to the inmates in 24 hours than the British had been able to get in an official way in a week."

The reunion took place in the modern, plush-carpeted office of the TCA president on the 29th floor of the Place Ville Marie skyscraper — a much different scene from that of their last meeting.

Mr. McGregor also brought over his wartime log book, found Rabbi Hardman's name and he met each other the first time.

"We were flying' Spitfire Mark Nines," he said to the rabbi.

"Yes," replied Rabbi Hardman, "today they give models of them to the children to play with at Christmas."

CHILDREN FOR ADOPTION

Children are the heart of a home. We wish, at this time, to bring to mind that there are boys and girls in the community who need the security and affection of family life.

Because their home life has failed through neglect, abandonment, or orphanhood, these children have had to be taken into public care. They are wards of Children's Aid Societies and available for adoption by any good family that has the capacity and kindness to receive them.

Some of these boys and girls have not been readily accepted by adopting parents because of language, religion, race or physical handicap.

The Department of Public Welfare, with interest and concern for these children, calls attention to their need in newspaper advertisements.

There is the older child, for example. We have described one of them in this way:

KAY needs parents of her very own. Her 14 years have not been happy ones due to family circumstances and she has never placed upon her. Kay is bubbly in school, and takes lots of ability in all types of accompany. She is Protestant Anglo-Saxon with brown eyes and hair. Kay will be a most rewarding daughter for the right parents.

Children must generally be adopted into a family of the same religious faith, whether Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jewish. There are a number of Catholic children of all ages seeking homes. This one for instance:

LUKE is a Roman Catholic infant born in June, 1962. He is of Swedish and Norwegian heritage with blond hair and blue eyes. This baby is developing normally and education has been recommended for his adoption. He is an active, normal youngster.

Children of mixed racial background are often among the brightest and best. Many of these boys and girls appeal for your acceptance. Here is one:

MELANIE is a small fragile looking girl of four years. She is of Ukrainian and Anglo-Saxon. Ukrainian and North American parentage. She has brown eyes and hair and a cute and attractive face and is a bright and lively little child. Melanie takes time to warm up to strangers and needs parents who can love her for her own worth.

Boys and girls only slightly handicapped do not find parents easily, where it is the greatest need. And often they reward the world by developing into our finest people. Clyde is one:

Very special Roman Catholic infant born on December 6th at 5 years of life have been difficult. He is an appealing little Dutch boy with large brown eyes, fair complexion and hair. He has a very nice personality and is with regular foster treatment and his level of development is good. Clyde needs kind, loving and understanding parents to love and appreciate him.

These and many other children may be adopted into suitable Ontario homes. They become your own to raise and cherish as surely as any child born to you.

Inquiry Called On Windsor Unemployment

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts announced Wednesday that the Ontario economic council will make a full-scale inquiry to determine how to attract industry and reduce unemployment in the Windsor area.

The premier told the legislature he has asked the council to set up a committee to conduct an inquiry towards development and to urge policies which would make use of the area's advantages.

Mr. Roberts spoke in response to a demand by Bernard Newman (L—Windsor - Walkerville) for government action to solve the Windsor area's unemployment problem.

Mr. Newman, speaking in the throne speech debate, said the government has an obligation to co-operate in finding more jobs. He said that with three per cent of Ontario's population, Metropolitan Windsor has eight per cent of the province's unemployed workers.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hagle have gone to Guelph to spend the winter with their daughter, Mrs. William Biddle, and Mr. Biddle.

Mr. Steve Wilson motored down from Toronto on Saturday and Mrs. Steele Leavitt accompanied him back to the city to spend the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Wilson, and Mr. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams and sons spent Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Foster and Elizabeth. Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Simpson and Larry were evening visitors after church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Blaine Foster and Carol spent Tuesday with her grandfather, Mr. Hugh McWilliams, Picton.

Sunday School and public school teachers and students have been busy for some time training the children for their concert to be held Friday evening in Bloomfield Uniited Church.

Miss Louise Huff arrived home last weekend after seven months abroad. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Huff, motored to New York to meet the boat. She had a most delightful trip.

House Stages

backlog of government legislation, then adjourn until Jan. 21.

MEETS MACMILLAN

Prime Minister Diefenbaker leaves Friday for a meeting with British Prime Minister Macmillan in Nassau.

Meanwhile, parliamentarians will scatter to their home ridings amid persistent talk of a possible April election early in the new year. Mr. Diefenbaker has given no support to such rumors.

The house clearly was in the grips of an election-eve fever Wednesday as a wide-ranging debate continued on a government bill providing $300,000,000 to cover day - to - day spending in January.

The bill is expected to get approval today. The next two items of business likely will be a long-delayed measure to compensate Quebec for increased university grants and a bill to set up a crown corporation to organize the 1967 world's fair in Montreal.

Mr. Pearson, making his second major speech in three days, listed some of the issues that his party is likely to feature in the next election campaign, whenever it comes.

HITS SUPPLY PROCEDURE

He said the government has shown "shocking contempt" for Parliament by relying entirely on interim supply bills so far in the 1962-63 year without getting parliamentary approval of spending estimates.

The government had clubbed "blank cheques" worth more than $5,000,000,000.

The Liberal leader said the government "deliberately and systematically violated" one of the fundamental right of the elected representatives by increasing taxes through a cabinet decree.

This had been done last June with the imposition of tariff surcharges on half of Canada's imports.

(About one-sixth of the affected imports have since been freed from the surcharges.)

Mr. Pearson said Parliament should resume its work early in January to tackle the "urgent questions" facing Canada.

He listed these issues as follows: Trade policy, defence policy, transportation policy, the Columbia River power treaty, depressed agriculture in Eastern Canada and infractions of the Bill of Rights.

The government had failed to deal with these and other urgent questions and had mismanaged the current session.

ECHOES TORY CHARGE

"We are taking a step toward the destruction of Parliament," the Liberal chieftain said echoing a charge used by Conservatives against the former Liberal government in the 1957 election campaign.

Mr. Diefenbaker rose to reply a few minutes before the House was scheduled to switch to another item of business and Liberal MPs created a din by pounding their desks and shouting, "time's up!"

Deputy Speaker Gordon Chown called for order about 20 times as the Prime Minister stood with his hands on his hips and the Liberals kept up the commotion.

Mr. Pearson told the Prime Minister to go ahead. Mr. Diefenbaker said he only wanted 10 minutes to reply to "valedictory statements" by the opposition leader before leaving.

Liberal back - benchers continued their shouts and Mr. Diefenbaker started to walk out. Mr. Pearson then suggested that debate be resumed on the supply bill to allow the Prime Minister to speak.

Mr. Diefenbaker came back to his seat and snapped: "In view of the sudden change in front, the sudden change of conscience, that offer is no longer acceptable." He turned again and left the chamber.

CASE OVER ELECTION

Earlier, the Prime Minister had clashed with J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate), who said there has been a "inexcusable delay" in calling the election to Mr. Speaker's View.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the former liberal government had left seats vacant for long periods. When a decision was made, action would be taken to fill the vacancies.

"Cheap political speech," retorted Mr. Pickersgill.

Trade Minister Hees sparked another heated exchange by saying that a headline in Wednesday's issue of the Toronto Globe and Mail was misleading. He said the headline reported a "trade deficit" of $721,000,000 when in fact the sum represented the balance-of-payments deficit.

PICKERSGILL OBJECTS

When Mr. Hees sat down, Mr. Pickersgill said he had no right to try to correct a newspaper report.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said the trade minister should be censured by the Speaker.

Walter Gordon (L — Toronto Davenport) then asked whether it was true that Canada had a current account deficit running at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year.

Mr. Hees said he was glad to see Mr. Gordon take over the questioning from Mr. Pickersgill, whom the minister called "the number one—". Before he could finish the remark, Mr. Pickersgill was back on his feet, saying it was "a shocking and malicious attack".

Mr. Hees said he was happy to withdraw and apologize, particularly since he hadn't said anything after calling Mr. Pickersgill the "number one". It was obvious that Mr. Pickersgill wasn't "number one" in any category.

GETS KISS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A burglar who broke into an Atlanta apartment stole three pocket books, $15—and a kiss. Detective J. C. Smith said the man held a knife to a young woman's throat and demanded a kiss. When she refused, the man kissed her anyway, then fled.

Man Facing Murder Charge Is Released

TORONTO (CP) — Finance company manager Milton Hollinger, 31, who faces a murder charge in Fort Worth, Tex., was released by Canadian authorities Wednesday.

Canadian immigration officials released him on his personal bond when he gave notice he will appeal an order that he be deported to the United States.

Spell was arrested in his Gulf Intercontinental Finance Corp. office here Tuesday on a warrant issued by the immigration department.

He is accused of murdering a man in a tavern shooting in July, 1961, and of a theft through posting of $10,000 bail in Fort Worth.

Spell, an American citizen, told police here he intends to return to Fort Worth for the hearing. He said next spring. Police said he is fighting deportation to avoid severing business connections here.

U.S. Districts Get Go-Ahead to Use Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. health officials were given the go-ahead Wednesday to use the Salk polio oral vaccine against poliomyelitis — very small risk among adults, especially those over 20 years old.

Surgeon - General Luther L. Terry of the U.S. public health service made the announcement after his special advisory panel on the vaccine concluded three months of pondering whether one strain of the live-virus vaccine might cause paralytic polio in some adults.

He said the emphasis should be on giving the vaccine to children and young adults.

"The committee feels, and I wholeheartedly agree, that of greatest importance is planning for the continuing vaccination of succeeding generations," Terry said. "This is the only way we will succeed in eradicating polio permanently."

Terry said the need for immunization diminishes with advancing age.

Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of the vaccine, said in Cincinnati he hopes mass polio vaccination programs will resume at once.

Resumption of Sabin oral polio vaccination campaigns was approved in Canada Nov. 14 on the recommendation of the Dominion council of health.

Sabin oral vaccination programs were suspended earlier this month on recommendation of a technical committee of the council, a federal-provincial advisory body, following cases after four persons among the 4,000,000 Canadians given the oral vaccine developed severe paralysis.

cheapest ballistic model—in certain second-and-third stages and plans to have a total of 800 of these in place by 1965. President Kennedy is so enthused with the performance of these weapons he is considering boosting the total to 950.

Meanwhile, Soviet nuclear testing is described here as having provided Russia with the ability to reduce the size and weight of its warheads without reducing Soviet nuclear punch. Thus, less booster power is required.

In 1958-59, American intelligence estimates, based on knowledge of Soviet booster output, concluded that Russia was well ahead of the U.S. in missile production. Projecting the pattern of the production trend in the two countries, the estimators concluded that the missile gap favoring the Russians would widen dangerously in the years ahead.

GAP A MYTH

Recently and these estimates in his 1960 presidential campaign to back up charges that the Eisenhower administration had bungled the missile job and had failed to maintain American military strength.

However, soon after Kennedy took office, government talk of the gap declined. In a magazine interview last month, McNamara said the gap was a myth resulting from incomplete intelligence.

Pentagon sources now say the Russians apparently have concluded that while the existing giant rockets are powerful enough to lift a two-man space capsule, they are too bulky and cumbersome for everyday military operations. Smaller rockets are under production.

This production switch, the sources said, has meant a slowdown in the Soviet missile buildup. The U.S.? now is considered to have jumped ahead and is likely to retain this lead if there is no internal foul-up in the American production program.

session of the previous Parliament and all of those introduced at this session.

The campaign is aimed at ridding Parliament of the annual load of between 300 and 400 divorce bills, providing safeguards against collusion in evidence before the Senate committee and at establishing the right of divorced spouses and children to maintenance and support.

Views among the 19 New Democrats are understood to have differed about dropping the bloodline and permitting Mr. Masdzisk's bill to press the Commons and be sent to the Senate Chamber. However, it was argued that the Mandzuk bill does not contain provisions regarding the special safeguards for which Mr. Peters and Mr. Howard had been fighting.

Focus on Health

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Possible disease protection for infants in mother's milk, what little girls are made of, and warning the baby's bottle.

PROTECTION FROM MOM

There is new evidence that babies may get some disease protection from their mother's milk.

Researchers at the University of Wisconsin find that antibodies—disease - fight elements formed in the blood—can enter the intest through his digestive tract, probably the intestine.

Babies don't start producing their own antibodies against foreign protein invaders, such as disease germs, until the second or third month of life. But the baby inherits some antibody protection from its stay in the mother's womb. Now it appears that breast-feeding babies reinforce this basic arsenal with more antibodies from their mother's milk.

Researchers fed antibodies to newborn babies and found that the level of antibodies in the blood increased. This adds up to new evidence that the breast-fed baby has a real advantage over the bottle-fed baby.

BETTER THAN MEN

Studies of the body composition of young women have yielded some interesting facts about fats.

Cornell University nutritionists studied a group of 94 women students, average height — almost five-foot-six; average fasting weight—about 130 pounds. The average age was about 20½ years.

The researchers measured the amount of fat in the bodies of the bodies and found the average was roughly 28 per cent of the total body weight.

That means that the fat percentage of body weight for these young women was 2½ times the fat percentage in body weight of young men in similar age-groups.

HOT AND COLD

Doctors estimate that it takes 150 to 200 mother- or father-hours a year to warm baby's bottle.

That may not bother them so much—but recent studies indicate it isn't necessary. A few such observations of premature infants before, during and after feedings have been made, and subsequent studies of weight gain, food intake and stool characteristics have been reported.

Truth of the matter is, researchers say, you can't overcare if it's body-temperature or cold, he just wants the bottle.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hubbs and Scott, of Shilo, will spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Yourt.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Crawford of Toronto, will spend the long weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marvin.

Wolfe Letters Purchased for Canadian Govt.

BY ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — Important Canadian historical documents were bought on behalf of the Canadian government at an auction here Wednesday.

Book dealer Frank Maggs successfully bid £75 for copies of letters by Maj.-Gen. James Wolfe and £50 for a copy of a journal of James Murray, former governor of Quebec.

The Wolfe letters are unpublished and are not known to survive except in the copies recorded at Sotheby's Wednesday. Seven of the eight letters deal with the Quebec campaign of 1750.

"They went very cheaply," Maggs told a reporter after the auction. "I was quite surprised —and happy that I could get them so cheaply for Canada."

In one letter, written to Murray, Wolfe says: "Our first great point is to get up the river, the next to get ashore and finally to possess the city of Quebec so that none may go in or out."

DEPENDS ON COURAGE

The journal covers the period of Murray's voyage from Quebec City to Montreal where he received the Canada finally surrendered to the British in 1760.

The documents were owned by Mrs. Margaret Pett, a Briton.

She said they had been left to her by her father and that she studied them, which after all interest, into a shopping bag where they remained for several years.

A few months ago she displayed them at an antique show by her hometown of Ilfracombe, England, and an expert told her they were valuable.

rents, but that, as far as he knew, the committee never was established.

Leonard J. McLaughlin, SIU executive vice - president, also entered the witness box Wednesday to face further cross-examination.

Under questioning by J. A. Geller, he disclosed that the SIU paid $3,200 depreciation allowance on his car when he traded it in for a new automobile in 1959.

The hearing, which began in mid-August, is expected to adjourn tonight until early in January.

Gamma Mu Holds Yule Party

To celebrate Christmas, members of Gamma Mu gathered at Hotel Quinte last evening for a Polynesian dinner. Among the special guests were eight members of Zi Beta Zeta, including their president, Mrs. Shirley Hinchey, and honorary members Mrs. Dorothy MacKinnon and Mrs. Jessie White. President, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, started the dinner by asking everyone to repeat the Beta Sigma Phi grace.

At the close of a delicious meal, the group adjourned to the home of Mrs. Mary O'Flynn for Christmas games and the Christmas tree, with each person giving and receiving a gift.

The social committee, Mrs. Dorothy Heaven, Miss Elizabeth Black and Mrs. Leone Willcocks then served Christmas cake and coffee.

The previous meeting was held in the form of a "Pledge Ritual" at the home of Mrs. Pat Ross. Director, Mrs. Allaneen Murray and social sponsor, Mrs. Pat Ross, helped president Mrs. Robin Jeffrey with the ritual, and the four new members, Mrs. Helen Kelly, Mrs. Jean Broadfoot, Mrs. Jeannine Sweeney and Mrs. Nancy Clarey, were welcomed into the chapter.

The ways and means committee reported that sponsoring the opening night of "Love Rides the Rails" had been a great success.

The service committee collected food and gifts from each member for a Christmas family and clothes for a boy in the north.

The program was given by Miss Elizabeth Black, whose topic was "Awareness of Blessings." Through her excellent talk, she made everyone feel more aware and thankful for their blessings. The topic was most timely in view of the approaching Christmas season.

Refreshments were served by co-hostesses Mrs. Jane Lewis and Mrs. Margo Hall, bringing the evening to a close.

Women's Institute

PARKDALE W.I.

The December meeting of Parkdale Women's Institute was held at Mrs. W. Brown's home with 17 members and one guest present.

Gifts to a needy family of 11 were placed under the Christmas tree.

Further plans were discussed regarding the catering, by the members, to a large party. The Gipi Guiles will assist so it was decided to donate $5 to the company to purchase its flagpole.

A Women's Institute badge was presented to Mrs. G. Palmer.

Mrs. G. Priest gave her report on the Area Convention held in Belleville on December 4th and 5th. The guest from England, Mrs. Mitchell, was introduced. She mentioned that her village church was over 1000 years old.

Mrs. A. Lavergne and Mrs Devolin were the conveners for the evening's program which consisted of two amusing contests; current events by Mrs. Sirston, and the motto given by Mrs. Nickle, called "The Christmas Story." "Mrs. Santa Claus," an amusing story was read by Mrs. C. Keeble.

The members heard traditional Christmas music while enjoying refreshments served by the executive committee.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Each of us wears coats of many colors. We continually add protective armour and shield our true feelings from the world, from our beloved, even from ourselves. We patch up our wounds: often don't admit that they exist. The smile we are smiling is often a cover for emptiness, loneliness and deep inner longing.

One of the most poignant descriptions of the tragedy of life— a tragedy which transcends even the tragedy of death—is found in Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town."

Emily, the young bride, who had died in childbirth, was allotted by the stage manager to return to her home in Grovers Corners to live one day over with her family. As the day that she might re-live, she chose her 12th birthday.

She went back. What did she see. Everyone —her brothers, her sisters, even father and mother, was pre-occupied with the busy-ness of life. Too busy being busy, they would not stop to enjoy life itself.

But Emily, who had but one day to live with them, stopped to plead: "Oh, Mama, just look at me one minute as though you really saw me . . . just for a moment, now, we're all together. Mama, just for a moment we're happy. Let's look at one another."

But life went on, pre-occupied and fleeting. Nobody would stop to look at her. At last, filled with the tragedy of life — not of death — she turned to the stage manager and cried out: "I can't go on! Oh, oh, it goes so fast! We don't have time to look at one another . . . I didn't realize . . . so all that was going on and we never noticed."

Before she left, she turned to say goodbye, and said: "Take me back . . . but first, wait, one more look. Goodbye, goodbye, world! Goodbye Grovers Corners. Mama, Papa. Goodbye to clocks ticking. Mama's sunflowers. And food and coffee. And new ironed dresses and hot baths . . . and sleeping and waking up.

"Oh, Earth, you're too wonderful for anybody to realize."

And then, turning to the stage manager, she said: "Do any human being ever realize life while they live it? Every, every minute?"

"No," he answered. "The saints and poets, maybe; they do some."

Also, the episode, although fanciful, contains more truth than poetry. No, Emily, we do not realize life every, every minute. But we do have our moments. The trouble with some of us is that we wilfully destroy even those single, solitary, fleeting moments and never clutch, in happy memory, the sweetness and the beauty which could have been ours. Ours — even if only in tiny portions.

Indeed, we are a long way from realizing life every minute but we do reach certain peaks and can stand at certain heights. We lose stanina, falter sometimes, even tumble down. But the triumphant talent is the ability to climb and again and, despite the shadows which hover all about us, to walk unrushed into the light.

The Psalmist characteristically asks: "Who shall ascend the Holy Mountain?" He knows, as we do, that life consists of moments — only of fleeting moments. There are times when we do "see one another" because a vision has come into our hearts, broad enough, beautiful enough to embrace the widest horizon.

TRAGIC AFFAIR

He is painfully aware however, that even those who do see, see only briefly, momentarily. This is why he must also ask: "Who can stand in His Holy Place?" Some get to the top of the Mountain. But can they stay there, not only to have, but also to hold the vision they have embraced?

Life is essentially a tragic affair possessed of longer and wider valleys than peaks and summit tops. Emily was right! The tragedy of life is the heartbreaking paradox: we are not aware of life while we live.

Only this spiritual significance remains: To have moments — but to hold them, too. If we cannot stay too long at the tops of mountains we must not live as if we have never reached them. The most tragic man is he who has been to the top and does not remember.

To have but not to hold — this is our greatest sorrow.

Bethel-Zion UCW Elect '62-'63 Officers

The December meeting of the Bethel-Zion U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Doug. Sills. The president opened the meeting with a poem entitled, "Christ Is Made of Many Things." A carol, "Joy to the World," was sung.

There are 23 chartered members and one life member, Mrs. Molly Ketcheson.

Other business was discussed.

Mrs. Ted Ray had the devotional. Mrs. Doug Sills read the Scripture. Meditation was read by Mrs. Ted Ray.

Mrs. B. Ray read the stewardship story entitled " Red Silk Dress".

Mrs. Frank Benton had the program, the theme of which was "The Three Wise Men." Mrs. John Ketchesop and Mrs. Stella Oberlle head stories. The story of the three wise men was read from the Scriptures.

A tasty lunch was served.

The hostess was thanked for opening her home.

Ladies' Club Hears Talk on S.A. Founder

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club was held at the Recreation Centre on December 14th with 16 members and one visitor present.

The president opened the meeting and a warm welcome was extended to everyone by Mrs. Garbutt who also read a poem "Grandma's House".

The corresponding secretary reported that she had not sent any cards or flowers since the last meeting but she would be sending Christmas greetings to all absent members.

During the business it was decided that present officers for 1962 may be returned for 1963; that a Christmas gift of $10 be given to the Salvation Army for Christmas cheer, and also a gift of $5 be given to the secretary for services rendered.

Captain Tuckaberry of the Salvation Army was guest speaker and gave a brief history of the founding of the Salvation Army by William Booth and his wife Catherine. Mr. Booth who had been a methodist minister gave up his circuit and became an evangelist to the masses in the East London mission. He preached in a tent and later adopted military terms and named the faith the Salvation Army. He also spoke of the Godbout Home in Toronto, for first offenders of the courts, who are taught a trade; the Harbor Light Corps; the home for unwed mothers in Toronto; prison work in the jails and also welfare and social work of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Fox presented Capt. Tuckaberry with a cheque for which he expressed sincere thanks.

Mrs. Farnsworth read the Christmas story from St. Luke's Gospel and also gave a few thoughts on the Advent Season.

Santa arrived amid a jingle of bells and distributed a prettily wrapped package to each member.

A delicious lunch was served including sandwiches, tarts, cookies, cheese and pickles and the traditional Christmas cake, bringing to a close another year of Prince Edward meetings.

'FELL 'ER UP'

TARANTO, Italy (AP)—While motorists on a highway outside of town screeched to a halt and stared goggle-eyed, a government helicopter louched down on the road and cruised over in a flilne station. "Fill 'er up," said the pilot. The attendant pound in gas an' the chopper whirled up and away.

Chic Simplicity

RELAX AND ENJOY FASHION

What is fashion sense? It is that flair for colour, that ability to balance and improve the figure by selecting a certain design, that feeling that tells us that this is the right hat or handbag to wear with a particular coat or suit. It is that talent for improving that helps a woman stay within her budget allowance. A few fortunate are born with fashion sense, but most of us develop it through trial and error. Like most developed talents, it is well worth working for, as the benefits of fashion sense are money saved, added poise and social ease. Who doesn't like money in the bank? Who wouldn't like to be always gracious and at ease?

Observe women at any social gathering — the fashion educated ones stand out in the crowd. They are the ones who look attractive, poised and sure of themselves. The nervous flitters ones can and do make a three seat drama out of a run in a nylon, or a hair style which won't co-operate. Chances are the hair style will go unnoticed, if the hat is pretty. The run in the stocking has to be highlighted with exclamations of woe, before it becomes obvious.

With the party in full swing, we hope you have your "fun" fashions organized so that no last minute crisis will throw you. If you have chosen one of this season's new lurex dresses or ensembles in gold, we hope you have given advance thought to the accessories—they don't have to be gold. If you have chosen a dark, Christmas print dress, then satin shoes and handbag in the predominating shade of the predominating shade of the print, would be not only smart, but useful. They will go well with last year's "little nothing" of black.

Whatever you choose to wear, should be all ready to go, with no last minute trips to the cleaners, no skirts needing to be shortened, no dancing shoes to be bought and tinted, all accessories and make-up assembled. In other words, we hope you are ready to relax and enjoy yourself during one of the nicest times of the year.

The different types of parties, which will be held in Canada during the next few weeks, range all the way from the office party, the church party, the trim-a-tree party, the dinner party, the cocktail party to the eggnog party—and then we left out a few. If you are new in your community, it is wise to check up on the appropriate dress for each of these festivities, as customs and fashions vary with each city, town or suburb. Don't wear slacks to the church trim-a-tree party, if slacks are frowned on. Once you know the ground rules for your communility, you're all set. Then you can relax and enjoy yourself.

FRIENDSHIP GUILD

On December 16th, the annual Sunday evening service of the Friendship Guild of Corbyville was held at Gilead St. Andrew's Church, with a good attendance.

The call to worship was given by the president, Mr. Bert Grills. "Joy to the World" was sung and Isaih 9: 2-7 was read by Carman Huffman. Roy Huffman read a Psalm while Mrs. Shew 1: 18-25 was read responsively with Earl Rose being the leader. This was followed by the "Prayer of Confession".

Two lovely anthems were also sung by a 12 member male choir.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Cooper, of the Sidney circuit, gave an inspiring address on "Christmas".

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Last night at a friend's house, I accidentally knocked over a bottle of perfume on her dressing table and emptied half the contents. It was a one-ounce size of a very expensive scent. She very nicely glossed over the incident and told me not to give it a thought, but I would like to make amends. It would strap me, though, to have to spend twenty-five dollars for a replacement at this time. What do you suggest I do about it? — Mrs. B.F., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: It's always good manners for a guest to replace anything that is accidentally broken or damaged. Even though the hostess demurs, she usually appreciates such thoughtfulness. Since the entire bottle wasn't wasted, a smaller size of the same fragrance could appropriately be sent. If this is still more than your budget can stand, then you might send a large bottle of misting cologne or toilet water, which she could use during the day while saving the perfume for evening wear.

Question: As a bachelor, I've often been asked to be an "extra man" at all kinds of parties. Now that I've met "the girl" that I hope to marry, naturally I'd prefer that she be included in invitations. We're not engaged yet, so I can't ask if I may bring her. Chance dating. What would be the best approach to use? — B.H., Washington, D.C.

Answer: The direct approach is the best. If hostesses feel friendly enough to invite you as an extra man, then they should feel friendly enough to appreciate a change in your status. Be frank and say you'd like to attend, but you'd like to bring your own date so that an engagement is in the wind. If a hostess begs off, then it's just as well to find out now that you're not really a friend but just a convenience. If she says she'd be delighted to meet your young lady, then you should give the hostess her address and phone number so she may issue a personal invitation.

Question: A girl with whom I've worked for five years, recently got married. We became good friends in the office, so I gladly contributed to a general gift from the staff. I also attended a shower given by a coworker, and another given by a friend in her neighborhood. Naturally, I brought a present to both. Now I've been invited to the wedding and reception, and wonder if it's necessary for me to send a wedding present in addition. E.A., Philadelphia.

Answer: No, you already sent a wedding present along with the group in the office, so it's not necessary to send another.

Question: When my husband and I went to a friend's for dinner recently, we brought her a small bouquet of flowers. She was delighted with them, but I'm afraid the other couple present felt slightly embarrassed because they had not brought anything. We always like to bring a hostess gift, but, since so many people don't do this, I wonder if this custom has gone completely out of fashion. — Mrs. B.G., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: The custom still exists, but it's not rigidly observed. Guests sometimes send flowers before a dinner party — and the hostess thanks them quietly on arrival — or the day after. If the hostess has children, then it's nice to bring them, instead of the hostess, a small gift. A gift like a bottle of wine may be brought when only two couples are likely together, but, generally, anything to eat or drink should be shied away from — because the hostess, correctly, should offer it to her guests and it might be inappropriate with what she is serving.

If guests dine at the same home regularly, or fairly frequently, it's not necessary to bring or send a gift each time, but it's courteous to observe this gracious practice occasionally.

Question: I would like to know if it's proper for us to pay for the liquor served at my son's wedding reception. I'm not too certain about the obligation involved. When I got married, my father paid for everything. Has there been a change in the rules during the past twenty-four years? My son says we should pay the liquor bill. Please set me straight. — Mrs. Y.K., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Traditionally the bride's parents pay for the entire wedding reception, including all food and drink, floral decorations, music, etc. It would be improper for the groom to absorb, or ask to absorb, any of the reception expenses which customarily are borne by the bride's parents, as host and hostess at the post-wedding party.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I like a boy who is sixteen and I am fifteen. When we are alone, he acts like he really likes me, but when I pass him on the street, he says "Hi!" or waves, but it's just forced because he doesn't even look at me when he waves. Sometimes he doesn't even wave or say "Hi."

Something that I think interferes is that I can't come up with something smart when he says something. In other words, I am UNSOCIABLE.

DEAR UNSOCIABLE — He's shy and thinks people are watching. He won't think you unsociable if you smile and speak first, as a lady should. Write to me for my leaflet on making conversation, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10c.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Re forwarding Australian newspapers, they are all gone now.

However, a subscription to The Age, Melbourne, Australia, for three months, was $1.90 for the Saturday edition. Interested parties could get in touch with the subscription office.—C. L. S.

DEAR C. L. S.—Thank you for sharing your newspapers and the idea.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Regarding the coin collection, would you please by leave of your column inform readers that the coins are all sold. I found it impossible to answer all the mail I got from people right across Canada. Those who enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelopes, I have written to. Thank you very much, Doris.—WALLY.

DEAR WALLY—You're welcome. Another problem solved!

DEAR DORIS—My eldest child, a boy nine, insists black is white and hot is cold, and that he is to blame for everything.

I love him dearly but simply cannot do anything to please him it seems. What am I doing wrong?—BEFUDDLED.

DEAR BEFUDDLED—Could be he is frustrated, or has unreasonable guilt feelings. We'd have to know what's happening underneath before we could cope. And so will you.

Get in touch with your child care agency or mental health unit. If you don't have help, you will be raising an unhappy boy.

Christmas Dinner Menu 1962

by Mary Moore

The time is steadily approaching when we have to make final menu decisions.

Because the traditional items in a Christmas dinner are so dear to our hearts we would not change them, even if our families would let us, so it gives us limited opportunities to vary our Christmas dinner menu.

In selecting the 1962 menu we thought of flavor first, then appearance, then convenience. Cost did not enter into our figuring, but when I assessed the value, nothing seemed expensive after the turkey was accounted for.

The type of salad I've chosen improves with standing for 3 or 4 hours and will still be delicously crisp. The pudding of course could have been made days or weeks in advance. The Hard Sauce will keep well in the refrigerator covered.

Yesterday I gave you the stuffing and gravy and time and temperature for roasting the turkey.

On Monday, December 17th, see a recipe I gave you for Egg Nog Sauce suggested above, which was recommended to us by a reader in Saskatchewan.

I have space today to give you the recipes for the Grapefruit Flowers and the Spicy Cranberry Sauce.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Lamb Stew with Vegetables; Parsley Dumplings; Fine Coleslaw; Apple Tapioca; Light Brown Sugar Hard Sauce; Tea.

SUNDAY

Roast Loin of Pork; Spiced Crabapples; Francoia (pan roasted) Potato Halves; Sauerkraut; Tomato Jelly Salads with Sour Cream Dressing; Fresh Citrus Fruit Cup; Christmas Shortbreads, Coffee.

CHRISTMAS DINNER MENU 1962

Broiled Grapefruit Flowers (see below); Roast Turkey with Celery Stuffing (see Wednesday - yesterday); Turkey Gravy (See Wednesday - yesterday); Spicy Cranberry Sauce (see below); Duchess Potatoes (see Friday - tomorrow); Frenched Green Beans with Almond Sauce (see Friday - tomorrow); Cucumber and Mild Onion Salad with Sweet Sour Dressing (see Friday - tomorrow); Plum Pudding (see November 28th for Plum Pudding and Hard Sauce); Hard Sauce or Egg Nog Sauce (see Monday, December 17th); Pastel Mints; Coffee.

The items that can be prepared in advance and finished just before mealtime are obvious: The Broiled Grapefruit can be ready for broiling; so can the Duchess Potatoes which can be reheated in the oven after the turkey is out and while the grapefruit are broiling. Almond Sauce for green beans and the Spicy Cranberry Sauce can be made one day in advance.

BROILED GRAPEFRUIT FLOWERS

Remove seeds and centre from grapefruit halves. Separate sections with sharp knife. Slip 4 tangerine sections between grapefruit sections, radiating them from the centre, flowerlike. Dot with butter. Sprinkle generously with sugar and add several dashes of Angostura bitters if desired. Broil grapefruit until heated through and edge turns a delicate brown. Centre with maraschino cherry; serve at once.

SPICY CRANBERRY SAUCE

1 cup sugar, ½ cup water, ¼ cup vinegar, 6 whole cloves, 1 stick cinnamon, 2 cups raw cranberries.

Boil together the sugar, water, vinegar, cloves and cinnamon for 2 minutes. Remove spices. Add the cranberries and boil 5 minutes until the skins just begin to pop. Cool. Do not stir. This keeps well, covered in refrigerator.

See tomorrow, Friday, the recipe for Duchess Potatoes; Almond Sauce for Green Beans and the Cucumber and Onion Salad.

OIL HELPS

Corn syrup and honey can more readily be removed from a measuring cup if the cup is brushed with salad oil before starting to measure.

MADOC W.I.

MADOC — The December meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. L. Tanner with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. W. Hill.

Christmas greetings were received from the district president, Mrs. Rex Rollins; another donation was made to the Madoc Memorial Library making a total of $50 donated for the year.

A report of the Area convention of December 4th and 5th in Belleville was given by Mrs. W. Forestell. Mrs. S. E. Beatty, 1st vice-president of the Area, gave further information on the banquet and night meeting at the Area convention.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Beatty as program convener; carols were sung.

There was a contest of different groups singing carols. Readings were given by Mrs. Beatty, "Merry Christmas, Everybody," "Santa's Record Book". Mrs. D. Adams gave "Willie and Annie's Prayer." Other readings given were "Everything Happens to Santa Claus" and "Hark, the Chorusing Angels".

Christmas gifts were exchanged among the members.

The meeting closed with "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night".

Mrs. A. Bailey thanked the hostess for the use of her home and Mrs. Beatty for the excellent program.

Lunch was served and a social hall hour followed.

Small Talk

by Zena Cherry

From now until January one, it's party time right across the country. In Quebec the holiday spirit prevails for a week after New Years until the rejoiceful Les Rois—some call it Little Christmas, others the Twelfth Night.

How to behave at a cocktail party. Here's some advice from the Angostura Bitters people:

If you are the host, basic requirements are three times as many people as the room will hold, ventilation held to a minimum, sufficient ice and enough to drink—easily got at. You are not expected to identify guests—you are merely a roving ballyhack who also has to clean up the stadium after the crowds have torn down the goal posts.

If you are a guest, do not arrive on time. If you do you'll either be sent out for more ice while the hostess dresses or be trapped in a chair while she finishes cunning. All that is required of you is the ability to hold, simultaneously, a cigaret, a napkin, a cocktail, a clam mark and an opinion on Mr. Diefenbaker selling wheat to China or Mr. Kennedy and Cuba. Accept the first drink offered even if you sworn off for life. Otherwise you're an outside target for every passing soul. A full glass insures your freedom and if you can't find a potted poinsettia, dispose of the contents gracefully by gently sloshing it on a nearby guest or the broadloom.

Avoid any conversation that requires development. Instead, discuss music you have read about but never listened to. Or, character assassination is always acceptable and let the potato chips fall where they may.

In the course of the gathering twilight, any cocktail party worth its name will make enemies or friends, fools of wise men, comics of squares. If notably successful it will set up husband against wife, friend against lawyer, glass against Chippendale and man against himself.

Where it will end, as the late Wolcott Gibbs said of another American institution, only knows God.

NO HALFPENNIES

LONDON (CP) — No halfpennies were minted last year for the first time since 1860. The Royal Mint's annual report says it is fairly certain the coin is nearing its end. Farthings, worth a quarter of a penny, were taken out of circulation in 1960.

Women's Activities

ST. THOMAS' W.A.

MINTO — The Christmas meeting of St. Thomas' W.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ed Colden. The president, Mrs. Preston, opened the meeting with a Christmas carol followed by prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Ethel Runnalls and roll call answered with a Christmas Scripture.

President expressed thanks to the hostess and all members for co-operation during the year, and also welcomed everyone.

Some business was discussed and it was decided to remember sick and shut-ins at Christmas also the prayer-partner.

Program followed by each member contributing a number pertaining to Christmas, a carol was sung and the meeting was closed by the president. The hostess served afternoon tea.

200 Attend Footwear Co. Yule Party

STIRLING — Last Friday evening approximately 200 people enjoyed a turkey banquet in the Stirling Community Hall held under the sponsorship of the management of the Elaine Footwear Stirling Limited with plant manager Mr. John Svoboda and the union president Mr. J. J. Ackerly in attendance.

The ladies of Bethel U.C.W. catered for this annual affair. The guests included staff members, employees and their escorts and friends.

Mrs. Carl Boslak was mistress of ceremonies for the opening and Messrs. John Svoboda and Josef Valchar brought greetings. The guests at the head table were introduced.

Mr. Edward Kl[illegible] aided over the program. Mr. Eddie Svoboda contributed a piano selection; Miss Rika Brocheina and Mr. John DeVries rendered an accordion duet and the Misses Betty and Doreen Maybee sang with guitar accompaniment. A sing-song of Christmas carols followed with Rika and John furnishing accordion accompaniment.

The McAvoy Band furnished dance music and the sponsors were tendered an appreciative thanks and delightful Christmas party.

Christmas Concerts

7TH LINE (SNAKE'S SCHOOL

BYLSTONE — Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn and her pupils at Snake's School, 7th Line, held a successful Christmas concert at their school on Wednesday evening with Robert Mathews as master of ceremonies for the following two-part program.

(Sacred Part) included the following: choruses, "Carolling On," by the school; reading, "A Christmas Welcome," by Paul-ette Linn; chorus, "Blessed Songs of Christmas," seniors; first Scripture, "Christmas Birth Pas-sages," Marilyn White; chorus, "The First Christmas," by the school; Scripture, Marilyn White; chorus, "Little Son of Mary," the school; reading, "A Christmas Welcome," by Debbie Gliddon; chorus, "A Carol for Christmas," the school; Script-ure, Marilyn White; readings, "O Little Star," Gayle Hoover and Dawn Beckett; choruses, "Under the Stars," seniors; "Sleep Little Jesus," the school.

(Second Part) included: song, "Hurry Mr. Clock," grades 1-3-3; "A Letter to Santa," by grade 1 boys; dialogue, "Dad's Quiet Ev-ening"; recitation, Grant Dun-ham; drill by 12 pupils follow-ed by the singing of song, "Guard the Flag"; recitation, Lynne Hoover; song, "I Won't Get Up" by grade 2 pupils; dialogue, "Wanted - Housekeeper"; recitation, Kathy White; (co-mments); recitation, Mary Ann Akins; duet, "When Santa Claus Gets Down" and Ralph Dunham; recitation, Gail Mayhew; dialogue, "A Good In-vention"; school chorus, "Calling Santa Claus" and "At Twelve O'clock."

Santa arrived and presented all the children with gifts and candy.

Mrs. Faires of Stirling, music supervisor was accompanist for all the choruses and songs.

WHITE'S S.S.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The Sunday School party at White's United Church was a decided success. The intermediate class opened by singing carols with the Misses Cynthia Jones and Betty Cooper as pianists.

Master Mark Loader welcom-ed the parents and visitors and Miss Gillian Miller entertained with her accordion. The Misses Vicki Stickle and Diane Foster and Master Gary Dafoe of the beginner's class contributed re-citations. "Waking the Christ-mas Dolls" was contributed by Diane De Ford, Allen McDon-ald, Brenda Annesley, Diane Dafoe, Debbie Harding, Debbie Jones and Christine Jones. Readings were given by Bobby Corbin, Kathy Jones, Ian Mc-Donald and Danny Stickle of the junior class. The Misses Betty Cooper and Cynthia Jones contributed piano solos. Miss Donna Thompson recited, "Twas the Night Before Christ-mas," with motions.

The primary, junior and in-termediate classes each favored with a carol, while the inter-mediate class with their teach-er, Mrs. Lorne Hunt closed with a worship service.

The offering was taken by Masters. Danny Stickle and Bill Hunt. Masters Steven Jones, Ronald Corbin and Ian McDon-ald acted, "We Three Kings" while Miss Gwen Stickle ,was Mary and Master Danny Stickle, was Joseph.

The teachers, Mrs. Eric Jones, Mrs. Albert Jones, Mrs. Lawrence Dafoe, Mrs. Frank De Ford and Mrs. Lorne Hunt presented gifts to their res-pective classes. Master Steven Jones on behalf of the Sunday School thanked the teachers.

The superintendent, Mrs. Al-bert Jones was presented with a gift from the Sunday School.

Santa arrived, to the delight of all the children especially the pre-schoolers and presented all with a bag of candy and also distributed the gifts, with the intermediate class as willing helpers.

FULL GOSPEL

FRANKFORD — Last Friday ev-ening, Frankford Full Gospel Sunday School held their an-nual Christmas program in the Church auditorium.

Rev. Fred Spring, pastor, welcomed everyone and acted as chairman for the evening. A fine program was then presente-d.

The Rev. and Mrs. Fred Spring, Sunday School superi-ntendent Mrs. A. Fisher and M. Patrick distributed gifts from the Christmas tree.

Mr. Gordon Grant called the pastors and their children to the platform and presented them with gifts from the con-gregation for which they ex-pressed sincere appreciation.

The secretary, Mrs. L. Reilly and treasurer Miss Beverly Wannamaker and caretakers, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller were presented with gifts.

Bags of candy were distribu-ted and the evening closed in prayer by Mr. Spring.

Edna G. — I want to continue wearing my first engagement ring.

Lewis O. — It's ridiculous to wear two engagement rings.

Edna G. — I'm a widow and have just become engaged to Lew. It is partly because my first marriage was so happy and partly because Lew's proposal. But now it appears he wants me to forget everything that hap-pened before.

As an example he says posit-ively no to my wearing my first engagement ring. I tell him my new ring from him is my real engagement ring now and that the other is merely a pretty piece of jewelry. I plan to wear it on my right hand. He has in-vited to a dinner and dance at Lew's social club, and I would like to discard to the teeth. Why can't I wear both rings? I want to look my best and make Lew proud of me.

Lewis O. — Edna doesn't realize that the other solitaire is more than a ring in my eyes. It's a symbol of her pre-vious marriage. I can't see where it's necessary to make two engagement rings to make her look her best. As for mak-ing me feel proud, I'm proud of the fact she's wearing mine. That's plenty.

I admit the other ring is a more expensive one. That's all the more reason for Edna's at all times wearing it, and even on her right hand. It will look as though she's comparing them. Let her leave that ring in her bureau drawer, sell it, give it away, I don't care what. But it stands for something that is over. In accepting my ring she starts a new life.

The Council: At first flush this appeared too trivial a problem to engage the sober deliberation of The Council. But then we recognized that it em-braces the whole concept of a second marriage and its re-lation to the first. Is it exactly like the New Year, proclaim-ing Ring Out the Old, Ring in the New? Or is there a place for "echoes" of the old one?

Strangely, the etiquette books give a non-answer on this. One must dig here and there for guidance on specifics such as the proper wording of en-gagement announcements, what sort of wedding, the presence of one's children and wedding gifts. But the pervasive mes-sage is that all decisions must be weighed in the interests of the second marriage. What is the husband, the kind, the con-siderate thing to do, one for the other?

Answers depend immediately upon the nature of the first marriage. If it ended in divorce, remembrance will be painful, if as in Edna's case, it ended in death, Lewis must be patient about the momentoes.

Strictly speaking he's right about the ring. An Allentown, Pa. department store issues a pamphlet for those planning to remarry, in which they claim to have culled the counsel of Emily Post, Amy Vanderbilt and several other consultants. On the ring they say, "When a widow decides to remarry, it is customary for her to wear her engagement ring to her right hand, or stop wearing it at all . . . if her second husband has no feeling about it one way or the other."

Well, it's a feeling about it. Maybe some day in quiet discussion she can alter that feeling. Maybe he'll agree to have the ring re-set as a pendant on a chain which he can clasp around Edna's neck as his love-token.

In other words, the priority of the second marriage over the first is inflexible. But to make it succeed, all else must be as flexible, from rules of etiquette to personal "insists."

Springbrook UCW Return Most Officers

The Springbrook UCW met recently at the church with 40 members and 3 members and three children. Quiet music was played by the pianist, Mrs. H. Wellman. The president, Mrs. H. Wellman, welcomed the mem-bers and thanked the hostesses for the lovely Christmas dec-orations. Mrs. Wellman read a poem on UCW.

The worship theme, "Christ-mas," was conducted by Mrs. G. Webb, with Mrs. R. Pilkey taking charge of a skit, "The Three Wisemen." The carol, "O Come All Ye Faithful" was sung. The three wisemen were Mrs. R. McKeown, Mrs. D. Fleming and Mrs. M. Mason.

The Scripture, Matthew 2: 1-12, was read by Mrs .M. Ma-son. The idea of the skit was to show how vision, faith, joy, worship, gifts and dreams are associated with the birth of the Christ Child. During the skit, "As With Gladness Men of Old" was played followed by a prayer by Mrs. Pilkey. Mrs. E. Bateman gave the prayer of dedication.

The topic, "Christmas," was well given by Mrs. P. Smith. She first said in part: "Joy is associated with Christmas. Bethlehem is the birth of Jesus Christ, where the first Christmas story still lives. Christmas is a day for children's day. The same star that shone over Bethlehem still shines on us. The real Christmas is love. The love that prompts us to give." The president thank-ed Mrs. Smith.

The cards and calls were given by the members. The secretary read a thank-you card for a floral piece from Mrs. R. Cosbey. Other corres-pondence was read and dealt with.

The flower and fruit con-vener sold of sending artifi-cial flowers to Mrs. T. Mc-Keown, Mrs. M. Martin and Mrs. R. Cosbey.

The sick and visiting com-mittee, composed of Mrs. C. Thompson and Mrs. K. Thomp-son, the latter gave the report of visiting the sick in the com-munity as well as the county home and Belleville hospital, also Mrs. T. Webb at Campbell-ford.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

The annual committee re-ports followed. The nomina-tion convener, Mrs. C. Burkitt, gave her report. Mrs. L. Bailey is the new secretary after the resignation of Mrs. R. Thomp-son. The press reporter and publicity, Mrs. M. Bateman. with Mrs. D. Bateman as assis-tant. Christian education and missionary education, Mrs. R. McKeown, and assistant, Mrs. H. Pillen. Literature and com-munications, Mrs. P. Smith, and assistant, Mrs. G. McFaul.

All the officers and committees remain the same as 1962 with the exceptions stated.

At the close, the president installed Mrs. L. Bailey and Mrs. M. Bateman, the new sec-retary, took over the duties of her office.

Each of the following con-veners gave a report for the year: Christian education and missionary, Mrs. McKeown; Mrs. McKeown asked the mem-bers for candy for the Mess-age and Explorer Christmas party; pres and publicity, Mrs. L. Bailey; supply and social as-sistant, Mrs. R. McKeown; manse, Mrs. E. Bateman for Mrs. G. Thompson; commun-ity and visiting, Mrs. H. Haslett for Mrs. D. Bate-man; program, Mrs. G. Wil-liams for Mrs. H. Pillen; flow-er and fruit, Mrs. P. Bateman; literature and communications, Mrs. P. Smith; social functions, Mrs. M. Mason.

The treasurer, Mrs. G. Broad-worth, gave her report for the year. The secretary's report of the meeting of Dec. 3rd, 3rd, given by Mrs. L. Bailey and prepared by Mrs. M. Ma-son.

The president thanked each committee for their report.

NEW BUSINESS

In new business a donation to Save the Children's Fund, and the Community Home for Christmas treats.

A discussion took place about new coffee-maker and chairs. A donation of $100 was designated to the manse fund.

Mrs. R. McKeown and Mrs. D. Fleming volunteered to be hostesses for the January meeting.

The balance of the meeting was in the form of a Christmas party. Mrs. G. Broadworth took charge of the gift ex-change which was enjoyed by the ladies and children.

Mrs. G. Thompson and Mrs. G. Broadworth conducted, a car-ol and Bible contests.

Mrs. Wellman thanked the hostesses, Mrs. E. Thompson, and Mrs. C. Sine, and commit-tee for the delicious lunch, in-cluding pickles, olives, cheese, sandwiches, Christmas cookies, ice cream and tea or coffee.

The president mentioned about the articles for sale and the Christmas Seals.

This very enjoyable annual meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer.

U.C.W. Meetings

CENTENARY U.C.W.

CENTENARY — The regular meeting of the U.C.W. was held on December 12th at the home of Mrs. Robert Nobes with 12 members and one visitor pre-sent.

The president opened the meeting with a poem, "The Story of the Christmas Guest." Mrs. F. Sutherland was in charge of the devotional. The Scripture was read by Mrs. E. Ray. Mrs. M. Nobes read an explanation of the Scripture Mrs. Sutherland read a story, "Keeping Christmas," followed by a poem by Mrs. B. Harder, "No Room in the Inn." Mrs F. Aikens read a story, "Christ-mas is a Time of Giving." Mrs. Sutherland followed with a story about the "Holy Land."

Mrs. A. Christopher read from the new study book, "On Asia's Rim." Mrs. R. Thrash-er and Mrs. P. Sutherland con-tributed to the birthday box. Nine calls were reported. A card of thanks was read from Mrs. Pearl Holmes. It was decided that all officers are to remain in office next year. Other matters of business were dis-cussed.

The president closed the meeting with a Christmas prayer.

Lunch was served.

Spreadability Of Butter Being Studied

MELBOURNE (Reuters)— Dairy researchers in several countries are hard at work developing a more spreadable butter to save housewives bother.

Ever since refrigeration be-came a boon in the kitchen, housewives have had to cope with spreading brick-like butter. And for the same period, scientists have made attempts to improve butter's spread-ability.

Now the Victoria state de-partment of agriculture, at its school of dairy technology in Werribee, has joined several overseas counterparts in a new attack on the subject.

Co-operating in the three year research program are teams in the United States, Canada, Britain, Sweden, Fin-land, South Africa, West Ger-many, and The Netherlands.

The result, they hope, will be butter which will be neither too hard nor too soft.

Scientists expect to investi-gate cream cooling conditions, storage temperatures and pe-riods and the temperature at which butter is made.

Women's Institutes

CHATTERTON W. I.

The December meeting of the Chatterton W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. E. De-Mille with 18 members, two visitors and several children present.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the pre-sident, Mrs. L. Reid. A letter was read from the River Valley W.I. extending an invitation for the branch to attend their Farm Forum program, which will be held on February 4th. Two "thank you" notes were also read.

The convener, Mrs. L. Reid, opened the Christmas program with a poem entitled "Christ-mas Time Is." Several Christ-mas carols followed. The or-gin of "O Little Town of Beth-lehem" was given by Mrs. Roy Ross. The Misses Bonnie and Judy MacInnes favored with a duet "Away in a Manager." A poem. "The Ageless Story" was read by Mrs. Albert Car-son. "Holly By Any Name Means Christmas" was read by Mrs. Harry Reid. A poem, "Because of Christmas" was read by Mrs. Douglas Frest.

An interesting demonstra-tion was given by Miss Mari-lyn Dellile on making Christ-candlesticks. There were made chiefly from colored plasticine, foundation and a styro-foam base. Marilyn also had on display several "poodle dogs" of various colors.

A Bible quiz was conducted by Mrs. C. Reide and the prize, a miniature Bible, was won by Mrs. Donald Smith.

Christmas gifts were ex-changed by the members and it was interesting to discover whom for the "friendship sister" had been for the year. It was decided that names would not be drawn for "friendship sis-ters" for the following year.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time enjoyed.

DIET VARIETY

Variety is an important fac-tor of diet based on five differ-ent groups of foods as listed in Canada's Food Guide.

Old paint spatters on wood floors will usually disappear easily if moistened with soft soap or scrubbing solution and rubbed re-peatedly. Let it soak in for a few min-utes, then rub off with a cloth and fresh suds, rinse and dry.

Cannifton UCW Return 1962 Officers

Miss Mildred McPherson grac-iously opened her home for the Christmas meeting of the even-ing group of Cannifton United Church Women, on Monday. Vera Mitchell, the president, opened the meeting with an apt-propriate Christmas poem which was followed by the singing of the "First Noel". The president led in prayer.

Doris Ellsworth read a letter from the United Church and it was decided that a further $30 be given to the M. and M. fund.

The president thanked Mild-red for opening her home for the meeting.

Joy Putman gave the card report and it was suggested by Mary Thorton, that the U.C.W. send a Christmas card to Kotli.

The birthday roll call was taken, with four members with birthdays.

The new slate of officers was brought in by Myrna Millon with officers remaining, with the exception of Joy Putman re-placing Dorothy Dawson on the visiting committee.

Those in charge of the next meeting were informed. The worship service was in charge of Mildred McPherson, Ruth Boyce, Barbara Smith and Mary Thornton. Ruth opened the ser-vice with prayer which was fol-lowed by the carol, "Silent Night."

Mildred read a poem entitled "Sounds of Christmas." Mary told of the Angel's visit to Mary in St. Luke.

Barbara read the passages from St. Matthew telling the story of the Wise Men.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Grant Cros-by, who gave an inspiring talk on the "Eternity of Christmas."

Ruth Boyce thanked Mrs. Crosby for her lovely message.

Wilma and Joyce McPherson favored with a piano duet, "Holy Night," which was greatly en-joyed.

The members all joined in singing carols with Joy Putman at the piano.

Delicious refreshments were served and a social hour brought a most enjoyable meet-ing to a close.

ON THE WARPATH—Grand Chief Wapanatak, blood brother of Canadian Cree Indians, stands beside a symbol of British Columbia, the province he calls Totem State. He's in Washington trying to interest the U.S. government in buying Totem State. Wapanatak, born of Canadian-Irish parents, is ambassador at large of the allied tribes of B.C. who maintain the Canadian government never signed a treaty with B.C. Indians and therefore the province doesn't belong to the white man. (CP Photo)

Grand Chief Wapanstak Wants to Swing Big Deal, Territory for Wampum

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Just over that well-known hill where the white man holds his powwows here, an aged, pipe-smoking Canadian Indian chief daily scouts the settlers, awaiting the guiding hand of the Great Spirit to swing a big deal—territory for wampum.

Grand Chief Wapanatak of the allied tribes of British Columbia, of the Crees, and a descendant of the Shamrock tribes of Ireland, isn't doing too well.

He's been scouting Capital Hill and the U.S. government for four years without any luck. There just doesn't seem to be any interest in the U.S. buying British Columbia — the Totem state, as Wapanatak's tribes call it.

Of course, the allied tribes, numbering about 35,000 on the west coast, would, first of all, like to sell British Columbia to the Canadian government—or, more properly, to get "proper" financial recognition that the territory was taken over by the white man years ago without a redskin treaty.

It is a matter now of about $25,000,000—the amount of a federal trust fund which the Indians maintain rightfully belongs to them. Secreted in the papers of Wapanatak, the Canadian Indian with an Irish background, is a tribe pledge to pay him five per cent of any cash wampum he can get.

TIE UP COLUMBIA

If Ottawa is not interested, the Indians have reasoned, then Washington may be eager to make a deal with the allied tribes—especially in view of the American interest in having the Columbia River Power Project implemented.

"The dams can't be built in the Totem state without our approval," says Wapanatak, whose name means morning star.

A paleface himself, adopted as a blood brother by the Crees in a Saskatchewan ceremony 15 years ago, Wapanatak maintains palefaces can't lay claim to an inch of B.C.—oops, Totem —territory until a treaty is signed and bounty in the form of cash handed over.

Wapanatak — christened Russel Rogers Smith at birth—slyly hints the allied tribes can tie up the Columbia in court for years unless the white man pays.

More than a year ago, Grand Chief Thunderbird, Wapanatak's superior, wrote Prime Minister Diefenbaker the ultimatum—sign a treaty or the tribes will go to Washington. Thunderbird was well prepared. He already had his 78-year-old, grey-eyed Wapanatak in Washington, duly designated as ambassador at large and minister plenipotentiary of the Totem state.

Diefenbaker did not respond, Wapanatak says.

"I've made a lifetime study of constitutional law and I tell you, the Columbia won't be built as long as there is a court to hear the Indians," says the ambassador.

But, as the seasons changed, Wapanatak was reduced by pecuniary circumstances to shift his wigwam from a hotel to a rooming house.

From there he makes his daily reconnaissance, trying to whip up interest in the interior department in acquiring the Totem state or trying to get Totem state membership in the Organization of American States.

"We listen to him but we do not give him an encouragement," said an OAS legal official.

The son of Canadian-Irish parents and one of the first white children born in the Indian village of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., Russell Rogers Smith proudly carries with him a passport identifying him as "Wapanatak" made out by the Saskatchewan Indian Assembly where he was made a chief in 1947.

MADE IT OFFICIAL

Both U.S. and Canadian immigration officials have recognized the passport, stamping it on Wapanatak's cross-border travels.

"I played with the Cree children at Fort Qu'Appelle when I was a child," Wapanatak recalled. "I was the first white boy born there. My father was kind to the Cree; fed them when they were hungry and they were good to me."

When the Smith family moved westward, to Vancouver and Victoria, young Russell Rogers became friends with the late Andrew Paull, president of the North American Indian brotherhood and a sports writer on the Vancouver Province in the years before 1926.

Around 1926 Wapanatak became associated with the Native Sons of Canada movement, arguing that Canada should become completely independent of Britain.

In 1947 the Canadian revenue department notified Wapanatak he had failed to file an income tax return for 1946. Wapanatak put up such a storm of protest because the government was trying to tax an Indian that the revenue department retreated. Wapanatak paid no taxes.

A widower with no offspring, Wapanatak lives mainly on his savings and a Canadian pension. In 1955, the B.C. Grand Council of the Totem state appointed him ambassador at large, pledging him five per cent of any large amount of cash he may turn up for the Indians.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Formerly of Income Tax Assessor
Income Tax Department

A single taxpayer who has been living at home supporting a dependent parent is often confused as to the allowable exemption in the year of his or her marriage.

There is no problem to a male taxpayer if his wife does not work after their marriage, as he would claim his additional $500 for each parent. However, if the taxpayer's wife is employed after marriage and earns over $1,250 then he has no claim for his wife but may retain the equivalent to married status on one parent and the $500 claim on the other, which is the same exemption as he had before his marriage. He should keep in mind that this exemption is only valid in the year of marriage. In any subsequent year he can only claim $500 for each parent.

In the case of the female taxpayer who has been claiming the equivalent to married status on a parent, and continues working after marriage, she can also retain this status in the year of marriage only.

If she supported both parents before and after marriage and needs only one one which she may claim $1,000 exemption, there is nothing in the Income Tax Act to stop her husband from claiming the second parent. His claim would only be for $500 for the "in-law." In such cases the husband and wife should determine which way would give them the greater advantage before filing their returns.

Any letters addressed to me in care of this newspaper will receive my personal reply if a self-addressed and stamped envelope is enclosed.

Question 1 — I have always lived at home and supported my widowed mother. I have always been allowed $1,000 exemption for her. I was married this year and my husband lives here with us. I did not work after marriage and earned only $200 before. Can my husband claim my mother? If so, how much?

Answer: As you did not have any income after marriage, your husband will have $1,000 for you and $500 on behalf of your mother for a total exemption of $2,500. The $1,000 exemption is allowable only on behalf of one person.

Question 2 — I lived with my parents before marriage and had an exemption of $2,500. I got married this year and my wife kept on working. She earned over $1,500 after marriage. What is my exemption?

Answer: In the year of marriage only you will retain the same exemption as other years.

FLOODS HIT PATRAS

PATRAS, Greece (AP)—Flash floods drove more than 10,000 persons from their homes Monday night in Patras, Greece's third largest port. Violent rainstorms caused the floods, and rains continued today. No dead or injured were reported.

MAKES MEDAL CAST — Orazio Lombardo, Italian-born medal and coin engraver who now runs a successful business in Sherbrooke, Que., chisels steel cylinders for die that will stamp out military cap and collar badges. Mr. Lombardo has eight employees in his 21-machine shop and turns out 35,000 religious and military medals a year. (CP Photo).

Answered Advertisment And Found a Rich Future

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Eleven years ago, Orazio Lombardo, a Milan engraver, answered an advertisement for a job in a place called Sherbrooke, Que.

He engraved a medal which was selected as the best of six sent to the Canadian employer by Milaness craftsmen.

Now Mr. Lombardo is one of the top Canadian manufacturers of military, religious and numismatic medals.

He has an eight-employee, 21-machine shop which turns out some 35,000 religious and military medals a year.

When he stepped off the ship in 1951, Orazio Lombardo had $20 and a promised job with Francis Costanza, the Sherbrooke jewelry firm official who had advertised through immigration officials.

SELLS TO GOVERNMENT

He married a Canadian girl, "worked night and day," and eventually built up a shop of his own and left the jewelry firm to go into the business full time. Now the three-floor shop, where Orazio spends as many as 16 hours a day, has machines ranging from a delicate panta - graphic machine for copying engravings to the big hammer in the basement—used when as much as 260 tons of pressure is needed to strike a piece.

The federal department of defence production is his biggest customer. But Halifax curlers and the British Columbia government use his medals, too. The Halifax Curling Club buys for Vancouver bus riders use Mr. Lombardo's tokens. Until recently, he also produced on a sub-contract the tokens for the Jacques Cartier Bridge tolls.

But his pride is the special medals he issues for historic occasions in limited numbers—for collectors' benefit.

One of the most recent of these was a medal 3½ inches in diameter commemorating the official opening of the Trans Canada Highway.

Mr. Lombardo feels not enough attention is paid to fine medal making for collectors. He has named his firm Canadian Artistic Dies and says: "many people make dies, but artistic dies—that is something very rare."

MORE GET FREE FOOD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans receiving free food from the government has nearly doubled since the Kennedy administration took office. An agriculture department report today showed that 6,100,000 needy persons are receiving surplus foods under the agency's direct distribution program. That compares with 3,200,000 late in 1960 under the outgoing Eisenhower administration.

Times Are Not So Hard For Soft Coal Business

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The struggling U.S. soft coal industry made a relatively strong comeback in 1962. Production rose an estimated 3.3 per cent. Leaders expect even better things in 1963.

The National Coal Association said output should hit 420,000,000 tons when all the figures are in. Production in 1961 was 409,000,000.

Thus, coal men — fighting strong competitive pressure from natural gas and oil-notched their most productive year since 1957 when miners dug 422,000,000 tons.

Electric utilities, the No. 1 soft coal consumer, provided the biggest boost. Orders from other users remained fairly stable.

The upturn is expected to continue through 1963. The association forecast calls for production of 429,000,000 tons, a modest improvement of 1.7 per cent over 1962.

Also on the plus-side of the ledger was export shipments which gained 3,000,000 tons over 1961's 24,000,000. The Canadian market bought only 10,000,000 tons, compared with 11,000,000 in 1961.

Coal companies turned to bigger and better digging tools in 1962. Other mammoth equipment was being built.

The largest mobile land machine ever built went to work ripping earth and rock in 200-ton chunks from above a coal seam at a Peabody Coal Co. mine near Paradise, Ky. The electrically - powered strip shovel—220 feet high—is capable of uncovering as much as 14,000 tons a day.

On the labor scene, peace continued among the large producers.

Members of the United Mine Workers Union haven't had a pay raise in four years. They average about $25 a day. There hasn't been an industry-wide strike since 1950.

The industry employed some 130,000 men in 1962, compared with about 131,000 in 1961.

The output of coal continued downward. However, there were hopes that when the year's final figure was in, the decline wouldn't be as severe as in recent years.

In 1947, 177,000,000 tons of hard coal was dug in 1961. There appeared to be a chance the tons, compared with 11,000,000 in 1961. figure would be only three per cent less.

Better Late Than Never, Russians Mark Christmas

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Despite 45 years of Communist rule, Christmas Day will be marked across the face of the Soviet Union.

But, as always, it will come 13 days after much of the rest of the world.

On Dec. 23, 1962, stores, factories and offices will be open. Children will be at school and housewives shopping.

Since the magic combination of the date and the month means nothing here, and never has.

But for those still in the pressure by the state against the churches, religion still has a hold.

Thousands of Muscovites will stream into the lofty Elokhovsky Cathedral and other churches late Jan. 6 for the Orthodox Christmas Eve mass.

They will come and go all night long until the final masses are said, at about 4 a.m.

Survey on 'Social Change In Britain Shows John Bull As a Stupendous Gambler

LONDON (CP)—A survey on social change in Britain paints the modern-day John Bull as a stupendous gambler who spends more than he can afford to keep up with the Joneses and is basically discontent in an "era of materialism."

The uncomplimentary report, compiled by a team of top civil servants, blames much of the discontent on a trend towards suburban living "much on the American model."

The report was designed to give the government an idea of the immense social change in Britain over the last 10 years. It was two months in the preparation and cabinet ministers have been studying it for the last six weeks.

Now it has been announced the government intends to set up a committee of six to inquire into research on the social services and the effect on the best distribution of effort among government departments, outside bodies and the universities.

TRENDS TO CONTINUE

The report forecasts that some trends apparent in the last decade will continue in the next.

"More people will want to move into an outer suburban life, buy and educate their children longer, suffer their surgical illnesses in private rooms of hospitals, spend evenings staring at television, spend more, gamble more, buy more washing machines on hire purchase (credit), take holidays in Italy, lay their own parquet floors, and so on."

Last year, $27,000,000 was owing on credit — £466,000,000 more than in 1953.

One of the major reasons for the rush to the suburbs, says the report, is the decontrol of rents in the cities.

On the subject of discontent among many Britons, the report suggests that "the loss of rush-hour punctuality because of strife - strained commuter services may easily be the cause of the worst irritability and frustration in the suburbs."

GAMBLING 'STUPENDOUS'

The report describes the amount of gambling in Britain as "stupendous and says "the amount of money staked does not measure the extent of the fever." The total estimated turnover in 1961 on all forms of gambling was £782,000,000—nearly £14 a person.

It estimated that the amount spent in only the commercial bingo clubs, which sprang up as a result of the relaxed Betting and Gaming Act of 1960, at about £25,000,000.

The report says Britons are the healthiest and wealthier than in 1951 and "the big shift was from low-level to middle-level incomes."

"However the picture may be distorted by hidden illness and fits, it must be essentially a picture of a swelling middle-class, living in private rooms into outlying rural, suburban or small town areas around the big cities. That now is the dominant portrait of John Bull."

Rift Between Russia, Red China Appears to Be Serious

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the view of Western intelligence sources, the rift between Russia and Red China has become extremely serious.

Instead of one Communist camp, the Western alliance may soon have to deal with three, and this is heartening to Western military leaders who long have hoped for internal Communist corrosion, diplomats are very wary of attempting to outfox one Communist force was difficult enough. Attempting to outsmart two Red forces may call for a new breed of sly fox.

For while the analysts now see the Moscow-Peking rift as serious, they emphasize that it is no conclusion that an open break between Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Communist Chairman Tse-tung will shift Khrushchev onto the side of the West.

Mao Tse-tung is considered a still harboring hope to destroy capitalism. He has been hurt by Khrushchev's troops and by there and Washington doesn't hold out much hope that he will succeed.

LOOKS FOR NEW OUTLET

He isn't expected to make any headway in the near future because of the danger that Berlin may turn into Sarajevo, and he is also alert for an opportunity to move in elsewhere.

Khrushchev is considered wily; Mao more blunt and brutal. Both are considered dangerous for the West, though as President Kennedy has stated, the West may find it easier to live with Moscow than with Peking.

The two Communist capitals are hammering at each other with vicious verbal assaults, followed by ambassadorial withdrawals. The latest is the report of departure of some Soviet military delegations from Chinese centres.

Professor Marshall Shulman of Harvard University, an authority on Soviet policy, believes the Sino-Soviet alliance will continue despite border disagreements. But in Washington there is a lot of pressure to prevent an open break, a split appears likely.

This Washington view sees no likelihood of a Sino-Soviet war.

The Moscow-Peking fight has emotional impact because it strikes at the heart of Communist ideology. A period of human instability may develop as Communist adherents face both Moscow and wonder which is authentic.

Woman Kills Timber Wolf Attacking Hubby

RIVER VALLEY, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Isidore Carre grabbed an axe and killed a timber wolf that attacked her husband on his farm Wednesday.

Mr. Carre, released from hospital after treatment said he was in the stable when his two dogs started barking and ran in. When the frightened dogs refused to leave the stable he went out to investigate.

"Just as I had stepped out the door I felt a big black dog leave leap at me," he said. "It must have jumped 10 feet to grab me by the throat. I was thrown to the ground and we rolled over until we were at the stable entry. I was yelling and my son-in-law ran to my rescue."

Mr. Carre and his son-in-law, Fernand Legault, managed to force the wolf into the stable, then Mrs. Carre arrived with an axe and chopped the animal down.

The wolf's fangs penetrated two inches in the left side of Mr. Carre's body. He was treated at a hospital in Sturgeon Falls, about 20 miles southeast of here.

The wolf's head was to be given laboratory examination for rabies. Mr. Carre was treated for rabies as a precautionary measure, and his dog, one of whom was bitten on the nose, will be kept chained up until a report is received.

Stop Picketing Woodstock Store

WOODSTOCK (CP) — The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (CLC) has stopped picketing Hersee's of Woodstock Limited.

The cessation of picketing follows a 37 to 30 vote by employes of Deacon Brothers Sportswear Limited of Belleville to decertify the union as its bargaining agent.

The Woodstock men's wear store has been picketed since last August when William Hersee refused a union demand that he cancel his fall order from the Belleville firm.

Deacon Brothers claimed the union represented a minority of its employees and refused to recognize it.

The Woodstock men's wear store has been picketed since last August when William Hersee refused a union demand that he cancel his fall order from the Belleville firm.

Deacon Brothers claimed the union represented a minority of its employees and refused to recognize it.

District Workers, Doctors, Clergymen, Teachers Unite To Prevent Mental Illness

Doctors, clergymen, teachers and community workers are combining forces today to help those who suffer mental affliction and emotional distress. It's a far cry from former days when the mental patient was shunned in social outcast. Here, in the fourth of five articles, is the story of this joint attempt to prevent emotional trouble before it starts.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Along the highway to Kansas Turnpike dation are coming clergymen, businessmen, doctors, lawyers, teachers, community leaders.

They share a common goal—the prevention of mental illness with its incalculable human suffering.

"The exciting thing is to help people before they become ill," says Dr. William Menninger, a big, relaxed man who with his brother, Karl, is among the pioneers of psychiatric care who made Topeka's state mental hospitals from keepers of the ill to effective treatment centers.

Mental illness begins or is aggravated in the home, the schools, the church or many situations. Life can begin going sour in hundreds of ways—for example, the feeling useless after her children leave home . . . the man lashing out his dreams on the child feeling inadequate to parental expectations and despairing.

FAMILY DOCTOR HELPS

There are not enough psychiatrists and psychologists for treatment, even in many big cities. Many physicians give such aid, and half the people going to family doctors do so because of symptoms arising from psychological causes. Psychiatric education of the general physician is a major program of the American Psychiatric Association.

Community leaders could become a small army of men and women giving counsel to help solve emotional problems.

Some already know intuitively how to advise the emotionally troubled, says Dr. Joseph Satten, director of the Menninger Foundation's social psychiatry department, stressing research as important.

"Others can be given an understanding of some scientific principles, the ABC's with which to recognize problems, to counsel people, to prevent situations from becoming worse, to suggest helpful courses of action in a useful way."

POWERFUL INFLUENCE

The foundation exemplifies some of the grass roots approaches toward prevention.

A job means more besides money, and what happens to people at work can powerfully influence mental health, explains Dr. Harry Levinson. So since 1956, top business executives have been coming to special week-long seminars to "learn what makes people tick."

Why does a top salesman fall as a desk - bound executive? Why do seemingly successful men turn to alcoholism, or threaten a nervous breakdown? Influences company morale, what makes employees angry or frustrated? What stifles creativity?

By one estimate, 80 to 90 per cent of emotional problems seen in the job arena are employee arise in their home life.

The objective is to teach business leaders how to detect and know how humans feel, Dr. Levinson says.

TRAIN CLERGYMEN

One survey finds that 42 per cent of people turn first to their ministers or pastors when emotional troubles begin to take a toll. Appropriate training for future clergymen is espoused by the National Institute of Mental Health at Loyola University in Chicago, Yeshiva University in New York, and at Harvard Divinity school.

Thousands of school children run into serious emotional problems.

Dr. Edward Greenwood heads a program in which Topeka schools, teachers, psychiatrists and psychologists join hands in counselling to detect troubles, find causes and remedies. Invariably this involves voluntary consultations with parents, who may unwittingly be triggering the child's reactions.

"Being a good parent is one of the most difficult tasks of all," Dr. Greenwood remarks.

Soldiers' Restraint Doomed Coup by Premier Dia

DAKAR, Senegal (AP)—Restraint of some Senegalese soldiers who had rallied to Premier Mamadou Dia's support kept a coup because of symptoms arising from psychological causes. Psychiatric education of the general physician is a major program of the American Psychiatric Association.

Prisoners Put In Segregation For Own Good

KINGSTON (CP)—Two Kingston penitentiary prisoners were placed in the segregation area following the fatal stabbing last year of prison guard William C. Wentworth, Warden Victor Richmond said Wednesday.

Warden Richmond was answering accusations made in the House of Commons Tuesday by Harold Winch, NDP member for Vancouver East who said Jack Robert Cochrane, 36, was being kept in "torture hole" to force a confession from him.

Cochrane was among 42 prisoners by a disciplinary board of Nov. 24, 1961, when Wentworth was killed.

Warden Richmond said the cell is which Cochrane was placed 13 months ago is in a segregation block and prisoners are kept there "for their own protection and the protection of the institution."

He said the case of each segregation cell prisoner is discussed every six months by the prison's board of governors.

Cochrane, he said, has asked to be moved from the small cell but his application was refused. About 18 prisoners are lodged in the segregation area—including another man who was involved in the 1961 fracas which led to the slaying.

Warden Richmond said one man has just been released from the segregation block where, at his own request, he remained for two years.

Judge to Give Opinion on Alleged Beating

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Judge Colin B. Sweatman of Grey County, heading an inquiry into the operation of the county home for the aged, is scheduled to give his opinion today on an alleged beating in the institution.

Judge Bennett said Wednesday although the inquiry will be adjourned today until some time in January, he believes charges brought against the home by service station operator Roy Clarke are serious. The judge requested that anyone having information concerning the reported beating of home resident Allan McMann, 63, get in touch with him before noon today, when he would give his opinion.

Clarke, whose service station is across the road from the home, told Monday he had seen Superintendent Wesley Lindsay of the home standing behind McMann with a strap in his hand and that he saw marks and blood on McMann's face. Constable Robert Boyd of the Markdale Provincial Police department said Wednesday Donald May told him no such marks appeared on the body of Mr. McMann, who died after he stroke a few days after the alleged beating.

SUBJECT TO STROKES

Dr. William Berkwell, a Markdale physician who is official doctor for the home, told the court McMann, who was subject to minor strokes, had suffered one in bathroom before he entered the home. He said the man also suffered five strokes during the month he was in the institution.

Dr. Brekwell told the court three strokes Mr. McMann depressed and despondent and he instructed Superintendent Lindsay that McMann should be made to feed and dress himself. The Markdale doctor said he told Lindsay he felt home attendants should not sympathize with the feeble-minded.

The day McMann was removed from the county home to a nursing home, said Dr. Breakwell, he was examined and there were no indications that he had been beaten.

Dr. Brekwell also told the court he has been unable to find a doctor who will sign a condition of the home including the food and treatment of patients in his experience.

WARNED BY MAYOR

Clarke testified that on Sept 22, 1962, Mayor E. C. Sargent of Owen Sound called him on the telephone and said:

"I hear the people at the home are not getting proper attention in the way of food and warm. I warn you that I will make a personal inspection in the near future. If they are not being as well fed as in the best restaurants in Owen Sound will fire you."

Mayor Sargent, who is on the county home board, printed a number of complaints in his weekly newspaper in September which led to the present hearing. The home is supported 75 per cent by the county and 25 per cent by the city of Owen Sound.

Lindsay said the mayor visited the home the morning of Sept. 27 and Lindsay told him he was free to inspect it. Lindsay said the mayor declined saying he was on his way to Toronto and didn't have time for the inspection.

Lindsay said the mayor told him "I think I owe you an apology. I will make it right with the citizens."

33 Killed At Polish Airliner Crashes

CP from Reuters-AP

WARSAW, Poland — All 33 persons aboard Polish Viscount airliner were reported killed when the plane crashed while landing at Warsaw Airport Wednesday.

The airliner, flying from Brussels to Warsaw via East Berlin with 28 passengers and a crew of five, exploded when it crashed about 500 yards from the end of the airport runway. All aboard were killed.

Airport officials said four passengers survived the crash but died later.

Research Council Will Aid Municipalities in Removing Snow From Streets, Walks

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Research Council says most Canadian municipalities will have removal problems are using facilities designed to meet conditions of 20 to 30 years ago.

The council hopes its research program will "bring to those responsible for snow and ice removal the information they require to do their job with maximum effectiveness."

Snow removal authorities have applied imagination and ingenuity within their budgets to develop ways to remove snow and ice or prevent it from accumulating.

However, the council says, they lack information on real savings resulting from snowfree roads and on equipment and techniques for removal. They also have no way of obtaining the experience of other countries with the same problem.

As a result NRC offers two new services to the Society of Swiss Snow and Avalanche Research Institute, translated into English. One deals with the melting action of salt and provides information for choosing the most effective salt for a given situation and the amount required. The other deals with Swiss experience in combatting snow drifting and icing, with fences, sanding, salting and heating installations.

Five Russian reports on snowdrifting also are available.

The council says its efforts will be aided by a project started by the American Public Works Association. The main purpose of the project — supported by a number of American and Canadian cities—is to record costs and benefits of snow clearing and ice removal.

NRC will take part in this study which also will define areas in which snow problems are similar, classify different types of snow which must be cleared and carry out field tests on new methods and techniques.

The council says it plans to encourage the development within Canada of suitable machinery for snow removal and provide assistance in field testing.

Peace Movement Founder Says Hearing Waste of Time

WASHINGTON (CP) — When it comes to a battle between male and female, the woman usually gets the last word. Mrs. Dagmar Wilson is determined to keep hers.

"We were bullied by witch-hunting congressmen trying to find Communists under every sewing basket," said the mother of three children as she recounted her experiences testifying before a House of Representatives subcommittee on UN-American activities last week.

"I don't think a few Communists in our peace drive are going to do us any harm," added the 46-year-old founder of the Women Strike for Peace movement, subjected to three days of public investigation by the committee which suspects that at least part of the movement has been taken over by the Reds.

CALLS IT WASTE

"I was absolutely incensed by that utter waste of time," said Mrs. Wilson, whose great aunt-in-law is Ellen Wilson, referring to a troubled world through East-West disarmament.

"It was a waste of time that could have been spent on peace work, which is very important time, too. You know how busy mothers are at Christmas."

Rep. Clyde Doyle, California Democrat who presided at the hearings, tried to be polite about Mrs. Wilson's bitter outburst.

"There was no waste of time and no waste of money," he told interview. "After all, we had a task to perform. The subcommittee was trying to find out whether Communists had taken over the leadership of the New York group which is the spearhead of the Peace movement. We probably will be investigating other organizations before the year is out."

The three-day hearing was a strange performance, enough to make the whitetail deer hunter. There were baby carriages parked outside the hearing room; the whimpering cries of restless children brought by their mothers who rushed to give moral support to their fellow peace workers and their rather fantastical attitude of some of the witnesses.

Mrs. Wilson, a well-known if controversial figure, blandly said: "Nobody controls anybody in the women strike for peace. We're all leaders."

She would welcome all kinds of political support—including rifle and pistol clubs—she added.

"Unless everybody in the whole world joins us in this fight, then God help us."

Wants Politics Kept Out of Fitness Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Roxburgh pleased with his fellow MPs in the Commons Wednesday to keep politics out of the national fitness program. Otherwise, he said it will become "a regular schmozzle."

The Liberal member for Norfolk, former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said politics already has entered the new program. He also criticized the government for cutting its 1962-63 fitness budget to $1,000,000 from the $5,000,000 it promised.

Mr. Roxburgh said one of "the most flagrant episodes" of political interference so far was Health Minister Monteith's pledge to Trail Smoke Eaters that he would do what he could to get the hockey team a federal grant.

He also complained that some of the federal grants given completely unjustified from the standpoint of physical fitness. One of these was a grant to the Canadian rugger team for its recent tour of the United Kingdom.

"What did that do for physical fitness in Canada?" he asked. Real Caouette (Ralliement des Creditistes) told the health minister in charge of the program, said later that the $5,000,000 will be a good start but it will not be possible to spend all the money this year because the program is just now developing.

"The only reason why you're not spending the money is that you haven't got a plan for spending it," retorted Mr. Roxburgh.

Mr. Monteith also noted that the government in providing the program had followed to acts on recommendations of a national advisory council.

Katangans Mob U.S. Consulate

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters): About 100 Elisabethville unlver sity students demonstrated outside American algeans today stoned the American consulate here and smashed out some of the buildings in the consulate grounds.

The stoning and arson were part of a 20-minute demonstration which was finally dispersed by police in this capital of secessionist Katanga province in The Congo. An official said no one in the consulate was hurt.

Cries of the demonstrators was to protest against American efforts to end the secession of Katanga and reintegrate it with the rest of The Congo.

Some of the windows in the consulate, which is next door to the residence of Moise Tshombe, president of Katanga, were broken and two consulate cars were damaged.

Safety at Christmas Time

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND, M.D., Health Minister for Ont.

Christmas should be a peaceful and happy time for the family, but all too often it is marred by a tragic accident. For at this time of year there are more hazards in our home than at any other, and most of them constitute a fire danger.

The Ontario Safety League suggests that we may frequently invite accidents to our Christmas festivities, in the form of badly wired coloured lights, frayed cords, overloaded electric circuits and candles, to mention a few.

The Christmas tree and trimmings provide ready kindling for fire, should a hazardous electrical condition exist in the home. To help you to remove these conditions before they lead to fire, your Department of Health offers some precautions to take when decorating your home for Christmas.

When you choose a tree, pick a green one that hasn't dried out. Make a fresh cut on the trunk and stand it in water until you set it up. Then use a tree-stand that holds water, and remember to keep it filled with water. Place the tree well away from candles, radiators or electrical appliances and other sources of heat.

Always check last year's coloured lights to see that cords are not worn. When buying new ones make sure they are marked approved by CAS (Canadian Standards Association). If you plan to decorate the outside of your house, use lights especially insulated for outdoor use.

Other tree trimmings are important as well. The glass wool or asbestos type of "snow" for example, is far safer than cotton. Reflectors on lights help to keep heated bulbs away from direct contact with the branches.

If you overloaded a circuit with all the additional lights used, you'll soon know about it when a fuse blows. This fuse is your safety valve, warning you to redistribute the load onto other circuits. Most homes do not require fuses larger than 15 amperage, so never replace a 15gm fuse with a higher amperage one.

A thorough check of all these possible fire situations, correcting them as you find them, will help to assure your whole family a safe, accident - free Christmas.

Emigration to U.S.

Canadians Never Stay Away for Keeps -- Well Hardly Ever, Say Experts

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Government research economists say they have exploded a long-held belief that the majority of Canadians who migrate to the United States stay away for keeps.

A series of studies still in progress indicates that 73 per cent of Canadian-born and foreign-born long-term residents who went to the U.S. in the 10 years from 1951 to 1961 returned to Canada.

The studies do not include foreign - born immigrants who came to Canada during the 10 years only to work for short periods and had no intention of staying.

The new theory of research economists that migration of Canadians to the U.S. isn't as serious a problem as it once was may provoke some new thinking on Canadian emigration.

Other highlights of the 1962 immigration years:

1. The government decided to admit refugees from Communist China as landed immigrants.

2. Immigrants from Britain outnumbered Italians for the first time since 1957.

3. The government closed its investigation, started in 1960, into the illegal entry of Chinese.

4. Richard A. Bell succeeded Mrs. Ellen Fairclough as immigration minister, the latter becoming postmaster-general.

IMMIGRATION TO RISE

Flow of immigrants in 1962 is expected to be only slightly higher than the 1961 total of 71,689. However, Mr. Bell said in an interview that he anticipates an increase in 1963.

Concern has often been expressed in recent years over figures showing that immigration has barely kept ahead of emigration. The 1961 immigration total of 71,689 compared with 70,723 emigrants, mostly to the U.S.

Research economists say that these figures do not take into account a fundamental change in immigration and emigration.

Before Canada emerged as an industrial nation, most immigrants were farmers and unskilled workers who came to stay. Most educated Canadians who emigrated to Indus trial countries such as the U.S. did not return.

This pattern has been changed by Canadian industrialization.

About 85 to 95 per cent of immigrants now arriving in Canada remain. The rest are short-term immigrants who come for training, adventure and other reasons and then leave. Examples are British engineers who come to learn to build highway cloverleafs and Australians being trained to operate sugar markets.

CENSUS REVEALS FLOW

Job opportunities created by Canadian industrialization also have reversed the pattern of emigration. Canadian-born and foreign-born long-term residents now go to other countries for a few years to study and teach, to train, to work in industry for experience and then return.

Between June 1, 1951, and June 1, 1961, a total of 282,335 Canadian-born and some 50,000 foreign-born long - term residents went to the U.S.

However, the research studies show thus far that after the 1961 census only one-quarter of these persons were not accounted for. This means that of the people who lived in Canada in 1951 or were born or came to Canada in the following 10 years, only 89,000 were unaccounted for in 1961 census figures.

This conclusion was reached by adding to 1961 census figures the net natural increase in the population and residue of immigration—those people who arrived in the decade and were counted in the 1961 census. This gave a theoretical population of 18,238,000, compared with the 1961 census count of 18,238,000 —a difference of some 90,000.

The research economists say that the persons not accounted for in 1961 census represent the number who went to the U.S. in 10 years and stayed.

NEW REGULATION

Meanwhile, new immigration regulations enacted Feb 1, 1962, are expected by Mr. Bell to have a significant effect in 1963. The regulations are designed to attract skilled immigrants and, in the government's view, remove discrimination from Canada's immigration laws.

However, Mr. Bell conceded there will be difficulties in finding suitable immigrants under the arrival of the unskilled, the hard core of Canada's unemployed.

The main reason is that most countries where such immigrants are found are experiencing economic booms and there appears to be no desire among the professionals and the skilled workers to migrate to Canada.

Mr. Bell said he felt that immigration reached its low point early in 1962 and now is on the upswing. He said that from Feb. 1 to August 31, 1962, the number of persons applying to enter Canada totalled 90,000 compared with 60,000 in the corresponding 1961 period.

Great Canadian Oil Sands Company Gives Approval to Extract Oil From Sands

By JOHN MATTERS

CALGARY (CP) — The first step toward exploiting the tantalizing Athabasca oil sands, and the discovery of more oil-saturated sand in the Arctic islands, make 1962 a year of significance to Canada's petroleum industry.

The Alberta government, acting on a recommendation of its oil and conservation board, gave approval in the fall to a $125,000,000 scheme by Great Canadian Oil Sands, Ltd. to extract oil from the Athabasca sands.

Premier E. C. Manning said the region, 280 miles northeast of Edmonton, is estimated to contain 300 to 500 billion barrels of oil,"a substantial amount of it extractable.

"The Athabasca sands are believed to hold the largest known reserves of oil in the world, potentially enough to supply Canada's needs for 800 years. But it wasn't until Dr. Karl A. Clark, professor of mining at the University of Alberta, perfected a water flotation process separating the oil from the sand that development became practical.

CLOSE TO WATER

And this same process may be essential to the exploitation of much of the petroleum resources in the far north.

Marie Bay on the northwest corner of Melville Island, 1,450 miles north of Edmonton, is the site of oil and gas found by J. C. Sproule and Associates of Calgary, geologists acting for several companies.

The Arctic sands are a long way from the development stage but major international climate is that they contain 25 to 100 million barrels, considerably less than the Athabasca sands.

But they take on added importance because of their proximity to tidewater, which means relatively inexpensive transport to world markets, perhaps by nuclear submarine tankers.

The timetable for Great Canadian's Athabasca program calls for financing to be arranged by next Sept. 30, construction to start by Jan. 1, 1964, and production to begin by Sept. 30, 1966.

The company plans a 290-mile pipeline to connect with the Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. system. But Premier Manning has, in effect, assured the owners of conventional wells that the Athabasca development won't interfere with their markets. Great Canadian's plant would have a production capacity of 35,000 barrels a day, about five per cent of current national production.

OUTPUT ON TARGET

There was a sharp increase in oil production in the three westernmost provinces this year and the daily national production hit an estimated 739,000 barrels compared with 643,134 in 1961. The industry foresees no difficulty meeting the national oil policy objective of 800,000 barrels a day in 1963.

Estimated 1962 production in barrels per day for each region with 1961 figures bracketed:

British Columbia 28,000 (6,346); Alberta 514,000 (464,202); Saskatchewan 181,000 (155,509); Manitoba 11,000 (12,275); Northwest Territories 1,500 (1,295); East Canada 3,000 (3,177).

Canadian oilmen were assured by the U.S. early in December their crude exports, currently averaging 235,000 barrels a day, would not be affected by changes in government policy. U.S. imports of Canadian oil may increase 15 to 25 per cent in 1963.

While output increased in 1962, final figures are expected to show industry-wide expenditures down slightly from the $710,000,000 spent in 1961; reflecting a general belt-tightening.

The small companies are reported cutting their 1963 budgets but major international firms are showing no signs of slowing down.

Some drillers had half their rigs standing idle in 1962 and others were taking advantage of the exploration boom in Australia by shipping their equipment abroad.

GAS FLOW FORECAST

The Canadian Petroleum Association had forecast a daily average natural gas output of 2,200,000,000 cubic feet in 1962, an increase of 37 per cent over 1961. However, actual production is expected to fall short of the target, mainly because of warmer weather than expected in the domestic heating markets of Eastern Canada and the U.S. northwest.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK IN OIL — Canada's petroleum industry in 1962 moved to the threshold of significant advances in production and expansion. The go-ahead was given to extract oil from the rich Athabasca sands and deposits were found in Arctic oil sands. The industry also continued expanding its network of refineries, such as this Shell Oil Complex in Vancouver.

Add X118

Biggest boost for the natural gas industry was opening of the Alberta - California pipeline, a 36-inch $300,000,000 project that is under permit to supply 4,200,000,000 cubic feet to the Pacific Northwest and California in the next 25 years.

The year was also marked by a trend toward consolidation which some industry spokesmen say results from inability of independents to compete with integrated international firms.

Canadian Oil, the last fully integrated independent, was taken over by Shell; Bailey Selburn Oil and Gas and the Canadian interests of Western Natural Gas were acquired by Pacific Petroleums; Calgary and Edmonton Corp., by Superior Oil; Calumet Creek Oils, by Atlantic Refining; Williamson Oil and Gas, by Union Oil; United Carbon, by Ashland Oil and Refining; Freehold Oil and Gas, by Western Decalta, Jumping Pound Petroleums, by United Oils and Anglo-American Explorations Ltd., owner of Purity 90 marketing outlets, and Royalite, both by British American Oil Co.

Canada's Christmas Trees Bought Around the World

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Christmas trees will lend the evergreen touch to the holiday season in many countries this year—in about the same numbers as last year.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates that about 9,000,000 trees from seven provinces among the all-Canada harvest will carry the tang of the Canadian woods abroad, from Ethiopia to Venezuela.

Missing from the list of more than a dozen importing countries, however, are The Congo, where Canadian troops will decorate Norwegian trees, and Egypt, where the UN Emergency Force will get artificial trees shipped by the Canadian Army.

If the number of Christmas trees for export should be down from last year—in the face of continuing competition from artificial articles — improved quality should still leave Canadian exporters with undimished returns.

BIGGER IN PAST

However, over a period of years the business is not what is used to be. Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures of 12,939,000 trees worth $8,925,000 in 1959 fell to 10,319,000 worth $6,642,000 in 1960, and 9,143,000 and $5,797,00 in 1961, though local calculations by provinces are somewhat higher.

This year, three of the exporting provinces — British Columbia, Manitoba and Nova Scotia—look for about the same business as 1961.

Quebec's output is for "probably a little less" than its 7,500,000 figure of last year—the highest of any province—and New Brunswick shipments also expect they will sell fewer, though they look for more revenue because of quality-induced higher prices.

PRAIRIES IMPORT TREES

Ontario expects to do better than its 3,000,000 tree export of last year and so does Prince Edward Island, which shipped out just 35 000 a year ago.

Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland do not export in fact, the two Prairie provinces import a sizable amount of their requirements from British Columbia and Ontario.

Saskatchewan customers import about three-fourths of the 165,000 trees they use annually, preferring B.C.'s Douglas fir and Ontario's Scotch pine to their own black and white spruce and balsam fir.

On the other hand, balsam fir from the Maritimes is in wide demand in the northeast, even United States and in Central and South America and the West Indies. One New Brunswick shipper—Harold Bryanton of Renous—expected to send 80,000 trees to Missouri.

Almost all of Ontario's exports go to the United States —with New York and Chicago the best markets — and the Manitoba and British Columbia shipments also go to the United States.

Oddly enough, part of P.E.I.'s minimal shipments will go to the tree-surrounded Montreal market, possibly because of price. The P.E.I. cutters get from five to 55 cents a tree, depending on size, from dealers, while prices elsewhere go to $1 or more.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The "Yankees" may have won the world baseball series, decimissed Khrushchev and Castro in a squeeze-play crisis but and taken top comedy honors in a presidential mimicry waxing, but the "danged southerners" had to take second place to us Canucks in a big fishing contest.

Yasuhi, us boys north of the border grabbed the majority of the prizes in the 1962 Ontario Federation of Anglers' and Hunters' Competition, in co-operation with Molson's Brewery (Ontario) Ltd.

In previous years the $3,200 prize money has been fairly evenly divided between the boys from south of the border and the northern anglers who yodel "oot" for "aout". This year "we'uns" took home $3,440 of the piscatorial loot while Uncle Sammy's rod and reelers toted home the balance, $760, less seven cents on the dollar.

To make it more decisive the Canadians took home seven of the eight $100 top prizes in the various classifications. The only top fish hauled in by an American was the prize largemouth bass, seven pounds, 3½ ounces, caught by Allen Kulp, of Reading, Pennsylvania.

The "whopper" of the year was a 45-pound one-ounce muskie caught by Jack Beevar of Sudbury. The big egg was three pounds, eleven ounces shy of the "Muskie" record held by Joe Gauthier of Corbeil, Ont.

Only one competition record was broken in 1962, a handsome rainbow trout weighing 16 pounds taken by Ken Devlin of Willowdale. In this classification the fish ranged from the top weight down to 10 pounds four ounces, which took 15th place. Between were 15, 14, 12 and 11-pound beauties.

Ron Cassel of Galt, took home the smallmouth bass top award with his six-pound eight-ouncer. Second place went to R. Clifford, Toronto, with a six-pound five-ouncer. In 15th place was a five-pound 11-ouncer.

The muskynnen had a field fear. Beauties ranging from the top 45-pounder down to the 15th place 35-pounder indicated some fine hauls. Leo Gauthier, the record-holder, was second with a 44-pound beauty. Morris Palmer of Kingston, was 12th place with his 63-pound fish.

Alex Bubnick from way up in the moose country near Hearst, took the top $100 prize for northern pike with his 32-pounds 11-ounces fish. Others in the class ranged from 30 pounds down to 22 pounds four ounces.

I don't know where he caught it but Peter Todor-off of Gravenhurst, snagged a 15-pound one-ounce pickerel that walked off with the top award. Fifteenth prize was a 13-pound 10-ounce gaffer with ounces separating the twenty-prize fish.

These northern blokes had the right bait and Lady Luck—or both—on their side apparently. For Cecil Horton of Temagami, hauled in a lake trout that weighed 21 pounds eight ounces, good enough for the top crew-fancy-pole prize. Other prize entries were from 21 lbs. up.

R. L. Myles of Orono, won the big award for the top speckled trout with his seven pounds three ounces entry. Gerald Woodcock of Bancroft, won 13th prize, and ten dollars with his five-pound thirteen-ounce.

All-time Molsons contest champions are:—large-mouth, Bud Berry, Pennsylvania, 9-14 ounces; small-mouth, M. J. Soliesmeny, Toledo, 8-8 ounces; musky, Gauthier; northern pike, H. Pavlicelli, Sault Ste. Marie, 34-12 ounces; pickerel, C. H. Gibson, Brampton, 19-3 ounces; lake trout, J. Albert, Greenwich, Ohio, 41 pounds; rainbow, Devlin of Willowdale and speckles, T. McCormick, North Bay, 9-4 ounces.

Which reminds me—the Belleville Fish and Game Angler-Hunter, awards will be made at the annual banquet at the Club Canara, January 15th. It is not too late for entries. Get them in. You may have a winner.

Hawks Shade Bruins, Take Over Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centre Stan Mikita propelled himself into the lead in the National Hockey League's scoring race as he banged in the winning goal Wednesday night giving the Chicago Black Hawks a 3-2 victory over the Boston Bruins.

Mikita's goal, coming late in the third period, brought his total to 12 goals and 18 assists for 30 points, one more than Detroit's Gordie Howe and New York's Andy Bathgate in second place with 29 points.

The triumph put the Hawks into sole position of first place, two points up on idle Detroit Red Wings. The Hawks have played three more games than the Wings.

Murray Balfour opened the scoring late in the first period firing Bobby Hull's pass-out from behind the net past Ed Johnston, subbing for the ailing Bob Perreault, in the Bruins' net.

Johnny Bucyk dumped the puck behind Chicago goalie Glenn Hall early in the second period to knot the score but five minutes later Balfour whipped in his second goal, deflecting a long pass by Bill Hay behind Johnston.

BUCYK SCORES AGAIN

Bucyk tied the score near the 12-minute mark in the third period.

The goals by Bucyk and Balfour brought their totals for the season to 13 and five respectively.

In tonight's NHL action Toronto Maple Leafs will visit the Montreal Canadiens while Boston goes to Detroit.

Tom Johnson, out for the last five games with a wrist injury, has been pronounced fit for active duty and will be back on defence for the Habs.

Right-winger Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion was hit on the ankle during a practice session Tuesday morning but is expected to be dressed tonight.

Montreal will be looking for its win that would put them into a two-way tie for third place while Toronto will be battling to move into second spot with Detroit.

A victory for Detroit would move them into a two-way tie for first place with the Hawks. Montreal and Toronto have met six times this season with Toronto winning three and Montreal two. The teams tied 4-4 in the other games.

Detroit and Boston have met four times with the Wings winning twice and the other two games ending in ties.

Kingston Defeats Juniors

KINGSTON (—Unbeaten Kingston Frontenacs racked up their ninth consecutive Eastern Ontario Junior Hockey League victory here last night, defeating a hard-fighting but outclassed Belleville team by a 10-0 score.

Backed by the fine work of 15-year-old Bobby Moon in their nets, the Frontenac youngsters held the fast-skating Kingston attackers to a single goal in the first period.

The Frontenac offensive started to click in the second period firing home five goals in eight minutes to tuck the victory away.

They maintained their form in the final frame scoring four unanswered goals for the double-figure triumph.

Rawson and Sigouin were the top scorers for the Frontenacs each firing home a brace of goals with Rawson assisting on another.

Six Frontenacs divided the remaining goal-getting honors, Earl, Ball, LaVallee, Convery, Bryant and Bruce getting singles.

Cashman assisted on three markers with McMillan and Ball being credited with two each.

The game was a rugged affair with the officials handing out 24 penalties, thirteen to the Frontenacs.

A pair of pushing melees enlivened the game, Goodfellow and LaVallee drawing majors in the second period and Rowland and Robertson drawing the same sentences for fisticuffs in the third chapter.

The Belleville youngsters battled hard and deserved at least the "egg-breaker". The line work of Neil Perry in the Kingston nets, who scored his third shutout, keeping them off the scoresheet on not a few occasions.

The teams:

Belleville—Moon, Zakos, Duvall, Reid, Muirhead, Jones, Ethier, Rowland, Harkness, Rushlow, Rutherford, McGrimmon, Adams, Goodfellow.

Kingston—Perry, Ball, LaVallee, White, Convery, Robitaille, Sprott, Bruce, McMillan, Earl, Rawson, Bryant, Cashman, Read, Long.

Fourth Straight Defeat

Czechs Whip Quakers 4-1

VIENNA (AP) — Czechoslovakia's national hockey team defeated Canada's touring Saskatoon Quakers 4-1 Wednesday for the Canada's fourth straight exhibition loss.

The game was played at Ostrava, Radio Prague reported.

On Monday the Czech nationals had beaten the Quakers 9-4. Earlier, the Saskatoon sextet dropped 7-0 and 13-3 decisions to the Swedish national team in Stockholm.

The Quakers were shut out until late in the third period when defenceman Harry Smith got their only goal. Smith, a regular with Trail Smoke Eaters, was flown to Europe to reinforce the Quakers after their first two losses.

The Czechs scored the only goal of the first period and then added three more in the third. The middle session was scoreless.

Bolling Is Top NL Fielder

CINCINNATI (AP) — Second baseman Ken Hubbs of Chicago Cubs and third baseman Bob Aspromonte of Houston Colts, set records for consecutive errorless games in 1962, each took a back seat in the official National League fielding averages released Wednesday.

Hubbs, who fielded .982, finished behind Milwaukee's Frank Bolling, the leader at .989, and Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh, .985.

Aspromonte was runner-up to Don Hoak of Pittsburgh as third base pace-setter. Hoak, traded to Philadelphia last month, had a .969 average while Aspromonte wound up at .967.

Hubbs, the circuit's rookie-of-the-year, played 78 consecutive games without an error. The former major league mark of 73 had been set by Bobby Doerr of Boston Red Sox in 1948. Aspromonte went 57 straight games without a miscue, topping the National League record of 54 established by Stan Hack of Chicago in 1942.

Joe Adcock of Milwaukee Braves topped first baseman with .997 and Del Crandall of Milwaukee led the catchers with .994. Other fielding leaders were shortstop Jose Pagan of San Francisco, .973, outfielder Tony Gonzalez, Philadelphia 1,000, and pitcher Dallas Green, Philadelphia, who handled 45 chances perfectly.

The Braves fielded a collective .980, edging St. Louis at .979.

Amherst Quits NS Hockey

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—The defending champion Amherst ramblers of the Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League have withdrawn from the five-team loop.

Playing coach Lou Kiley said Wednesday night after arriving here from a league game in Moncton that the players "decided definitely to call it quits."

The players took over management of the team last week after the team executive with drew support because of financial troubles. The Ramblers haven't been able to draw at home.

Kiley said he was preparing to notify the NSSHL of the club's decision.

The defending Maritime champions drew crowds as small as 400 for home games this year.

In Cape Breton, only three senior teams are operating. One quit this year because of financial problems but later returned.

ATTENDANCE INCREASES

DALLAS (AP)—The American Football League showed an increase of 20.3 per cent in attendance — almost 4,000 fans a game—from last year. The league games drawing 2,202,926 fans compared with 1,000,216 in 1961.

Offence Versus Defence

HOUSTON (AP)—The American Football League championship game Sunday matches the league's strongest offensive and defensive teams.

Houston Oilers edged Dallas Texans as the leaders on defence during the 14-game regular season. The Texans edged the Oilers on defence.

Both teams moved into the league's third title game with 11-3 records.

Houston's offence headed by George Blanda and Charlie Tolar averaged 355 yards per game and scored 387 points. The Dallas attack paced by Len Dawson, Abner Haynes and Curtis McClinton averaged 347 yards and scored 389 points.

The Dallas defence gave up an average of 282 yards and allowed the opposition to score only 233 points. Houston's opponents averaged 328 yards a game and scored a total of 274 points.

City Hockey League

The underdogs and topdogs of the City Hockey League furnished a twin-bill of upsets and "firsts" at Memorial Arena last night.

The Pepsi's playing topflight hockey handed the unbeaten Trudeaus their first defeat by an 8-1 score and today share the league's top spot.

Joyce-Rollins, playing their best game of the season, jolted an under-staffed Welbanks team with their first win of the season, a 7-1 triumph.

JOYCES 7 — WELBANKS 1

Gordie Parker who played an "iron-man stint" was at his puck-stopping best in Joyces' victory. He played an outstanding game and was mainly responsible for Welbanks' scoring but one goal. He played for Trudeaus in the nightcap.

Welbanks were undermanned but this did not offset the best effort of the season by the winners.

The teams failed to score in a nip-and-tuck first period and Joyce-via Bob Taylor grabbed a one-goal lead in a fast second frame.

They played their best hockey of the year in the third session after Earl Cousins, with Ethier and Hurst, knotted the count in 27 seconds.

Led by Bob Taylor and Ron Hull they slung home six unanswered markers to win going away and rack up their first victory of the season.

Taylor and Hull each scored two goals for the winners with the former also getting two assists. Bryant engineered the prettiest goal of the night with Jackie Elliott on the receiving end. The former also accounted for a goal.

Boomhower scored alone in the dying seconds. Doug Hull had two assists with Doran getting one.

Seven penalties were handed out by Referees Lamirande and Hurst, five to the winners. Lucas and Sheridan drew majors for fisticuffing with Richards drawing a game misconduct after the final whistle had blown.

The teams:

Joyce's—Parker, Carmichael, St. Louis, Taylor, Bryant, Sheridan, Elliott, Boomhower, Pukanchik, D. Hull, Doran, Mavety, R. Hull.

Welbanks—Green, Hurst, Crawford, Ethier, Cousins, Lucas, Richards, Moher, Botly, Ruppert.

Referees: Hurst, Lamirande.

PEPSI'S 8 — TRUDEAUS 1

Like the first game the Trudeaus-Pepsi's first period was a close-checking, scoreless affair with the lone penalty going to the Pepsi's Skelly.

The game broke wide open in the second and third frames with the winners scoring four unanswered goals in the middle stanza.

Trudeaus broke the egg after five minutes of the final session, Kellar scoring from Gary Goyer and Plats.

Placed by Bill McGuire, the Pepsi's raced back to slam home four goals without a reply with goalie Claude Carr coming up with some neat saves.

Gordie Parker played his second game of the night in the nets for the losers, and had little chance on most of the pucks that went past him.

McGuire paced the Pepsi attack with three goals, Pat Marcelle came up with a goal and two assists as did George Jacklin. Shaker Baker scored one and helped with three while Trendal also getting a goal and two helpers. Brooks scored a single and Skelly contributed two assists.

Trudeaus got on the pressure in the third frame but close-checking and good defence work kept their score to the single.

The officials handed out ten penalties, seven going to the winners.

Tempers frayed a bit near the end of the second period when Doug Murray and Ed Plats tangled with fists flying. This was in progress when McGuire and Kellar decided to throw punches with the result all four "sinners" were given majors for fighting.

The teams:

TRUDEAUS — Parker, Gelsthorpe, Plats, Allen, G. Goyer, Petrie, Day, D. Kellar, Hughes, Fox, V. Goyer, Cris.

PEPSI'S — Carr, Murray, Brooks, Skelly, Moreau, Jacklin, Rowbotham, Hughes, Marcelle, Waite, McGuire, Trendall, Baker.

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says "appropriate disciplinary action" has been taken against referee John Ashley "for a clear error" of rules interpretation in a game at New York last Sunday night.

He said also that the automatic $25 fine against Detroit's Marcel Pronovost for drawing a 10-minute misconduct penalty has been rescinded.

The game between the Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers, won by the Rangers 5-2, exploded into a brawl late in the third period.

Ashley handed out 48 minutes of penalties including a 10-minute misconduct and a match misconduct to Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby.

Mr. Campbell said "incidents of that game are under investigation at the moment."

"We are more concerned at the moment with the malestation of an official by Gadsby," Mr. Campbell said. He declined to elaborate.

"In the game, there was a clear error in interpretation of the rules which led to a misconduct to Pronovost." The incident involving Pronovost was "a finished book."

Hull Ottawa Defeats Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (CP)—Hull-Ottawa Canadiens moved within two points of the league-leading Kingston Frontenacs Wednesday night by whipping Syracuse Braves 8-3 in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game.

The Canadiens now have 27 points while Syracuse is last with 11.

Billy Carter paced the Canadiens with two goals. Keith McCreary, Norm Beaudin, Red Kerr, Bob Courcy, Brian Smith and Claude Larose were the other Hull-Ottawa marksmen.

Bert Fizzell scored twice for the Braves and Singles went to Red Ouimet, Don Grosso and Murray Hall.

Want TV Blackout Lifted

NEW YORK (AP) — Three men from adjacent Long Island filed suit in federal court Wednesday seeking to force the National Broadcasting Company to lift its New York - area television blackout of the National Football League championship game Dec. 30 between Green Bay Packers and New York Giants.

The suit claimed the game at Yankee Stadium is of national interest, equivalent to the World Series in baseball. Under league rule, the game must be blacked out within a 75-mile radius of New York although it will be televised to all other parts of the United States.

Louis R. Blaich, Thomas O'Connell Jr. and Peter Sibell also named the National Football League and the New York Football Giants in the suit.

Stan Mikita's winning goal in Chicago's 3-2 victory over Boston Wednesday night put him back into sole leadership of the NHL individual scoring race.

He has 30 points on 12 goals and 18 assists.

Gordie Howe of Detroit and Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers, who were idle Wednesday night, are tied for second spot with 29 points on 11 goals and 18 assists.

Black Hawks' Ab McDonald picked up an assist on Mikita's goal to move into fourth place with 28 points on 12 goals and 16 assists.

Boston's John Bucyk's two-goal effort in the losing cause pulled him into a four-way tie for fifth position with 27 points. Teammate Murray Oliver picked up two assists to give him the same total on 10 goals and 17 assists.

Their performances tied them with Toronto's Frank Mahovlich whose points are comprised of his league-leading 17 goals plus 10 assists and Detroit's Alex Delvecchio who has six goals and his league-leading 21 assists.

Swim Star Sara Barker May Retire

HAMILTON (CP) — Swimming star Sara Barber, 21, of Brantford is considering retiring from the sport.

Miss Barber, in her last year of a social studies course at McMaster University, plans to take a social work course at the University of Toronto.

"To compete in anyfleur athletics means you—have to devote your whole life to it," she said in an interview Wednesday. "I've reached the point in life where I want to do other things. I'd like to become a social worker or nurse."

Miss Barber won two medals at the recent British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

'Who Is Kidding Who'

Wants Soccer Housecleaned

TORONTO (CP)—Soccer will never become a major Canadian sport until there is a housecleaning and a change in policy and operating methods, says President Bill Simpson of the Toronto and District Soccer Association.

Simpson, also secretary of the Ontario Soccer Association, said in an article written for Soccer News that the house-cleaning and policy change is needed in the Canadian Soccer Football Association.

"For the last few years we in soccer have been indulging in optimistic blurbs about soccer becoming a major national sport in Canada. Who is kidding who?"

Simpson said that at the end of 1958 the CSFA had $37,976 in the treasury and only $13,200 at the end of 1961. He suggested the dwindling kitty could be blamed on touring teams losing money.

"What has been done to promote the game among the youngsters? at every annual meeting of the CSFA there is talk, talk and more talk about what the various associations alinged to the national body should do. A minor promotion liaison officer is appointed and immediately forgotten. . . . No policy is laid down and his appointment is merely window dressing."

Sports Snapshots

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

The man with one of the toughest jobs in sport lay nursing his wounds on the rubbing table, an ice pack above his right knee and another on his right foot.

They covered ugly, purple bruises, a trademark of his profession.

It was Bobby Perreault, 31, whose chunky frame is employed from September to April by Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

They use it to plug their goals.

When it's cut or torn, they have a doctor sew it up. When it's bruised, as it was Dec. 15 at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, they nurse it back to health so they can use it again.

Bruins have been the worst team in the NHL for three years and since opposition skaters get more chances to fire away at Boston's goal, Perreault's job is perhaps more hazardous than those of other netminders in the league.

On the night in question, Perreault, a jovial man from Trois-Rivieres, Que., was forced to leave the game in the third period. A hard shot hit the inside of his foot in the second period, directly on top of an already painful bruise, and shortly after he was accidentally kicked above the knee with a skate. He remained on the ice for a while, then had to retire to the dressing room.

TOO MANY KIDS

His teammates were still on the ice and Perreault winced each time the crowd roared. Toronto finally won it 8-2, scoring its last three goals on Bobby's replacement, Ed Johnston.

He was alone until a reporter dropped in for a chat. Then he was evitably question was put to Perreault:

"Can you put your finger on the Bruins' basic problem?"

"Not enough old guys," he replied, flashing his quick smile.

Then, suddenly serious, he motioned toward the empty benches. "These fellows, they lose, lose, lose. It's like a disease." He pointed to his head.

"But Milt (coach Milt Schmidt) knows it. He's always telling them to forget about losing last year and the year before."

Losing comes hard to Perreault who until this year had been a minor leaguer, never with a club that finished last.

Despite his harrowing experiences, he's the team comedian. When mates kid him about his weight, he retorts that a little fat helps cushion the shots so they don't hurt so much.

"But this is going to hurt tomorrow," he said, still smiling, as he pointed to the welt above the knee.

JINX RINK

Maple Leaf Gardens seems to be a jinx rink for him. He has played there three times this season and has reason to remember each game.

In the first game Boston defenceman Ted Green accidentally rapped him on the jaw with his stick in a goalmouth skirmish. Perreault had to be X-rayed for a possible fracture.

Next time he was nicked on the chin, still sore from the previous trip, by Leafs' Frank Mahovlich. It took 15 stitches.

And on the latest visit he had additional problems with his teammates.

"Ed Westfall hit me on the chin, right on the cut, when he backed into the net. And Green just about cut my fingers off."

Perreault had fallen to the ice and Green was straddling the prostrate goalie while fending off Toronto players with an upraised stick.

"I had a funny feeling and pulled my hand out of my glove just in time—Green stepped on it with his skate."

He was still smiling. If he ever stops, it's going to be an awfully long season.

Minor Hockey

Flyers defeated the Macs 12-7 in a bantam division game at Memorial Arena last night.

Terry Meagher and David Cass paced the winners, each getting four goals with Cass also getting an assist.

Ted Waite scored a pair with Dennis McCormack and Ron Mitchell getting singles. Waite had three assists with Mike Acquaviva getting a pair.

Paul Goodfellow scored three goals for the Macs with David Muir getting two. Singles went to Bill Forgie and Henry Glancey.

AIR POWER

In the summer of 1944 the United States Air Force had 79,900 aircraft. Russia in 1962 had an estimated 25,000 front-line aircraft.

Football Stars Prices Soar

'You Name It-We'll Top It'

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats coach Jim Trimble says Canadian Football League teams are fighting a losing battle in the annual competition to sign United States college players.

Trimble, recently returned from a recruiting trip, said Canadian teams cannot match the cheques handed out by National and American Football League clubs.

Trimble said his assistant coach, Joe Restic, was trying to sign a player the Ticats wanted, but he met competition from Chicago Bears.

"The guy from the Bears told Joe: 'You go as high as you like, because we'll go higher for the kid. I'm not a coach, I just get paid to sign players. I've been told to sign this one and I will.' Joe just had to put his pen away."

Bidding for top players is going higher and higher between the NFL and the AFL, which has just completed its third year of operation. The less affluent Canadians are being left out in the cold.

"The National League is still looking down its nose at the AFL," Trimble said. "But it shouldn't be."

"Ten qualified observers I've talked to down there in the last couple of weeks have assured me that they pick the AFL to match on television for entertainment over the NFL."

JOINS BRAVES

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The signing of southpaw Jim Constable, a minor league ace last season and now the top pitcher in the Venezuelan Central League, was announced Wednesday by the Milwaukee Braves.

Defeat Maroons, Tigers

Dogs, Athletics Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs and Woodstock Athletics maintained their tight for leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, both posting 5-2 wins Wednesday night.

The Bulldogs, still two points in front defeated the third-place Chatham Maroons at Windsor, The Athletics beat the fifth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers at Kitchener.

Chatham took a 2-0 lead against Windsor in the first period as George Usitalo and Dave Luciuk provided the scoring. Bob Brown was the first Windsor scorer, followed by Irwin Gross, and Bill Mitchell Lou Bendo and Jack Costello.

Woodstock beat Kitchener-Waterloo despite taking 11 minor penalties and a 10-minute misconduct compared to the loser's four minors.

Gerry Theberge and Pat Sullivan both had two goals for Woodstock. Carl Hymes got the other. For Kitchener-Waterloo Bob Robinson and Mac Dubois provided the scoring.

TURN DOWN QUARTET

HIGHLAND PARK, Tex. (AP)—City councilmen have refused to let a Russian string quartet appear in the town hall of Highland Park, a separately incorporated, fashionable community surrounded by Dallas. The Dallas News said today the council cancelled a Jan. 30 booking of the 300-seat hall for a concert by the Komitas Quartet after a flurry of complaints from Highland Park residents. The quartet is on a 34-city tour of the United States.

Hornets Shade Hershey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh hockey fans savored an unusual memory today, the sight of their Hornets trimming Hershey Bears.

The American Hockey League's last - place Hornets held on for a 4-3 decision over the Bears Wednesday night for their first victory against Hershey at home since Pittsburgh rejoined the AHL last season.

Bob Dillabough's goal at 7:58 of the third period provided the margin. It gave the Hornets a 4-3 lead, enough to withstand Les Duff's goal for Hershey at 11:47.

Early in the final period Earl Balfour skated the length of the ice to score for Pittsburgh to break a 2-2 tie.

Al Johnson and Lowell MacDonald scored the other Pittsburgh goals, Duff, Cleland Mortson and Wayne Rivers were the Hershey marksmen.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

San Francisco Seals scored their first victory of the season over the tough Seattle Totems Wednesday night and moved up to second place in the Western Hockey League's Southern Division.

The Seals scored three unanswered goals in the third period to upset the Totems, Northern Division leaders, 6-3.

In other games, the Southern Division's leading Portland Buckaroos downed Edmonton Flyers 3-1 and Spokane Comets, fighting to get out of the Southern Division cellar, defeated Vancouver Canucks 5-2.

Bill Nicholson scored twice for the Seals. Other goal-getters were Moe Mantha, Orland Kurtenbach, Nick Mickoski and Duke Edmundston. Seattle scorers were Bill MacFarland with two and Bob Barlow.

In Portland, Bill Saunders, Tom McCarthy and Jack Blonda scored for the Bucks and Bo Elik scored the Flyers' lone goal.

Rookie Harry Ottenbreit, Ray Brunel, Gerry Brisson, Red Johansen and Steve Wilkos scored for the Comets at Spokane. Phil Maloney and Ron Matthews scored for Vancouver.

Top International Figure

British Honor Canada's Jackson

LONDON (CP)—The first Canadian ever to win the world men's figure skating title, Oshawa's Donald Jackson, was named as the top international sports personality of 1962 yesterday by the British Sporting News.

Jackson, 20, thrilled a crowd of 18,500 at Prague's Puzik Hall last March when he overcame the lead of Czechoslovakia's Karol Divin with a brilliant free-style exhibition.

Divin, 1960 Olympic gold medalist, was unable to match Jackson's dazzling repertoire of jumps and spins which included the first successful Triple Lutz ever performed in competition.

One official, describing Jackson's performance that night, said: "There has never been anything like it. I've seen all the great ones—Sonja Henie, Dick Button, Hayes and David Jenkins . . . none could compare with Jackson tonight."

Braves Seek New Home

Syracuse To Kitchener?

KITCHENER (CP) — Syracuse Braves, in last place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League and suffering at the gate, are reported considering a move to Kitchener in the new year.

The Braves, sponsored by Chicago Black Hawks of the National League, would be Kitchener's second EPHL team.

New York Rangers operated Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers here for two seasons but shifted their franchise to Sudbury this year. After Detroit Red Wings withdrew their sponsorship from the Northern Ontario City.

OUTSHOT ANNIE OAKLEY — Thomas Albert Moseley, 88, one-time gunsmith who beat the famed Annie Oakley in a shooting match fires at a target in the backyard of his Victoria home. Mr. Mouslay outshot Annie in an informal contest in his native Birmingham, England. In the Victoria test, he shaved the bulls-eye at 25 feet. (CP Photo)

Shot Against Annie Oakley And Lives to See 90 Years

VICTORIA (CP) — Thomas Albert Mousley, who once beat the famed Annie Oakley fair and square in a shooting match, marked his 90th birthday by demonstrating that his skill hasn't deserted him.

Guns have played a large part in Mr. Mousley's life since he went to work for a firearms manufacturer in Birmingham, England, as a boy of 16. Among other achievements, he helped originate Britain's standard service revolver, the .455-calibre Webley.

"Shoot them forever and they'd still be good," he says of the renowned sidearm. "We produced over a million for the First World War."

Later, in Victoria, he was employed as a gunsmith by Wilson and Lenfesty.

Mr. Mousley's fondest memory is the day he beat Annie Oakley. It happened when Buffalo Bill Cody brought his wild west show to Birmingham and the gun company made Annie Oakley a present of two .38-calibre revolvers.

COULD HIT PENNY

"Being a woman, of course she wanted them changed, so we altered the walnut grips to fit her hands.

"I put on the new stocks while Annie, Buffalo Bill and a couple of his Indian chiefs stood alongside watching. Then the boss said, 'Come on, Tommy, let's see how you can do' and off we went to the target range.

"Annie Oakley was a pleasant, lively sort of woman, about 30 years old at that time. As I remember she wasn't tall," said Mr. Mousley, outlining an hour glass with his hands, "but she did have a very nice figure, but the veteran gunsmith keeps house cheerfully and efficiently with the help of a cat called Blondy.

How can one reach 90 with a sure eye and a steady hand?

"Self control," he said. "Not getting mad, that's the thing. A man must keep a contented mind."

DANGEROUS DAYS

During the Dark Ages walled cities replaced open towns and moated castles took the place of country villas as barbarians and robbers pillaged Europe.

Maritimes Made Movie History; "Mutiny-on-the-Bounty" Replica Was Built in Nova Scotia Yards

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
ABOARD THE BOUNTY (AP)

Orders crackled in the pre-dawn darkness like the lash of a cat o' nine tails.

"Pilot's aboard, sir."

"Very well. Cast off bow line."

"Bow line away."

"Cast off stern line."

"Stern line away."

"Starboard away . . . midships . . . steady as she goes."

"Midships . . . steady, sir."

The sailing ship slipped down the Delaware on the slack tide, bound south for strange waters and strange ports with a cargo of precious handouts to placate the natives and enrich the coffers of the owners.

Chief placater and coffer enricher was an enormous cardboard cut-out of Marlon Brando stared in the main hatch just aft of the great cabin and hard by the frozen food locker.

CARRIES ODD CARGO

Not even Capt. William Bligh with his floating arboretum of breadfruit trees carried a stranger cargo.

There more than 173 years after the famous mutiny, the Bounty rode the waves again. This time she was in the service of the movie lords at Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, who built the new Bounty at a cost of $750,000 as a set for a remake of the movie Mutiny on the Bounty. Then she was launched on a two-year, 40,000 - mile publicity tour.

Bligh and Fletcher Christian, the mutinous first mate, would have had much to admire in the handiwork of the shipbuilders at Lunenburg, N.S., who recreated the Bounty with loving attention to detail—particularly the saucy carving of the English woman in riding habit jutting her skirts above the billowing waves on the bowsprit.

But they would have flipped their periwigs over the soundproofing and air conditioning below decks, the stainless steel galley, the boarded guitar player boarding All Night, Mary Ann into a microphone in the crew's mess, the twin diesel engines purring a path of progress through becalmed waters, the radar scanner flapping its ears among the topgallants, the Japanese transistor radio lashed to the mizzen mast so the helmsman can tap the great wheel in tempo to Perry Como's crooning of Moon River and all the other manifest benefits of modern civilization.

SAILS AT DAWN

As we slipped under the Benjamin Franklin Bridge a pink finger of dawn was drawing the darkness from Philadelphia's receding skyline.

Having shipped aboard the Bounty for a weekend as a supernumerary at the munificent sum of 25 cents a month—to get around a Canadian regulation that forbids passengers on certain - sized commercial ships—we were below to take up our duty as historian and permanent chow hound of the cruise.

"We should be in the Chesapeake Canal in a couple of hours," muttered Capt. Ellsworth Coggins, debonairly placing a pair of frozen orange juice amid the charts and maps spread out on the navigation table.

Coggins, a retired Royal Canadian Navy commander, has sailed the rebuilt Bounty across both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. His worst experience so far had nothing to do with a mutiny, which is highly unlikely among his well-fed, well-paid crew of Nova Scotia actors. Rather, it involved transporting a cargo of well-liked Italian and French photographers across the English Channel.

"Despite their condition, most of the chaps insisted on climbing the rigging," Coggins recalled. "All concerned became splendidly seasick. We had to swab the decks to make a proper appearance."

MANY STICKY FINGERS

Bligh never had to contend with sullen photographers but he did suffer from one annoyance that still plagues the modern Bounty: Thefts by the natives. In Tahiti two centuries ago they stole the ship's anchor Today the thousands of sightseers who flock aboard in every port will steal anything that isn't lashed to the masts.

They've stolen so many belaying pins, we can hardly work the sails," mourned First Mate Ralph Hemphill.

Like everyone else on the Bounty, the mate has learned to live with the Bounty's infamous past, especially the various movie versions. Hardly a day in port goes by without some extrovert hopping up on the hatch cover, curling a lip menacingly and shouting at the top of his lungs: "Mis-ter Christian, I'll see you hanged from the highest yard arm in the British Navy."

The fact that the line, first uttered by Charles Laughton, does not occur in the current movie version, Hardly a day in port goes by without some extrovert hopping up on the hatch cover, curling a lip menacingly and shouting at the top of his lungs: "Mis-ter Christian, I'll see you hanged from the highest yard arm in the British Navy."

The fact that the line, first uttered by Charles Laughton, does not occur in the current movie version, does not daunt in the slightest Trevor Howard, the new Capt. Bligh, from using it when he came aboard the Bounty in London for his first visit since the filming.

LOTS OF COMICS

Sure enough, when it came time to drop the pilot at Chesapeake City, the comedians were at it again.

"Okay, Capt. Bligh, climb down into your long boat," called out the shipper of the pilot boat, nearly losing his footing in a convulsion of mirth.

Not a man in the Bounty's crew ventured so much as a grunt.

The crew is mutinous on only one point. Despite what MGM's script writers have wrought, they are, to a man, sympathetic with Bligh's stature as a navigator and convinced that Fletcher Christian was in the wrong.

If they would like to see anyone hanged from the highest yard arm, it would be the ubiquitous chap who comes aboard bowling after "Mis-ter Christian!"

The chap came aboard again when the Bounty reached Washington. And the crew expects to hear from him again in winter quarters at Brooklyn, N.Y. Somehow, a voyage wouldn't be official without him.

Eleanor Powell at 50 Makes Triumphal Return to Stage

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's not many performers who get a chance for the second time around. That's why I'm having the time of my life."

This was Eleanor Powell, at 50, sitting on top of a whole new career. On the night after Christmas she is making her television dancing debut with Perry Como. She is drawing top salaries in Las Vegas and other show spots. And she is planning a concert tour that will take her through the United States and Europe.

Not bad for a star who hadn't danced for 14 years.

"It's the greatest feeling in the world to be able to come back and find an audience still waiting," she said. "I thought they would have forgotten by now.

The Eleanor Powell story would indicate that stars never fade. Hailed as the greatest female tap dancer, she was a hit on Broadway and then starred in a string of glittering MGM musicals such as Born to Dance, Rosalie, Honolulu, Lady Be Good and the Broadway Melodies of 1936-38-40.

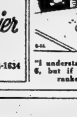
Then she met and married a promising young actor named Glenn Ford, and once they went to Glen at the Brown Derby. The head waiter told Glenn, a native of Portneuf, Que., there would be a 30-minute wait.

Then he spied Eleanor and said, "Wright this way, Miss Powell." Glenn vowed they would never eat there again.

"We ran out of places to eat," she recalled. "Experiences like these convinced me that it would be impossible for me to be a good wife and mother if I kept on working. So I quit."

After the birth of their son Peter she worked only once—in 1947 to raise $30,000 for a down payment on a house they wanted to buy. She played six weeks at the London Palladium and in Scotland, then quit entirely.

She devoted herself to maintaining a household and rearing their son. Three years ago the marriage broke up.



SHAKEN UP

"It was Christmas time and I was pretty shaken up," she said. "Peter suggested that we get out of town for Christmas. He thought it might go up to Las Vegas."

They saw every show in town. At each she was starstruck. She introduced Eleanor from the audience as one of the showbusiness greats. Pearl Bailey got her up onstage for a few taps. Later Miss Bailey told Peter that it was his duty to see that his mother returned to performing.

Egged on by her son, Eleanor underwent nine months of intensive tap and ballet lessons, dropped from 149 pounds to 122. When she returned to Las Vegas, she went to see Bailey.

"I'm dancing better than I ever did before," she says, and she intends to go on doing so.

"I understand he's ranked No. 6, but if you ask me, he's rankier than that!"

RCAF YEAR—The above montage illustrates various highlights of 1962 in the Royal Canadian Air Force. A new Chief of Air Staff, Air Marshal G. R. (Larry) Dunlap, CBE, CD (centre) took over leadership of the RCAF this past September. He replaced Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, CBE, CD.

1962 Brought Many Changes for RCAF

For the RCAF, 1962 has been marked chiefly by preparations to meet approved defence requirements, continuing activity on the international scene, significant achievements in air transportation, and support for Canada's contributions in the new realm of space exploration.

To carry out its duties in support of Canada's obligations to NORAD, NATO and the UN, the Air Force employed some 25,000 men and women in the Regular Force and about 2,500 in the Auxiliary.

A change in the top command of the RCAF was made in September when Air Marshal C. R. (Larry) Dunlap, took over the position of Chief of the Air Staff. He succeeded Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, who retired to civilian life after 31 years in the Air Force, including five years as its chief.

TAKEOVER FROM U.S.

Increased responsibilities for the RCAF came with the takeover of seven of the 11 sites operated by the United States Air Force in the Pinetree radar defence line. Of the 32 operational stations in the system, originally built and operated jointly by Canada and the U.S., the RCAF was responsible for manning only 15. Following an inter-governmental agreement in 1961, Canada assigned responsibility for 11 more sites, the last of which, at Lowther in northwestern Ontario, is scheduled to change hands in the summer of 1963.

Of the seven new heavy radar stations being built to augment the Pinetree Line, two — Chibougamau, P.Q. and Moosonee, Ont. — became operational in October. Other sites at Yorkton, Alsask, and Dana, Sask., Penhold, Alta., and Gypsumville, Man., are to enter operational service during 1963.

At North Bay, progress continued on the Semi - Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE) site, and 446 Surface - to - Air Missile (SAM) Squadron was ready for operational service in mid-March. The La Macaza Bomarc site of 447 SAM Squadron was turned over to the RCAF in mid-October.

VOODOO NEW

In its NORAD and NATO responsibilities, the Air Force has undergone considerable change during the year with deliveries of new supersonic aircraft, reorganization of squadrons to accommodate them, and the institution of new training programs for their crews.

The remaining five CF-100 squadrons of Air Defence Command converted to the CF-101B Voodoo supersonic twin-jet interceptor and are based at Comox, B.C., Uplands and North Bay, Ont., Bagotville, P.Q., and Chatham, N.B.

Training for crews of the Voodoo, which is equipped with Falcon 11 guided air rockets, was established at the operational training unit at Bagotville. During the Cuban crisis the Voodoo squadrons were placed on an advanced state of readiness, along with other RCAF elements in the NORAD defence system. RCAF Air Defence Command also participated actively in Exercise Sky Shield III, the annual large-scale workout for NORAD forces.

200 ORDERED

Delivery of Canadian-built CF-104 Super Starfighters for European service began on Oct. 11 when the first of these strike-reconnaissance aircraft was airlifted to 2 Fighter Wing at Zweibrucken, Germany. The Super Starfighter, 200 of which have been ordered for the RCAF, will replace the Sabre in the eight F-86 squadrons of Canada's Air Division, which this year celebrated its tenth anniversary of NATO service. Several CF-104s are in service at 4 Strike-Reconnaissance Operational Training Unit, Cold Lake, Alta.

At the summerside, P.E.I., 415 Squadron was re-activated and equipped with Argus anti-submarine aircraft, as was the Maritime Air Command Squadrons on both coasts in maintaining surveillance of the ocean areas.

TRANSPORT RECORD

In January the CC-106 Yukon long-range transport began regular transatlantic runs in support of the Canadian NATO forces. In June, a Yukon on a training mission completed a 5,040-mile non-stop flight over all ten provinces and the northern territories. A similar aircraft in July set a turbo-prop endurance record by remaining aloft for 23 hours, 51 minutes, and it was also a Yukon which, in December 1961 completed the longest flight in RCAF history. The flight, from Tokyo to Trenton, Ont., a distance of 6,750 statute miles, was completed in the greatest airborne time of 17 hours 3 minutes.

During Operation "Bostop Seven" in August, another of Air Transport Command's work-horses, the C-130B Hercules, airlifted a record 3.5 million pounds of cargo in the RCAF's annual re-supply of Arctic posts.

DISASTER SERVICE

In addition to its responsibilities in North American Air Defence, NATO, the RCAF was called upon to assist in other projects of international scope. Operations in support of the United Nations and the carrying of aid to disaster victims again took aircraft of Air Transport Command to many parts of the world during the year.

Notable was the flight to Teheran, Iran, in September when a Yukon flew nine tons of Canadian Red Cross emergency supplies to the earthquake - stricken inhabitants.

In Southeast Asia the RCAF continued to fly supply runs to the international truce commission in Indo-China, and the annual "Christmas run" to Canadian personnel in Saigon, South Vietnam took place in late November.

Supporting the UN Congo operations, RCAF Yukons at the rate of two-a-month crossed the Atlantic to Pisa, Italy and then to Leopoldville with personnel and supplies for the Canadian UN contingent. In the Middle East, Canadian Caribou and Otter aircraft of 115 Air Transport Unit from El Arish, Egypt, continued their desert patrols and light transport operations over the Sinai area.

UN DUTIES

In September, two Otter amphibians with aircrew, maintenance personnel and spares were assigned to UN security forces supervising the transfer of sovereignty of West New Guinea. Canadian responsibility in this area is to continue until May 1963.

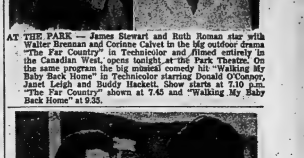
Other international assistance included aid to NATO allies. During the summer, under Mutual Aid agreements, the RCAF ferried two C-45 Expeditors and 40 T-33 Silver Stars to Chateaudun, France, and another ten T-33's to Greece. These aircraft were handed over to the air forces of these NATO allies. Throughout the year logistic support was provided to Greece and Turkey for Sabre and T-33 aircraft operated by their air forces.

Aid was also given to a Commonwealth partner. Early in November, in response to an appeal by India for help in her border conflict with China, six Dakotas were flown by RCAF crews to an airfield near New Delhi and handed over to the Indian government.

ROCKET RESEARCH

The year 1962 also saw RCAF participation in some aspects of space exploration. In collaboration with the Defence Research Board, a small Arcas research rocket was launched from RCAF Station Cold Lake, Alta., in September. Reaching an altitude of 80 miles, it investigated polar cap absorption, which often causes communications blackout in northern Canada after large solar flares. Data from the rocket's instruments were collected both by telemetry during flight, and by recovery of the nose cone after its parachute descent.

Also in the realm of space research, two RCAF CF-100s with their air and ground crews were stationed at the USAF's Patrick Air Force Base in Florida and played an important role in the U.S. missile program. In this third phase of "Operation Lookout," a joint RCAF - Defence Research Board project, the crews made infrared observations of missile launchings as part of a continuing program of research into anti-ballistic missile defence.



In operation "Tree," in February the RCAF and Department of Transport collaborated with the U.S. Navy in photographing ice formations in the Gulf of St. Lawrence at the same time as similar pictures were being transmitted by the meteorological satellite TIROS IV in orbit over the gulf. Purpose of the operation, in which RCAF Argus, Lancaster, Dakota and CF-100 aircraft took part, was to obtain comparative data, enabling photo-interpreters to "read" ice conditions.

At the Primrose Lake Evaluation Range in Alberta, an RCAF technical crew maintained a watchful eye on space with the Baker-Nunn Satellite Tracking Camera installed there this year. One of a number located around the globe by the Smithsonian Institution's space tracking program, the three-ton camera is electronically controlled and specially designed for studying satellites and their orbits.

In the first ten months of 1962, the RCAF was instrumental in saving 95 lives. Some 4,000 hours were flown, 54 search missions conducted, and 240 mercy flights made to bring sick and injured persons from remote parts of the country to medical aid. In the same period 350 marine incidents were co-ordinated by the RCAF search and rescue centres.

Astrological Forecast

For December 21
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Aid forthcoming from afar. Means you receive encouraging word via "long-distance." Feeling fine for being with good friends. Try to "loosen up," relax. Cycle now on way up. Conditions improve!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): One close to you has "change of heart." Means you are now given chance to show your worth. Be thorough. Check details. Realize extent of your responsibility. Adhere to highest principles.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Good Moon aspect; today stresses change, travel, exciting evening which features romance, sparkling conversation. Co-operate at work. Be at your best.

Cancer (May 21 to June 21): You can be "shining light" at social affair tonight. But don't shine so brightly that others resent "glare." Be gracious. Offer to share new ideas, books. Concentrate on new friends.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): You can aid relative. Do so. Such co-operation definitely works to your advantage. Day when minor matters, routine, details must be handled. Get them out of way so you can be cheerful tonight.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Avoid misunderstandings. Your own cycle continues high. But friends have nerves which are "on edge," due to fast pace of recent days. Diplomacy keeps peace within family.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Fine for shopping, asking questions, getting ideas which pull your gift selections out of usual "rut." Be original. Good Sun and Mars aspects today highlight friendships, fun at social affair.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Fine for visiting, going "out of your way" to find right gift. Look behind the scenes. Don't accept surface appearances. There could be deception involved. Investigate, analyze.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Meet family obligations. Includes ending foolish disputes. Fine for purchasing gifts. Also for expressing love. Let Sagittarian desire for fair play come rollicking to forefront.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Day when you could receive numerous offers. Exercise sense of discrimination. Don't take first thing that comes along. Time on your side. The more you wait, the stronger your position. Should be clear before the day is over!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be ready to "hold your own." Accept responsibility. Co-operate with family members financially. Help work out holiday plans. The more you give, the more benefits you reap.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Share enthusiasm. Aim toward progress. Avoid one who wants to "lean" on you. Be independent. Practice moderation tonight. You're going to need much strength in upcoming days! Check budget.

If today is your birthday . . . various domestic changes prove beneficial. Now you are able to concentrate on gaining greater degree of personal happiness. General tendencies: Commerce, industry, what is being spent and what saved are all spotlighted. Holiday spirit prevails over much of the world.

Joey Smallwood Still Boss In Newfoundland Politics

By JACK PICKETTS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Pollitics in Newfoundland this year, despite an election, were much the same as politics in Newfoundland last year. Joey Smallwood is the boss.

However, a few political cracks started to show in widely separated parts of the province that has been ruled by the 63-year-old Liberal premier since it joined Canada in 1949.

A November election increased opposition strength to eight from five seats. The government has 34. Although still modest in numbers, the opposition describes this as the start of a march from the wilderness. The premier's own statement that his ret/ a'sent isn't far off adds to their optimism.

The firmness with which Mr Smallwood runs affairs received national airing during the June federal election when the St. John's Rotary Club got a letter from him reporting a government invitation to its members to be guests at a banquet.

The letter was written after Rotary announced it had asked Finance Minister Donald Fleming to address a club banquet. When the club cancelled the request for Mr. Fleming's address the government invitation was re-extended.

WEATHERED STORM

The action left the finance minister speechless at the head table but despite the furore that resulted it didn't seem to hurt the Liberal party's fortunes either federally or provincially in Newfoundland.

Mr. Smallwood has been premier for 13½ years and says he doesn't expect to lead the party in another election. But he refuses to be pinned down on a retirement date.

"Seventeen years in the harness, and a tough harness it was," says of his fight to bring Newfoundland into Confederation and the subsequent period as premier. "I've got my health now, but I could go any day. My heart was fine three years ago. I had a medical check-up then. I'm afraid to go to the doctor now."

He indicated this isn't because he feels anything but well but that he fears the doctor might find something. He gave up tics in Newfoundland this year, smoking years ago, now drinks only an occasional glass of sherry.

"An outstanding political victory" was his description of the Nov. 26 provincial election in which the Liberals got 59 per cent of the vote.

LOSS IN OUTPORTS

However, the Progressive Conservatives won three seats in central and western Newfoundland, the first time they have been able to crack the solid outport popularity of Mr. Smallwood.

Conservative Leader James J. Greene, a 34-year-old St. John's lawyer, says Mr. Smallwood is in office because the people continue to vote for him out of gratitude for the social benefits they received with Confederation. He adds-there are people who are unnecessarily afraid the benefits would end if he were defeated.

Mr. Greene contends the Liberals couldn't withdraw at election without Joey Smallwood, and with the long-term view in mind the seven elected Conservatives have met to talk about organization for party in all parts of the province.

The New Democratic Party, which came close in two of the five seats it contested Nov. 19, is also talking about organization. Leader Ed Finn Jr. says the NDP has a good chance in 10 seats in the next election.

NO SUCCESSION

Mr. Finn nearly upset a cabinet minister in Humber West and another New Democrat narrowly missed winning in Green Bay from William R. Smallwood, the premier's son.

The premier says he wants to retire before the next election but "there's always speculation on a winning leader to stay." If he does stay, and wins again, he says he nearly 70 before "I get out."

He says he has given some thought to a successor but gives no indication whom he has in mind. Before the election he said that if he could pick a "good, strong, young team" of Liberals in the legislature he would be gone.

With 34 of the 42 seats he has a strong team, numerically, and many of them are young.

A Lot More to Politics Than Election Promises!

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a political candidate regrets tired of hearing just before election time:

"Joe, this is no time to slow down. Yesterday you shook 2,000 hands and kissed 75 babies."

"Somehow we got to get up $500 more for placards—or if your wife has to take in washing."

"You've already endorsed tax cuts, motherhood, and the federal highway program. What we need is a fresh issue. How do you stand on the bull weevil?"

"The best argument I can think of for electing him is that it'll get him out of town."

OLD FRIENDS

"Remember, Joe, if you get elected I don't expect you to forget me. After all, I passed out more handbills for you than anybody."

"Every time Joe kisses a baby and it breaks out crying—there goes another mother's vote."

"We could accuse them of character assassination. Our candidate certainly is a character."

"We're coming to another crossroads, Joe. Put your shoes back on. It's time to make another speech."

"What do you mean you don't eat goulash? Don't you realize this is a Hungarian section?"

"The big trouble with our opposition as I see it is—they don't have enough opposition."

"Wake up, Joe. You're making speeches in your sleep again."

"Promise them anything now. You can always forget it later."

THE SERIOUS APPROACH

"Sir, as a representative of the people—and also of the government committee, I'd like to ask how you stand on block control, the battle of the Common Market, thermonuclear warfare and . . . uh . . . things like that."

"Things are looking better. That's the second voter this week's asked me about his autograph."

"I think he doesn't have a blot on his record. The problem is—he doesn't even have a record."

"According to our latest secret poll, Joe, only 10 per cent of the voters are against you. The other 90 per cent don't seem to know you're running."

"Ooops, he dropped a baby. Well, boys, there goes the election!"

Manitoba Govt. Lifting 50,000 Indians, Half-Breeds From Economic Poverty

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP) — A three-year-old government self-help project is on its way toward lifting Manitoba's 50,000 Indians and half-breeds from the depths of social and economic poverty.

The Manitoba community development program, in which the federal and provincial governments each contribute half the $140,000 being spent each year, is a long-term scheme that is described as a scientific, grass-roots attack on inbred social and economic ills.

Nucleus of the program is the work of university-trained development officers sent to outlying settlements that are predominantly Indian or half-breed.

So far, eight men, two with Indian blood, have been put into the field where they live with the people they are trying to help. Their initial aim is to inspire the Indian and half-breed to work for financial independence through individual or collective action.

They cannot act alone but never lead. It is left to the individual and his neighbors to do the job. The government says the program is already paying dividends.

KEY UP CO-OPS

Six producer co-operatives established as a result of the program in the last year did $85,000 worth of business and have assets of $8,000. Three are fishing co-ops and the others cut pulpwood to supply the province's paper mills.

Four consumer co-ops and a credit union have been formed. All told, the co-ops have 850 members. Others, however, gain employment as a result of the activities of the co-ops.

One fisheries co-operative at remote Camperville caught, processed and shipped to market 87,000 pounds of mullet and jackfish worth $8,000.

Among individual enterprises is one at Norway House where there now are Indian taxi drivers.

The program is the brainchild of Pierre Lagasse, a 37-year-old social scientist who was born in Gravelbourg, Sask. He recommended it in 1959 in a report on Manitoba Indians prepared for the provincial government.

The government not only followed his advice but hired him to run the program.

In his report Mr. Lagasse said the words "Indian" and "Metis," as half-breeds are called in Manitoba, were synonymous with poverty. He found many living in isolated communities, on or near remote reserves eking out a living hunting, trapping, berry-picking and with no steady work.

DEPEND ON WELFARE

Many lived in shack towns on the fringe of white settlements. Some, unable or unwilling to work, lived from one government handout to the next. They lacked what Mr. Lagasse called "employable personality" and marketable job skills. The community development program seeks to change that.

Developed and expanded, Mr. Lagasse said, it could integrate the 50,000 in two generations. Left to their own devices, they would never make the grade.

Mr. Lagasse said he hopes to show that within three to five years his program will be at least paying for itself through reduced welfare payments and through taxes paid by previously unemployed Indians and Metis.

Increased income was only a start, however. It meant enriching the whole life of isolated communities.

His report said more than 100,000 people of Indian ancestry had already passed over the line into white society in Manitoba, many by being born into it. Others were beginning to voice protests against their station in life.

A band of 80 Indians this year picketed the nickel mine at Thompson, 400 miles north of Winnipeg, demanding work. A conference between the Indians and International Nickel, called by the government, didn't work.

Then a community development officer was sent to Thompson. Now the Indians many have a chance to make their own jobs.

U.K. TIGHTENS TIES WITH EUROPE—Economically, politically and scientifically, Britain this year moved closer to Europe. Year-End Outlook

Britain's Entry in Euromart Historical Necessity if Country Remains Influential

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Britain is peering into her economic future with an advancing sixth sense of European unity.

Not all the seers share the same conclusions as to if the Common Market of the outcome of the Brussels talks. But most agree that 1963 will be the year of decision.

By next Christmas Britons will know whether they are destined to remain an island race or become part of the economic whole.

To Prime Minister Macmillan's government and the majority of the country's industrial leaders, entry into the European Economic Community is a pragmatic and historical necessity if Britain is to remain an influential power.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell, together with the farmers and "Little England" groups on the right and left, thinks union with Europe will bring only limited economic benefits, will damage Britain's sovereign political status and wreck Commonwealth relations.

Whether the EEC talks succeed or fail, however, it's evident Britain is moving closer to the Continent than during any time of peace since the Reformation.

Many large companies in the expanding technical and light industrial fields are already establishing European connections and exploiting long - ignored markets.

LLOYD LOSES SON

The government hopes competition within the Common Market will boost British productivity and stabilize a domestic economy that was listing badly when it limped into 1962 and was barely back on an even keel when it sailed out.

The year began with the country groaning under a balance-of-payments hangover from the previous year. Prescribed as cures were tight clamps on consumer spending and an unpopular "pay pause" policy designed to freeze wages while production caught up.

Little relaxation of these restrictions came in the April budget unveiled by Selwyn Lloyd, then chancellor of the exchequer. Lloyd's association with the deflationary measures cost him his job in the July cabinet reshuffle.

Known sourly as the "sweet tooth" budget, the main proposal was to stick a 15-per-cent tax levy on ice cream, candy and soft drinks. Jeering critics accused Lloyd of pinching children's pocket money. They demanded more constructive leads for expansion.

In answer the government produced two new planning boards known as Neddy and Nicky —the National Economic Development Council and the National Incomes Commission.

Nicky met with opposition from the trade unions who distrust any government-sponsored incomes policy, but Neddy was soon in operation.

Pressure from transport and electrical workers and civil servants cracked the pay pause. But there were corresponding signs of improvement in exports—particularly by the car industry.

By fall Lloyd's successor, Reginald Maudling, was happily surveying a balance-of-payments surplus of £96,000,000 and, despite seasonal pressure, gold reserves mounting to more than £1,030,000,000 — cautiously he began planning inflationary measures.

These came in November's "Little Budget" when the chancellor slashed the purchase tax on cars to 25 per cent from 45 per cent.

EASIER CREDIT

Maudling also introduced wider tax allowances to encourage private investment in industry. Similar measures are expected in the next budget, including a cut in the bank rate that will loosen credit.

But like many past chancellors, Maudling is hampered by lack of elbow room. Any drastic stimulant may go to the consumer's head, check exports and weaken the pound abroad.

More worrying is the growing uneasiness about redundancy of industry and soaring unemployment in northern England and Scotland.

No one is sure how much the Common Market, if it comes, will solve these problems.

Britain failed to obtain an outline agreement with the European Six in July, despite heroic efforts by Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, the chief negotiator. Now it looks as though the talks, involving some 20 major subjects, will stretch well into 1963.

So far Britain has gained provisional agreements on many manufactured goods and some tentative promises on foodstuffs from Canada, New Zealand and Australia. But industrial raw materials have hardly been touched.

Optimists suggest the way will be cleared for British entry in January, 1964. Pessimists think increasing French inflexibility will torpedo the talks altogether.

The name Black Sea is a literal translation of the Turkish Kara Denis, so named for its dense fogs and violent storms.

Santa Claus Visits Village

STIRLING — On Saturday December 15th Santa paid his official visit to the village of Stirling under the sponsorship of the retail section of the Chamber of Commerce.

Over 500 boys and girls received a bag of treats and a large number attended the free movies at the local theatre. Mr. Stewart McArton and a number of business men were in charge of the arrangements. The children were supervised by Mrs. Everett Cocks and her committee.

Right after dinner the children lined up near the lighted Christmas tree on the dairy lot and here Santa greeted the children. His helpers assisted with the distributing of the treats.

Mr. Ralph Jeffs, chairman of the school board was master of ceremonies for the program in the auditorium and welcomed the group. Principal Marvyn Scott and assistant principal Mrs. Glenn Heath presented the various trophies to those who had won championships on Field Day.

The awards were as follows: primary division — Jean Edgar and Douglas Morton; juniors — Roeli Oosting and Bob McIntosh; intermediate — Shirley Ann McDonald and Bob West; seniors — Sue Ann Bastedo and Jim Armstrong. The various trophies were donated by prominent business men of the village. The I.O.D.E. proficiency trophy was presented by the Regent to Sue Ann Bastedo and she in turn gave a short valedictory address.

The parents visited the various class rooms and viewed the work displayed by the pupils. They also had a chance to visit with the teachers and discuss items of interest dealing with their children.

At the close of this session the wives of the school board members served light refreshments.

Polaris Missiles To Replace Skybolt

British Cabinet Approves Plan Switching Arms

Macmillan Will Work For NATO Atom Force

BULLETIN

NASSAU (AP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan announced today a decision to create at once a nuclear armored force and put Polaris-armed British submarines in action under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization banner by 1970.

LONDON (AP)—The British cabinet formally approved today the plan hammered out in The Bahamas by President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan on Britain's nuclear deterrent role.

The agreement reached by the two leaders was understood to provide that Britain will get the Polaris missile instead of the Skybolt.

In return Macmillan will work for the organization of a NATO nuclear deterrent force to prevent the further spread of national systems. This is regarded as a long - term project, however, in view of French President de Gaulle's determination to maintain France as an independent nuclear power.

Informed sources said cabinet approval was taken after Macmillan conferred by telephone with his colleagues in the government.

ASKS SUPPORT

He asked for their unqualified support and received it after a 50-minute cabinet session.

The cabinet's views were promptly telegraphed to the prime minister in Nassau.

Formal approval by the British parliament of the agreement is unlikely to be necessary. Hard-lifted debates on the subject are bound to take place in the Commons, however, since the opposition Labor party opposes the concept of an independent British nuclear deterrent.

Both Polaris and Skybolt are U.S. missiles. Polaris can be fired from submarines at surface ships. It will provide Brit-

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan were believed to have arrived at an agreement to end a conflict over nuclear missiles today and ready to set out a new long-range allied defence strategy.

Clouds which had hung over the little summit meeting between the British and American leaders were breaking up. The latest development toward agreement was a report from London that the British cabinet, after a telephone report from Macmillan, had agreed to the plan reached by Kennedy and Macmillan on Britain's role as a nuclear power.

Macmillan was reported to have told his cabinet of a plan to equip Britain with Polaris missiles as a substitute for the $1,000-mile bomber-borne Skybolt missile. The United States has decided to drop development of the Skybolt.

It was expected agreement on the switch to the Polaris would be announced in the communique at the end of the conference late today.

WILL TAKE TIME

Officials conceded that an expected new era in Atlantic defence would take time to achieve. "We are looking six or seven years ahead," a British spokesman said Thursday after the day-long talks between the leaders.

The agreement was seen in some quarters as a means of easing differences with French President de Gaulle and bringing the Western big three under a single nuclear deterrent umbrella.

The United States abandoned the Skybolt program because of five test failures, new concepts and high cost. Macmillan's government desperately sought an alternative since it banked on the missile to carry British nuclear warheads and keep Britain a member of the nuclear weapon club. Polaris presented the

Heavy Work Load Awaits Members

OTTAWA (CP) — After a crowded day filled with political rancor, both Houses of Parliament have begun a four-week recess.

Provided Prime Minister Diefenbaker doesn't call an election in the interval, the MPs will return to duty Monday, Jan. 21. A heavy work load awaits them.

After sittings that ran to 60 days in the Commons and 39 in the Senate, not a single item in more than $6,000,000,000 worth of spending estimates was passed, despite the fact that the fiscal year is two-thirds over.

The situation left the government with special month-to-month money to do what it could carry on. The latest—$330,089,511.93 for January—was voted Thursday night after opposition warnings that February's allowance may hinge on government action on other affairs.

TO RUN FAIR

There were these other developments in the two Houses Thursday:

The Crown corporation that will organize and run the 1967 World's Fair in Montreal was set up, after Associate Defence Minister Sevigny's prediction that it will draw up to 40,000,000 visitors and that fair construction will amount to about $200,000,000.

Liberal Senator Sarto Fournier, former Montreal mayor, tried to amend the act in the upper chamber to give his city a share in the post-fair assets now assigned to the federal and provincial governments. He failed after Senator Mark Drouin (PC—Quebec) said

After more than a week of debate, the Commons approved a bill giving the government power to print money supply to meet January bills.

Hazen Argue (L — Assiniboia) chided Prime Minister Diefenbaker for not entering the debate to answer Liberal Leader Pearson's attack.

Works Minister Fulton announced that federal housing loans will be extended to privately - sponsored rental projects.

Transport Minister Balcer said the board of transport commissioners will make a review of railway branch line abandonments.

The bill setting up a corporation to run the Montreal World Fair in 1967 received speedy approval in the Commons and Senate.

Royal assent was given in the Senate to bills, including those setting up the fair corporation and the Atlantic Development Board.

Parliament then adjourned until Monday, Jan. 21.

Crown Decides Not to Use Tape of Talk With Priest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Crown decided Thursday not to introduce a tape recording of a woman's conversation with a Roman Catholic priest as evidence in an extortion trial.

City Prosecutor Stewart Mc-Morran said the Crown is withdrawing the tape as a matter of public interest.

A deluge of protests from clergy of all denominations followed Crown's attempt to introduce the tape in court Wednesday.

The case concerns Donald Lloyd, 26, and his wife Eleanor, 23, who are charged with "attempting to extort $15,000 from a 77-year-old widow by threatening to kill her foster daughter.

Prosecutor Donald Morrison had sought to introduce a tape recording which he said was made secretly while Mrs. Lloyd was talking to Rev. Aloysius Craven, a priest at St. Paul's OTTAWA (CP) — Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers International Union, was handed Thursday a rail ticket to Ottawa for a mandatory appearance before the Norris-Morrin inquiry.

The union leader was served in Montreal with a subpoena issued by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris to come before the Vancouver- jurist's one - man commission at the Exchequer Court here at 10 a.m. EST, Monday, Jan. 7.

It will be the first time that the head of the 14,000-member sailors' union has appeared to testify on the main issues of the inquiry into labor strife on the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes. Previously he has been called only to deal with specific points.

Announcement of the serving of the subpoena to Mr. Banks followed shortly after the inquiry adjourned Thursday for a short Christmas recess until Jan. 7.

RISE IN GNP OF EIGHT PCT IS INDICATED

Higher Prices Account for Hike

OTTAWA (CP)—A rise in national output this year of nearly eight per cent—perhaps more—was indicated today by Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The guarded forecast was made in a report showing that in the year's third quarter the economy registered a 1.7-per-cent gain in Gross National Product to an annual rate of $40,258,000,000. Higher prices accounted for about one-third of the increase from the second quarter.

Looking ahead to take a tentative measure of the economy's performance for the whole of 1962, the bureau indicated it will outstrip the seven-per-cent gain forecast in last spring's federal budget.

Even with no expansion in the final quarter of the year, it said, there would be a 7.9-per-cent growth this year in Gross National Product — value of all

CONFER ON TAXES

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)— Three high officials of Katanga Miniere, the giant mining company which runs the Katanga copper mines, are expected here shortly for financial talks with Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula, diplomatic sources said Thursday. The talks would centre on payment by the Belgian company to the central government of taxes and other revenues at present paid to President Moise Tshombe's secessionist Katanga province government.

Three-Step Plan Contained In Report Tabled

Would Save Insurance Fund From Bankruptcy

OTTAWA (CP)—A new blueprint for financially assisting workers hit by unemployment has been laid before the federal government.

Devised by a four-man committee of inquiry, the plan calls for:

—A universal unemployment insurance plan to meet the first impact of unemployment for a limited time.

—A $150,000,000-a-year government fund to pick up where the insurance scheme leaves off, as further help to long-term Jobless workers.

—Greater use of existing federal - provincial assistance to workers who are chronically unemployed.

The blueprint is contained in a 55,000-word report tabled in the Commons Thursday. It was produced by a committee set up 17 months ago under Toronto insurance executive Ernest Gill to find ways of saving the present insurance plan from bankruptcy.

DRAINS RESERVE

The present plan was established in 1941. It had built up a reserve of more than $900,000,000 by 1956, but mounting unemployment and extended benefit payments caused a heavy drain. The fund hit a low of $20,000,000 last May.

The three-step plan was advanced as the best way to deal with the hardship of unemployment in its many manifestations.

The insurance plan, to which almost all employees and employers would be required to contribute, would cover frictional and short-term unemployment, but not seasonal unemployment.

For workers who have exhausted their insurance benefits or who are laid off from sea-

$80,000 Loss At Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Firemen Thursday night brought under control a serious fire which swept through a building containing business premises and apartments in central Woodstock.

Fire Chief Gordon Tripp said the fire was under control about two hours after it broke out in the first floor of the three-storey building. No one was injured.

Firemen battled the blaze to be about $80,000. Cause of the fire was not immediately known.

Benefits Table

OTTAWA (CP)—Rates of unemployment insurance benefits by earnings classes on a weekly basis proposed by the special Gill committee compared to present rates and classes:

Earnings	Proposed Existing benefit	benefit

The Gill committee report said the proposed rates of benefit are in line with increases it recommended but added that they should be taken as illustrative only and subject to such minor changes as may be required for convenient administration.

African States Organization Established

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The charter of an African organization similar to the Organization of American States was signed Thursday by representatives of 15 countries.

Named as the Inter - African and Malagasy Organization, the new group aims for closer political and economic ties between African countries. The ultimate aim is a pan-African union.

Signing the charter are Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Dahomey, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Togo and Upper Volta.

Wild Life Conservation Experts Rally to Defend Prince Philip

LONDON (AP) — Champions rallied to defend sharpshooting Prince Philip today against charges he's too quick on the draw.

The prince has come under increasing fire from animal-lovers recently because of his shooting of wild life during his world-ranging trips.

But the prince's champions, themselves experts in the matters, declared Philip is fond of wild life.

Philip went kangaroo-hunting while in Australia last month and was admonished by Australian animal-lovers.

Earlier this month in Italy he and Mountbatten, critics of him after the prince, in a shooting party of Italian noblemen and industrialists, helped down 1,500 assorted pheasants, partridges and wild duck.

After that offensive Philip hunted the ferocious wild boar of Germany. And he frequently goes out after birds in Britain.

Philip's champions stepped forward today in a letter in The Daily Telegraph.

The letter was signed by, among others, Lord Alanbrooke, distinguished bird - watcher and Julian Huxley, a world-renowned naturalist.

Philip, Alanbrooke and Huxley are noted campaigners in the world wild life conservation movement.

The letter says all naturalists, biologists and country-lovers in Britain "deeply appreciate the great support given by the Duke of Edinburgh to the cause of conserving wild life and natural habitat and saving rare and interesting animals from extinction."

"They must therefore be concerned to read the continuous criticism of him regarding sport and the misleading theme that the shooting of artificially preserved game birds is inconsistent with the conservation of nature in general."

Legitimate sporting activities, it says, and Alanbrooke declared, "are in no way antagonistic to the wild life conservation movement."

Silver Dollar Shortage Seen, Mint Too Busy to Make Them

OTTAWA (CP)—Kids, don't be disappointed if Uncle Jim doesn't shell out with silver dollars this Christmas.

He tried and tried to find some. But the banks had none.

The banks tried too, but the Mint at Ottawa was too busy this year making pennies, nickels and dimes.

That's the sad story across Canada this Christmas, as it has been for most of this year. Bankers say the big shiny coins are snapped up as soon as they appear.

"They have become collectors items," agrees W. A. Parker, head of the Royal Canadian Mint.

There are lots of silver dollars in Canada — somewhere. Mr. Parker said today the mint made about 1,200,000 of them last year and even more this year.

Apparently they have disappeared, perhaps into children's banks or other household hiding places.

An official in one big Ottawa bank said the bank had been trying for six months to get a shipment of the coins and finally, just yesterday, received a few new ones.

"There's a terrific demand around this time of year," he said. "The more you tell people they're scarce, the more they want them."

Mr. Parker said the Mint has been kept busy making smaller denominations coins this year to meet "a tremendous demand"

The mint felt it was more important to supply this commercial need rather than turn out silver dollars which would simply be picked up by collectors.

"Silver dollars have never been used in commerce, to speak of," Mr. Parker said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A major winter storm centred over Kentucky is causing snow, rain and freezing rain over a large area of the eastern United States from Atlantic to the mid-Atlantic coast. The snow is spreading north eastward and is forecast into southern Ontario tonight. The precipitation will become mixed, with freezing rain or drizzle late tonight or early Saturday.

Southerly winds are bringing milder air into the northern regions of the province. Cloudy skies and occasional light snow or snowflurries will accompany the milder air.

26 Below in Maynooth Area; Five Below Reading Here

Baby, it was cold outside!

That was the general story last night in centres north of the Bay of Quinte district.

It was five below at Belleville, but the low point reached at the Bay of Quinte shore was not nearly as frigid as farther north.

The coldest reading reported to the Lands and Forests office at Tweed was from Palmer Rapids, 20 miles east of Maynooth, where it dropped to 26 below.

But it was almost as cold at Bancroft where 25 below was recorded. Pienza saw 24 below, Gilmour 23 below and Dakar 20 below.

The coldest at Tweed was 20 below and at 10 o'clock this morning the mercury still stood at a chilly 13 below.

The coldest December reading in the area north of Belleville last year was eight below and 2 years ago 16 below.

Traffic Charge Written off, No Evidence

A minor traffic charge against a Belleville lawyer's wife brought her husband into city magistrate's court today to dispute the charge. He won!

The charge against Mrs. Edward Follwell was dismissed when city prosecutor Ralph Graham offered no evidence.

"Thank you, your worship. That's the most important case I've ever won," quipped Mr. Follwell to Magistrate T. Y. Wills as the charge was written off.

Moorman Motors Holds Staff Party in Hotel

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Moorman were hosts at a Christmas party held in the Prince Edward room of the Hotel Quinte for the combined sales and service staffs of Moorman Motors and Quilligan Water Conditioning Service.

Corsages were presented to each of the ladies as they arrived, and later in the evening Mrs. Moorman gave each one a gift.

Following a turkey dinner, brief speeches were made by some of those present, and service manager Cam Hitchen presented Ron Moorman with an attache case from the staff.

Special guests at the dinner were Mr. Ken Davidson of Supertest, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Boyd of Industrial Acceptance Corporation.

The evening was spent in games, stunts, cards, and dancing including the twist for the younger ones. The singing was accompanied by Larry Beck at the piano and Bob Hendry with the banjo. With good wishes expressed for a happy holiday, the guests bade Mr. and Mrs. Moorman good-night.

MRS. FLOYD (ELVA JANE) WHITE

Mrs. Elva Jane White of 400 Wilson Ave., Apt. 5, Toronto, died suddenly Thursday in Northwestern General Hospital in Toronto. She was in her 52nd year.

Born in the village of Hastings, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dickey and had lived in Toronto for the past seven years. She had previously lived in the Halloway district, and was a member of Bethel-Zion United Church.

Predeceased by her husband Floyd White, she is survived by one daughter, Miss Marion White of Toronto.

There are five brothers, Roy Dickey, Montreal; Everett of Belleville, and Earl, George and Vernon, all of the Halloway district. Two sisters, Mrs. Morden (Grace) Brough of Halloway and Mrs. Burton (Edna) Foster of Havelock, also survive.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears also where in this edition.

MRS. ROBERT DEMOREST

TRENTON — On Tuesday, Rev. Canon F. F. Blachford conducted a service at the Weaver Funeral Home for Mrs. Margaret E. Demorest, 35, of her daughter, Donna E. Demorest, five years.

Mrs. Demorest and her daughter died as the result of an accident in their home at Milford, last Saturday.

Bearers were: Stanley Vincent, Morley Dalzard, Laverne Way, Sam Way and Jack Holmes.

Interment was in Stockdale cemetery.

Born in Pulaski, N.Y., Mrs. Demorest was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wagner, R.R. 3, Napanee. She was educated in Rossiln schools.

Donna Demorest was born in Belleville.

Surviving are the husband and father, Robert Demorest; Mrs. Demorest's brother, Harlow Wagner of Newburg, Ont.; Mrs. Demorest's sister, Mrs. Charles (Kathleen) Helldrath of Trenton and the parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wagner of Napanee.

JOSEPH DOYLE

The funeral of Joseph Doyle was held from his residence on North Hastings Street, Marmora, under the direction of the Howden Funeral Home on Monday, morning to the Sacred Heart Church.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. P. Healey, who also said the committal rites in the nearby cemetery of the church. There was a large attendance at the mass and the floral and spiritual tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased.

The honorary bearers were Samuel Davidson, Joseph Darrah, Joseph Callery, Fred Johnson, Nathan Mumby and Carl Heath, while the bearers, all nephews of the deceased were Keith Brown, Gordon Gay, Harold Chambers, Thomas Brawley, William and Bernard Doyle.

Besides the sons and daughters who survive are three sisters, Mrs. Rose Brawley, Marmora; Mrs. Jane Phillips, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. John (Maggie) Forsitel of Oshawa and four brothers, John Doyle, of Marmora, Patrick, James and Henry Doyle of McLeod, Alberta.

MRS. MARGARET LEACOCK BURROWS

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Leacock Burrows, sister of the late poet, Stephen Leacock was held from the Thompson Funeral Chapel on Thursday morning. Major A. Gilling bass conducted the service in the chapel and interment was in Sibbald Church cemetery on Lake Simcoe.

The bearers were: Arthur Seymour, Douglas Phippen, Osborne Elder, Fred Sprague, Derek Riordon and William Hurst.

Expect More Long-Distance Calls This Year

There will be about 8,000 long distance telephone calls made by the people of Belleville and surrounding area this Christmas Day, 1,000 more than last year, Mrs. D. Sweeney, Bell Telephone's Chief Operator here, says that New Year's Day will also see an increased total of 6,200 long distance calls, as compared to last year.

The increase, according to Mrs. D. Sweeney, Bell Telephone Manager here, is part of a current trend towards calling over greater distances. At one time the long distance call was scarcely contemplated other than in emergencies or big business. But recent improvements in telephoning facilities and a new "personal important" — the actual experience of speaking to friends and relatives hundreds and even thousands of miles away, have made long distance calling more and more a familiar activity.

Station-to-station calls, according to Mrs. Stortis are your best bet on Christmas Day, and on both Station-to-station and person-to-person calling, knowing the number is of great benefit. "In calling by number," she says, "you eliminate the time required to contact information in the city or community you are calling, and unnecessary delays are avoided."

Mrs. Stortis also advises Christmas callers to call again themselves if circuits are busy or the call is not answered, rather than ask the operator to check at intervals.

And what about the operators? For about 30 of them here, Christmas Day will be not only the merriest but the busiest day of the year.

Long distance telephone calling across Canada, the United States and overseas is expected to be busier than ever during the forthcoming holiday season, Bell Telephone officials here have announced.

According to Mr. D. Sweeney, Bell Telephone Manager in Belleville, the volume of calls originating here is expected to be heavier than last year.

During the 1961 holiday season, the total number of long distance calls reached 20,000 for December 24, 25, 31 and January 1, while this year these forecasters estimate some 26,200 long distance calls will be made.

Garages Busy Getting Cold Cars Started

Service stations and garages offering towing service had a field day this morning as calls for assistance went out to get faulky car engines started.

Records at the city pumphouse show last night was the coldest night of the year with the thermometer dropping to five below the zero mark.

The previous low record this season at Belleville was two below—on December 15th.

Last night the weatherman was right on the dot with his temperature predictions.

It turned suddenly colder yesterday afternoon and dropped steadily until the five below point was reached at five o'clock this morning. It was two below at midnight and was still two below at nine o'clock this morning.

TRANSIT USELESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transit navigation satellite, launched into near perfect orbit Thursday, has turned out to be useless for its function of helping submarines and ships pinpoint their locations at sea. A defence department spokesman said Thursday that the satellite, intended as the first of a system of such navigational aids, is electronically dead.

Supply Problem Delaying Use of Pumping Station For Sewage From West Side

Although the city's new two-and a half million dollar sewage treatment plant went into partial operation about a month ago, sewage from the west side of the river is still being dumped into the river because the pumping station at Fireman's Park at the foot of Front Street is still not quite completed.

The final pumping accomplishments gets into operation, some sewage in the east side of the river will also continue to empty into the river.

However, sewers from the Newburgh Street area and also sewers in the east end of the city which are hooked into the new trunk line running out to the Haig Sidecroad, are running into the treatment plant.

No definite date for the river crossing pumping station to go into operation can be set although the local representative of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers for the project, says this was expected to be in the "very near future."

He says that the contractor is running into a minor supply problem but with the arrival of the pumping equipment the station would go into operation although the building might still be quite incomplete.

The Treatment plant is now working at about one third of its intended initial capacity, it was stated.

Schools Hold Parties on Closing Day

Christmas parties, programs and concerts were the order of the day in city and elementary schools today as the fall term for 1961 was completed and pupils readied themselves for the Christmas and New Year holiday period.

Schools in Belleville, as in other parts of the province, are being closed today for the holidays and will re-open on January 3rd.

Today's school activities, particularly in the lower grades, had a timely holiday atmosphere. There were special Merry Christmas parties with gifts being exchanged and yuletide programs in which nativity themes were re-enacted by the youthful pupils.

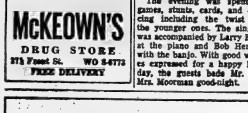
Transient Taken Back to Cells

Magistrate T. Y. Wills ordered a transient out of court in Belleville police court this morning when the man appeared before him charged with drunkenness — and still drunk.

Officers had arrested the man earlier today and brought him to court along with other persons in custody and waiting for hearings.

First indication of the man's condition came when the court clerk asked him to plead guilty to being drunk "in a public place."

"No," he interrupted. "Any place is a public place."



The magistrate looked up and looked the accused over.

"You'd better get him downstairs before we have more trouble in here," he told the clerk. "He shouldn't have been brought up here."

The man was returned to his cell by a constable.

SURVIVES JET CRASH

RAMSTEIN, West Germany (Reuters)—A U.S. Air Force pilot safely ejected himself Thursday before his F-100 Super-Sabre jet fighter crashed on open ground, an Air Force spokesman said. He identified the pilot as Lieut. John Miller, 26, of Ilasks, Ill.

Airman Fined $100 and Loses Driver's Permit

A dramatic accident near the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville two weeks ago had its final act in a magistrate's court this morning.

Airman Max Gould, Trenton RCAF station, driver of car that struck a propane gas truck, releasing its highly-inflammable contents, lost his licence for six months and was fined $100.

The accident, December 8, in which Gould's car sheared off the rear dual wheels and a release cock on the tanker and struck another panel, caused the airman and two other people to be injured.

Gould, who pleaded guilty today, suffered fractured ribs.

Police had to seal off the area as the explosive gas leaked from the tanker.

Police sergeant Keith Wright said when he arrived at the scene "the accused was sitting in the driver's seat with his head in his hands."

"I can't explain what happened—it happened so fast."

The magistrate gave Gould until December 21 to pay the $100 fine.

"This is a very serious accident and it was not reasonably explained," he commented.

IN MEMORIAM

SCOTT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Norman Estella (Lena) Scott, who passed away December 21, 1956.

The golden gates stood open,
He passed through in love,
With farewells left unspoken,
And welcomed by angels above.

Sadly missed by wife and family.

Rest in peace.

And try to do our best to live,
As you would want us to,
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why some things have to be,
But in His wisdom God has planned,
Beyond our power to see.

Also remembered and sadly missed by husband Jack, and Mac, daughters Rivers, Jones and families.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to relatives, friends, neighbors and friend for the kindness and sympathy shown during the loss of a beloved wife and mother. Also a special thank Mr. Ruby Gay for his consoling words, all the pallbearers, those who sent floral offerings, Gideon Bibles, the ministers and staff of the John R. Remand Youth Till Jan. 4 on Biting Charge

A fracas that brought police to a teenage dance at Belleville's Club Canara also brought a teenager into magistrate's court today.

John Williskie was charged with biting John Kline, supervising the event, on the face during a scuffle December 15. The case was remanded to January 4th.

Inspector J. B. McLauchlan said a fight between Williskie and Mr. Kline started after Williskie was refused permission to enter the dance.

Earlier in the evening, police had been called in to restore order when a disorder got out of hand during the dance.

Williskie, who pleaded guilty, giving evidence on his own behalf, denied being involved in the earlier outbreak at the club. He also denied drinking.

"What you say is the complete contradiction of what the evidence shows," said magistrate T. G. Wills.

He suggested the youth get advice about the allegations and change his plea if necessary.

Y Cage Loop

The last YMCA Youth Basketball League double-header before the holiday recess saw change in overall team standings as the league-leading Satellites orbited the third-place Steelers 79-18 and the second-place Globetrotters ran away from the unsuccessful-bowling Celtics 87-34, last Wednesday evening.

In the opener Rick Graham and Dave Hurst shared scoring honors for the Globetrotters with 29 points each. Trotter Jack Jury followed up with a 23 point effort. Roger Ling of the Celtics put up the Irish's best effort with 18 points.

Murray Swan of the Satellites hit for 31 points in the second fixture and broke the 200-point mark for the individual league scoring record quite handily, running his total to 214 in seven games. Mike Mallory was next high man for the Satellites with 23 points. The Steelers' scoring effort was led by Dave Anderson with 14 points. George Pugh, with seven points, accounted for the balance of Steeler scoring.

Currently team standings show the Satellites with 14 points; Globetrotters, 7; Steelers, 5; Celtics, 3.

The top scorers in the league are: Murray Swan (214), Terry McCabe (166), Rick Graham (162), Ron Walsh (161), Dave Hurst (113), John McKibbon (101), Wally Clare (97), Jack Jury and Dave Anderson (93), and George Pugh (75).

Lineups:

First Game: Globetrotters — Jury (23), Clare, Graham (28), Ling, McKibbon (6). Freestone, D. Hurst (28).

Celtics — T. McCabe, Vaughan, Maloney, Sedrick (9), Truscdale (4), Cpe (4), Ling (18).

Second Game: Satellites — Swan (31), Walsh (18), Templer (3), Adams, D. Hurst (4), Mallory (23).

Steelers — Anderson (11), J. Hurst, Schwindt, Pugh (7), Ingram, J. McKibbon; MacCormack.

Woman Not Seriously Hurt In Collision

Mrs. Mildred Rushlow, R.R. 1, Corbyville, was released from Belleville General Hospital after examination for possible injuries in a car-truck accident on Highway 37 today.

Provincial police said Mrs. Rushlow was a passenger in a car driven by Alex Quinn, R.R. 1, Corbyville, also a mile north of Belleville.

It was first feared the woman had suffered neck injuries.

Switch to Polaris Called 'Biggest Face-Saving Twist'

LONDON (Reuters) — Deputy Labor Party Leader George Brown today described reports of British acceptance of the Polaris missile for the abandoned Skybolt weapon as "the biggest face-saving twist in modern history."

London newspapers splashed news of the reported arrangement on the front pages.

In a statement on the three-day Bahamas talks between Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy, Brown said:

"If the stories from The Bahamas are true, we will be faced with the biggest face-saving twist in modern history, and if the Tory party is before the House (of Commons) we will tell them they are cheating again."

"Five or six years ago labor urged the Tory government to go all out for Polaris. Then it would have made sense. But the Tories, after their disastrous Blue Streak fiasco, pinned every hope they had on Skybolt."

The Blue Streak, a liquid fueled, fixed - site intercontinental missile, was dropped in 1960 because of expense and vulnerability.

NOW TOO LATE

"Now to save Macmillan's face, they will turn back to Polaris when it is too late," Brown said.

"British - built submarines could not be produced to carry Polaris until 1972.

"The extent of Tory muddles on defence over the last 10 years is so fantastic as to be quite incredible. Never has so little defence been produced for so great an expenditure."

The Conservative Evening Standard says Macmillan was seeking cabinet backing by telephone from the Bahamas today before initialling his new agreement with President Kennedy for prolonging Britain's nuclear independence."

the terms are packed with political dynamite."

In West Germany the independent Der Mittag of Duesseldorf saw the Kennedy - Macmillan meeting as a fresh reason to point to the downfall of Britain as a world power.

"A world power is melting, and the whole world is witnessing it," the newspaper says. "Poor Macmillan."

Jack Cousins Will Get Degree At Convocation

Mr. Jack Cousins, inspector in Belleville Public Schools, has been advised that he is receiving recommendation of the school of graduate studies at the University of Toronto as having fulfilled requirements for a degree of master of education.

The degree will not be conferred until the May convocation in 1963.

Another city public schools head, Principal Robert Marner of Hillcrest school, has been advised he has been successful in the completion of two further courses toward his master of education degree. These are in applied psychology and remedial practices.

Both Mr. Cousins and Mr. Marner now hold B.A. and B.Ed. degrees.

Famous Church Razed by Fire

BAIE ST. PAUL, Que. (CP) The parish church in this town 45 miles northeast of Quebec, a tourist attraction valued at $1,500,000 — was destroyed by fire Thursday.

St. Pierre and St. Paul Roman Catholic Church was built in 1908 and renovated only last June, although the parish was founded in 1681. The basement of the wood-frame church was converted from coal to oil heating several weeks ago. An explosion was heard in the basement.

Volunteer firemen from three communities were hampered by 12-below-zero weather and a shortage of water in fighting the blaze. Firemen said a light wind was a major factor in preventing a major conflagration from sweeping through this town of 5,200 on the north shore of the St. Lawrence.

RCAF Assoc. of Canada Supports Nuclear Weapons

TRENTON — George Penfold, first vice-president of the RCAF Association of Canada, reiterated the association's support of nuclear arms for Canada, when he addressed some 100 past and present members of the RCAF at the annual dinner of Trenton Wing 413 at the Queensway Hotel last night.

A resolution calling for nuclear arms was wired to Defence Minister Douglas Harkness in Ottawa following his talk. It read:

"Trenton Wing 413 of the RCAF association urges the Government of Canada to take action immediately to provide nuclear warheads for the defence forces of Canada. The Trenton wing firmly believes that Canada must assume its rightful responsibility in NORAD. This defence is predicated on nuclear weapons to counter the nuclear threat."

Mr. Penfold said Canada can not play a full part in NATO or NORAD unless it has nuclear capacity. At present United States law forbids the sale of nuclear weapons to other countries, unless they are put on a joint control basis, to be used only with the consent of the U.S. and the country which buys them.

"The whole defence of North America is based on the ability to counter Russian nuclear weapons with American nuclear forces," said Mr. Penfold. "But Canada cannot take a role in this defence because it is not equipped to do so."

As for the so-called nuclear club, "What does it mean?" he asked. "Surely Elliot Lake hasn't been producing lead for the past few years. And if not, Canada should have honorary life membership in any such club."

Last night's resolution was the second wired to the defence minister by the association this year. The first telegram, sent at the association's meet in Halifax, was followed by a personal meeting between Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Mr. Penfold and national association president Bill Connell.

"But the Prime Minister said no change in Canada's position was contemplated at this time, because it would be disadvantageous for this country's role in world peace to have such weapons now," said Mr. Penfold.

SMALL COUNTRY

"But few members of the RCAF association do not feel that every avenue should be explored to bring about world peace, he said. However, Canada is a relatively small country — much smaller than India and "look what happened to that country when it tried to lead in world peace," he added.

Furthermore, he said, if Canada didn't accept the responsibility NATO would assign the job to other countries.

Mr. Penfold praised the RCAF for its training and efficiency but called upon association members to campaign for nuclear arms "so Canadian forces can take part in the role for which they are being prepared."

He quoted former Governor General Vincent Massey who said, "Of course it can," when the question, Could there be another war? was posed at a Battle of Britain dinner in Toronto earlier this year.

Mr. Penfold was introduced by William Menzies, president of Wing 413, and thanked by Ken Bowen.

During the proceedings an inscribed cup for outstanding services to the association was presented to Fit.-Lt. Jim Jessup by Fit.-Lt. Len McGaughey, immediate past-president of the Trenton Wing; and association pins for similar efforts were awarded to Mr. McGaughey himself, Peter Deduke, Al Weaver and Richard C. Kent, all past presidents of the Trenton Wing.

Plans to Widen Road Reviewed

TRENTON—George Totten, consulting engineer last night described details of the proposed development road in Murray township with Reeve Douglas McMaster and the members of the township council.

The road, known as the second Big Hill Road, will be widened and reconstructed by the Ontario Department of Highways and, all presumably, then be turned back to the township for maintenance. Mr. Totten said there was some hope the road might be taken over by the suburban road commission thus relieving the township of maintenance expense. Plans call for widening the road to a minimum of 100 feet. The road is now 66 feet wide, and the extra land will be bought from the township residents. Mr. Totten said that it was department practice to let the municipality buy the land, and to give a 50 percent grant of the purchase price.

Mr. Totten and the members of council will make a tour of the road next Thursday. Some council members felt that it could be straightened and rerouted in some instances.

After preliminary engineering studies have been made, a meeting of all interested parties will be held. It is expected the road will be used primarily by Prince Edward County residents and truckers coming down from Highway 401, who wish to bypass Trenton. The development road will run down from the 401, across Highway Two and so on down to Highway 32.

The inaugural meeting of Murray Township council will be held in the town hall at Wooler, Jan. 4 at 1 p.m.

At last night's RCAF Association (Trenton Wing 413) meeting, Al Weaver, (front, left), was presented with a pin by national association vice-president George Penfold, (front, right). Mr. Weaver is past president of the Trenton Wing. Also receiving awards were Peter Deduke, (back, left), Len McGaughey, (three-year service pin), and Dick Kent, (past president of Trenton wing, when it was formed in the late 1940s.

Scottish Thugs Seriously Hurt Trenton Pastor

TRENTON — Rev. Ronald Reid, pastor at Bethel Temple in Trenton, was seriously injured by three hoodlums in a Scout Scotland farm near Glasgow, Wednesday night. Taken to a Glasgow hospital, Mr. Reid is found to be suffering from multiple bruises and fractured ribs. One eye was so badly injured that it was necessary to remove it.

Mr. Reid, who has been in Scotland on an evangelical speaking tour, was to have spoken at a meeting Wednesday night. He was taking a walk around the town where he was staying with his brother, when he was attacked by three men and dragged up an alley. It is presumed that the men were after Mr. Reid's money. The men were later apprehended by the police.

Mrs. Reid was called by a Toronto paper and immediately put in a call to Scotland. She is suffering from shock and spent the night with friends in Trenton.

The Reids have three children.

Mr. Reid retired from the Trenton Board of Education last year, after two years as chairman of management.

Drop Color Bar On Schoolgirls' Lingerie

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — The spinster head teacher of a girls' school here has declared a color bar in black undies.

The teacher, 53-year-old Mona Mathews, issued the edict by circular to the girls' parents after she found out during a gym class that many children were wearing black undies.

"Black underwear is Victorian and dates back to the days when people didn't bathe," Miss Mathews said.

Quote from one incensed mother:

"I'll wear black underwear and if my daughter wants to wear black underwear no teacher is going to stop her."

Christmas Day Just Another One for Convict

MCALESTER, Okla. (AP)— Christmas will be just another day of serving meals to Death Row prisoners for Kansas City Fat, who has spent 28 years in gaston for a 15-cent holdup. In that time he never has had a visitor or a letter.

He'll get the $2 and two packs of cigarettes given each prisoner on Christmas Day. But he won't expect the packages from home and Christmas greetings such as many prisoners receive.

Kansas City Fat's real name is George O. Jones, but few know that.

"Kansas City Fat is all I've ever heard him called," said one prison official. "I didn't know his real name until he came up for parole and got some publicity."

The 58-year-old Negro estimates he has seen 35,000 prisoners come and go.

But Kansas City Fat won't be leaving, unless he unexpectedly gets a job offer.

He was recommended for parole three months ago, subject to getting a job. No offers have come so far.

Kansas City Fat had served auto theft terms in two other prisons before he arrived here Oct. 1, 1934, on a life sentence for robbery with firearms in Tulsa.

The stiff penalty apparently was given because he was arrested at the time of a series of robberies, one of which led to a murder. He was arrested in two cases, one a $55 robbery, the other the 15-cent holdup which led to his sentence.

He is regarded as a good prisoner.

Graduation is a word that is uppermost in many student's minds during the month of October. However, there is a large group of people from Belleville and district that had to wait until December 18, to receive their diplomas.

The group is the graduating class of the Quinte Twirlers. Last night saw over 160 people, that's about 20 sets in square dance language, present for this gay event. Amid gally-colored western shirts and even brighter gingham skirts, people talked and laughed of the fun and acquaintances they had made during the past 15 weeks.

The caller for Wednesday night's sweet was Mr. Pierson Cargill, who hails from Peterborough, Ont. Mr. Cargill is well known in square dance circles as an excellent caller and after Wed. night, all present agreed that they had a "swinging" time.

There were four groups of people present on Wed. evening. These were the two square dance classes and also the two square dance clubs - started about a year and half ago. The members of the two square dance classes, however, were those honored at Wednesday evening's event.

Aside from the regular diplomas, approximately 20 people received their gold star in recognition of their attendance at 100 percent of the classes. At the conclusion of the evening, beautiful gifts were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson on behalf of the married group, and to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Williamson, on behalf of the singles group.

Last Monday night also saw the election of officers for the singles group. Elected to the office of president was Miss Dorothy Benedict, while the vice-president's position was filled by Richard Young. The secretary for the new club will be Janet Salisbury and the treasurer is Mr. Larry Lynch.

The coming of the new year will also see the initiation of new square dance classes in the married and singles division. These classes are expected to begin in mid-January, and information getting under way at present to watch their local newspaper for further information, or call Mrs. Bea Williamson, at WO 2-3077.

Another first, will be the beginning of round dance classes. This course will start on Wednesday, Jan. 9, and is open to all those who have completed either of the square dance classes. Also, round dance classes will be held at Prince Charles School, every second Wednesday under instructors Bob and Jane Jaffrey. Mr. and Mrs. Jaffrey have completed many round dance classes in this area and Bob is currently coaching a square dance group in Campbellford.

If anyone is interested in either the new square dance classes or the round dance instruction, I would suggest that they call Mr. and Mrs. R. Williamson, at WO 3-3077.

As Arthur Murray says "dancing can be fun"; and the Quinte Twirlers have certainly proved it! All 300 of them!

Is This "Reasonable?"

The independent commission on the redistribution of seats in the Ontario Legislature has presented its first report. It has recommended that the present six York ridings, comprising the suburbs of Toronto, be enlarged in number to 16.

No reasonable person will quarrel with the commission's contention that it is in this area that the most pressing need for redistribution exists.

There may, however, be some who will question the wisdom of attacking the problem of redistribution piecemeal. If the basic solution for present inequalities is going to be the creation of new seats in areas where population increases have been heaviest, it may very well be that when the complete redistribution is finished we shall find ourselves with many more members of the Legislature. There may be those who will have misgivings about any such increase—legislative bodies can get unwieldy when they grow too large.

If, however, this were the only criticism which could be advanced of the committee's first report we should be able to look forward with reasonable confidence to the establishment of a situation in which more than lip service was paid to the principle of representation by population.

Unfortunately, the committee says that its proposal for the creation of ten new York ridings is based on a "reasonable relationship of population" between urban, urban-rural and rural ridings. The committee has thus set up for itself not a double but a triple standard. Its largest rural riding would have 50,000 voters, its smallest urban riding 60,000. Assuming the same proportion of voters to the total population in rural and urban ridings, there will be no urban resident in the province whose vote is not worth less than the vote of any rural resident. That, however, is not the worst part of the picture. The smallest rural riding would have only 25,000 people, the largest urban riding 75,000. Some rural residents, therefore, will have votes worth three times as much as some urban residents' votes.

Now apologists for this system have many arrows in their quiver. It is true, for instance, that there exists in Ontario today no clear-cut political differences between rural and urban voters, speaking broadly. The result of this difference in the size of urban and rural ridings is thus not likely to be of great practical importance. It is not likely to mean the difference between a party forming the government or the opposition. Secondly, our parliamentary system does not provide for representation in proportion to the vote cast for any party. The inequities which may arise from differences in the size of rural and urban ridings are no greater than the inequities which may arise from variations in the sizes of the majorities by which various members are elected.

Nevertheless, the commission is accepting, as a basic necessity, the existence of inequities. It is not setting out to avoid such inequities wherever possible. Rather its whole scheme of redistribution will, if the committee's words mean anything, be founded on the acceptance of inequity as desirable.

The explanation, of course, lies in that ancient contention that the sparsity of population in rural areas makes it impossible for one member to represent as many with as large a population as can be served by a member in an urban community.

Two points suggest themselves. While this contention may once have been valid, are not those who still advance it today overlooking the existence of good roads and the automobile? Secondly, we have yet to read any convincing argument proving that the diversity of interests often existing amongst the residents of many urban ridings does not make adequate representation as difficult as that of serving a rural riding which, though large in physical area, may be populated by people with identical ways of life.

Perhaps some differences between the populations of urban and rural ridings is unavoidable —but does a range from 25,000 to 75,000, one riding three times as populous as another, really deserve the adjective "reasonable?"

Those who state a moral principle and avoid the hard, grimy reality of implementation have a museum mentality where morality is nothing more than a show piece.—Saul Alinsky.

Thank you for your comment madam. But, in the sense you use it, the word is blockhead. The country, we agree, is run by blockheads; not by blockades.—Peterborough Examiner.

Strictly Personal

Sincerity Does Not Guarantee Success

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The two things that no man will believe of himself are that he is not desirable to women and that he doesn't, in some deep and mystic way, really have a quite nice singing voice.

He may pretend to deprecate his voice in public, but in the sanctity of the bathroom, with the shower running full, when he opens up those vocal cords, he is privately convinced that, given the proper training, he would have made Caruso sound like a sick canary.

This is why I returned so chagrined from New York. Strolling through Central Park with a lovely lyric soprano from the Met, I had the audacity to burst out with the "O Quel Amore" aria from La Traviata.

She listened patiently for a few moments, and then during a pause while I was gasping for breath, she said: "You have absolutely the most horrible vibrato I have ever heard emanate from a human throat."

Just like that, cold, bitter, and final.

I laughed shakily and pretended to agree with her, but secretly I was wounded to the quick — and I am a very slow quick. Although I subsequently know what she means, and like to other people, to me it sounds wonderfully moving. There are times in the shower when I dazzle myself with my vocal brilliance and bravura.

Musical talent, artistic and personal liability to hear oneself as, I am convinced, the reason so many of the people in all fields persist in their futile endeavors. There are poets, also, who think they can sing; painters who think they can write poetry, and painters who have no eye for their canvases.

My wife, who is a painter, finds inside me, but I am forced to recognize that it comes out somewhat muddied. Many things I felt, but not expressed. With defective artists, their grave sin is lack of delight more than lack of talent. They think that because they "feel" a poem or a painting that they have therefore expressed their feelings adequately.

The worst artists are always the most passionately sincere. As John Ciardi wrote in a recent issue of the Saturday Review, most of the bad poems he receives come with appended letters saying, "This is really true; this is what happened; this is what I actually felt." But translating the truth of feeling into the truth of art is quite another matter, and parliamentary plays only a minor part in it.

Art is the most treacherous of mistresses, and one must constantly self-deceiving. Luckily, I do not have to depend upon my singing voice for a living, and if I did I could never allow myself to believe that my vibrato is "horrible." In fact, I don't even believe it now. After all, what does a lyric soprano from the Met really know about singing?

A total of $227 was realized by the Catholic Women's League, it was reported this morning by officials who expressed their gratification for the amount contributed and also for the assistance given by tagsers; their efforts added greatly toward the success of the day. The tag day was held for the purpose of raising funds for the war work of the Catholic Women's League.

"The coldest morning so far this season", was the way officials at the Belleville Purification Plant described weather conditions Wednesday morning when questioned regarding the official temperature. After a comparatively mild day on Tuesday, the temperature dropped steadily during the night until at eight o'clock this morning the reading was ten degrees below zero.

The net surplus of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission for the eleven-month period ended November 30 was $45,659 as compared with $42,913 for the corresponding period in 1941. This represents an increase of $2,746. The water utility showed an increase over last year of $4,108 and the electric utility showed an increase over last year of $5,108. However these surpluses were offset by a loss in the gas utility of $4,917.17.

R.C. Index Outdated

Manchester Guardian

Will the Ecumenical Council propose a revision — even the abolition — of the notorious Index of Prohibited Books?

There have been reports that the liberal lobby is anxious to reform the censorship system, and certainly Roman Catholic intellectuals and scholars everywhere would welcome some reform.

The present edition, published in 1948, is an extraordinary document, rarely to hand in Catholic bookshops, and far better known as an institution than for what it actually contains.

For Catholics have read it, and in this country, for example, many students must have rendered themselves technically liable to excommunication by borrowing through Gibbon, or Hobbes and David Hume (both of whom receive the ultimate proscription, opera omnia).

These, with Descartes, Kant, Montaigne, and Rousseau, are some of the more notorious prohibitions. But the great bulk of 500-odd pages is made up of thinly veiled by long-forgotten seventeenth and eighteenth century polemicists.

It would be a dire penance for even the most frantic Protestant to have to read any half-dozen of them.

And what innocent child of Christ is going to be corrupted by Mr. John Wilkins and his cautious "discourse tending to prove that 'tis probable there may be another inhabitable world in the moon!"

A case might be made for "Honny (sic) soit qui mal y pense, ou histoires des filles celebres de XVIII siecle," but the twentieth century can offer far more exciting stuff than that, though none of it is listed here.

In fact, the index is more notable for sins of omission than for what it lists. The entire canon of Marquesdenlilium is ignored; Freud is still an open book, as far as the Vicar-General of the Vatican is concerned; and indeed very little that he might reasonably consider to be actively subversive today has been included.

As it stands, the Index is a bizarre monument to the folly of defending faith with censorship: one of these walls crumbled long ago.

Old Wagons Disappear

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

One of the sadder sights which one sees while travelling about the province is that of the wagons which are important to an older generation, are preserved but seldom maintained by ours.

Some of them are stored away in old sheds where dust has destroyed the finish and cobwebs have hidden the lines. Others have been left outside where weather has taken its toll. The years have seen the rusting away of iron parts and the decay of wooden members.

Occasionally, one has been rescued and partially painted for advertising purposes, but the final effect is one of even greater ignominy than was the state of desertion and dilapidation.

It is difficult for the contemporary youth to picture life as it was in the days when the wagon ruled the world of transportation. The wagon was a key in the opening up of the Americas west. The Red River cart, its two wheels fitted with rawhide, occupies an undeniable place in Canada's story.

Nova Scotia, too, has had its part in which wagons once were prominent. The building of them was an art in itself, and a variety of designs evolved which were suited to every need and occasion.

There was, for instance, the high-wheeled, two-seated carriage in which the family went to church. The express wagon was a light carry-all, especially useful for short trips into town. City dwellers knew the heavy, low-slung dray. And the farmer used various types of two and four-wheeled wagons, each suited for specific tasks, and with wheels of a height convenient operation in mud or any other terrain.

Use of the wagon introduced several trades to our society, which today are all but forgotten. One was that of wheelwright, for instance, to find a craftsman sufficiently skilled with his tools to shape a set of wheels. Spares are those capable of securely fitting an iron rim to a wooden wheel.

When winter laid claim to the land, sleds and sleighs took the place of wagons. Every boy was used to haul fuel from the woodlot. And sleek cutters glided, with tinkling bells, to an accompaniment of dancing bells.

The internal combustion engine has worked many changes, but it is almost difficult to imagine that anything different ever existed. We cannot, however, that the raciest convertible lacks the thrill of a fast horse and sleigh. The unadulterated truck ever will capture the beauty and poetry of a heavy team hauling a wagonload of hay along a country lane.

Reorganizing Red Economy

New York Times

Premier Khrushchev spoke with relative equanimity in a pragmatic spirit when he outlined his sweeping proposals for decentralizing the Soviet economy to the current Communist party Central Committee meeting in Moscow.

He is dissatisfied with the performance of both industry and agriculture. He has denounced the widespread "cancer" of falsification and embezzlement which he revealed has infected even "leading officials" of the country.

Despite his many past boasts of the superiority of the Soviet system he held up Western experience as the example to Soviet Union should follow in many cases, urging that his country "use anything rational and economically advantageous that the capitalists have to offer." Even the great American industrial companies, so often denounced by Communists as evil and bloodthirsty monopolies, find favor today from the man who claims to be the modern successor to Marx, Engels and Lenin.

Against this background it is curious that much of the reorganization proposed by the Premier has quite a different flavor to it. The essence is a substantial tightening of the Communist party supervision and control over the Soviet economy, a magnification of the party bureaucracy's role, which is to be attained by creating in effect two major party groups, one each to rule Russia's industry and agriculture. There was a how to the Yugoslav experience in the new proposal for increasing, nominally at least, the influence of workers over production, but what importance if any this is to have remains to be seen.

The record so far suggests there is little reason to believe that his new reorganization scheme will radically advance a solution of Moscow's economic problems. Last March Communist party supervision over Soviet agriculture was greatly intensified, but the disappointing harvest results this year hardly indicate that the administrative change worked any wonders. In industry the enlarged party pressure and supervision may well tend to create intensified frictions and antagonisms between the managers directly charged with controlling production and the party bureaucrats who will now sit above them.

Certainly the virtues of capitalism form of the beneficial influence of competition, of prices decided in the market place by supply and demand, are by the incentives from widespread private ownership are unlikely to be achieved in the new reform formula Premier Khrushchev has proposed for Moscow's economic ills.

Arthritis Is a Variety Of Several Ailments

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a test for arthritis? If so, what kind? — Mrs. J.C.

Yes, there are several, although no single one will identify all kinds, for arthritis isn't a single disease. It is a variety of ailments causing pain and stiffening of joints.

Not all painful joints are arthritis, however. Some muscular disorder is an example. Bursitis is another. There and other results of injury or overuse generally attack a single joint.

A history of the case is important. I could cite a number of cases, especially involving musicians, artists or others who depend on nimble hands, arms and shoulders, who were terrified for fear of crippling arthritis but discovered, after careful examination, that the fears were groundless and their various troubles could be successfully and often readily corrected.

Blood tests can be used, particularly a sedimentation rate test, which is positive if rheumatoid arthritis (the most crippling type) is present, it being an infectious disease. The test will be negative for other forms. A blood count, to detect anemia, often accompanies that test, since anemia often is present in rheumatoid arthritis. There are other more specialized tests which are less common.

A different blood test is used to detect excessive uric acid which tends to be present in cases of gouty arthritis — also affected by gout, in other words.

Blood tests for syphilis are useful more often than people may be aware, for that disease if neglected could be the cause of considerable joint pain along with its other ills.

Finally X-ray of the afflicted joint or joints is extremely helpful in diagnosis since there are different characteristic changes visible in gouty arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis and the prevalent osteoarthritis or degenerative arthritis which is another way of saying that general wear and tear has changed the joint structure.

Dear Dr. Molner: My five-year-old son has had several stiles on his eyes recently. What causes them and what can I do? — Mrs. M.K.

A sty is a germ infection, usually the pesky staphylococcus or "staph." Some individuals have a low resistance to this bug.

Stiles often occur in crops, being caused by reinfection. The first sty, which is an accumulation of the germs, scatters some more which can start new pockets of infection.

Thus scrupulous cleanliness of hands and face is essential, and this isn't as easy as it sounds. You can't, of course, see the germs. Therefore when such a cycle starts, consult your doctor. An antibiotic, either by mouth or rubbed in the area, can help cut short the successive stiles and prevent recurrence.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the medical uses of flaxseed? It was recommended to me in tea form as a laxative. — Mrs. H.C.

Flaxseed (from which we get linseed oil), as well as the leaves of the plant, was used as medicine even, by the early Egyptians.

Medically, the seed is now principally used as a poultice. It does have laxative properties, however, and I have no objection to flaxseed tea. But I also think that some of our quite new medications, such as the "blood reducers," are much more beneficial.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Facts About Shingles," write Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times-Syndicate, P.O. Box 133, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 15c in coin to cover handling.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the TV was one of those pre-suppertime local programs showing a crowded dancing floor or studio filled with teen-agers dancing to the music of a five-piece local band. Some of the kindergarten-like sounds that go for pop tunes nowadays. Vacant faced, unanimated, the TV youngsters pranced about each other in the curiously poultry-like activities of the dance.

"It's tragic," said one of the women in the room watching the TV in momentary expectation of a newscast, "what's happening to the younger generation."

"What' younger generation?" enquired a schoolmaster among us. "Do you mean this bandful here? Let us count them."

We estimated there were 39 girls and 32 boys in the dancing assembly.

"Right," said the schoolmaster. "Now let us think of how many are not there. Would it be ten thousand? A hundred thousand? Out of the whole population of a quarter of a million or so, here are 71. And when you suppose you are watching this program at this moment? Mostly, I would say, people like us watching the teenage generation."

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—The federal department of agriculture reported Thursday that slaughter steers and heifers opened slow under pressure this week at the Ontario public stockyards and closed actively strong on a light supply.

Cattle receipts were some 2,000 head less than last week and slightly more than the same week in 1961. Western cattle receipts were 118 head more than last week. Western stock calf receipts were 90 head more than last week at 181. There were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers. Forty - nine heifers and bulls were exported off the market to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 27.50-28; fancy feedlots 29; good 25.50-27; medium 23-25; common 16-21; good heifers 24-25; choice 25-26; some sales to 26.50; medium 19-23.50; common 15-18; choice fed yearlings 28-30; sales to 31; good 25-27.50; good cows 17.50-18.50; odd sales to 19; medium 16-17; common 15-16; canners and cutters 14-15.50; good heavy bologna bulls 19-20; common and medium bulls 15-18.50.

Replacement cattle: Good light stockers 26-27.50; good stock calves 28-30; odd sales to 31; common and medium 18-25.

Calves: Choice vealers 35-37; odd tops to 38; good 31-34; medium 26-30; common 21-25; boners 15-21.

Hogs: Grade A 27.50-31.25; heavy sows 22.75-23.50; light sows gained a $2 premium; stags 17.50 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Good handyweight lambs closed at 24-26.50 a hundredweight; backs discounted at $1 and good heavy lambs $2 a hundredweight; common and medium good light sheep 8-12; yearlings 12-16; sheep 3-7.

CAUGHT IN CORNER

Abandonment of Skybolt, a air-to-ground missile, as inefficient and too costly crowded Macmillan into a tight corner. Without a substitute he would be left holding nuclear warheads with no way of getting them to a target.

Relief that the Polaris deal that Kennedy cut was mixed with misgivings in London.

There has been no indication how much the Polaris weapons system will cost. But the massive switch in defence policy from air to sea power is expected to swell the budget next April—maybe the last Macmillan's Conservatives will introduce in Parliament before the next election.

COST OF WAR

The Second World War cost the Soviet Union $350,000,000,000 and left more than 25,000,000 Russians homeless.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market inched higher during quiet morning trading today.

Canadian Celanese and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce each rose ¼, Shell of Canada advanced ⅛, Shawinigan ⅛ and Consolidated Paper and Imperial Oil ¼ each. Abitibi, Bell Telephone and Massey-Ferguson all gained ¼.

BC Power declined ⅛, Toronto-Dominion Bank ⅛ and Atlas Steel and BA Oil ⅛ each.

On the exchange index, industrials rose .08 to 380.28, golds .05 to 86.02, base metals .28 to 198.80 and western oils .19 to 114.08. The 11 a.m. volume was 415,000, shares compared with 443,000 at the same time Thursday.

Among base metals, Falconbridge rose ⅛, Hudson Bay Mining ¼ and Denison ⅛. Gunnar Mining slipped to 9.86 after closing Thursday at 10¼. Normeta dipped ¼.

Lake Dufault dropped 10 cents to $3.20.

In western oils, Great Plains Development rose ¼ and Hudson's Bay ⅛, while Home A declined ⅛.

Trading was light Thursday.

Industrials, base metals and golds all showed fractional gains on index.

The weak list, despite its weak rise, was not without features. BC Power, on turnover eclipsing the 4-year high, climbed to a year's peak of 20¾ before easing to 20¼, ahead ⅛.

Page-Hersey Tubes, eased ¼ to 21¼ after earlier touching 22¼. Power Corporation reported net for the first three years ended June 30, 1961, up ¼. Atlas Steel gained ¼ to a 1962 high of 36¼.

Banks were featured as a group, with Montreal ahead 1¼, Toronto-Dominion up ⅛, Royal up ⅛ and Nova Scotia up ¼.

intended to go far beyond the substitution of Polaris for Skybolt in the British arsenal.

Machinery is being set in motion which can permit British and France to have a form of independent nuclear deterrent—an increasingly sensitive issue in Europe—while still co-ordinating nuclear defence strategy with that of the United States behind a single shield.

The Kennedy administration insists that eventually strictly national nuclear deterrent forces must disappear from the Western alliance and be merged into a single defence effgit.

The prime minister is pictured as confident he read President de Gaulle's feelings correctly in recent meetings and that de Gaulle will not stand in the way.

The discussions by the two western leaders have been ranging across the whole cold war scene, touching on such situations as the Communist Chinese-Indian border conflict, the Soviet-Communist Chinese ideological quarrel, and the problems of the Common Market.

While House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger issued a statement expressing the two leaders' hope "that the common interest of Pakistan and India in the security of the subcontinent would lead to a reconciliation of Indian-Pakistan differences." This referred to the India-Pakistan conflict over Kashmir, which has had the two nations at odds since the subcontinent was divided in 1947.

Demand Too Keen for Comfort For Sword Firm's Razors

LONDON (CP) — Wilkinson Sword Company, which has made fine-edged weapons and tools for nearly two centuries, developed a line of razor blades a few years ago and has been overwhelmed with business ever since.

"We just can't produce enough blades to meet the demand," Roy Randolph, assistant managing director, said in an interview.

Offered for sale in only four countries — Britain, Canada, the United States and West Germany—the stainless steel blades proved so popular that supply ran as much as 70 per cent behind demand.

Wilkinson discontinued all advertising here last February and soon will open another factory in an attempt to supply the would-be customers.

"We can keep pace with the demand for swords, scimitars, rapiers, sabres, lances, bayonets and the like, but although we have quadrupled our machinery, we still aren't turning out enough blades," said Randolph.

"We achieved all this with hardly any advertising. The word just went around that you can get 10 shaves with one of these blades, compared with as little as two or three from some other makes, yet you need never take a blade from the razor until it is ready to discard."

The Wilkinson blade, which goes under the name Super Sword Edge, cost a bit more than most of the competition. But a British consumers' organization survey found it lasts longer.

The Sword Company, founded in 1772, has expanded to 2,000 employees from 1,500 it employed in 1958. Recently it bought a neighboring factory to meet its expansion needs, and it has a plant in Germany.

The supply allocated to Canada simply won't meet the demand said W. H. Van Houten, an official of John A. Huston Company Ltd. of Toronto.

The suggested retail price in Canada is 59 cents for five blades.

Transmission Trouble Was Other Car

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Richard Click was angry.

The car behind his was trying to crowd into his parking space.

Click, 46, stepped out of his auto and walked back to direct a few irate words at the rude motorist.

But no one was in the other car. And there hadn't been for two miles.

Click accidentally had hooked the other car's bumper to his car's trailer hitch and had towed it from Alameda across a bridge to Oakland.

"My car did seem to drag a little," Click told police. "But I've been having transmission trouble and didn't think much of it."

D'Oyly Carte Opera Company To Appear at O'Keefe Centre

The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company will return to Toronto on December 26, after a seven-year absence, to present the inspired satire of Gilbert and Sullivan during a two-week engagement at O'Keefe Centre.

The company is concluding a 20-week tour of the United States and Canada under the direction of S. Hurok.

Although it has been 92 years since the first Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera was produced, the mixture of wit and sentiment peculiar to Gilbert and Sullivan seem equally delectable today in all countries. Entire generations of theatre-goers look back on their earliest visits to the theatre to see this wonderful series of burlesques on human nature.

Nothing quite like it, except Shakespeare's plays, has been known before or since in the English theatre.

John Reed has inherited the mantle of Martyn Green and performs the patter songs and dances that are such a delight to Gilbert and Sullivan fans.

During the Toronto engagement, Mr. Reed will be heard and seen as Ko-Ko in "The Mikado"; the Duke of Plaza-Toro in "The Gondoliers"; the Lord Chancellor in "Iolanthe" and Major-General Stanley in "The Pirates of Penzance."

Other leading voices of the company are Gillian Knight, Donald Adams, Kenneth Sandford and Thomas Round.

The Toronto season will open and close with the most popular of all Gilbert and Sullivan operas, "The Mikado", although the plot of "The Mikado" is just as delightful excuse on which to hang a chain of wickedly satirical lyrics, it is easily the best-loved of the operas and there is seldom an evening in the world that "The Mikado" is not being presented somewhere in the world. "The Mikado" is scheduled for evenings of December 26 and 27, and at matinees on December 27 and 28. It will also close the season with a matinee and evening performance on January 5.

Second offering of the D'Oyly Carte Company will be a new production of "The Gondoliers" with staging by George Fox. This new version will be presented on December 28, 29 and 30 with a matinee performance on December 29.

"Iolanthe", containing some of the wittiest Gilbert and Sullivan material and some of the best choruses, will have three performances: January 1 and 2, with matinee on January 2.

"Pirates of Penzance" will be presented on two evenings, January 3 and 4.

Since Richard D'Oyly first invited W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan to collaborate in writing "Trial by Jury" in 1875, there has always been a D'Oyly Carte to carry on the tradition. Richard was succeeded by his wife, Helen, then by his son, ment, Rupert, and finally at the age of 71 and was succeeded by his daughter, Bridget, who is currently directing the company.

Under the D'Oyly Carte family's management the Gilbert and Sullivan tradition has been carefully maintained. Now that the copyrights on the operas have expired and many actors and producers are attempting their own versions of the Gilbert and Sullivan works, the original D'Oyly Carte productions have become more popular than ever with the public for which seems to prefer the traditional presentations.

sure success at Christmas...

Year-End Outlook

Govt. Economists Foresee Growth Continuing in '63 But Not at as Fast a Rate

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian economy developed a split personality in 1962.

At home, the country marked up its strongest economic expansion in six years. Internationally, it ran into a financial crisis that threatened the Canadian dollar's status and brought on emergency governmental measures which are still being felt.

Looking into 1963, government economists foresee continued—but slower—growth.

The economy's future performance may well hinge to a great extent on what steps the government takes to cure the root causes of this year's foreign exchange emergency.

IMPROVE HEAVY

The problem lies in Canada's heavy dependence on imported goods and services that has persistently brought huge balance-of-payments deficits with the rest of the world. The ministry Progressive Conservative government has already indicated its program will aim at reducing this deficit, if the government survives long enough to implement it.

The exact extent of this year's economic growth isn't yet known.

Cautious estimates are for a gain in national output of more than seven per cent to just over $39,500,000,000, compared with last, year's $36,944,000,000. But some well - informed sources here predict the growth will exceed eight per cent for a total gross national product—value of all goods and services produced—of as much as $39,800,000,000.

The growth rate has been about double the pace of the last five years, though well short of the 1956 boom. Personal incomes, industrial output and corporation profits have risen strongly. The heavy unemployment of recent years, while far from overcome, has been notably reduced.

RECORD OUTPUT

Discounting price rises, the higher volume of goods and services could possibly push real output per capita to a new high of between $1,990 and $2,010—in terms of 1957 dollars —averaged over Canada's population of 18,600,000. This compares with $1,880 in 1961. For five years this yardstick of prosperity has been stagnant or declining.

Looking ahead, government economists are optimistic that the business cycle upswing of the last two years won't turn downwards in 1963. Tentative forecasts are for a rise in gross national product of between 2½ and four per cent.

One basis for this outlook is the expectation that devaluation of the Canadian dollar hasn't yet made its full impact in boosting production for both home and export markets.

One official said reports are coming in almost daily of industries expanding their output or going into new lines of production to replace imports squeezed out of competition by dollar devaluation.

DOLLAR CRISIS

Devaluation in May and the foreign exchange crisis in June were the economic highlights of 1962.

In the background of both conditions tightened as the Bank of Canada boosted its interest rate to six per cent to attract capital back into the country.

Since then, foreign exchange reserves have bounced back. From their perilously low point of $1,200,000,000 on June 24, the reserves rose to a record $2,-907,500,000 at the end of November. A total $250,000,000 of the June borrowings had been repaid and parts of the austerity program had been dismantled.

EASE ON CREDIT

Import surcharges were lifted from about one-sixth of the goods affected. With long-term capital starting to flow back into Canada, the Bank of Canada made credit easier by a three-stage reduction in its interest rate to four per cent.

But the moves taken in June were admittedly temporary. The government hasn't yet disclosed details of the promised program of long-term measures to enable the economy to grow—and perhaps finally eliminate—the balance-of-payments deficit.

Parts of the program are already known: dollar devaluation, the productivity incentives of last April's budget, and the new National Industrial Development Board. Other measures are expected to be announced in Finance Minister Nowlan's first budget early next year.

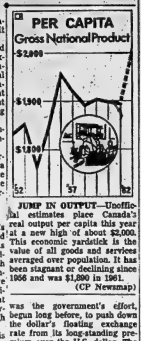
In 1961 the balance-of-payments deficit was reduced by some $260,000,000 to $982,000,000 —the lowest since 1955. For this year it is estimated the letter may drop as low as $900,000,000.

NOTABLE GAINS

During 1962 employment and labor income reached new highs. The index of industrial production for September was 6.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. Consumer prices showed a 12-month rise of 1.7 per cent up to November.

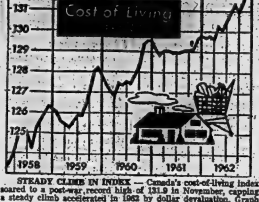
Unemployment was down. October showed 283,000 jobless compared with 318,000 a year earlier. The jobless rate—adjusted for discount seasonal factors—was 5.8 per cent of the labor force compared with 6.6 per cent a year earlier and 7.6 per cent two years earlier.

A government statement said that in the first 10 months of this year 183,000 more persons were employed than in the corresponding period of 1961. The October employment total of 6,326,000 was 106,000 higher than a year earlier. Either way, the gain fell short of the rain needed to meet the government's stated goal of more than 1,000,000 new jobs in five years.



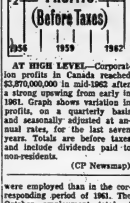
MORE BUILDING

Capital investment this year was expected to top last year's $7,870,000,000 in mid-1962 after a strong upswing from early in 1961. Graph shows variation in profits, on a quarterly basis and seasonally adjusted at annual rates, for the last several years. Totals are before taxes and include dividends paid to non-residents.



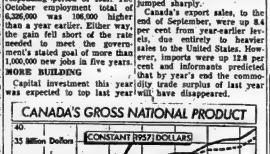
(CP Newsmap)

SHARP GAIN IN GROWTH — Canada's gross national product — value of all goods and services — is expected to increase more than seven per cent this year to $39,500,000,000. The growth rate is well above the pace of the last five years and compares with a gain in 1961 of less than three per cent to $36,844,000,000.



The 1962 figure, if expressed in 1957 dollars, would be about $37,000,000,000, a $2,500,000,000 increase over last year's total. Graph traces both sets of GNP totals since 1947. (CP Newsmap).

JUMP IN OUTPUT—Unofficial estimates place Canada's real output per capita this year at a new high of about $2,000. This economic yardstick is the value of all goods and services averaged over population. It has been stagnant or declining since 1956 and was $1,880 in 1961. (CP Newsmap)



STEADY CLIMB IN INDEX — Canada's cost-of-living index soared to a post-war record high of 131.0 in November, capping a steady climb accelerated in 1962 by dollar devaluation. Graph traces monthly movement of the index from January, 1958. (CP Newsmap).

AT HIGH LEVEL—Corporation profits in Canada reached $3,870,000,000 in mid-1962 after a strong upswing from early in 1961. Graph shows variation in profits, on a quarterly basis and seasonally adjusted at annual rates, for the last several years. Totals are before taxes and include dividends paid to non-residents.

goods and services produced. This would mean a GNP averaging $39,255,000,000 compared with last year's $36,844,000,000.

IS RUNNING AHEAD

The bureau said that in the first nine months of this year GNP was running 8.8 per cent ahead of the comparable 1961 period, with the volume of output up 7.8 per cent and prices 1.1 per cent higher, it said.

Output per person in real volume terms had already passed the previous 1956 high of $1,936, measured on the yardstick of 1957 dollar values.

The report said one of the important factors in this year's higher economic activity is the high crop estimate compared with last year's poor crop which was hit by prairie drought.

But other sectors of the economy showed strong gains.

For the first nine months of the year consumer spending was 5.3 per cent ahead of a year earlier. Government spending was up 7.8 per cent, capital outlays were seven per cent higher, labor income was up 6.5 per cent and corporation profits were up 13.9 per cent before payment of dividends abroad.

Total employment in the nine months averaged 6,206,000—an increase of 181,000 from 1961 levels. Unemployment averaged 6.1 per cent of the labor force compared with 7.8 per cent in the first nine months of last year.

by eight per cent, with much of the rise in manufacturing industry and new vocational schools.

At mid-year, labor income was running 6.8 per cent higher than a year earlier, corporation profits 15 per cent higher and total personal incomes 9.8 per cent higher. But consumer spending rose more slowly, with a year-to-year gain of 5.5 per cent, and personal savings rose sharply.

Canada's export sales, to the end of September, were up 8.4 per cent from year-earlier levels, due entirely to heavier sales to the United States. However, imports were up 12.8 per cent and informants predicted that by year's end the commodity trade surplus of last year will have disappeared.

Why Write When You Can Talk?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My hobby is recording people's voices. My room is fixed like a small receiving station. My idea is to get people talking instead of writing.

You talk on this tape for ten minutes. The cost for this, is only 25 cents (when I do it), plus the cost of the tape ($1.00). Your own voice is then sent on its way to any part of the world. Then the party who receives it, talks back to you. Some say they will never write again now that they have formed the habit of talking. Of course the tape can be used over and over again.

Others might be glad of this idea.—C. S.

DEAR C. S.—Voice recording can preserve precious memories, too. My nephew married a girl from England. We recorded the toasts, speeches and solos. Parents in England played that record threadbare when it got to them.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I would like to let Mrs. J. know that it would be possible to obtain a detailed set of lessons in millinery by mail. The instructor also has a small shop to sell millinery supplies.—MRS. H. W.

DEAR MRS. H. W.—Thank you. I will be glad to give the name and address to anyone who writes to me enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO SANDRA—You're just a gal that can't say no—and it won't do! Just because you're good looking and good natured you don't have to be labelled as an easy mark. Boys do not as a rule marry the girls who permit liberties—unless it's a gunshot wedding.

* * *

TO 24 AND ALONE—There are church groups, recreation clubs, hobby groups in Belleville. These are the places where people go to become acquainted and make new friends.

I would suggest that you go to your local YMCA and talk to the Recreation Director. He will advise you about the best group for you to approach to make new friends.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARION—Your little sister will square her shoulders and hold her head up when she is loved and encouraged. Shoulder braces are not the answer to a psychological sag.

Will Settle Marital Status In January

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice T. W. Brown expects to give a decision in January that will settle the marital status of Annabelle Rees-Davies and the two doctors in her life.

If she wins she will resume the role as wife of 33-year-old eye specialist James Fortin Minnes, who divorced her in February, 1960.

If she loses she will continue as wife of Dr. Peter Ethridge Rees-Davies, 40, surgeon whom she married in April, 1960.

Mr. Justice Brown announced at the close of the trial of Mrs. Rees-Davies's action against the two doctors Thursday that he hoped to give judgment in January.

Mrs. Rees-Davies is seeking to set aside Minnes's divorce on the ground that it was fraudently obtained.

She is also asking the court to nullify her subsequent marriage to Rees-Davies, claiming it to be invalid because the divorce was not legal.

She claimed that she was victim of a divorce pact in which she lost her three little girls, her share of the Minnes home and was forced into a loveless marriage, with Rees-Davies.

CRISIS RECOVERY—Graph details monthly state of Canada's foreign exchange reserves during 1962. They fell to a perilously low point June 24 when the government imposed its austerity program, then were bolstered by $650,000,000 in short term international loans. By November they had recovered to $2,507,500,000 with only $400,000,000 to repay the loans. (CP Newsmap)

Three-Step

sonal jobs, the government would help out from its tax reserves in the form of extended benefits. For workers who are chronically unemployed, special assistance, based on a test of need, would be provided under the existing federal-provincial program.

The committee emphasized that the proposed assistance programs should be accompanied by an all-out attack on the causes of long-term joblessness—including the use of monetary and fiscal policies, trade policies, retraining and relocation of workers, development of resources and industries, development of winter works, examination of particular employment problems of individuals and all other tools available in meeting a comprehensive employment and manpower problem.

WOULD CO-ORDINATE

The National Employment Service, a wing of the unemployment insurance commission, should be played under the federal labor department as a move to co-ordinate manpower policies, the report said.

Some major changes in the present insurance plan were proposed in extending unemployment insurance to cover almost all employees.

Contribution rates under the present plan would remain unchanged, but a new category would be added for those earning more than $80 a week. Contributions from this group—including high-salaried executives—were estimated at $1.05 a week.

The committee also said the fund should be operated on equal contributions from employers and employees—without any government contribution. Under the present plan, the government puts up 20 cents for every $1 contributed by employers and employees. This amounted to $35,000,000 in the 1960 fiscal year.

Also proposed was an increase in the rates of benefit to about 67 per cent of earnings for claimants with a dependant and to about 45 per cent of earnings for claimants without a dependent. The top benefit payment would be $44 a week for a jobless worker whose earnings had been $80 and who had a dependent.

This would be the ceiling for benefits—even for an employee who had been earning far more than $80 a week.

SHORTENS DURATION

The maximum duration of benefits would be 26 weeks, not 52 weeks as allowed now. Insured workers unable to find jobs after regular benefits ended would qualify for help from the government's extended benefit fund. The rate of benefit would be the same as under the insurance plan but would be available up to a maximum of 39 weeks.

If a worker was still jobless after using up his insurance benefits and the extended benefits, then his case would be considered individually and help provided on a basis of need.

The report said that self-employed fishermen, included under the present unemployment insurance plan, should be covered under a new, separate scheme devised to fit their particular needs.

For administrative reasons, the report recommended that farm workers and domestic service workers be left out of the insurance plan. But every effort should be made to find an appropriate method of including them, the report added.

PENSIONS AS EARNINGS

The report proposed that pension payments be considered as earnings — thus curbing the benefits claimed by elderly workers without actually barring them from drawing on the fund.

Tougher supervision of claims and vigorous follow-up on job referrals were urged to combat abuses to the fund by some married women." However,...no special regulations were proposed for married women.

It recommended that women receive employment terminal because of pregnancy be considered unavailable for employment until eight weeks after confinement.

If employment ceases "for any other reason," a pregnant woman should be considered unavailable for work for eight weeks before and eight weeks after confinement.

At present, pregnant women are considered unavailable for employment for six weeks before and six weeks after confinement.

The committee also recommended that married women with pre-school children be considered ineligible for employment unless they can prove to the satisfaction of the unemployment insurance commission that they have made adequate arrangements for care of the children.

Altogether, the committee placed 45 major recommendations before the government.

Action of the report is considered likely early in 1963.

Both Houses

there is a three-party deal not covered by the bill.

(In Regina Thursday, the Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba governments decided to ask for an immediate meeting with the federal government to discuss railway companies' abandonment of branch lines, including those already approved by the federal government.

(The decisions were reached at a conference attended by Premier Woodrow Lloyd of Saskatchewan, Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, Highways Minister Gordon Taylor of Alberta and 20 non-government organizations.

(Premier Lloyd, who proposed the conference, said rail lines were being dropped without reference to the effect on communities, industries and individuals on or near the lines. There was no consideration of the effect on the economies of provinces and municipalities.)

In the Commons, the final hour brought Liberal and New Democratic Party taunts as Conservative MPs as they again "talked out" a Liberal motion seeking the justice department's legal opinion on which the cabinet relied in imposing the June 21 import surcharges.

Author of the motion, Paul Martin (L—Essex East), said the government was afraid to let it come to a vote because it might be defeated.

"The government isn't afraid of anything," retorted Thomas M. Bell, parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister Fleming.

DIVORCE BID FAILS

Later, Veterans Minister Churchill — government House leader—made a bid for the unanimous consent needed to whisk nearly 450 divorce bills through the Commons while NDP divorce blockaders Frank Howard and Arnold Peters were absent. Remaining New Democrats blocked the move.

The bills remain unpassed.

Two ministers made policy statements earlier:

1. Under acknowledged pressure from western interests, Transport Minister Balcer said the great majority of railway applications to abandon branch lines will be subject to an overall review by the board of transport commissioners and will not be dealt, with "in any precipitate fashion."

2. Works Minister Fulton announced that National Housing Act loans will be made directly to builders for privately-sponsored rental housing projects, if the builders can get mortgages from financial institutions designated as NHA lenders. He foresaw a $15,000,000-a-year demand for the direct loans.

AIDS SMALL CENTRES

The move is aimed at providing loans in smaller centres where builders have been unable to obtain funds for government guaranteed loans from approved lending institutions.

J. R. (Jack) Garland (L—Nipissing) said his party would reserve comment to study the announcement more closely. He said the government housing policy has been "wholly inadequate" in the past and the National Housing Act was "outdated."

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) and Hordo Martin (NDP—Timmins) said they were pleased to see the government take the lead in assisting housing construction in smaller communities. But the Housing Act still did not go far enough to combat slums.

Most of the attention in the interim supply debate — which wound up in the seventh day, for a matter that usually takes only a few hours—was on Prime Minister Diefenbaker. He wasn't there.

The prime minister has been shooted against by Liberal backbenchers a day earlier when he attempted to reply to Opposition Leader Pearson's charges of government contempt for Parliament. The Liberals offered him same-day speaking room later but he declined.

Thursday, the prime minister left the chamber before the debate resumed.

"The prime minister is sulking," said Hazen Argue (L—Assiniboia). He said Mr. Diefenbaker was a childish performance, and he wondered whether the prime minister really had wanted to speak on Wednesday or whether he was "playing the martyr."

Liberals in turn were accused by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) of having acted like "an unruly mob" in the fashion of Black Friday, most uproarious day of the 1956 pipeline debate.

Mr. Knowles played a key role in that debate.

At the same time, he said he wasn't letting the Conservatives "off the hook." He said they had done irreparable damage to Parliament at this session by taking under executive control matters which should be decided by Parliament.

High School Activities

B.C.I.V.S.

By Steve Forrester

During this, the last week before Christmas, the school has acquired a certain Yuletide flags. The Keyettes have decorated the halls with such thoroughness that one can't see the classrooms for the jungle of Santa Clauses, the enormous candles and the mass of streamers. Teachers and students alike are attacked by the more festive, mistletoe-bearing students(mistletoes provided by the Girl's H-Y for Her). And always the omnipresent Christmas carols pipe out through the P.A. system. "Joy To the World"—while you're still in school!? Not likely.

On a worthier note the Key Club has continued its project of the last two years to give aid to the less fortunate families of Belleville. Boxes were distributed to the classrooms along with lists of articles suitable for ten anonymous families. To each of the families a turkey is to be donated by the Key Club. Returns were said to be mediocre at firs, but picked up by the last day. In connection with the same project a variety show was sponsored and different musical groups entertained the students for the price of one can of food One of these groups was particularly good. It featured Alan Alto, piano; Dave Murphy, trumpet; John Twamley, tenor sax, and Pete McNevin, drums. The best voice was one called Strangulation in which Murphy played the best that he has played in the school year. The only complaint—not enough Woodley. Even in Strangulation his tenor was drowned out by the other harm.

Thursday's session was marked by presentation of motion of Canada which urged what would amount to curbs on various labor activities to maintain labor peace on Canada's international waterways.

Col. W. J. Fisher, general manager of the Canadian Shipowners' Association, who appeared briefly, said his group endorsed the stand taken by the federation.

The federation brief, read by its president, F. L. Parsons of Montreal, urged that legislative and executive action was needed to curtail labor activities from interfering with shipping. A principal recommendation was that the federal labor minister should be empowered to order and enforce a cooling-off period to alleviate the consequences of a strike.

Women's Institutes

FINE GROVE W.I.

MARSH HILL"—The Christmas meeting of Fine Grove Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Coulter with 18 members present.

Mrs. Alex Tanner, president, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Tanner thanked the ladies who canvassed for the blind in the fall, which resulted in over $50 sent in.

Mrs. Fred Campbell thanked the Institute and members for sympathy cards sent to her during her recent bereavement.

An invitation was received and accepted from the River Valley W.I. to join them for the Farm Forum meeting in February.

A Christmas card was received from Mrs. William Slater, a former member and one also from Mr. Timming of the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

Conveners of standing committees reported. Miss Jane Gay was appointed curator, whose duty it is supervise the compiling of the Twedsmuir histories.

Mrs. Charlie Ross gave a full and interesting report of the area convention and thanked the Institute for sending her as a delegate.

Current events were given by all members.

Mrs. Farley Lindenfield convened the Christmas program and opened with the reading, "Life's Lesson."

The Christmas carols, "Silent Night" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" were sung. Mrs. Bartindale read, "Bethlehem Awake"; Mrs. Leslie Finkle, "The Christmas Story"; Mrs. Lindenfield, "House Beautiful"; Mrs. Fred Campbell, "If I Were Santa Claus"; Mrs. Charlie Mayell, Holly Superstition"; Mrs. Ivan Clare, "Dr. McLeod Speaking"; and Mrs. Don Irish, "Christmas Gets Lost in Toytown".

The members decided to have a card party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kuglin on the evening of January 19th.

At the close of the meeting all enjoyed a lovely buffet luncheon prepared by Mrs. Harry Coulter, Mrs. Charlie Mayell and Mrs. Basil Kuglin.

Eastminster C. C. Enjoys Turkey Dinner

After a delicious turkey repast, president Bob Graham welcomed everyone present and expressed thanks, on behalf of the club, to Phyllis and Bruce Diamond for the beautiful Nativity scene which they had made for the church, and also to Mr. and Mrs. Pape for their excellent hospitality.

Stan and Helen Dier's group were in charge of the entertainment. Frank Valentine led the group in carol singing, testing the skills of all at various contests and games, followed by dancing, which concluded the evening.

Everyone exchanged Christmas greetings and best wishes for the new year before departing with many happy memories of fellowship and good times during the past year, and anticipating the activities for 1963.

Mrs. Freeman French pours a cup of tea for her husband at their apartment in Trenton. The couple will celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary tomorrow. The tea set was a present from Mr. French's brother, Clayton French, of Belleville, on the occasion of their 25th anniversary.

Freeman French and Wife Celebrate 65th Wedding Anniversary on Saturday

On December 22, 1897, Miss Etta Brooks, of Victoria, married Freeman French, of Melville, at her parents' home, on the second line of Ameliasburg Township. Frank Brooks, the bride's brother, was the best man, and Ida Gibson, now Mrs. Ida Chase, of Belleville, was the bridesmaid. The wedding was performed by Rev. H. I. Allen, of the Victoria Methodist Church.

After the wedding, the couple travelled by horse and cutter, to Sidney Sutton's farm, in Thurlow township, for their honeymoon. The thirty-mile trip took all day in 1897, and the couple stayed at the farm for three days before returning.

Tomorrow, Dec. 22, 1962, Mr. and Mrs. French will celebrate their 65th anniversary, at their home in Trenton. Frank Brooks, 91 years old, now a resident of Glen Miller, will attend, but Mrs. Ida Chase has an appointment to spend the day in Toronto. She visited Mr. and Mrs. French, however, on Thursday, to offer her congratulations.

ICEBOATING POPULAR

Mr. French worked at that time, at his father's cooperage mill in Melville. After the wedding the couple moved to Albury, where they lived for four years.

Mrs. French remembers well the time they lived in Albury. The Central Ontario Railroad ran passenger trains daily, then from Trenton to Picton, and the one hour run was a popular excursion. Iceboating, too, was a popular sport, and the French boat was one of the fastest on the Bay of Quinte. Once, though, while they were in Belleville for a horse race, the wind died, and they were stranded. After staying with relatives for three days, waiting for a wind, they pushed the boat back to Albury by hand, over the ice.

HAD SIX CHILDREN

About 1902, the couple moved to their own house in Melville. Mr. French continued his work at the cooperage, going into partnership with his father. About 1929, they moved again, to Consecon, where they lived for 23 years. Mr. French was manager of the cooperage at this time, and for 19 years he was chairman of the local high school board. Mrs. French was choir leader in the Consecon United Church for 23 years.

The couple had six children, three of whom died. Surviving are Kathleen, (Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick), of Buffalo, Gina, (Mrs. W. J. Greenberg), of Trenton, and Mr. Buddy French, of Belleville. Dead are Oral, (Mrs. Russell Young), Edith and Marjorie French.

Mr. French retired from the cooperage in 1947, after an accident in which he was struck by a wheel that fell off a truck on the Mountain View Hill. Mr. French, standing beside his own truck at the bottom of the hill, was badly injured.

MOVED TO TRENTON

In 1952, Mr. and Mrs. French sold their house in Consecon, and moved to Trenton. There, they have a private apartment built onto the house of their son-in-law, W. J. Sleenburg.

They will be receiving guests at their apartment tomorrow, their anniversary. Among the letters of congratulations they have already received are one from Prime Minister Diefenbaker, one from local MP, Lee Grills, and one from the Trenton Chamber of Commerce. Their three surviving children have already given them an anniversary present, a television set, and will be at the apartment for the celebration.

And after tomorrow, the Frenchs are looking forward to more years of happy married life.

Combined Choirs Present Yule Cantata

Last Sunday evening the combined choirs of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville and the Foxboro Church choir presented the beautiful Christmas cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem".

Approximately 40 participated in this fine presentation under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Reilly, Foxboro, with Mr. Williams Connor, Belleville, at the organ. Solo parts were taken by Miss Marjorie Hales (soprano), Mrs. Joan Wilson (contralto), Mr. Phil Squire (tenor), and Mr. Arthur Wayne (bass).

The Rev. Robert Reid of Foxboro read the Scripture lesson from St. Luke and led in prayer. Individual vocal contributions were rendered by Mrs. Margaret Badgley, Foxboro; Mr. Wayne Noble and Miss Dianne Woolley of Belleville. Each of the choir favored with a separate selection.

Much credit is due both choirs for the fine manner in which this combined effort was presented and the Cantata will be repeated again this Sunday evening in Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Belleville.

Christmas Concerts

KING GEORGE H—S

A delightful Christmas concert was presented to the King George Home and School Association at their December meeting held Monday night. The capacity filled auditorium was beautifully decorated with snowflakes, stars and evergreen boughs, with the pillars adorned with large colorful cardboard candles in holders.

The president, Mrs. C. Culkin, welcomed the many parents attending and paid tribute to the art classes for the decorations and to the teachers for assisting in the various acts, which were prepared without interruption of regular school work.

Carl McMullin, a grade 8 pupil, was the master of ceremonies for the evening and carried out his duties in a capable manner. Each class was represented by either a recitation; short play or musical number. The highlight of the evening was the 'Nativity' scene - presented by pupils of grades 1, 2 and 3, with beautiful background music supplied by the senior choir under the direction of Mr. H. C. Reid.

Homemade candy was offered for sale at the beginning of the evening and quickly disappeared.

The comments of the departing parents seemed to indicate a most successful evening and a fitting conclusion to the Home and School activities for 1962.

St. George's Guild Enjoys Turkey Dinner

The members and guests of St. George's Guild held their Christmas party at Club Canara, on Tuesday.

President, Mrs. R. J. Furgusson welcomed everyone and the Rev. R. G. Fleming said grace. A delicious turkey dinner was served and enjoyed by all. Mr. Fleming gave a brief talk, followed by a humorous speech by the Rev. E. P. Smith, also by the Rev. M. G. Caswell.

Later, gifts were exchanged to the delight of all present.

Games of euchre and bingo followed up to end another pleasant annual Christmas party (with each wishing the other a "Happy Christmas Season". All regretted that Mrs. Fleming was unable to come, due to her little daughter being ill. All wish Gail good health before Santa visits here.

Small Talk

By Zena Cherry

There's only one gift I can think of that a lady from the time she's six to 96 is always happy to receive and which no one can ever be criticized for giving — white kid gloves. And most females like to have one brand new pair or long ones finished away — just in case. These above-the-elbow gloves have only three or four buttons but they're known as 16-button lengths — this designates the number of inches (French measure) from the thumb base to the cuff edge.

I recently asked a peeress of the realm, the Countess de la Warr, the protocol of wearing long white kids. She said, "You must never roll them back and probe your hand through the hole because it looks silly. When royalty is present, or for official occasions such as the mayoralty banquet you wear them going through the receiving line but directly you sit at a table you remove them for dining. Later, if there is dancing you put them on again."

"Am I pronouncing your name correctly?" I wasn't because she said, "One pronounces it like that state in America. My husband's ancestor was the first governor of Virginia and one of his sea captains was shipwrecked, landed in Chesapeake Bay and called the land after his commander. We are honorary citizens of the state, but where they got the altogether spelling of Delaware is mysterious!"

"What about colored long sleeves or fancy ones?" I thought to pursue the subject but Lady De La Warr finished it with, "They're not good taste."

Gloves were worn by men for thousands of years before Christ and we're told that Anna mother of the Virgin Mary made her livelihood by sewing gloves. But women were not allowed to wear them until the 15th century when King Henry V gave permission to court ladies to wear Hawking Gloves while hunting falcons.

In the 16th century the Earl of Oxford brought a pair of gloves from Italy for Queen Elizabeth. She went so nuts about them she ordered a real handful — 2,000 pairs — embroidered ones, some with precious stones — perfumed gloves and poisoned gloves — and this is when the technique of the dropped glove became a means of better acquaintance.

For a long time short gloves fastened by a pearl button were the fashion and so small was the button that milady carried a mother of pearl glove button hook.

In Victorian times gloves were almost an obsession with both men and women — it was Victorian rule that "Flesh must not touch flesh." The phrase to us, now, is almost shocking. The small glove in hand was a sign of social rank, implying the owner did no manual work and a"Perfect Lady" wore gloves not only outdoors but indoors as well, except at mealtime.

No mention of gloves is complete of course without remembering the young swain named Antonio Perez and the reason why ever since they have been a symbol of the most respectful and complimentary gift. He offered to have a pair of gloves made for his love — the earl of Essex' sister, Lady Rich — out of his own skin.

Well, it's an idea.

Velvet Revival

By VERA WINSTON

Velvet and velveteen are both back in the fashion fabric world and doing very well.

An elegant little three-piece suit, pretty, practical and easy, can be had in either black or brown velveteen. Black half tassel trim adorns the jacket pockets. Pockets are also slashed into the skirt seams.

With the suit is a creamy white satin sleeveless overblouse.

Christmas Concerts

MARSH HILL — The Christmas entertainment for the Sunday School of Marsh Hill United Church was held Monday night in the Christian Education Hall.

Mrs. Allyn Finkle, superintendent of the Sunday School welcomed all and was chairman for the program, which opened with singing of "Silent Night" by all. The Busy Bees class under the direction of their teachers, Mrs. Ivan Clare and Mrs. Charlie Ross favored with several items and the program was as follows: Christmas welcome by Karen Clafe; recitation, "Christmas Time is Here" by Glen Detlor; a vocal solo, "The Friendly Beast" by Tommy Kuglin accompanied by Elizabeth Kuglin; The Christmas Story by several pupils; "The Christmas Cake Song" by Joyce Little with her mother, Mrs. David Little as accompanist; "Jingle Bells" by the primary pupils; Mr. Charlie Mayell's junior girls sang "Star of the East" with Elizabeth Kuglin and Gwenda Detlor singing a duet and Mr. Mayell accompanied them on the guitar; piano selections by Miss Gwenda Detlor; a reading, "The First Christmas Tree" by Harold Finkle; "Rudolph the Red-Nose Reindeer" by Mr. Mayell's boys class.

The Misses Carol Lindenfield, Diane Andrews, Marilyn Finkle and Elizabeth Finkle of Mrs. Harry Coulter's class sang "The Christmas Song" accompanied by Mrs. Leslie Finkle at the piano; a reading was given by Mrs. Allyn Finkle; Mr. Douglas Detlor sang "Christmas in Killarney" accompanied at the piano by Gwenda Detlor; Gordayell favored with two guitar selections; Mrs. Leslie Finkle sang "Luther's Carol" accompanied by Marilyn Finkle, and Mr. Farley Lindenfield led in the singing of several Christmas carols.

Santa arrived during the singing of "Jingle Bells" and each child received a gift and a bag of candies.

U.C.W. Meetings

JOHNSTOWN UCW

JOHNSTOWN — The recent meeting of Johnstown UCW was held at the home of Mrs. Glenn Stickle on Thursday evening with 16 members, one new member and four visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Arnold Harry and Mrs. Winfield Harder were in charge of the program which opened with carol singing. Mrs. Ronald Hamilton and Miss Nancy Reynolds sang a duet, "Silent Night." Each member took part in this portion of the program.

During the business session Mrs. Alex Vandervoort expressed thanks to Mrs. Earl Stickle for the fine job as president during the past year, to which Mrs. Stickle replied. Mrs. A. Vandervoort will be president for 1963. It was decided that the UCW would assist the Sunday School financially by paying for their pins until the end of the year. Letters from several organizations were received. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Everett Harry.

Following the exchange of gifts refreshments were served which brought an interesting meeting to a close.

Vegetables For Christmas Dinner

by Mary Moore

Here are the vegetable recipes I promised yesterday when the Christmas dinner menu was presented.

DUCHESS POTATOES (for 7)

Rice or mash enough boiled potatoes to make 5 cups. Add 1 1-3 cups hot milk and 4 beaten egg yolks. Season with 1½ teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon white pepper and beat until smooth and fluffy. Use an electric mixer if you have one. Drop in fluffy spoonsful on a baking sheet or pile attractively in shallow baking dish (professional chefs use pastry tube) and sprinkle generously with Parmesan cheese, and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until heated through and golden.

In large pan melt ¼ cup butter and add ½ cup blanched almonds. Stir until almonds begin to turn gold. Add 3 teaspoons flour and blend. Add the reserved 1 cup of bean liquid (or hot water if made in advance) and stir until thick. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice. (If made in advance stop here.) Add the drained green beans. Gently stir. Cover and gently heat through. Taste to see if these are salty enough and add more salt if needed.

CUCUMBER AND MILD ONION SALAD

3 cucumbers, 3 small red onions, sliced thinly, lettuce or watercress, Sweet-Sour Salad Dressing.

Partially peel the cucumbers leaving on enough green skin to make them look attractive. Slice water thin and separate the onion slices into rings and mix with the cucumbers. Toss with Sweet-Sour Salad Dressing. One and one-half tablespoons mayonnaise, ¼ cup olive oil, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 drop of hot pepper sauce (optional), ½ clove garlic crushed, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper (optional). Mix together all of the ingredients except the green pepper. This dressing may be made far in advance. Add the pepper a couple of hours before serving if you wish.

Salads may be made 3 or 4 hours in advance and refrigerated, covered. Serve on lettuce or watercress.

Dinner Menu

FRIDAY

Casserole of Fresh Cod with Cheese Sauce; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Buttered Shredded Green Cabbage; Tomato and Lettuce Salad; Chopped Olive Dressing; Cherry Crunch with Cream; Coffee.

ALMOND SAUCE ON FRENCHED GREEN BEANS

With bean shredder or sharp knife cut fresh green beans lengthwise, then cut in halves crosswise. One pound serves 6 to 8. Add boiling water to half cover. Add 1 teaspoon salt and boil covered about 10 to 15 minutes or until barely tender. Drain and reserve 1 cup liquid.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

By PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Here are some afterthoughts on Christmas. Perhaps they are the same as yours:

1. Can a Christmas card be sent after Christmas to someone you forgot to send a card to, but who sent you one?

2. Must all Christmas presents be acknowledged with a thank-you note?

3. Is it cricket to exchange a present for something you'd rather have?

4. If a present is to be exchanged, should this fact be mentioned in a thank-you note?

5. If a gift sent through the mail arrived broken, should the sender be told about it?

6. What's the most gracious way of acknowledging a gift certificate?

7. Should you dash out the day after Christmas and buy a gift for someone who gave you a present unexpectedly?

8. Is it necessary to acknowledge a greeting sent by telegram?

9. Should children send thank-you notes for presents from relatives and friends of the family?

10. Is it necessary for youngsters to send thank-you notes to other children with whom they exchanged presents?

1. It would obviously be an afterthought if the person is someone you really wanted to send a card to, then it would be gracious to send a personal note saying how pleased you were to receive his card, that you hoped he enjoyed the holiday and that you wish him the best for the coming year.

2. It's not necessary to send a note for gifts given in person — the donor is thanked on the spot, anyway — but gifts that were delivered by mail or parcel post should be acknowledged in writing immediately.

3. It's customary and exusable, even if not exactly cricket.

4. It may, if the sender is a close friend or relative who would not be offended, but generally it's wiser to offer thanks for the gift that was sent instead of for the substitute.

5. Yes, if the parcel was insured or was sent directly from an out-of-town store that would make good on the breakage.

6. With a thank-you note saying what goodie you expect to purchase with your windfall.

7. It might embarrass the donor if he more flowers or a small bottle of champagne might be sent as a present for the New Year, instead.

8. A telegram should be acknowledged by note or phone call — or a return telegram.

9. Even if they've thanked the donors in person, it's good social practice to encourage those old enough to write to send notes to such doting adults.

10. No. But, if they want to, don't inhibit them.

FEAR FOR BIRDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials voiced fear Thursday that air force practice bombing on Matagorda Island along the Texas gulf coast may be endangering the lives of the world's few whooping cranes. The island is just across a channel from the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge where the rare birds spend their winters.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. J.W. — What does a clergyman know about marriage troubles?

Mrs. O.L. — Mine is better than a psychiatrist. He helped us.

Mrs. J.W. — Should a minister think he can take the place of a psychiatrist? How can he possibly be qualified?

My husband and I are drifting further and further apart. We married in our teens and now, six years and two babies later, we feel like strangers to each other. He doesn't really know me as a person and as for him, all I knew or cared about was that he was president of the senior class in high school and only had eyes for me. I never dated anyone else. Now we each feel trapped.

In discussing this with our clergyman, I mentioned the fact that Jack and I have discontinued marital relations. I thought he'd recommend a doctor. Instead he asked me to send Jack to talk to him. That sounds like a waste of time. But my friends say this is common practice.

Mrs. O.L. — I'm a friend of Mrs. W. and her family. She's just behind the times if she thinks clergymen stick in their parsonages and never venture forth into the world. Our minister works with delinquent boys and ex-prisoners. You can tell him anything. Nothing shocks him. And he hands out good advice which sets you on the best path right away. Mrs. W. really wants lots of time with a psychiatrist. Her pastor should be able to help her from the very first interview. If not, I'll arrange for her to see my minister.

We had a terrible family problem. Our college daughter came home with wild ideas about free love and it's not a sin. She threatened to disappear if we blocked her plans. But after two talks with Rev. H., she couldn't go through with an affair. She had just wanted to shock us.

The Council: Mrs. L. is wrong to think that a clergyman can replace a psychiatrist. But Mrs. W. is wrong to think that he can't treat and ease family problems with authority. There's a definite area for each of these specialists.

It might be advisable to find out, Mrs. W., whether your minister is one who has received the special training in "pastoral counselling," now offered under the joint auspices of theological seminaries and the psychiatry departments of medical colleges.

Letter of Lesson Number One for would-be pastoral counsellors is to recognize cases which require medical and psychiatric treatment. Just as a cancer may be worsened by treating it as an allergy, so a neurosis or psychosis may grow worse by regarding it as a matter of attitude. Mrs. L.'s pastor may really have helped her wayward daughter, if not, her rebelliousness may show itself soon in another harmful way!

There's your answer, Mrs. W. Many clergymen these days are qualified to deal with family problems — more qualified, in fact, than heretofore. Union Theological Seminary in N.Y., for example, has sponsored a program in psychiatry and religion since 1956 to introduce ministers to "the understanding of human behavior afforded by contemporary psychodynamics."

And a good thing it is, too! Surveys reveal that when a person is at the "end of his rope," when he doesn't know where to run, he usually tries to obtain professional help, and that nearly half of those who sought professional help last year in the U.S.A. went first to a clergyman.

Milltown B.C. Enjoys Yule Banquet

The Milltown Birthday Club held its Christmas banquet at "Jim's Place," on Highway No. 1.

Turkey was served with all the trimmings, and everyone enjoyed the sumptuous dinner.

After the banquet the club went to the home of Beverly Kilpatrick's for cards and a social evening, with the prizes going to the following: 1st prize — Beverly Kilpatrick; 2nd prize — Grace Merry; consolation — Lena Fitzgerald; lone hand — Mrs. Williams.

After cards, presents were exchanged by the members.

The hostess served lunch and the party was complete with Christmas crackers and favors.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Josie Williams.

NOTHING can take the place of blank sheets of paper when it's coloring or painting time in your house. Art kits or printed coloring books have their appropriate place, of course. But do let your child's imagination have the challenge of starting from scratch (literally and figuratively).

Russia-U. S. Confrontation Over Cuba Biggest Story To Break in News in 1962

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

On the morning of Wednesday, Oct. 24, arms-carrying Russian vessels, strung out across the Atlantic, steamed toward a blockade of United States warships off Cuba.

Before nightfall they received orders to alter course and a tense world breathed more easily as a collision between the two big powers was averted.

The drama of the confrontation at sea—and of the men and countries behind it—made the Cuban crisis the biggest international news story of 1962.

It was also the year that saw the long Algerian war grind to a bloody end; that saw the last traces of friendship between India and Communist China dissolve into undeclared war in the Himalayas.

In the Communist world it saw a widening of the ideological rift between Russia and China, while refugees continued to trickle through the Berlin Wall and to flood in thousands from Communist China into tiny Hong Kong.

It was also a year in which science extended its reach into space—and went disastrously wrong when thousands of babies were born deformed because their mothers had taken the drug thalidomide.

TERRORISTS STRIKE

The Algerian independence war ended in the spring with a cease-fire pact worked out between France and the Moslem rebels. But terrorism continued —the death toll sometimes mounting past 100 a day—as European settlers fought to keep the territory under French rule.

The tactics failed to disrupt the Moslem-French agreement and on July 1 Algerians voted overwhelmingly for independence. Civil war again threatened as the Algerian rebel leaders divided among themselves. But it was averted without major fighting.

INDIANS PUSHED BACK

The India-China border dispute, simmering for years, came to a boil in mid-October. For a full month attacking Chinese troops pushed back poorly armed Indian troops on both ends of the long frontier.

Then, on Nov. 21, came the startling Chinese announcement that they would stop firing and make way for negotiations by pulling back to "lines of actual control" held on Nov. 7, 1959. India reacted coldly, demanding instead a withdrawal to lines held Sept. 8 this year.

The year in space was highlighted by the tandem flight of two Soviet cosmonauts, Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich.

Nikolayev, launched Aug. 11, orbited the earth 64 times in almost four days while Popovich, lofted to within sighting distance of Nikolayev's spacecraft a day later, made 48 circuits and landed within six minutes of his colleague.

The United States' first orbital flight, a three-circuit jaunt by Col. John Glenn, was achieved Feb. 20. Lt-Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter matched this feat May 24 and Cmdr. Walter Schirra made six circuits Oct. 3.

MILESTONES

Other major developments of the year:

Southeast Asia: Civil war continued in South Viet Nam, with some 10,000 American military advisers aiding government efforts to put down Communist Viet Cong guerrillas . . . fighting in Laos ended with formation of a neutral coalition government . . . U.S. troops were sent to Thailand in May to counter a feared Communist attack through Laos that didn't materialize.

Vatican City: The massive Ecumenical Council of the Roman Catholic Church was opened by Pope John Oct. 11 and continued for eight weeks, adjourning then until next September.

Mississippi: Two persons were killed in integration riots that erupted at the end of September over the enrolment of Negro James Meredith in the all-white University of Mississippi.

West Europe: Britian pushed ahead with negotiations to enter the prosperous European Common Market, despite reservations from several Commonwealth leaders at a London conference in September.

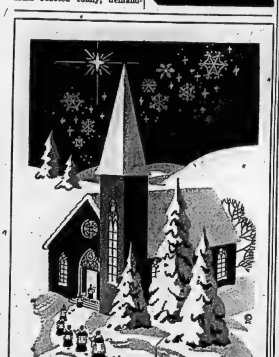
The Congo: Sporadic clashes continued between secessionist Katanga Province and the central government, with little progress in United Nations efforts to reunify the country.

West New Guinea: A long dispute over the territory between the Netherlands and Indonesia ended with Dutch withdrawal under a UN settlement plan expected to give Indonesia eventual control.

Iran: An earthquake Sept. 1 devastated a wide area of the country, killing more than 12,000 people and destroying some 20,000 homes.

Israel: Adolf Eichmann, former Nazi officer captured by Israeli agents in Argentina in 1960, was hanged near Tel Aviv May 31.

HEARTBREAK AT HONG KONG—Lee Ying, 19, weeps at Hong Kong after being told she must go back to Communist China. She was among thousands of refugees from drought-stricken China who were rounded up by British Hong Kong police and troops last May. The plight of the refugees was a top news story of 1962 and millions around the world offered their help. But Lee Ying was returned to China before public reaction grew strong. (CP from AP).



NEHRU: MAN IN TROUBLE—Prime Minister Nehru this year faced the most serious string of crises since India became independent. Major crisis was the border invasion by China in mid-October. Earlier in the year Nehru was involved in this mob scene at Patna. A security guard had to grab him from plunging into a riotous crowd at a meeting of Nehru's Congress party. (CP from AP)

URGE DRUG TESTS

LONDON (CP)—An advisory group to make sure new drugs are safe before they are given to patients has been recommended by representatives of British drug firms. The group would be made up of top doctors and be independent of government and commerce.

Burned-Out Family Faced Bleak Christmas But Aid In Every Form Soon Given

TWEED (Staff) — Some people may offhandedly refer to this village as a friendly community, but there are certainly 17 people living here overnight in the Tweedsmuir Hotel to whom the friendliness and generosity of the people of this community—and many surrounding communities — will never be a mere expression.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Prevost and their children—Gene, 20; Cecelia, 18; Leon, 17; Betty, 16; Barbara, 15; Maurice, 12; Donna, 11; Nancy, 10; Marilyn, 8; Lucille, 7; Pat, 6; Mike, 4; Judy, 3; Charles, 2, and Lawrence, five months—faced a bleak Christmas indeed when their two-storey frame house burned to the ground in the false light of the pre-dawn yesterday. The flames consumed all of their clothing and huddled in their car as they waited for help to arrive in the near-zero weather, many did not even have socks on their feet, much less shoes.

The Prevost Christmas for this year will probably be one they shall always remember, for it is one in which so many people, many unknown, will share. No sooner had the word of the homeless, shoeless family got into Tweed than people started putting their heads together to see how they could help their neighbors from across the lake.

The atmosphere of concern and a desire to help was ignited by two sparkplugs — Ted Conroyes and Jim Halpenny. With the simple theory that an act is worth 10,000 words the a two got to work and were soon joined by others in seeking out clothing and assistance for the Prevosts.

The word was spread through the announcer of Belleville radio station CJBQ, and by noon many calls and offers to help had already come in.

TEMPORARY SHELTER

Meanwhile the Prevost family had found temporary shelter in three nearby homes: those of John Prevost, an uncle; Wallace Prevost, a cousin, and Stan Clement, a friend. Whilst Barbara, Betty and Maurice took charge of the two the younger children in the homes they were staying in. Mrs. Prevost was left free then to get some medical attention for some minor facial burns which she suffered while attempting her children out of their blazing home and Mr. Prevost started looking around the area for a place large enough to give his family into so they could be together.

Meanwhile the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross and the Salvation Army were busy to see what assistance they could offer and Messrs. Courneyes and Halpenny were looking for lodging, bedding, clothing, groceries, toys and money which started to come in from all over the area.

Help was found to be coming from such unexpected donors as commercial travellers who, upon hearing the radio newscasts, had stopped in at Tweed and donated cash, gifts and a few toys for the children.

More clothing was coming in fairly large quantities and was being taken to Mr. Halpenny's store, the Tweed Grocers, where it was to be cleaned free of charge. By five o'clock the cleaning staff could hardly move as the bundles kept mounting into two large piles, one in the front office and another in the laundry room.

CAR SIDESWIPED

During this period Mr. Prevost suffered another stroke of misfortune when, on his way to his father's place, near Madoc, to see what accommodation might be arranged there, his car was sideswiped by another vehicle, causing about $300 damage. He lost track in minutes to get a bowl of soup each—their first food for the day.

It was then that they were taken in the case of the top floor of the hotel to house their family by Mr. Courneyes. By 10.00 p.m. the family were together and they all joined in having a light meal prepared by the hotel staff, before the kiddies were packed off to bed.

A fitting session is to be held this morning as far many articles of clothing are sorted out.

A home has also been located for the Prevosts just a short distance from their former home. It is the residence of Raymond Labarge, of Ottawa, who made it available as soon as he heard of the family's situation.

FAMILY TOGETHER— The members of the Michael Prevost family of Bolton Township, gathered yesterday evening following the fire which burned their home and possessions just before dawn yesterday morning. By 10.30 o'clock last night they had all moved into the top floor of the Tweedsmuir Hotel, Tweed, from the three neighbors' homes in which they spent the day.

Prevost Family Overcome By Generosity of Friends

TWEED — What do the Prevosts think of the generosity of their friends and hundreds of people whom they have never met?

"We expected that we would get some help," said Mrs. Prevost. "But certainly nothing like this."

When told of the fact that over 125 people had dropped into CJBQ during the radio studio to leave donations of articles and money by 4.00 p.m. she expressed amazement.

"You know we have often they needed it but we never expected to need help ourselves . . . we're liable to end up with more than we had before," she commented.

When asked of his immediate plans, Mr. Prevost replied, "I guess we'll just have to take it cheaper than to build. There's a place just near our home owned by Jim Halpenny. There we'll do the best we can do."

The Prevosts hope to be able to stay as close to their home as possible for, although Mr. Prevost is employed at the Deloro Smelting Firm in Bethesda the farm is a family project in which the children take part. Besides this the children will be able to carry on at Otter Creek school and Mrs. Prevost will attend church at St. Michael's in Sulphide.

The Prevosts are a self-reliant, closely knit family and are used to doing things for themselves rather than have others do them. This is, perhaps, because they are a large family.

NO NEED TO HELP

They also know how to make ends meet. When told that the Red Cross was prepared to buy complete new outfits for each member of the family, Mrs. Prevost remarked, "Goodness, they don't have to do that — there's plenty of good used clothing that we can make use of."

"We're used to making do with used clothing," she said almost as an afterthought.

What are the kids thinking' Barbara, 15, was worried about the gifts which they were to have for their schoolmates at Otter Creek school. "We have names to see who would get a present for who. We're having our school party tomorrow (Friday) and we'll have plays — we have some pretty big ones — and a Santa Claus."

As for the younger ones. Well they were pretty excited about the whole day's activities and stood around with the faces beaming as the photographer assembled the family for "one more, please." Occasionally one would fret, as the weariness of the day began to tell, only to be quickly comforted by an older brother or sister.

The Prevosts are a close-knit family and are used to taking care of themselves.

PLEDGES AID

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A pledge by Canada Thursday to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency brings to $15,840,000 the total of such Canadian aid to Palestine refugees. Canadian Ambassador Paul Tremblay, in making the pledge said it will consist of $500,000 in money and the other half in wheat flour.

Cash Donations Will Be Put In Tweed Bank

TWEED (Staff) — As the contributions of hundreds of well-meaning people poured in to the Tweedsmuir Hotel and the Crown Cleaners late yesterday afternoon and early last evening it was soon evident that the two sparkplugs in the project to help out the Prevost family where becoming overwhelmed.

"We are going to have to form a committee first thing in the morning to handle this," said Jim Halpenny. "There certainly more clothing here than is required, but there are others, who can undoubtedly use some of it."

The Kinettes have a project underway to provide toys for the kids," said Ted Courneyes.

The thing which is really needed is to close the gap now is some more money to help the Prevosts get a place to call home," remarked another citizen who offered his assistance during the early stages of the project after analyzing the situation yesterday evening.

Towards this end an account has been set up and cash contributions may be forwarded to the local branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Present Rules Supported by Gill Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—Present rules barring payment of unemployment insurance to workers made idle by strikes or lockouts have been supported by the Gill committee of inquiry on unemployment insurance.

The committee's report, issued Thursday, went further and recommended a broader application of the rule in the case of construction industry strikes affecting several construction jobs.

The committee described as "sound" the present rule which denies insurance benefits to workers made idle by a labor dispute in which they have taken some part or in which they have a financial interest. This includes those who refuse to cross picket lines.

"We believe that this rule is sound and should apply whatever the reason given for failure to cross the picket lines," it said.

The report noted that some employees of a firm to cross picket lines because of threats of force, real or alleged.

"If an exception is made for such cases, we believe that an inducement is created to the force or illegal force on a picket line, since non-striking employees who refuse to cross the picket line would then be eligible for insurance benefits."

The committee said the rule should have an even wider application in the case of work stoppages in the construction industry where several unions have master contracts with an association of contractors governing many different construction sites.

Under the present situation, if a strike occurs at one or more projects, all members of the union involved are ineligible for insurance payments.

"The difficulty arises in connection with sympathizing workers who participate in the dispute by refusing to cross picket lines at one or more projects."

The committee said that where workers of a given grade or class refuse to cross picket lines at one project, insurance should be denied to all workers of that grade or class unemployed at all other projects in the area covered by the union agreement involved in the original dispute.

Thus if a carpenters' strike shut down all construction jobs in a city, and plumbers refused to cross the picket line at one project, then all plumbers made idle by the city-wide strike would not be eligible for insurance.

Three Canadians Who Won VC in Crimea and India Recognized by Department

OTTAWA (CP)—The veterans affairs department today officially recognized three Canadians who won the Victoria Cross with British forces in the Crimea and India more than a century ago the coveted award for valor.

The decision arises from a request by Veterans Minister Churchill to investigate whether as the first Canadians to receive an 1860 award of the Victoria Cross to a soldier serving in Canada was actually the first to a Canadian.

The department's historians reported three, earlier awards to Canadians, all known to the public through stories in newspapers and periodicals in recent years.

Lieut. Alexander Robert Dunn, born at Toronto (then York), Sept. 15, 1820, now is recognized by the department as the first Canadian VC. He won the award during the Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava in the Crimea Oct. 25, 1854.

Dunn was serving with the 11th Hussars (Prince Albert's Own) when he saved the life of a Sgt. Bentley by cutting down several Russian lancers who were attacking Bentley from behind.

Second Canadian to win the was Surgeon Herbert Taylor. Reade while serving with the Gloucestershire Regiment during the siege of Delhi, Sept. 14-16, 1857. He was born at Perth, Ont., in 1823.

Reade was attending wounded in the streets when a force of rebels seized the houses nearby and began firing from the rooftops, endangering the wounded. Reade rallied about 10 soldiers, drew his sword and led a successful charge that cleared the attacking party. Two days later he participated in the storming of a breach in walls and, with a sergeant, spiked one of the enemy guns.

The son of a former Negro slave, AB Willie Edward Hall, born in 1920 in Hants County, N.S., was the third Canadian winner. He joined the Royal Navy in 1833 and was a member of the naval brigade in India which helped in the relief of Lucknow.

Hall, who was "captain of the foretop" aboard the Shannon, and the ship's gunnery officer, Lieut. Thomas James Young, were jointly awarded the VC for gallant conduct in handling a 24-pounder gun at Lucknow, Nov. 16, 1857.

These acts preceded by several years in the gallant conduct of Pte. Timothy O'Hea of the 1st Battalion, the Rifle Brigade, in extinguishing a fire in a railway car between Quebec and Montreal June 6, 1866 for which he received the VC. He was shown in previous official lists as the first Canadian winner.

Judge Thorson Describes How Robber Assaulted Him

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP)— Joseph T. Thorson, 73-year-old president of The Exchequer Court of Canada, described from his hospital bed Thursday how he was shot in both legs Sunday during a daylight robbery.

Thorson and Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada were accosted by the robber during a trip to Rio's 2,200 - foot - long Dona Marta Overlook. Fauteux was not hurt.

Cheerful despite his wounds, Thorson said that more than anything he felt "indignation" when he was hit by the bandits' bullets after grappling with one of them.

The court president said he had served the army for three years during the First World War and had survived many air raids "I think not a scratch and I had to come to Rio de Janeiro to get shot in both legs."

WOUNDS PAINFUL

"While my leg wounds are painful I expect to make a complete recovery," he said in an interview "I am profoundly grateful the wounds were not worse. If the bandits had shot higher . . ."

Thorson, honorary president of the International Commission of Jurists, and Fauteux were sightseeing following the close of the commission's international congress at nearby Petropolis Saturday when they were held up at the tourist spot.

Thorson said they had decided to go to Dona Marta Overlook so that Fauteux, one of whose hobbies is photography, could take pictures of the city.

They drove by taxi to the overlook and were climbing a short flight of stairs when "suddenly two young men confronted us, both armed with revolvers," the jurist said.

"One gangster stood facing me with a gun in his hands and the other one moved to search me. I, unfortunately, very foolishly resisted him and the fellow shot me in the right leg.

The blood just spurted. My feeling was one of indignation, but my reaction during a trip I have taken several times before must have sprained my ankle when I fell."

TOOK VALUABLES

Thorson said he got up and the man who had grappled with him took $40 from his pocket, an expensive camera from Fauteux's shoulder, and two of Fauteux's pockets, taking his valuables.

The men returned to Thorson and took fountain pens and some Brazilian currency from him. But when they went through for the jurist's passport, Thorson again fought him off and was shot in the left leg.

"Mr. Justice Fauteux told me, 'for heaven's sake, give them what they want and let us go.'"

Thorson continued: "I gave him the cruzeiros—about $20 worth—then they hit me on the head and disappeared.

As they fled the gunmen also shot the taxi driver, Francisco Pinto, in the knee.

Fauteux and Pinto helped Thorson into the rear seat of the taxi and rushed him to hospital. Thorson had praise for Fauteux's courage for driving him down the steep, winding road with a leg wound.

Thorson said he was being "exceptionally well treated" in hospital. A Winnipeg native, he has been president of the Exchequer Court for more than 20 years.

Fauteux already has returned to Canada. Thorson likely will be flown home this weekend.

Radar Tracking For Old Santa Now Tradition

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (CP) —The annual radar tracking of a jovial man in a red suit, travelling in a reindeer-pulled sleigh, has become tradition with personnel of the North American Air Defence Command.

Each year on Christmas Eve, the international organization of some 200,000 Canadians and Americans watches for something other than hostile bombers and missiles coming over the top of the globe.

According to the script, the first sleigh and reindeer track is registered about noon Dec. 24—a gong sounds to indicate "an unidentifiable air object" in Norad territory.

Later reports identify the object as Santa Claus and say that the jolly old man is on his way.

The Norad tradition of giving the bewhiskered gentleman safe passage through defence lines started seven years ago at Colorado Springs, Colo., and involved a department store and a telephone number.

The store installed extra telephones and invited youngsters to call "directly to Santa" with a list of their wants.

FINGER SLIPPED

One of the numbers was a single digit different from an unlisted number at Norad combat operations centre, and inevitably one childish finger missed.

U.S. Air Force Col. Harry Shoup, then combat operations centre director, answered the telephone.

"Are you one of Santa's helpers?" a small voice asked.

Shoup thought for a moment that one of his off-duty crew was having fun with him, then remembered his own three daughters, the proximity of Christmas and his undone shopping.

"I'm no helper, I am Santa Claus," he said.

A long conversation followed and, after hanging up, the colonel looked at the huge aircraft-track plotting board showing all of North America and figured no one would mind if the men who must listen to danger signals kept an ear tuned for mythical sleighbells.

Injured Girl Joins Parents For Christmas

TORONTO (CP) — The Thomas Fummertons of Fort William will have good reason to be happy this Christmas.

Heather Fummerton, 13, will be reunited with her parents, whom she visited for the first weekend, for the first time fully recuperated from a head injury suffered last July.

A 25-pound stone fell on the girl when she was scrambling up a mountain side on a trip to the bombed 1,000 miles from target. Launched from the Skybolt B-52 bomber, fleet, equipped with strategic warheads that can be dropped effectively over target, is likely to become steadily more obsolete.

DOGS SLAMMING

What then, is Britain's alternative? Faced with an unyielding friend in Washington and hardcrusted opposition in Europe's Common Market, Britain hasn't the tremendous financial resources required to maintain a secure independent role in world politics.

The suggestion often has been heard that if too many doors are slammed in her face in Europe Britain might be forced to seek some kind of separate understanding with Russia.

Washington sees no chance of that happening. Instead, Britain may simply buckle in, becoming more dependent on the U.S. and hoping, in return, that the U.S. will listen to British advice in shaping the U.S. nuclear response to Russia.

That, for Kennedy, would leave only France to worry about.

British Dependence on U.S. Gives Kennedy Advantage

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain and the United States are trying, to hide their deep nuclear split beneath a cheerful Christmas wrapper but the Nassau talks have all the aspects of a joyless compromise for Britain's political prestige.

The decision to extend the formal Anglo-American summit talks to three days from two is an indication of the tough bargaining between Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy in what is described in the U.S. press as the most serious crisis between the two allies in recent years.

At stake is Britain's future as a world power. Is she to have full ability to respond to a nuclear attack with sufficient strength to deter aggression or is she to fall under the wing of the European league, responding only in a manner prescribed by Washington?

DOESN'T NEED SKYBOLT

Macmillan's struggle was to attempt to persuade Kennedy to continue work on the Skybolt ballistic missile which could be fired from the air by a bomber 1,000 miles from target. Launched from the Skybolt is a dud and since the U.S. has put up all the development cash, work on the Skybolt is likely to decline and die. The plain fact is that the U.S. is producing so many inter-continental missiles it doesn't need the Skybolt.

Macmillan now is reported to have accepted a compromise on the 1,800-mile Polaris missile designed primarily for atomic submarines in Kennedy's fleet, equipped with strategic warheads that can be dropped effectively over target, is likely to become steadily more obsolete.

New Witnesses Will Be Heard In Beating Case

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Judge Colin E. Bennett has adjourned until Jan. 2 a hearing into an alleged beating at Grey County Home for the Aged and general operation of the home.

The names of two new witnesses to be heard were brought out Thursday by E.C. Manning, magistrate of Owen Sound whose statements to the home's board of management led to the inquiry.

Charges of beating home resident Allan McMann, 65, who died Aug. 25, 1959 were brought by Roy Clarke, a service station operator. The service station is across the road from the home.

The two new witnesses mentioned were George Coutts, former Owen Sound undertaker and Clifton Johnston previously on charges of bank robbery, and Mrs. Gordon Goldsmith, operator of a boarding home where Mr. McMann died.

PERHAPS AT KINGSTON

Johnston was brought by Owen Sound to testify Jan. 2, or his evidence will be taken by commission at Kingston.

The two will be asked to testify whether there were marks on Mr. McMann's body following the time of the alleged beating. Mrs. Goldsmith was reported in a statement Mr. McMann the day he arrived at the nursing home.

Mr. Justice Bennett said Wednesday he would give an opinion Thursday on the charge of beating. He withheld this opinion until after he hears evidence from the two new witnesses.

Mr. Clarke testified earlier that he was informed by supervintendent Wesley Lindsay standing over inmate Mr. McMann with a chair in his hand and that he saw marks and blood on McMann's leg.

SUFFERED STROKE

Constable Harold Vogt of the Markdale provincial police department said under questioned May told him no marks appeared on the body of Mr. McMann when he died of a stroke a few days after the alleged beating.

Markdale physician Dr. William Breakwell, the home's official doctor, told the hearing McMann was subject to minor strokes anc suffered one in 1959 which affected his speech. He said the man also suffered five strokes in the one month he was in the institution.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The year 1962 will soon be ended and even the most blase mortal who dwells on this globe of unrest will agree it was a momentous one.

It was a year of minor and major crises. Not so long ago, when Russia's Khrushchev "sneaked" his rockets into Cuba, the world hovered on the brink of a nuclear war. Nations of the world stood breathless awaiting with something akin to fear, the developments of what seemed to be a climactic moment in the cold war of global giants.

Then it was over. The Soviet forward passes were completed but there were no points after touchdown. The Kennedy backfield, refusing to be bluffed by the Soviet-Cuban ground offensive, countered with a widespread Navy kickoff, and the opposing team withdrew its forces.

The wonderful, sometimes weird and wacky, world of sport had its moments in 1962. There were surprises and upsets. There were champions, old and new, and "chumps" too. Some of the mighty fell by the wayside. The lowly rose to the heights of fame and glory.

Drama-wise the most sensational event of the year was the 12th-second knockout of world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson by Sonny Liston, a human bulldozer tainted with a hoodlum background.

The Los Angeles Dodgers racing toward the National League pennant, stumbled in the stretch and a wire-driving San Francisco Giant club drove them into oblivion in a frantic playoff series.

The New York Yankees, perennial series winners, won the prized hunting again after a dramatic seven-game series with the Giants.

The Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup after a mighty Chicago Black Hawks team had humbled the proud Montreal Canadiens in four straight victories after losing the opening pair.

Detroit's Jim Norris suffered a million dollars for the Maple Leaf's Frank Mahovlich in the surprise item of the year. Bobby Hull, a fifty-goal scorer last year has yet to reach twenty thus far this season. Kelso, the world's top racehorse, was beaten badly by an unknown French filly in the big international race. The American Davis Cup team, perennial finalists, were ousted from competition. Italian pro soccer clubs paid hundreds of thousands for "imports."

Young Canadian stars shot across the championship horizon. Don Jackson won the men's world figure skating title. Bruce Kidd, Mary Stewart, Frank Pound and a wrestler won gold medals at the British Empire Games. Harry Jerome, the world's fastest human with a 100 mark of 9.3, fell by the wayside.

In the weird and wacky columns falls the fog-wrapped Grey Cup serial set-to. Winnipeg's Blue Bombers proved the better gridiron ghosts, emerging from the murky mists with a 28-27 victory and the "Grey Ghost Goblet."

Here in the city which boasts two Ontario sports association presidents, Jack Carson of the OBA, and Don Lee of the OASA, the highlight was the fine achievement of Ken Soden's young Kenmore Jr. winning the Ontario senior baseball title in their freshman year. It is a proud addition to junior and intermediate titles.

Hockey fell to a new low when fandom failed to support Lammie Lamirande's intermediate club. A new city league was formed, and a gallant young junior "B" squad is battling against odds in an all-out effort to keep this phase of the sport alive.

Secondary schools athletes of the city set what is believed to be a record, winning six COSSA championships in football, volleyball and track and field.

Soccer, badminton and tennis had a good year with latter developing a fine young star in David Hurst. Minor sports functioned well with hordes of youngsters turning out for hockey, baseball, softball and soccer. The curlers had an exceptionally good year and are headed for an even better one. The lawn bowling devotees enjoyed a good season with many tournaments played here.

Country Club officials say 1962 was one of their best years. An outstanding feature of the season was the emergence of Gary Bowerman, 21-year-old linksman as a topflight district star who is headed for the higher places.

According to the "Knife-and-Fork League" functions, "Bowl," "Drome" and "Lanes" keglers had a good year. Ten-pins are increasing in popularity, I am told, but a number of the city's five-pinners made excellent showings in district and metropolitan tournaments.

Howe, Duff Score Twice ★★★★★

Bruins Nip Wings; Habs Tie Leafs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins use Jerry Toppazzini and Charlie Burns as penalty-killers, but that doesn't mean they lack offensive ability.

Detroit Red Wings found this out Thursday night when they were upset 3-2 by the last-place Bruins on two timely goals by the defensive specialist. Both came with the teams at full strength.

Toppazzini broke a 2-2 deadlock with little more than five minutes remaining when he poked home Burns' rebound. Then Burns slid the puck into an open net with seven seconds left after Wings yanked goalie Terry Sawchuk for a sixth attacker.

In Thursday night's other NHL game, Montreal Canadiens pulled into a 4-4 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs on a semi-breakaway goal by veteran right-winger Bernie Geoffrion.

In the last minute of the game, Bobby Rousseau of Montreal was gashed in the face by Carl Brewer's stick. He needed four stitches to close the nose and above the right eye, while Brewer was given a major penalty.

PLANTE GETS ASSIST

The game also saw the season's first assist by a goalie, when Montreal netminder Jacques Plante fired the puck into the middle zone early in the third period. Henri Richard picked up the puck and carried into the Leaf zone, where Rousseau laced home a 20-foot slap shot.

The results don't change the teams' positions in the league standings but the Toronto-Montreal tie tightens up the race among the top four.

Chicago leads with 27 points, followed by Detroit with 25. Leafs with 24 and Canadiens with 22. Chicago has played two more games than the other three clubs.

New York Rangers follow with 24 points and Boston is in the league cellar with 16.

In Detroit, Gordie Howe scored the first of two goals with the game less than two minutes old. But Bruins came back with goals by Don McKenney and Tom Williams before the end of the first period.

For Williams, 21-year-old from Duluth, Minn., it was his ninth goal of the season. All nine came after he was switched to Boston's top forward line with Johnny Bucyk and Murray Oliver in early November.

HOWE TIES IT UP

Howe scored his second goal of the game—and his 15th of the season, on a second-period power play, tying the score 2-2. The two goals moved him into the lead in the league scoring race with 31 points.

Forbes Kennedy, a 27-year-old left winger from Charlottetown, acquired two weeks ago in a trade with the Wings, gave Bruins a 3-2 lead midway through the third period.

But Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby tied it up four minutes later with a screened shot from the blue line.

Then Toppazzini and Burns took over, powering Bruins to the 3-2 win. Only 7,095 fans attended, little more than 200 above the 11-year low set when Bruins played here two weeks ago in a raging snow storm.

Rookie goalie Ed Johnston made many key saves for the Bruins, who were outshot 41-25.

In Montreal, Dick Duff scored two of the Leafs goals and Frank Mahovlich—with his 18th of the season—and Eddie Litzenberger got the others.

Montreal's scoring came from Richard, Rousseau, Geoffrion and Gilles Tremblay—his 14th of the year.

INCREASES LEAD

Mahovlich increased his league lead in goals over Detroit's Parker McDonald to two goals with a quick slap-shot from a faceoff early in the first period.

Richard scored the game's most dramatic goal 10 minutes later to tie the score 1-1 going into the second period. The little Montreal centre came in on Toronto goalie Johnny Bower, faked a pass in front of the net and then slid the puck behind Bower.

Toronto took a 3-2 lead in the second period on goals by Litzenberger and Duff. Canadiens' goals was scored by Tremblay.

Rousseau tied it 3-3 with Plante's aid with four minutes gone in the third period, but Duff came back 2½ minutes later to shoot Leafs into a 4-3 lead.

Then Geoffrion broke through the Toronto defence, and with Brewer checking him from behind, got away a hard, close-in drive that beat Bower cleanly. It was his 12th goal of the season.

Toronto coach Punch Imlach said after the game Brewer had injured Rousseau by accident.

"He was trying to get free from a bunch of players in the corner and his stick swung up and hit Rousseau's face. It was an accident. It was also a pretty bad time to get a penalty.

Rousseau, who had collapsed bleeding from the face after he was hit, said tersely: "I'd prefer not to say anything." Team physician Bill Head said it was not immediately known whether Rousseau's nose had been broken.

Take Over Loop Lead

Petes Zero Hawks 2-0

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes moved into first places in the Ontario Hockey Association provincial Junior A group Thursday night when goalie Chuck Goddard notched his second shutout of the season, a 2-0 decision over fifth-place St. Catharines Black Hawks.

The win, coupled with Hamilton Red Wings' 4-3 victory over Montreal Junior Canadiens, left Peterborough with 27 points, one more than Montreal and three more than Niagara Falls Flyers.

Hamilton, in fourth place, six points back of Peterborough, got a two-goal performance from right winger Paul Henderson before 2,895 home town fans. The goals give him a league-leading total of 22.

The league's points leader, Pit Martin, and defencemen Bob Wall scored Hamilton's other goals. Bob Charlebois scored twice for Montreal and Germain Gagon once.

At Peterborough, with 1,623 on hand, Kerry Bond scored in the first period and Tom Carty added the insurance goal in the third period.

In OHA Metro Junior A action Thursday night the second-place Toronto Marlboros moved to within a point of first-place Hamilton Red Michol Maroons by trimming Brampton 7-3.

SETS OPEN DATE

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian open golf tournament will be held at Toronto's suburban Scarborough Golf and Country Club July 3-6, the Royal Canadian Golf Association announced Thursday.

Trainer's Suspension Lifted

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Racing Commission has lifted lifetime suspensions from trainer Alfred G. Sharrard and jockey George Thompson, it was announced Thursday.

They were suspended in 1951 for alleged complicity in offering and accepting a bribe to interfere with the true running of a horse race at Fort Erie. The ORC rescinded the suspension Sharrard to resume tions for the reinstatement from the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, permitting Sharrard to resume his work as a trainer and enabling Thompson to work as a groom or exercise boy.

Aces Tie Bisons 4-4

QUEBEC (CP)—The Buffalo Bisons pumped in three goals in the third period Thursday night to gain a 4-4 overtime tie with Quebec Aces in an American Hockey League encounter.

The tie enabled the Aces to regain first place in the league.

Two of Buffalo's third period goals came from Ed Kachur. John MacKenzie and Art Stratton scored the other Buffalo goals.

The Quebec scoring was shared between Jean-Marie Cossette, Bob Atwell, Terry Gray and Michel Harvey.

SIGNS WITH LIONS

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Charley Johnson, 245-pound Villanova University tackle, said Thursday he has signed a 1963 contract with Detroit Lions of the National Football League He said he received "nice bonus to good contract" for selecting the Lions in preference to the American League's New York Titans or Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian league.

Czechs Were No 'Angels'

'Whistling' Bothered Quakers

SASKATOON (CP)—Cam McKenzie, sports editor of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, says an exhibition hockey game Wednesday between Saskatoon Quakers and the Czechoslovakian all-star national team at Ostrava, Czechoslovakia, would have been abnormally violent even in Canada.

McKenzie, travelling with the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League team on its current 15-game European tour, added in a telephone report from Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, that both teams played rough hockey.

He was commenting on reports by Czech newspapers that the Quakers displayed undisciplined and unsportsmanlike conduct in their 4-1 loss, the fourth consecutive defeat suffered by the Canadians on the tour.

"The Czech players were just as bad," said McKenzie.

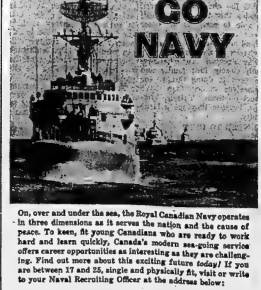
McKenzie said he is a staunch Saskatoon fan but in his opinion, several of the calls against Quakers were undeserved.

"People get very excited over here and they whistle like blazes. And when 15,000 fans are whistling like mad, as they did last night, it goes right through your head."

He suggested the intense whistling may have put the Quakers on edge and resulted in a rough game.

Babe Parilli To Quarter All-Stars

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Former Ottawa Rough Rider Vito (Babe) Parilli, now with Boston Patriots, will quarterback the Eastern All-Stars in the American Football League's all-star competition here Jan. 6.



The Junior Chamber of Commerce here, which sponsors the event, announced Thursday the composition of the eastern team. Eleven members of Houston Oilers are on the squad, which will be coached by Frank (Pop) Ivy, former coach of Edmonton Eskimos and now Houston coach. The offensive fullback is Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo, formerly of the Canadian league.

Syracuse, 'Dutchmen' Say

Kitchener Move 'News'

KITCHENER (CP) — Gus Kyle, coach of Syracuse Braves of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, says he knows nothing about reports that the club is considering a shift to Kitchener after the new year.

"It's all news to me," Kyle said in a telephone interview Thursday.

He said, however, the general manager Tommy Ivan of the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks, who sponsor the Syracuse team, makes all the decisions in these matters.

The Braves, in last place in the EPHL, have won only three and tied five of their 25 games. Chicago officials, dissatisfied with the small crowds in Syracuse, have heen reported considering moving the club.

Kyle said there was some talk of moving the team to either North Bay or Sault Ste. Marie, but he thinks is the first I've heard of Kitchener."

Ivan couldn't be reached for comment in Chicago. He was reported headed for Ottawa to confer with EPHL president Maurice Dye.

IS SURPRISED

Harry Ainlay, chairman of the Kitchener Auditorium Commission, also expressed surprise. He said no one connected with the Syracuse club had been in touch with the commission about a move here.

Ainlay said he doubts the commission would consider allowing the Braves to use the auditorium. He said that, as long as Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League are in business no other team would be allowed to play here.

"That is an agreement we have with the Tigers," he added.

Kitchener had a team in the EPHL previously but it folded this year after dropping a reported $130,000 in two seasons.

North Shore Hockey League

The first-place Hibbard-Callow Combines had their closest call of the season in Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League action against the tail-end Saco team last night.

Rob Burrows scored on a deflected shot with 25 seconds left in the game to give Hibbard-Callows a 6-5 tie with winless Saco. Saco had led 3-1 at the end of the first period and it was tied 4-4 after two heats.

Art Deline paced Saco with three goals while Barry Portelous had two goals and two assists. Gerald Hill also scored and Dick Knapton drew four assists.

Besides Burrows, Bob Wannamaker scored twice and helped on one for the Combines. Jack Calnan had a goal and two assists, Ab Wright and Jim Campbell a goal and assist apiece.

In the other game, Belch Construction downed Stinson Construction 4-2. It was 1-1 at the end of the first and 4-2 after forty minutes.

Ralph Plane had two goals and-one helper for Belch's while Ralph Boomhower and Don Wood each had a goal and assist.

Gary Genereaux and Everett Dorniter were the Stinson marksmen. The losers led 2-1 early in the second period but could not hold down the Belch squad led by Plane.

KEEGAN HURT

CLAYTON, N.J. (AP) — Edward C. Keegan, Philadelphia Phillies bonus pitcher, was seriously injured Wednesday night when his car went out of control and rammed a power pole. Keegan suffered head, face and leg injuries. His condition was described as fair.

PRAGUE (AP)—The Czechoslovak press has launched a bitter attack on the touring Canadian hockey team, Saskatoon Quakers, the official Czech news agency CTK reported Thursday.

The Canadians, who were beaten 4-1 by the Czech national team Wednesday, were accused of "rudeness" . . . "behaving more like a circus than an ice hockey team," and "wanting to terrify the Czechoslovak players."

The official Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo said the Canadians wanted to break up the match and take advantage of the situation through individual actions. It named the two main offenders as Don Fletcher and Harry Smith.

Another paper, Mlada Fronta, also stressed what CTK called the rubbish play of the Canadians "which reminded of a fight in a ball-ring."

The Canadian coach (Vic) Lynn who was watching the match . . . tried to add to the rich cabaret program by airlifting a stick against the boards and by ridiculing the referees," Mlada Fronta was quoted as saying.

The paper continued:

"And the same also applies to Fletcher, who begged the referee on his knees to put the goal in its place. Boxing was used as a supplementary sport and therefore the spectators began chanting 'circus Canada'."

CRITICIZES CZECHS

The Prague newspaper Prace was quoted as saying:

"The performance of our (Czech) players can be classified as good only between the sixth and the 14th minutes of the last period.

"It was evident that they do not want to risk injuries before two matches with the Soviet Union and that they are disgusted by the 'boxing' hockey practised by the Canadians."

Rugby Officials Answer 'Grant' Criticism

MONTREAL (CP) — Rugger officials here took exception Thursday to Jack Roxburgh's statement that the National Fitness Council had no justification for making a $10,000 grant to enable a Canadian rugger team to tour the United States.

Mr. Roxburgh, Liberal member of Parliament for Norfolk, said in the House Wednesday:

"What did that do for physical fitness in Canada?"

Des O'Neil, assistant manager of the tourists, said the grant made a tour possible and sparked interest in the game throughout the country."

"Several hundred players, their ages ranging from 18 to 30, were in constant training for six months" to gain a berth on the team, he said.

Terry Marshall, a member of the Quebec Rugger Union, said:

"Mr. Roxburgh is ill-informed on the subject of Canadian rugger. The game is one of the fastest growing sports remaining in Canada. Physical fitness is imperative for all who play.

"The incentive of an overseas tour intensified interest in the game among the several thousands of rugger players spread across Canada. And the publicity given the tour has brought the game to the attention of many would-be players.

Jeff Jones, press relations officer of the union, commented:

"Every dollar has been accounted for and I am convinced that the rugby tours committee gave the federal government full value for their dollar expenditure."

Clean Sweep In Motor Racing

BRITAIN TAKES RACING HONORS—A bright spot in a disappointing sports year for Britons came in motor racing where British drivers piled up a string of Grand Prix victories. Here, Britain's Graham Hill, in a B.R.M., leads U.S. driver Dan Gurney in a Porsche during the Grand Prix of Holland. Hill, winner of the race with an average speed of 95.38 miles an hour, is a top candidate for the world championship honors. (CP from UKIO)

British Sportsmen Had An In-Out Year

By PAUL WESTBROOK

LONDON (CP) — A comparatively easy program in 1963 will give British sports competitors a chance to ponder some of the disappointments of the year now ending.

In the closing days of 1962 British fans had little to cheer about. England's cricketers seemed doomed to defeat in the Test series against Australia, and British athletes returned from the Empire Games in Australia well bronzed — with third places—but with little gold in first-place medals.

One consolation was a virtual clean sweep for Britain in motor-racing. Grand Prix victories came despite the absence of Stirling Moss who was lucky to survive the worst crash of his career at Silverstone last May.

Although the world championship won't be decided until the South African Grand Prix Dec. 29, either Londoner Graham Hill or Scotland's Jim Clark is certain to take the title.

LURE OF CASH

Arthur Rowe, one of the few in Britain and Europe who challenged U.S. shot-put supremacy, took up professional rugger to earn money. But after only three games for Oldham and a series of "revealing" articles for a Sunday newspaper he is seeking reinstatement as an amateur.

Rowe's former coach, Geoff Dyson, also was lost to British sport last fall when he signed a five-year contract as a coach in Canada. He takes up the job in February.

In the other direction came a squad of Canadian rugger players on an "instructional" tour. Although the 17-match tour provided plenty of points for the opposition everyone agreed the unorthodox tourists added a colorful touch to the year's sport.

Making occasional appearances for the Canadians was John Lecky of Vancouver, better known to the rowing fans as a member of the victorious Cambridge crew which last spring beat Oxford in the annual boat race.

SOCCER'S POOR YEAR

One Anglo-Canadian link shattered was the custom of British soccer players appearing for Canadian teams during the summer break. Despite pleas from Canadian officials the English Football League ruled that this would only have wrecked training schedules.

Soccer in fact had a bad year with England's national team making a feeble effort in last summer's World Cup. But it has a chance for revenge in the European Nations' Cup, particularly now that it is under a new trans-Atlantic manager, Walt Ramsey.

Ramsey was the quiet tactician who turned Ipswich Town into a powerful English champions. But England's gain was Ipswich's loss and the reigning champions' new fumbles at the foot of the table while Everton, Tottenham Hotspur, the 1962 national cup winner, and Burnley head for the New Year honors.

England held Australia to a draw in the first of the five Test cricket matches in Australia, but the Aussies were favored to win the series. And few were feeling confident about next summer's visit by a West Indies team.

British entrants for the Empire Games also found it tough going in Australia, particularly the track athletes.

Bruce Tulloh, flowering hope of English distance runners, wilted in the Perth sun while New Zealand's Murray Halberg romped home. The much-vaunted English six-mile runners were easily scattered by Canada's Bruce Kidd.

The swimmers did slightly better, especially the girls. Yorkshire lass Anita Lonsbrough picked up three gold medals and 15-year-old Linda Ludgrove brought home two.

BETTING SHOPS

In harvesting one of the major debates concerned the opening of betting shops which enable fans to bet in cash off the course.

The immediate popularity of these shops caused sociologists to claim that working-class people were getting into debt, and racecourse officials contended that the new betting medium kept people away from tracks.

And the Derby again was a loss to English breeders. Winner in a sensational melee, when seven runners fell or were brought down, was the outsider Larkspur, trained in Ireland by Vincent O'Brien and owned by the U.S. sportsman Raymond Guest.

Grant Disagrees With Trumble

Import Signing No Tougher Than Before

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, whose last disagreement with Jim Trumble came during the Canadian football championships, is again on the other side of the fence from the head man of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Trumble said Wednesday that Canadian Football League teams are fighting a losing battle in the competition to sign United States college football players because they can't match the cheques handed out by the American and National Football Leagues.

Grant, whose Bombers beat Hamilton in the Grey Cup ahead, said in an interview: "I don't think that this year is noticeably tougher than any other as far as signing imports is concerned.

"I limit that we're going to be outbid in many cases on a straight cash basis, but our approach appeals strongly to a player's long-range views.

"We have had cases where boys have turned down higher original cash offers because they think they'll be farther ahead in the long run in Winnipeg."

The Bomber system, with night practices, allows players to establish themselves in full-time jobs while playing football.

Grant cited quarterback Kenny Ploen as a player who had been able to establish himself in business in Winnipeg.

Grant admitted that without the combined career aspect, Canadian football would be in trouble in enticing American players north of the border.

Jane Wyatt Becomes Fan Of Her Own Television Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It has been three years since Robert Young, Jane Wyatt and their television family" finale their final episode of Father Knows Best. But the series, in re-run, has been playing constantly in prime network time.

During the last season it has made a fan of one viewer who quite frankly, never enjoyed the program before—Jane Wyatt.

Miss Wyatt, in New York briefly to appear as hostess on Sunday night's Christmas show on NBC's Telephone Hour and to do a little shopping, confessed that during all the successful years of the show, she couldn't bear watching it.

"It could see where scenes had been edited out, where I had done something I didn't like—all the flaws," she said. "But now I think it's a pretty good show and I actually find myself enjoying it. Of course, I've forgotten all the scenes, and I don't remember the plots. So it is really like watching for the first time."

Father Knows Best fans continue to recognize—and often to address—Miss Wyatt as Mrs. Anderson or Margaret, the name of the character she played. And they are going to get a shock in the near future when she pops up in an episode of ABC's Going My Way playing Miss Fitch, disconcerted somewhat drunken wife.

AT THE PARK — Professor and Bride . . . Fred MacMurray and Nancy Olson are the happy couple getting married in Walt Disney's new comedy, "The Absent-Minded Professor", showing Monday, Dec. 24th at the Park Theatre, co-starring Keenan Wynn and Tommy Kirk. On the same program the added comedy "Once Upon A Mouse" stars Dan Haerys, Judi Morris and Martha Wentworth. A top cartoon "Wishing My Baby Back Home", Donald O'Connor, Janet Leigh, Buddy Hackett, K.U.

It would be hard to get a character further from Margaret Anderson.

Recommended Sunday viewing: Amahl and the Night Visitors, NBC 3:30-4:30 p.m. EST—repeat of the NBC Opera Company production.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Betty Grable returns to the footlights tonight after a two-year absence, and it's a pleasure to report that she's still in great shape.

That means 37-24-35.

"I haven't done a thing but play golf for two years," she reports, "but when I reported for costume fittings, I found the dimensions were exactly the same as when I was making pictures at Fox."

Betty opens with her oldtime co-star, Dan Dailey, in Guys and Dolls at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas.

She'll be playing the role of Adelaide, which she says she might have done in the Marlon Brando-Frank Sinatra film version except for an accident to her dog. Here's how she tells the story:

"I had a date one day to talk to Sam Goldwyn about doing the picture. It happened that on the same day my dog, who was 14 years old and like one of the family, hurt his paw and I had to rush him to the hospital. So I sent word that I couldn't keep the date.

"When Mr. Goldwyn heard that I broke a date with him because of a sick dog, he sent word that he never wanted to see me." Vivian Blaine got the role.

Betty is returning to action not because of any lure of the grease-paint—"I never was very hammy"—but because of the convenience of the engagement. She and Harry James now make their home in Las Vegas.

"It's a cinch for me," she said. "I just report to the show at 8 and go home at 11."

May Fight Harold Johnson

Champion To 'Pass Up' Patterson

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—Who will Sonny Liston meet in the first defence of his world heavyweight boxing title?

He has a contract for a return fight with Floyd Patterson. When, where and under whose promotion are all to be decided by Patterson.

In recent weeks, however, Liston's "adviser," Jack Nilon, has been talking of bypassing Patterson for another challenger. Tuesday he said arrangements are being made for a defence against light heavyweight champion Harold Johnson March 18 in Baltimore.

The question would seem to be whether Liston can legally bypass Patterson.

Nilon says he can. He says Championship Sports Incorporated, promoter of the Liston - Patterson fight, has broken the contract by failing to pay Liston for his first-round knockout of Patterson last Sept. 25. He claims other contract violations.

Nilon contends he talked with Tom Bolan and Roy Cohn of Championship Sports Wednesday night, and was told Liston would get the $200,000 owed him when he signed for the return match with Patterson. He said they want to put it on in April or May at Las Vegas.

ASK A BOND

"I answered by asking what assurances we'd have of collecting the 30 per cent we'd have coming for a Las Vegas fight. Would they guarantee payment by taking out a bond? They said they wouldn't get any bond."

Nilon's contention is that this contract has been breached.

"We're (he and Liston) both assured by our lawyers that our hands are free to do anything we want. If we make a match with Johnson they can go to court and try to stop it, but I think we can beat them there. Either way, what have we got to lose?"

Internal revenue service agents seized gate receipts and closed television receipts across the country the night of the first fight. More than $2,000,000 was tied up. A small part was released since then to enable the promoters to pay off certain obligations, including $30,000 to Liston.

Davis Cup Challenge

Likes Senors Over Aussies

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — A former Australian Davis Cup player, now a professional, warned Thursday that Australia is in danger of losing the international tennis trophy next week to Mexico.

"This is a strong spirited and dedicated team," said Ain Ayre, once a ranking world performer. "I must admit I am greatly impressed by what the Mexicans have shown me."

Ayre watched Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox whisk through a two-hour afternoon workout on Milton Courts where the challenge round between Australia and Mexico is scheduled Dec. 26-28.

"These boys are nothing like the Italians who played here the last few years," the Australian professional added.

"They have enthusiasm for the game. They are fit and tough and they show a lot of talent. If they happen to have a good day on Tuesday we could be in trouble."

Ayre was particularly impressed with Osuna, Mexico's No. 1 player. "He has one of the finest backhands I have ever seen in tennis," Ayre said.

Mexican - captain Pancho Contreras, on the other hand, said so much attention has been paid to Osuna that people are overlooking the 26-year-old Palafox.

"Antonio is playing beautifully," Contreras said. "I never have seen him in such excellent form."

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe, perennial right winger of Detroit Red Wings, captured the National Hockey League's individual scoring leadership with two goals against the visiting Boston Bruins Thursday night.

The two points give Howe clear title to first place with a total of 31—13 goals and 18 assists.

Chicago's Stan Mikita and New York's Andy Bathgate, both idle Thursday, hold second and third spot respectively with 30 and 29 points.

Tie for fourth with 28 points are four players, including the league leaders in goals and assists.

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto leads the four on the strength of his league-leading 18 goals. The Leaf left winger netted his 18th marker in Thursday's 4-4 tie at Montreal.

Boston's Johnny Bucyk counts 13 goals and 15 assists, and Chicago's Ab McDonald has 12 and 16. Last of the four is Alex Delvecchio of Detroit, whose 22 assists are tops in the NHL.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts
Howe, Detroit	13	18	31
Mikita, Chicago	12	18	30
Bathgate, New York	11	18	29
Mahovlich, Toronto	18	10	28

World Stood on War Brink Seven Fateful Days and Kennedy Emerged Victor

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — For seven fateful days in October the world stood at the brink of nuclear war. Then a swift Soviet retreat signalled a turning point in East-West relations.

The issue of Cuba had been at varying stages of crisis since the invasion debacle of 1961 but something new developed when United States intelligence officers began receiving reports of a Russian military buildup of offensive weapons on the Caribbean island.

First reports were conflicting and the officers tended to be dubious. President Kennedy had warned Premier Khrushchev he would not tolerate any action that would give Fidel Castro power to launch an attack in the Caribbean.

But in September the Kennedy administration became worried. A U.S. plane had photographed what appeared to be fuselages of Soviet medium jet bombers on the deck of a Soviet ship bound for Cuba.

Suddenly Soviet shipping to Cuba expanded. Khrushchev assured Washington most of the ships carried machinery and other factory goods. Weapons sent int oCuba were strictly defensive, he said.

On Oct. 14, the U.S. became convinced the Russians were lying. A high-flying U-2 spy plane brought back photographic evidence of nuclear bases in Cuba. Some, already under construction, would hit Washington. Others under construction would be able to reach virtually the U.S. east and southhalf of Canada and most of South America.

On Oct. 16, President Kennedy ordered a full-scale aerial surveillance of Cuba which disclosed bombers as well as missiles.

Then, conferring with an inner ring of his cabinet, he began to map a counter-action. The job wasn't easy. There were reports later his advisers were split. Some urged an immediate air strike, to eliminate the bases and missiles; others suggested a gradual step-up in pressure on Cuba. Dean Acheson, Dean Rusk, Robert McNamara, urged some form of political negotiations with the Russians.

Once the president made up his mind, others fell into line. Kennedy ordered an arms blockade of Cuba. And an ultimatum — Russia would be warned to get the weapons out or the U.S. would do the job, even if it meant nuclear war.

Kennedy, hung in Berlin in 1961 invasion fiasco, played his hand carefully. Surprise was an element of his plan. On Oct. 18, he touched on the Cuba issue in a- meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Gromyko assured him there were no nuclear missiles in Cuba.

Kennedy took off for the mid-west on a political tour. He developed a diplomatic "cold" and Saturday, Oct. 20, hurried back to Washington. The plan was ready to be sprung.

The original plan was to announce the blockade on the following day, Sunday. But State Secretary Dean Rusk wanted to inform as many American ambassadors as possible.

He also wanted to send special emissaries—Dean Acheson to President de Gaulle and Livingston Merchant to Prime Minister Diefenbaker—to provide full information before the president announced his plan. Rumors of some major crisis rushed through the capital. To maintain surprise, Kennedy could not wait much longer.

On Monday evening, Oct. 22, Kennedy told the world of his discovery and his demands. Khrushchev stormed. The blockade, he said, was nothing but a pirate's act. But he read the meaning of Kennedy's determination.

Thirty-nine hours after Kennedy's announcement the blockade was imposed after the Organization of American States gave its approgal.

A fleet of 25 Soviet ships was ordered. Would they stop? The moments clicked away. Then came the announcement: the ships appeared to have altered course.

For a total of seven days the threat of nuclear war remained. Kennedy wanted Soviet missiles and bombers out of Cuba and he wanted this done under United Nations supervision. Secret exchanges took place between the Soviet and American leaders. On Friday, Oct. 26, Kennedy thought he had full Khrushchev agreement to the demands.

That Khrushchev letter never was made public but American cars said later it bore the marks of a frightened man. Yet on Saturday, Oct. 27, Khrushchev suddenly changed course. He wouldn't take the missiles out unless Kennedy first agreed to remove nuclear missiles from Turkey.

Kennedy was stunned. What had caused the change? He replied there would be no removal of Turkish bases. On Sunday, Oct. 28, Khrushchev capitulated. First, in the weeks that followed, the missiles came out—42. Then the bombers—42. Then some of the Soviet troops in Cuba. There was no UN inspection — neither Castro nor Khrushchev would agree to it. And there was no assurance that such weapons might not again be shipped into Cuba.

But Kennedy also received formal assurance that he wouldn't invade Cuba. On Dec. 10, Rusk talked of a possible expansion of negotiations with Russia on other problems, even though the Cuban issue had not been resolved.

And on that day, U Thant, UN secretary-general, declared the Cuban crisis over.

UN Abolishes Watchdog Post Over Hungary

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly today approved a U.S. proposal to abolish the controversial post of Special United Nations Representative for Hungary, a watchdog mission set up after the 1956 uprising in Hungary.

Despite protests from Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, the special representative, the 110-nation Assembly voted 50 to 13 to transfer the Hungarian problem to Secretary - General U. Thant for any action he finds desirable. Forty-three countries abstained. The negative votes were cast by the Soviet bloc, Cuba, Guinea and Yugoslavia. Canada voted for the resolution.

CHECK MISSILE WITHDRAWAL FROM CUBA — A U.S. Navy patrol plane hovers overhead as the U.S. destroyer Barry pulls alongside the Soviet freighter Anesov in the Atlantic with a presumed cargo of canvas-covered missiles on deck. Some missiles were withdrawn from Cuba in one climactic chapter of the Cuban crisis. (CP from AP)
